Nothing more interesting than the meat question can be imagined at a time when the operatives of the packing houses are on strike and all the heads of families are confronted by a short supply of this great necessity, beef.

For the past two years or since the packing houses at Fort Worth, Texas, have been in operation, beef in refrigerator cars has been shipped via Shreveport and the Queen and Crescent route through Meridian to Birmingham, Atlanta, Savannah, and in fact all over the southeast. This meat is handled on a very fast train making nearly passenger train time by the same route over which runs a passenger train making 12 hours the fastest time between the southeast and points in north and central Texas.

The packers, Armour & Co., who operate the Fort Worth packing houses, recognizing the great advantage possessd by the Shreveport route, have never hesitated as to the routing of shipments via the Shreveport gateway.

I have, I belive, sold fifty boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets on the recommendation of one lady here, who first bought a box of them about a year ago. She never tires of telling her neighbors and friends about the good qualities of these Tablets.—P. M. Shore, Druggist, Rochester, Ind. FARM AND GARDEN

SHEEP AND GOOD PROFITS.

A sheep grower of large experience holds strongly to the value of sheep on the farm and gives some good suggestions, drawn from his own observation, in a recent letter to the American Sheep Breeder. He says:

Farmers can count not only on the capacity of the sheep to yield good profits on farms and, but they can count on a well established and general demand for mutton products. The primitive system of running sheep goes along with the time of intermittent and limited demand; but now owing to the improvement in the quality of mutton from selective feeding among the better class of sheepmen, mutton has become a staple. It has a place on the table of opulence with critical appetite, and on the table of the laborer as a cheap and nourishing meat diet. At the same time mutton is the handiest summer meat the farmer can have owing to its small size, its cheapness and to its being always available. It may be the case that sheep would be too hard on pasture intended for dairy cows and that they could not be profitably run on the same ground, especially if the area is limited, but they should not be regarded as belonging to a lower and more primitive state of agriculture but as being on a par with other special live stock interests. Though it may be inexpedient to run both on the same land a man may specialize in either on either good or cheap lands.

Sheep may be run on the side with some profit under ordinary conditions, but a farmer should look specializing on them if he is a good sheepman. One man turns his food products into beef, another into butter, and a third into pork. It would probably be better if the farmer is staying with the sheep business to increase the care and feed the stock involved in his sheep proposition. Instead of killing half a dozen lambs in a season and selling a dozen, he might as well handle a couple of hundred feeders or more if his circumstances will permit. Sheep in summer will restore the fertility of exhausted dairy farms and in winter will increase in weight and fatten cheaply and convert a great deal of rough stuff into good manure. When the dairy business has run along for a while there will be a lot of fellows out looking for sheep to yield them a profit and restore the lowered fertility of their lands.

GIVE THE HOGS MORE RANGE.

A very common practice, and yet a very injurious practice, among farmers is to confine their swine in close pens, not allowing them free range and a change of atmosphere. The original hog had the freedom of the woods where he could dig for roots and obtain other things possessing medicinal qualities; consequently he was much healthier, and less liable to cholera and other contagious diseases. All animals like a change of diet. This they can get when allowed a large pasture to roam over, as there will be found there so many kinds of weeds that they will relish, which will greatly improve the appetite. Notice the difference between two bunchs of hogs; one which has been closely confined, the other which has had plenty of range and change of sleeping apartments. You will readily notice the difference in appearance, health, growth, etc. Another very poor practice is to allow hogs to sleep on piles of manure, or around old straw stacks, and when allowed to do this, ere long the hogs will show the effects of such poor practice—as some will show signs of poor health and also stunted condition from over heating and over laying. Grain being more costly than the grasses it is therefore a point of economy to gain as many pounds as possible by the use of grass. It has been well said that "variety is the spice of life." This is as true of the life of animals as of man. Don't feed those pigs so much grain, give them such food as will be conducive of more growth and less flesh. Prepare a pasture especially adapted to the needs and wants of the pigs; such as clover, peas, rape, etc., and you will have stronger and better hogs. Hogs weighing about 200 pounds, well-fattened, are bringing the top of the market now. The large coarse hog is no longer in such demand; this works a great saving to the producers, as it is possible to make market toppers in six to nine months, so that it is not necessary to winter any thing but the brood sows; spring pigs being marketed in the fall. In this way, too, they can be matured at less cost than those that have to be wintered before fattening. Think it a better plan to give even those hogs that are on full feed a chance to roam some, as they will not over do this if water is handy to the feed pen.—Epitomist.

TOO MUCH IN-BREEDING.

More than a dozen complaints of weak pigs, with all sorts of diseases, have reached the writer within the last month, and in nearly every case inquiry has brought out the fact that the degenerates were the results of too close in-breeding. This is a common fault in many sections, and until it is overcome there is little use in hoping to raise pigs that will be profitable. Combine too close in-breeding with the corn diet so common and one has a state of affairs which is lamentable. Sell the boar or kill him; anything to get him off your farm.

Then invest in a good boar that is not related to your sows. When the pigs are being raised, feed them something which will give them bone and muscle. Leave out most of the corn until fattening time, when they can use it to their advantage and your profit. Feed the growing pigs middlings, bran and some dried bloodmeal; give them plenty of exercise, plenty of water and a dry place to sleep and there will be little difficulty in raising good hogs. The next year, change boars again so that there will be no relationship between him and the sows.—Indianapolis News.

VALUE OF SOOT.

Chimney soot, says the American Fertilizer, is one of the richest fertilizers known. That from coal is very rich in ammonia. When coal is burned, ammonia is set free, and during the various changes which take place during the process sulphite and carbonite of ammonia are both formed. Soot is a highly compound substance, containing in its composition not only ammonia, but lime, sulphuric acid, nitric acid, acetic acid, chlorine and iron, nearly all of which are valuable, directly or indirectly. The value of soot is well known in England, where it sells for about £10 a ton, or about $48. It is often thrown away as worthless by those who do not know its value, but careful farmers should save every ounce for use. Sprinkled around some kinds of plants it often prevents attacks from insects, and the rains then carry it down into the earth, where it does duty as a fertilizer. Soot from coal has been once thought to be a very worthless substance, but experience and science have taught us to know better.

NEW VARIETIES OF FRUIT.

In the great majority of cases, new varieties of tomatoes, as of other fruits, are not "produced"; they are rather discovered, says a writer in Country Life in America. One finds a new form in his garden and propagates it. Some of the new forms will not propagate themselves readily from seed, whereas others will "come true" to a greater or less extent. Now and then a man sets out to produce a definite variety. Just what means he shall employ will depend entirely upon the character of the particular problem. The peach-tomato, for instance, like many others, was probably a chance seedling.

NOTE THE INCREASE.

It will be found an excellent plan to weigh the chicks every week and observe their increase. Take ten chicks, or even adults, from among the whole number, weigh them every week, and keep an account of the exact amount of food consumed, and you will know more regarding the matter of expense, profit or ratio of gain required than could be derived in any other manner. Experiments with different kinds of food could also be easily made, and chicks of several breeds could be used for comparison. It would take but a small proportion of time, while the knowledge gained would be invaluable.

THE VALUE OF SILO.

The silo has opened advantages to dairymen in other countries where corn does not mature. In England, where the conditions are unfavorable for the production of matured crops of corn, the farmers sow corn for fodder, store it in the silo, and then grow a crop of turnips on the land from which they took the fodder. The same system can be practiced in this country, but our farmers are content with one crop, and thus do not derive as much from the land as is possible to be obtained. The land in England is high, and farmers pay high rents, but they do not hesitate to apply manures and fertilizers liberally and get large crops in return.

GROWING TOMATOES.

Take the trouble to place good, strong stakes around tomato vines, fasten the vines securely to the stakes and they will be more prolific, while the fruit will ripen quicker and be less liable to disease. When thus supported, the hoe can be used for keeping the ground clean around the vines. As an experiment pinch back a few vines and compare them with the others. No farmer can buy as good tomatoes as he can grow.

Just How Stubborn a Mule Is.

A story comes from the Elmdale flood about a stubborn mule. He was said to be a $1,500 jack. In attempting to lead him out of the flood he had to cross a little ditch that would almost swim him. Several men got one one side of the ditch, the mule on the other, and they all tugged away at the halter rope, but the mule would not budge. He stood there several hours until the water got up around his neck and he decided to move. Nothing less serious than a prospect of drowning could have budged him—Emporia Gazette.

THE DWARFS OF AFRICA:

ANTHROPOLOGISTS VERY MUCH INTERESTED IN THESE PECULIAR PEOPLE.

Du Chaillu's Book, Published in 1861, Gave the First Modern Information Relating to the Pigmies of Equatorial Africa.

The news that the Rev. Mr. Verner is returning to his old missionary field in the southern part of the Congo basin with about 25 dwarfs for the anthropological exhibition at St. Louis, will interest not only the visitors there but also a wide circle of scientific men. Anthropologists have for years improved all opportunities to study these curious peoples, whose chief peculiarity is that they are much under the average stature, but they have been studied chiefly in Africa, for only a few of them have been taken to Europe. The party now coming to America numbers at least twice as many dwarfs as up to this time, have been taken from their forest homes.

Du Chaillu's book, published in 1861, gave the first modern information relating to the dwarfs of Equatorial Africa, the results of his discovery of the Obongo tribe near the west coast, north of the Congo river. The dwarfs now on their way to America are from the Batwa family, living on the southern tributaries of the Congo, whose existence was not known till 1885 and 1886, when four famous Congo travellers, Wolff, Wissmann, Grenfell and Von Francois, brought them to light.

"Don't go near these dwarfs," was the admonition of the Congo natives to Grenfell. "They permit no one to enter their country. They poison all their weapons. They are the ugliest of mortals and have great heads with bearded chins upon the smallest of bodies." Sure enough, Grenfell and Von Francois found beards on the faces of many of the Batwa, but the heads of the dwarfs are not disproportionately large and their features are not especially ugly. Unlike their cousins, the Akka, who live in the northeastern part of the Congo basin and go nearly naked, the Batwa wear a wide strip of native cloth around their little loins.

Verner has lived for years among these little people. If he had not become well acquainted with them and won their confidence he could not easily get them down to the sea and embark them on an ocean vessel. In the very district where Verner lived so long, Van Francois drew a lively picture of the bowling little demons who showered hundreds of arrows that dashed against the steel network which protected his steamer or stuck in its wooden sun roof. Grenfell saw the same little warriors clambering along precipitious slopes or swinging like monkeys from limb to limb of trees and climbing out on branches overhanging the water so that they might speed their arrows at shorter range against the man who had dared to intrude upon their privacy. He said their ear-splitting yells were out of all proportion to their physical significance. The blank cartridges he fired at them, however, had an excellent moral effect upon the little folks when they took to canoes and seemed bent on making a prize of the white man's boat.

One day Dr. Wolff, pushing up another stream in the same district where missionaries are now living, suddenly came upon about 20 tumbledown beehive huts, the homes of the Batwa. It was the first time he had met them and they were so awestruck by his sudden advent that they would hardly utter a word. A crowd of nearly a hundred coffee-brown little folks, none of the larger than children two-thirds grown, stood timidly at a distance. After some hours the explorer won their confidence so far that they permitted him to approach and he took the heights of many of them on a spear shaft. His measurements of full-grown adults varied from 4 feet 3 inches to 4 feet 7 1-2 inches. Their average height has since been found to be about 4 feet 5 inches. Unlike the Akka, the Batwa are not unusually prognathous nor have they disproportionately large abdomens, but most of them are compact, well-built little creatures without any physical peculiarity except their small size.

This was long before the days of the missionary stations south of the Congo river. Today the wide region where the Batwa hunt is the home of a considerable number of white teachers and rubber collectors. The dwarfs no longer look upon the whites as enemies who have come among them to destroy them. It is because they have given the strangers their confidence that a single white man, by gentle means, is now bringing a party of them to America. They will arouse much curiosity and interest here; and when they go home they will have wonderful stories to relate of the unknown world to which they are soon to be introduced.—New York Sun.

Proving the Convexity of the Earth.

An experiment was made a hundred years ago or so on the Bridgewater canal, in England, to prove the convexity of the earth. At intervals of five miles in a straight stretch of the canal three posts were driven until their tops were precisely six feet above the surface of the water. Then careful measurements and observations were made from either end, with the result that the top of the centre post was found to be some distance above a line drawn from top to top of the first and last posts.

The experiments were repeated a number of times, always with the same result. This proves for ordinary persons that the earth is convex, but scientists reached the same conclusions by more scientific ways.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED "THE INDUSTRIAL CONFLICT."

The Rev. John D. Long Gives Some Wholesome Advice About Present-Day Problems—The Causes of Discontent and the Remedies.

BABYLON, L. I.—In the old First Presbyterian Church here, Sunday morning, the Rev. John D. Long, pastor, preached on "The Industrial Conflict." The text was from Ecclesiastes ii 22: "What hath a man for all his labor?" Mr. Long said:

The writer of this text was asking as to the rewards of life. Let us accommodate it to the conflict now waging between capital and labor. It is the old question of the laborer and his hire. What are the teachings of Holy Writ on the question?

Here, as elsewhere, we believe that the Gospel applies, for as Ruskin suggests, the Gospel bears upon life at every point, and is either good for everything or good for nothing.

Civilization is based upon labor—human, animal, mechanical. What we call capital is at bottom only accumulated labor. The day laborer lays brick in a wall; that is labor. He saves up a part of his wage, and that becomes capital. Mechanical labor, by which most of the world's work is now done, is human labor invested in machinery, and working through the same.

Of course, money or capital is secured not only through saving and invention, but in many other ways, yet human effort is back of it all, and it becomes a sort of call loan upon the bank of labor. Was it not Emerson who said, "He that hath a dollar is master of all to the extent of that dollar?"

Vast fortunes have been piled up by those who have invented machines by which mechanism may take the place of human hands. Thus the inventor is enabled to draw the wages of thousands. We all know how largely the machine has superseded the naked hand in the manufacture of a thousand and one articles of daily use. Take, for example, pins and needles and nails.

To be sure, many great fortunes have been made by other means than by machinery, but in the main the wealth of modern times is founded upon mechanical labor.

Before asking what the letter or spirit of the Bible teaches on the labor question, let us face the situation of to-day. Organized labor and capital are in conflict. There are strikes and rumors of strikes. Each strike is a battle in the war.

It may be well to observe that organized labor has as yet only a fraction of the total labor army, but it is a fraction that is increasing.

Why this warfare? Because labor on the one hand is dissatisfied with its share of the rewards of industry, and because, on the other, capital constantly seeks to reduce the cost of production by opposing the demands of labor.

Other factors, however, enter into the situation. One arises from the development of the modern corporation. Whether corporations have souls or not, they lack in large measure the element of personality and the personal touch. Men who work for a corporation are working in the main for an unknown entity. Now, we remember that among the old-time Romans the word for stranger was also the word for enemy.

Further, there has been much dishonesty in corporate dealings. Take such things as the corrupt purchase of public franchises below value, the increase in cost of certain necessities of life by reason of unjust combinations to keep up prices. These and other similar crimes against the community have done much to inflame not only labor, but the general public against capital.

Also, the rising standard of life, by which the living wage gets further and further from the meagre pittance that would suffice to support the frugal Chinaman, leads the laborer to constantly demand a more and more generous wage.

Still other grounds of hostility might be referred to, such as the natural, though sinful, envy of the rich by the poor, the ostentatious luxury of the rich, the growth of class distinctions between the poor and the rich and the inequality of pecuniary rewards. The men who discovered the priceless boon of anesthesia—who found that surgery might be rendered painless by the use of such agents as chloroform and ether—gained but little money from their discoveries. They doubtless might have traded on the world's fear of pain, and by using the patent laws and secrecy secured wealth beyond the dreams of avarice, but to their honor they did not. On the other hand, the men who introduced such improved and cheapened methods as the Bessemer process of producing steel gained money by the hundred millions. So people are tempted to ask, "Have not some men been rather selfish, to say the least, in the acquisition of their wealth? And may they not have obtained a little more than their share?"

Before we go further let us ask what is to be the probable outcome of the war between labor and capital? Is it an irrepressible conflict, or can the opposing interests be reconciled? The answer is already being given. Take such a situation as may now be seen in the coal trade of Chicago. After bitter fighting the dealers and the teamsters have come together to monopolize the coal trade of the city and keep out all competition. Wages and profits have been put up at the expense of the outside public. This is likely to go on more and more.

The ultimate outcome, unless the tendency is checked, will be organization all along the line until we have collectivism—a vast organized machine, in which men will be cogs and individual initiative and personality will be restricted to an extent that will largely arrest the progress of civilization.

But let us take a breath and turn to the Bible. What are the teachings of the Bible in regard to labor and wealth? The Old Testament is plainly anti-capitalistic. In proof of this you have but to read the laws regarding capital in the Book of Leviticus—laws that, if enforced, would compel plain living as surely as the iron coin of Sparta. Hear what was laid down there. Land was allotted in small parcels to the families of the tribes, and could not be alienated except for the term of fifty years. "And ye shall hallow this fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be a jubilee unto you; and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family." (Leviticus xxv:10).

Interest could not be charged on loans. "And if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt relieve him; yea, though he be a stranger or a sojourner; that he may live with thee. Thou shalt not lend him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase." (Leviticus xxv:35-6).

Finally, there was the statute of limitations with reference to loans. "At the end of every seven years thou shalt make a release. And this is the manner of the release; every creditor that lendeth aught unto his neighbor shall release it." (Deuteronomy xv:1-2).

The attitude of the Old Testament toward wealth is perhaps best reflected in the prayer of Agur—"Give me neither poverty nor riches * * * lest I be full, and deny Thee, and say, Who is the Lord? or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain." (Proverbs xxx:8-9).

I need hardly remind you that the great character dominating every page of the New Testament was a poor man, without house or home. His attitude toward labor on the one hand and capital on the other may be imagined. It is well put by Dr. Henry J. Van Dyke:

"Never in a costly palace did I rest on golden bed,
Never in a hermit's cavern have I eaten idle bread.
Born within a lowly stable, where the cattle round Me stood,
Trained a carpenter in Nazareth, I have toiled and found it good.
They who tread the path of labor follow where My feet have trod;
They who work without complaining do the holy will of God.
Where the many toil together, there am I among My own.
Where the tired workman sleepeth, there am I with him alone.
I, the peace that passeth knowledge, dwell amid the daily strife.
I, the bread of heaven, am broken in the sacrament of life."

While there is never any bitterness in the Master's utterance regarding wealth, His views may be readily gathered from such parables as that of Dives and Lazarus (Luke xvi:19).

Again, we have the same attitude in the passage on the camel and the needle's eye (Matthew xix:23).

Not only was the Lord poor, but His apostles were all poor men, who placed no value on wealth. Paul, the greatest of apostolic preachers, supported himself by manual labor, and taught: They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil." (I Timothy vi:9-10). On the whole, the attitude of the New Testament is one of warning against the seductions of wealth.

The evangelical churches stand upon the word of Scripture, and so in sympathy with labor. In fact, of some 7,000,000 of male members in the evangelical churches of our land, not less than 6,000,000 are wage earners or manual laborers. So that the claim that the modern church has departed from the position occupied by the apostolic church is not well founded.

What, then, from the letter and spirit of the Bible in connection with the teachings of experience is to be suggested as a means of curing the quarrel between labor and capital?

First, let there be closer personal relations between the rich and the poor. Let them meet together in the fellowship of God's house and the Divine Fatherhood. Out of mutual acquaintance will come mutual respect, and a recognition of a common humanity.

You may remember Emerson's story of the quarrel between the mountain and the squirrel, where he says:

"The mountain and the squirrel
Had a quarrel,
And the former called the latter 'Little prig.'
Bun replied,
'You are doubtless very big.
But all sorts of things and weather
Must be taken in together
To make up a year
And a sphere.
And I think it no disgrace
To occupy my place.
If I'm not as large as you,
You are not so small as I,
And not half so spry.
I'll not deny you make
A very pretty squirrel track.
Talents differ, all is well and wisely put;
If I cannot carry forests on my back,
Neither can you crack a nut."

Then there should be a deeper interest taken by capital in the financial well-being of labor. Such devices as profit sharing, old age pensions and the like will give the workman a sense of greater security and of partnership with capital.

Interest taken in the proper housing of labor, although not always appreciated, is in the right line. So, too, the introduction of the social secretary as an intermediary between the corporation and the employe.

Another thing needed, not so much in the interests of labor or capital, but in the interests of [illegible] non-combatants, [illegible] arbitration, applied at least where the public suffers intolerable inconvenience, as in the case of a railroad, telegraph or coal strike. Compulsory arbitration may not always be satisfactory to the combatants, but it is essential to the peace and comfort of those not involved in the controversy. This remedy, or military control, as in the recent railway strikes in Holland and Austria, should be used to protect the public.

The sovereign remedy, however, must be not by recourse to legal means, but by the application of the royal law. James (ii:8), after speaking of the relations between the rich and the poor, says: "If ye fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well." This is the aqua regia, the royal solvent, in which we may solve all the hard asperities of conflicting interests.

Only as men come to know God through Christ, whom He has sent, and so come to love their fellow men, will it be possible to solve these questions of controversy in a way that will insure the permanent progress of our civilization.

What we need, after all, is not measures, but men.

Men who shall join in chorus and prolong
The psalm of labor and of love.
The age wants heroes—heroes who shall dare
To struggle in the solid ranks of truth;
To clutch the monster, error, by the throat;
To bear opinion to a loftier seat;
To blot the error of oppression out,
And lead a universal freedom in."

Faces That Comfort One.

"I wish some people knew just how much their faces can comfort one!" The speaker was a young woman who had passed through deep sorrows; she was telling a friend how many people comforted her, though they were unconscious of it. The Epworth Herald tells the story. "I often ride down in the same street car with your father, and it has been such a help to me to sit next to him. There is something so good and strong and kind about him, it has been a comfort just to feel he was beside me. Sometimes, when I have been utterly depressed and discouraged, he has seemed somehow to know just the right word to say to me; but, if he didn't talk, why I just looked at his face, and that helped me. He probably has not the least idea of it, for I know him so slightly, and I don't suppose people half realize, anyway, how much they are helping or hindering others!" There is a great deal of this unconscious kindness in the world. Moses wist not that his face shone. The best people are not aware of their goodness. According to the old legend, it was only when it fell behind him, where he could not see it, that the saintly man's shadow healed the sick. This is a parable. Goodness that is aware of itself has lost much of its charm. Kindnesses that are done unconsciously mean the most.

Deception.

The one who successfully deceives another makes it hard for himself afterward when the deception shall have been discovered—as it is sure to be in time. He will always be distrusted; no matter whether he is again attempting deception or not. The only method that wins clear to the end is honesty.—Wellspring.

The "Bans" Forbidden.

We forbid the bans between rum, religion and politics of whatever party and whatever sect, and in the name of God and humanity, we proclaim a union holy and inviolable, of affection as well as of interest, between temperance, religion and politics of every party and every sect.—Neal Dow.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement to any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain, and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—Miss ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave. South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee, Minneapolis Study Club. $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

BUDGET OF HUMOR

A POOR EXCUSE.

There was a young man at Fort Blainey,
Who proposed to a typist named Janey.
When his friend cried, "Oh, dear!
She's so old and so queer!"
He replied, "But the day was so rainy."—Chicago Journal.

PERHAPS.

Mrs. Highmore (with cold dignity)—"To what am I indebted for the honor of this visit?"

Unexpected Caller—"To your careless servant. I dare say she forgot that you were not at home."—Chicago Tribune.

WHY HE LIKED IT.

"You friend looked at the lines in my palm the other evening," said Miss Elderly, "and he said it was a great pleasure to read such a hand as mine."

"Yes," assented Miss Paraffine. "George is a great hand to read ancient history."—Indianapolis Sun.

GREAT ADVANTAGE.

Silas—My son Hiram writes from college that he is learning French.

Cyrus—By heck, a college education is some use, after all. If he ever gets a job as waiter he can write the menu cards.—Chicago News.

EXTRA ITEM.

Guest (to landlord)—You have the grandest scenery around here that I ever laid eyes on!

Landlord (aside to clerk)—Put $6 extra on his bill for scenery.—Atlanta Constitution.

HE ENJOYED IT.

"You're one of the few men I have met who didn't object to his mother-in-law paying a long visit."

"Me object to my mother-in-law! I should say not!"

"You get along well, then?"

"You bet we do. And you ought to see her boss my wife around.—Baltimore World.

ANNOYED.

"I am strongly inclined to think that your husband has appendicitus," said the physician.

"That's just like him," answered Mrs. Cumrox. "He always waits till everything has pretty near gone out of style before he decides to get it."—Washington Star.

A PROPER TITLE.

"He's had his verses published in book form, I believe."

"Yes; he calls the book 'Fugitive Verses.'"

"That's rather appropriate. They compelled him to fly for his life from some of the editors to whom he submitted them."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

IT WOULD SEEM SO.

"Truth," remarked the moralizer, "is stranger than fiction."

"Yes," remarked the demoralizer, "and the majority of men seem to be shy of associating with strangers."—Chicago News.

HELPING HIM ALONG.

Mr. Staylate—Gracious! it's nearly midnight. I should be going pretty soon, I suppose.

Miss Patience Gonne—Well, yes, you know the old saying: "Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today."—Philadelphia Press.

NO OUTWARD INDICATIONS.

"You told me he was a multimillionaire."

"That's what I've always understood."

"Well, he isn't. I've seen him eat. He has the stomach of an ostrich, and he gives dollar tips."—Chicago Tribune.

WHY SHE HATES HIM.

Bessie—There goes that Mr. Primple. How I do hate the man!

Kitty—The idea! Not a single word has ever passed between you and him.

Bessie—But you should have seen the way that he and Bertha Twittie went on at the reception last night. I never did like Bertha.—Boston Transcript.

TOLD AT LAST.

"Oh, I don't know," retorts the fluttery lady. "I've kept my age a secret since I was twenty-four."

"Yes, but one of these days you will give it away. In time you will simply have to tell it."

"Well, I think that when a woman has kept a secret for twenty years she comes pretty near knowing how to keep it."—Judge.

"Has your mother finally consented to your marriage with Dick?"

"She dotes on him just because she pities him. I don't for a minute think that he is as short sighted as he pretends to be, but he rushed in Sunday evening, kissed mother twice and apologized beautifully by telling her that he thought he was kissing me."—Detroit Free Press.

Impoverished Beds Greatly Improved by Artificial Means.

It has been observed that oysters grow much slower on some beds than on others; that in certain places they fail to fatten, writes Barton W. Evermann in The National Geographical Magazine. These places were usually on overcrowded beds, and sometimes good results could be secured by transplanting or thinning out. Qualitative and quantitative study of the diatoms (which constitute the food of oysters) on beds where the oysters fatten well, and on other beds where they fatten poorly, showed that the number of diatoms per liter of water was very much greater in the former than in the latter.

It was, therefore, believed that if the supply of diatoms could be increased on the unproductive beds the oysters on them would grow and fatten. Experiments along these lines were recently inaugurated at Lynnhaven, Va., under the immediate direction of Dr. H. F. Moore of the bureau of fisheries. A small cove was selected where the bottom and the salinity of the water were favorable, but where diatoms were scarce. Commercial fertilizers of certain kinds were used to furnish food for the diatoms, and it was very soon found that the latter greatly increased in abundance, and lean oysters transferred to this cove fattened rapidly. Details of the process need not be given here, but it is believed that the experiments will demonstrate the entire practibility of the artificial feeding and fattening of oysters on a commercial basis.

Veteran of Mexican and Spanish Wars

Only one veteran of the Mexican and Spanish wars has thus far applied for a pension from the government. The one applicant is C. B. Hunt, who was once a resident of Massachusetts. Any veteran of the Mexican war who survived to fight against Spain must have been nearly three score and ten years old, the allotted span of life, and the man who enlists at the age of 70 must needs be patriotic and well fortified with a strong constitution in order to undertake the fatigues of a second campaign.—Boston Advertiser.

But one divorcee has been admitted to share a European throne during the last 100 years, namely, Empress Caroline of Austria. A daughter of the first king of Bavaria, she was married when barely sixteen to King William I. of Wurtemberg. After six years of marriage she latter was dissolved by means of a divorce and two years later she became the fourth wife of Emperor Francis I. of Austria, father-in-law of the first Napoleon and last bearer of the title of emperor of the holy Roman empire.

The life of an express locomotive in England is estimated at twenty-five years; that of a freight locomotive at twenty-six years, that of an ordinary passenger engine at twenty-five and that of a switch engine at twenty-seven. In the United States the life of an express locomotive is eighteen years, of a freight engine, sixteen years, of a passenger engine nineteen years and of a switch engine twenty-two years. In eighteen years, however, the American machine has run 2,000,000 miles—double the average travel of an English locomotive.

The Western Society of Engineehs, at Chicago, Ill., recently heard a paper read by John M. Sweeney, on pulverized coal for combustion under steam boilers. Results of comparitive trials showed that 9.4 pounds of water, equivalent evaporation from and at 212 degrees Fahr., were realized per pound of fuel with the pulverized coal, and 7.5 pounds per pound of fuel with hand firing. On the basis of combustible the equivalent evaporation in the two cases was 10.47 and 8.4 pounds, respectively.

The first railway in Iceland will probably soon be begun by an English company recently formed for the purpose of working the sulphur mines at Theistareykir, in the north of Iceland, says The Times correspondent at Copenhagen. Pearls Found in Wisconsin Rivers.

J. A. Young, who has just retired after four years of service as mayor of Brodhead, is one of the oldest dealers in Washington pearls and came to the city yesterday to sell pearls to some of the local jewelers. To some friends at the hotel, Mr. Young exhibited some of his rare specimens, among which was one for which he said he would not take $10,000. "I believe it is the most perfect pearl in the country today," said Mr. Young. "I have been told this by experts and I have seen none better. I have been engaged in the buying and selling of pearls for 17 years, ever since pearls were first found in Wisconsin rivers. The first pearls were found at that time by a Norwegian, who was fishing on the Sugar river. He realized that they were valuable and kept at the business for two years before people realized what he was about. Then he sent the pearls to New York and received a check for about $600. After that he began to spend his money and took in two Yankees as partners. That ended it for him."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The first section of the Piraeus-Larissa railway was declared open recently. The chairman of the railway company, after the opening ceremony, pointed out the advantages to be derived, not only by Greece but by international traffic, when the line was completed, and connected with the Turkish railway system; and he stated that within two months it would be open as far as Livadia, thus bringing the fertile district of Boeotia into railway communication with the sea, both at Chalcis and at the Piraeus.

An excellent illustration of how electricity is superseding steam in many quarters is found in a contract recently awarded by a shipbuilding company of Buffalo. The company has decided to install electric power to pump out its floating dry docks in the Erie basin. The motors to be constructed will work the pumps much faster than the steam engines formerly in use, it being estimated that the docks can be cleared in two and one-half hours less time. To accomplish this a 35-horsepower motor will be located on each side of the two docks, and the electricity will be supplied by a cable laid along the bottom of the basin.

Dear Sir

"I took Peruna last summer when I was all run down, and had a headache and backache, and no ambition for anything. I now feel as well as I ever did in all my life, and all thanks is due to your excellent Peru."—Bess F. Healy.

The symptoms of summer catarrh are quite unlike in different cases, but the most common ones are general lassitude, played out, tired-out, used up, run-down feelings, combined with more or less heavy, stupid, listless, mental condition. Relish for food and the ability to digest food seems to be lost.

Skin eruptions, sallow complexion, biliousness, coated tongue, fitful, irregular sleep, help to complete the picture which is so common at this season.

Peruna so exactly meets all these conditions that the demand is so great for this remedy at this season of the year that it is nearly impossible to supply it.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotics of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring the drug habit.

Thousands of women suffer from pelvic catarrh and catarrhal nervousness and don't know it. If you feel fagged out, begin at once taking Dr. Hartman's Peruna. It will relieve your catarrhal affliction and all your organs will be restored to health. By a bottle to-day, as it will immediately alleviate your case.

IRRIGATION DEVICES.

Various Kinds of Dams Used For Turning Water From Ditches.

The general attention now devoted to irrigation gives interest to all the practical details of the business. For the beginner and the small irrigator at least it may not come amiss to mention the usual devices for turning water from ditches. The crudest way, of course, is to make a cut in the side with a spade and throw the dirt into the ditch to make a dam. Some simple homemade devices will obviate the manifest disadvantage of this method.

stout, closely woven cloth or canvas, one side of which is rolled around and nailed to a crosspiece of wood of length and strength according to the size of the ditch and the amount of water to be dammed. Sometimes it is made with a hem across one side deep enough to allow the crosspiece to be thrust through the hem. In using the dam place the stick across the top of the dry ditch where it is desired to throw the water out, draw the lower edge of the cloth up the bottom of the ditch and place a little dirt on the corners. The canvas must always be large enough to have several inches lap against the sides of the ditch; otherwise it will not retain all the water. Should the ditch have a steep grade it will be necessary to let the canvas fill up gradually, as a sudden rush of water would force the cloth from its position. When the dam is in position, it will be necessary to cut the bank of the ditch at the places where the water is wanted. Two cloth dams will be needed in order to place one in position while the other throws the water out above, it being difficult to lay the canvas under a full head of water. The water will press the canvas against the sides and bottom of the ditch, so that none can escape. To remove the cloth take hold of one end of the scantling and pull slowly upstream.

A metal dam or "tappoon" is on some accounts preferable to the cloth, and it, too, is readily made. Heavy sheet iron is cut into some circular shape, and the straight edge is securely fastened between two narrow strips of wood by carriage bolts which pass through the strips and through holes punched in the iron sheet, or it may be more cheaply made by securely nailing the iron to one side of a single thicker strip of wood, like a piece of scantling. These metal dams are made of different sizes according to the ditch in which they are to be used, their diameter being a little more than the width of the ditch, as the edges must be pushed down a little way into the earth of the ditch banks and bottom. They are placed in the ditch at or near the point where it is desired to turn out the water. These metal dams are also used in the openings in the banks of ditches either to close them when checks are full or to partly close them and still permit part of the stream to enter the check to balance the soaking away. They are made with sliding gates to be opened when part of the stream is allowed to pass through for any purpose.

Wooden dams are of much use in quite small ditches and as gates for handling small overflows into checks.

Wheat In the South.

Reports of an unusually short crop of wheat are being received from most of the southern states. The principal reason for this short crop seems to have been the extremely cold weather last December, which killed back the young wheat and injured the stand greatly where it had just come up. The farmers were unusually late in planting last fall, the weather was very dry and everything seemed to conspire against them. We should all learn a lesson from this experience and not put off planting until so late. From the 15th of October to the 15th of November is the best time in middle and north Georgia. In any locality wheat should be planted early enough to get well rooted before very cold weather. I would not advise sowing in the region mentioned before the middle of October, as there might be some danger of the wheat being injured by the fly, but it is usually safe to sow after the first white frost, says F. J. Merriam in Southern Cultivator.

Six to Eight Cuttings From Alfalfa.

Alfalfa planted in October in Louisiana upon well prepared land at the rate of fifteen to twenty pounds of seed per acre and well covered affords the first cutting in March or early in April. Six to eight cuttings a year may be expected. Fed either green or cured, it is a valuable forage, rich in protein and exceedingly palatable to all animals.

The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

ROLLING A HIGHWAY.

Some Points About Road Rollers and Their Use.

Every road is made smoother and harder by rolling, and dirt roads are no exception to this rule, says Isaac B. Potter. We have all noticed that the hardest and smoothest parts of a country road are the narrow strips which mark the passage of the wagon wheels that have gone over it, and these parts have become hard and smooth because the wheels have acted as rollers. But a wagon wheel is not always a very satisfactory roller, for the reason that the wheel tires are too narrow, and when the road is wet and soft the narrow wheels sink into the surface and form ruts and cut and mix and mangle the dirt out of all reason and destroy the good qualities of the roadway. If all the wagons used on country roads could be provided with tires four inches wide, they would roll the surface more smoothly and more quickly, and it would be in fairly good condition for nearly the whole year round.

can be bought for from $80 to $100 per ton. A roller weighing about five tons is about the proper thing. Steam rollers are becoming more generally used from year to year in our cities and towns, and there are many places where they can be used to advantage in consolidating the earth roads of the suburbs. They are generally more effective in their work and if kept busy are vastly cheaper to operate. They weigh from seven or eight tons upward, the ten and twelve ton sizes being perhaps the most popular.

Rolling should follow closely upon the work of the road grader or scraper so as to consolidate all the loose earth which the action of the scraper has laid in the line of the roadway. The roller should pass many times over the softer portions of the road, and where the road is very dry and not inclined to pack it may be slightly moistened to hasten the action of the roller. The rolling should begin at the sides of the road and work gradually toward the center—that is, the roller should be passed from end to end along the side of the road, and then the second passage of the roller should slightly lap the first until the center of the road is reached.

AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:

"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:

Corn In Kansas.

Orange Judd Farmer concludes, after special investigation, that the corn crop prospects of Kansas, as a whole, have probably not been lowered more than 5 per cent through recent unfavorable weather conditions, although there has been damage in the north central and north western counties.

Timely Reminders.

The Carolina and Willowleaf are among the best of the lima beans, and Creaseback is a good wax variety.

Eggplants require very fertile soil for their best development.

Brussels sprouts is an excellent vegetable, hardly appreciated as it should be in the south. It is grown the same as late cabbage.

Cauliflower seed sown in August and transplanted in September makes magnificent heads if not caught by early frosts.

To obtain extra large artichoke buds only those on terminal branches should be allowed to grow.

Energy

The health of this community is good. We had a nice rain Sunday last, but we have had very little rain this year and crops are sorry. If the candidates would stop speaking so much we believe that we would have more rain, for they keep up a fuss and it gets the preachers wrong and will be soon be through. Mr. M. E. Culpepper takes the Banner. I like Texas and know that it has suited the people with regard to health and hope that they have got good crops. I would like to hear how the Irish potatoes turned out and the sweet potatoes. We have had nice weather for politics.

IN SHAKERTOWN.

In shakertown the people are all shook up and many are shook into a heap and smashed. Some blamed it on the drouth and some on their religion. Some cursed the agricultural region. Though on the whole they didn't agree. They shook with unanimity.

A traveler, as he passed that way,
With pity deep to them did say:
Oh, why in this sad state remain,
When here's a cure for every pain?
Then gave each one—take it he only did—
A bottle labeled "Wintersmith."

'Twixt hope and fear each drank his share;
Was cured completely then and there.
And no more shake these shrinking Shakers;
They've grown as quiet as quiet Quakers;
Each loves the other with love pure and true,
And all praise Wintersmith's curative tonic.

FARMER'S SUMMER SCHOOL AT AUBURN.

The Farmers' Summer School concluded its second annual session on August 4th, and the enthusiasm essential feature a most encouraging success. The attendance was 320 farmers, representing twenty-nine counties in the state of Alabama, and four other states, and embracing many of the most successful farmers of Alabama. Thus nearly one half of the State was represented in the attendance. And not only was the number large and encouraging, but the quality as well was of the highest grade. The attention and interest were enthusiastic, and it was an encouraging sight to see farmers with gray hair as well as young farmers attending these lectures with note book in hand, attentive, alert and full of inquiry. The lectures covered about ten hours a day, including day and night exercises, being about eleven hours per day, or between seventy five and eighty hours of instruction per week.

Another notable feature was the lecture of the instruction. This instruction was imparted by members of the experiment station staff assisted by six leading experts secured from all portions of the Union, as follows: Mr. O. C. Bragg, Superintendent of the Farmers' Institute work in Minnesota, on Animal Industry; Mr. G. I. Christie, of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, on the proper selection of seed corn; Prof. A. B. McCay, of the Mississippi Experiment Station, on Horticulture and Truck Gardening; Mr. Reuben Gentry, of the Vanderbilt estate at Baltimore, on the varieties and breeding of horses; Mr. Loring Brown, of Athens, Ga., on Poultry; Prof. Clinton Ball, of the United States Department of Agriculture, on Cowpeas, Hay, Forage and Fertilization Plants. All these men were first class in their line of work, and held the unflagging attention of their classes. The auditorium was full of agriculture, and, as one farmer expressed it, he learned something valuable and practical every hour, which he would carry it away with him and put into practice on his farm. Much of the instruction was incisive and vigorous, and awakened the greatest interest in the various departments of agriculture. It is to be noted that the nature of the instruction was not of a general happy-go-lucky nature but consisted of a series of continuous lectures, four hours in number, on each subject. However, the instruction did not consist merely of glittering generalities and enthusiastic statements about the glory of agriculture and the dignity of the farmer, but consisted rather of agriculture. A very great advantage and pleasure of these discourses was derived from the fact that they were attended by practical and concrete demonstrations and illustrations with scientific apparatus and with the horses, swine and cattle of the Experiment Station. It was a week of intensive teaching in applied agriculture.

A delightful social feature of the Farmers' School was the basket dinner or barbecue served on Saturday. Over five hundred persons were in attendance, over three hundred of whom were practical farmers from all parts of the State. A typical Southern barbecue was served, the day was beautifuly clear and pleasant, and all the conditions were for a delightful occasion. The refreshments were excellent, and were most highly commended by all present. The meats were most carefully cooked and were served in the most agreeable and pleasant manner. The table was set under the shade of oaks on the campus, and hundreds of seats were arranged and the grounds beneath the trees where each guest was served bountifully on a wooden platter. The gentlemen from the North were particularly interested in this social feature.

It can be said in conclusion that the wide and far reaching influence of this work cannot be overestimated. The college has put forth its energies in a most intelligent effort to build the agricultural interests of the State, and it does not spare the matter in the least to secure every one of the attendants enthusiastic in his praise of these efforts. The meeting has been full of as well as pleasure. Every

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Two inches on the tip of a man's nose would considerably alter his appearance. Not a doubt of it. To dig two inches in the ground is nothing, but when Dr. Matthews cheerfully and skilfully cut into my leg to a depth of two inches it seemed to me an awful long way, and while the Doctor was quite cheerful over the operation, somehow or other I didn't feel that way. He cut in a most scientific manner, and in the interests of science, I ought to be able to tell more about it, but to tell the honest truth all I was caring for and wishing for was to get it over and done with. Dr. Matthews, always cheerful, has been having a fine time with me. After digging into me two inches he came and put a rubber pipe in the hole, and I could not get cheerful even over that, and now I have a gash just like the hole in a nickel in the slot machine, and that is not a very cheerful matter either. I reckon if you were to drop a nickel in it you would start the music to playing, but you must guess what sort of a tune you would hear. Anyway, I am glad to say there is some good hope of my being able to get out again soon.

Laying on a bed of sickness, oft times racked with pain, one has time for contemplation, and can appreciate to the fullest extent the kindness and care of friends and neighbors. I have already expressed my appreciation of cheerful Dr. Matthews, with his carving knife and other deadly weapons, he's alright, but it is impossible for me to find words to thank Col. R. H. Knox for his indefatigable attentions and care at a time when I was unable to help myself. What I would have done without him I really don't know. Mrs. Smith and Miss Nannie, God bless them, did everything possible to alleviate the sufferings, and tempt the appetite of a sick man. In the office, Clyde Davis and Cleve Giles exerted themselves to the utmost to keep things straight, and get out The Banner on time, and were highly successful, and I really believe Charley Bruce believes in a watermelon cure, for he furnished the finest melons possible. Friends flocked in with kindly enquiries and good wishes, and in conclusion can say that it takes a spell of sickness to make a man appreciate the blessings of health, and to thank God for the kind hearts that beat in the bosoms of friends and neighbors. God bless them all!

Two young heroes, Lee and Fayette Maddox, shot and killed two of the largest snakes that have been seen near here in a long time. It was last Friday, close by the bridge on the Lomax road, at Jim Cooley's and Patricks Smith's places, that the boys found the two monster mud moccasins, the largest being four feet long and three inches in diameter. Having dispatched them they dragged the two carcases to town as proof of their valor. Good boys!

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—Editor.]

Clanton, Ala., July 30, 1904

Editor Banner—In the year 1904 the Pops. and the Reps. held a primary election and the result was sore vexation, but one of their number awoke from his slumber and made the timely suggestion, don't worry, oh, do not be troubled, for this is 1904 and we will not be worried with elections any more. One thing is true, we had some candidates this time if never no more, and they got votes you may be sure, and about this way they run: It was two to one, Jennings got two and Bob Smith one, this vote was in Beat four, if never no more; and Killgore got six and Will Robinson four, all in Beat Four, if never no more. For these two it was four and six, and had there been but these two with their little tricks, the people would have been in a middle of a fix.

The thing is now passed and bad as it is, it is the last. So goodby, Boby, goodby Willie, goodby Killgore, this is the last and you are no more.

Blessed is he that expecteth nothing, for he shall not be disappointed.

Editor Banner—Please publish this letter and oblige the undersigned. I want to correct a report which is going the rounds concerning my voting in the Democratic primary, held on April 11, 1904, in Chilton county. The report is false as it is base, and base as it is false. I have voted the Populist ticket ever since Tom Jones was elected governor. I am a Populist because I believe in its principles. Two years ago when the vote was taken to see if we would go into the Republican party, there were 32 votes cast in Beat 1, 31 of them were Republican, one was Populist, and I cast that vote. Hoping this will satisfy all parties concerned, I am in the fight for better times.

Yours truly,

WHAT ABOUT A SCHOOL?

The new school year does not come in until October 1, a little over two months, but it is not too soon to begin talking over the situation. The matter of having a public school and the time and place is left with the people as it has always been customary to do. The new school law has placed the duties in an incorporated town that formerly devolved upon the township trustees upon the mayor and council. The mayor and council have no authority to rent or secure buildings for school purposes, and are only expected to subserve the expressed wishes of the people in employing teachers and locating schools.

Our school will have between $300 and $400 public funds for the ensuing year. It is our opinion that this ought to be supplemented and a good school of eight of nine months run. It is with the people as to whether this is done or not. The school board is willing to act with the people and help run a school, but they have not the authority, nor the money to run a school by themselves.

Two school meetings have been called. At one there were eleven out, and not all of those were school patrons. At the other meeting six were out and I believe four were school patrons.

What are we going to do about a school? This question should appeal to every property holder who appreciates a good town. It should appeal to every citizen who appreciates a good citizenship. It should appeal especially to every parent who has the best interest of his children at heart.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

The week, as a whole, was rather cool and wet, the nights being quite cool for the season, and the sunshine being deficient; in some middle counties, the rainfall was quite excessive, though more rain is still needed in a few widely scattered localities. Cotton continues in generally promising condition and is fruiting well, though the wet weather is still causing it to run more to stalk than to fruit in some fields, and there are a few complaints of rust, blight, and shedding; in some localities, it is heavily fruited, with some "top crop" forming; it is opening slowly in southern counties, where picking has begun, the first bale of the season being marketed in Geneva county on the 26, instant, which is several days earlier than usual. Corn is earing well, and all minor crops continue generally promising, though sweet potatoes are blighting in some places; fodder pulling is progressing slowly in southern counties, but has not commenced over the northern half of the State; hay prospects continue good. Peaches continue plentiful, though wet weather is causing this fruit and apples, pears, and grapes to rot considerably; watermelons continue plentiful. Over the State, as a whole, all crops are promising.

10 per cent Dividend Declared by Strock's Store on Shoes.

But who gets the dividend, or profits, that have been declared? It is not often that anyone shares in the profits of a business except those who own shares, or the owner. But in this case we have thrown wide open the door, and propose to give 10 per cent of the profits on our shoes to outsides. Yes, 10 per cent of the profits on our shoe trade are going to outsiders and you may share in this if you wish. And this is no fictitious matter or scheme. It is just a plain simple fact—we are doing just what we say we are doing.

How is this being done? Well, we have 300 pair of shoes which we will sell at a reduction of 10 per cent.

10 per cent in your pocket, 10 per cent out of our pocket—that is just what it is.

Would you like to share in these profits? Come right on and let us show you.

Your partner in business,
JUDSON STROCK, Clanton.

A Russian medical journal pays a high tribute to the skill of the Japanese physicians, whom it declares to be almost invariably well educated and conscientious.

Mr. Kor-Ko-Ya is the capitalist of Greenland. He ownes a fleet of fourteen vessels and is worth about $15,000, but this is as much as $1,000,000 would be in the United States.

Says the Cleveland Leader: "The automobiles in use in Cleveland represent at least a million and a quarter of good American dollars. They are very evident proof of widespread prosperity."

The oldest theatrical managers in London do not remember so disastrous a season as the one just ended. There have been many failures, and it is estimated that five hundred thousand dollars have been lost.

The death of George Francis Train reminds the Londoners of the outcry they made against his "tram car" line in that city. One of his cars killed a boy and Train was arrested and put on trial for manslaughter. He was acquitted, but so great was the popular prejudice against rails on the streets that the "tramways" were torn up.

New Jersey seems at last to be coming to the sensible conclusion that the only way to abolish the misquito is to abolish the conditions which produce it, by reducing swamp lands to agricultural and other uses, the New York Tribune states. If the state should act upon the suggestion of its geologist in the latter's annual report, it would not only reclaim 27,000 acres, now devoted chiefly to raising misquitoes, but in the end the reclamation would more than pay for itself.

The first census ever taken of the Philippine islands has just been completed and the results have been received at Washington, states the New York Globe. It shows a population of 7,653,426, of which 647,740 are classified as wild and uncivilized, though not without some knowledge of the domestic arts. There has never been an accurate count of islands given, and the total has always been a subject largely of speculation. In the census 343 are given which bear names, and a large number of others which have never been named.

A German observer of American character and customs has lately published some interesting views of us which are discussed at length in Harper's Weekly. Dr. Reich believes that we would be better, as a nation, if we had some neighbors to fight with, in the European way. Every nation in Europe, he argues, owes its progress to the necessity of resisting the aggressions of its immediate neighbors, and he thinks Americans, having no such incentive, will presently lose their snap and cease to go ahead. Dr. Reich also believes that American women are too aggressive, too ambitious—that they weary of family life and tend to break out of bounds.

Many thousands of dollars have been spent in New England in efforts to stop the ravages of the gypsy moth, and the taxpayers there are becoming weary of the heavy expenditure. It is hoped that the campaigns for the extermination of the boll weevil in the cotton fields of the South will be more effective and less expensive.

The Chief Medical Examiner of the Royal Arcanum reports that 103 members committed suicide during 1903. Among the supposed causes were: Domestic trouble, sixteen; financial difficulties, twenty-six; ill health, thirty-one; loss of employment, ten. The Arcanum reports for four years show that during that period disease was responsible for 187 suicides and all other recognizable causes for 232.

Belgium is probably the most democratic of all the monarchical States, says the Chicago Journal. The King of the Belgians not only does not wear a crown, but has not even a crown to wear! No coronation ceremony is known to the constitution, the sovereign inaugurating his reign simply by taking an oath to govern according to the laws. Moreover, the births of his children, if he has any, must be registered in exactly the same phraseology and in the same set of books as the births of the humblest of his subjects.

KILLED BY A BOMB

SUPPOSED WORK OF ANARCHISTS

Was on His Way to Emperor—Plot Was Known to Authorities, but Former Attempt to Arrest Failed.

M. von Plehve, Russian minister of the interior, was assassinated Thursday morning by a bomb thrown at his carriage while he was driving to take a train for the palace at Peterhof, where he was to make his weekly report to the emperor.

The assassination is believed to be the outcome of a widespread plot, the existance of which has been suspected for several days. Numerous arrests have already been made, including that of the assassin, a young man who is believed to be a Finn, named Leglo, and who is now in a hospital severely and perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb. An accomplice of Leglo, also aparently a Finn, but whose name is unknown, has been arrested. He had in his possession a bomb which he tried to throw, but he was overpowered by the police in time to prevent great loss of life.

The minister was escorted by a number of detectives on bicycles, and one of them jostled the assassin, who then rushed into the road and threw the bomb after the carriage. The missile struck the hind wheel and exploded with fearful force, killing or wounding over a score of persons. Minister Plehve and his coachman were killed outright and an officer of the guard was fatally injured.

The explosive is believed to have been composed of pyroxylin, as it gave off little smoke. The force of the explosion was so terrific that it not only broke every window within a radius of half a mile, but reduced the heavy paving stones to powder, heaved up the pavement and flung a heavy piece of iron work of the carriage so that it severed the mast of a barge which fell, stunning the captain of the barge. Everybody in the street was knocked down and more or less bruised.

The impression prevails that his death will greatly weaken the influence of the powerful war party favoring an aggressive policy in Manchuria.

It is learned that while the identity and nationality of the assassin of Minister Plehve and his accomplice are still not definitely established, the police are making progress in unraveling the skein. They are amazed to find how far-reaching was the conspiracy.

The documents found show the existence of a wholesale plot toward ministers, but the most remarkable feature is that it did not include the czar, who is distinctly declared to be uninvolved.

The accomplice of the assassin of M. Von Plehve was seen to drop something in the canal. Later a bomb was recovered from the water.

As Minister of Justice Muravieff was driving to the Peterhof palace to report to Emperor Nicholas the assassination of the minister of the interior, Von Plehve, stones were thrown at him and his carriage windows were broken.

Ammunition at Port Arthur is reported as getting very short.

Exempt from Taxation

Cottage and mill help houses are exem from taxation, accoring to a ruling made by Attorney General Massey Wilson, on the ten year cotton mill exemption law passed by the session of the ligislator of 1901. The presidency of the Mississippi Chess association goes with the winning of the cup. There were twenty-six contestants.

FATHER O'REILLY DEAD.

Was Highly Respected Throughout Alabama—Monument to Him.

Rev. Father Patrick A. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church, Birmingham, died Thursday morning at St. Vincent's hospital from the injuries he received by being thrown from a horse at Camp Jelks a week before while discharging the duties of chaplain.

Father O'Reilly lived and worked for Catholics and non-Catholics in this city and immediate district for the past sixteen years. He made for himself and his church during that period a lasting name.

He was well known over the state and universal regret is expressed at his taking off.

He was buried with the military honors of a major

RECEIVER IN CHARGE.

Backed by Venezuelan Troops Carner Succeeds Colley.

Ambrose Howard Carner, the former managing director of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company (who was recently appointed receiver of the company as a result of the suit brought by President Castro), backed by Venezuelan soldiers, took possession of the properties of the company, including the asphalt lake, against the energetic protests of Captain Colley, the company's representative.

The steamer Viking, belonging to the company, escaped seizure. Foreign companies residing in Venezuela are alarmed over President Castro's aggressive policy, which is directed also against French, British and German companies.

FAT FEE

For Attorney Herbert in Dewey Prize Money Case.

Justice Gould has signed an order ratifying the auditor's report in the case of Admiral Dewey against the Don Juan do Austria and other prize property. A distribution of the prize money is directed, the sum involved amounting to $828,677.69.

Under the decision the naval pension fund gets one-half of $826,677.60, less half the costs, which will be approximately $90,000. An attorney's fee of 10 per cent is allowed by the court as part of the costs. The remaining one-half is to be distributed among Admiral Dewey and the officers and men of the fleet under his command at the battle of Manila bay.

STUDYING COTTON

British Government Sends an Expert in Interests of African Farms.

J. Wesley Hoffman, of London, England, has been sent by his government to study the southern cotton fields and to make a collection of seeds to be used in experimental cultivation of the cotton plant on what is termed "The model farm" in western Africa. Dr. Hoffman has been for fourteen months in western Africa representing the British cotton growing association, which was organized by the Lanshire manufacturers for the purpose of developing the cotton industry in Africa.

In an interview he said:

"This year we have placed 50,000 acres under cultivation. As an official under the British government it perhaps does not sound very well for me to say it, but it is a fact that American machinery and everything that comes from your country meets with popular favor over there. We have now several American gins in operation at Kano, which we call the African Manchester, and in the near future I expect to see that place one of the most important cotton manufacturing centers of the world. In the Niger delta alone there are forty square miles of fertile cotton growing lands. As this territory is developed it will open up a market for American machinery, for it is a recognized fact that your machinery is the best in the market."

A Forfit Clause.

There is considerable interest manifested over the contest in the completion of the Selma city hall, market house and fire department headquarters. This building was to have been completed over six months ago but dragged along until a new contract was entered into with the old contractor, R. P. Manly, and a clause provided that for every day before August 15 that the building was completed the city would pay a bonus of $10 a day and for every day required to finish it after August 15 Manly was to pay a forfeit of the same amount.

Manly has filed two exceptions, one claiming that unavoidable delay was experienced in getting material and the other that the committee required some extra work.

Illinois Central to Birmingham.

The agreement entered into some months ago between the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad and the Illinois Central railroad by which the latter is to come into the Birmingham district over the tracks of the former has been filed in the probate court. Trackage rights over the Illinois Central and the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroads into New Orleans are granted in consideration of the Frisco system, which owns the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham, allowing the Illinois Central to use its tracks from any point to be selected by the railroad company between Aberdeen, Miss., and Jasper, Ala., to the freight yard junction at Birmingham.

Struck by Engine.

He and three negroes were on a hand car when a freight came along. The negroes fled, but Jones got the hard car from the track in his effort to avoid a wreck. He got the car out of the way, but before he could spring aside himself was struck by the engine, receiving injuries from which he died. He leaves a wife and two children.

Luther Mason, a member of the pleasure party that left Huntsville Sunday morning to spend the day at Whiteburg, on the Tennessee river, was drowned. Mr. Mason and a friend had taken a skiff and gone on the river for a row. A storm coming up, Mason became frightened and jumped from the boat, intending to swim to the shore, he being an expert swimmer. When but a short distance from the boat he was seized with cramps and immediately sank.

COUNTER CLAIMS

Have Been Filed by Russia Against Great Britain.

Russia has filed a formal protest at the foreign office against British shipments of contraband to Japan.

It seems that the Russian government since the beginning of the war has carefully watched the manufacture of goods intended for the use of the Japanese government, and as soon as it was established such goods were about to be shipped to a hostile destination, the facts were officially communicated to the British government with the request that measures be taken to put a stop to it. It is further asserted that in many cases the government has not taken action and it is understood that when the war ends Russia proposes to present a bill for damages to the British government which will offset the indemnities claimed for the seizure of British steamers.

It is also learned that Russia does not intend to hasten the question of settlement of the rights of vessels of the volunteer fleet to pass the Dardanelles since if negotiations on the subject were conducted at this time as desired by Great Britain Russia must be forced by the existing situation to grant concessions she would afterwards regret.

Russia has agreed to fully indemnify German shippers and their consignees for any losses sustained by the seizures of German ships and the detention of the Prinz Heinrich's mail. An inquiry is now in progress to determine what claim shall be paid. Russia also agrees to restore and forward the contents of the two seized mail packages.

THEY WANT A CHURCH.

And Are Working at Night to Fnish the Building.

At Columbus, Ga., the new North Highlands Baptist church building is nearing completion under remarkable circumstances. The membership is small, there being only sixty or seventy and nearly all of them are working people and in moderate circumstances. Generous people in the community contributed money to aid in the building of the church, but only a few of the members could give money and so offered their labor.

As they work all day in factories and shops, arrangement was made with the foreman of the building work for them to work at night. Squads of members of the church have been working a couple of hours at night on the church, the women holding the lights so they could see how to work.

Mobile Harbor.

At a recent meeting of the Mobile Commercial Association the matter of securing a 35-foot channel on the bar was taken up and will be pushed to some sort of final action. It is pointed out that with an expenditure of $50,000 by the United States the channel has been deepened from 24 to 27 feet, and with an additional outlay of $300,000 it can be made 35 feet deep and 800 feet wide, "thereby making Mobile the deepest and safest port on the gulf of Mexico," says the report of the committee.

Much of the crop in Mississippi and Louisiana is grassy. Picking continues in southern Texas, where it is expected to be general by the middle of August, and has begun in Alabama and Florida.

A DECISIVE BATTLE

Is Believed to be Raging Near Mukden. Gen. Count Keller Killed.

KUROPATKIN IS HEMMED IN.

Three Japanese Generals With 300,000 Soldiers Surround Him—Russia Anxious as to Outcome.

Russians believe that the decisive battle of the campaign is being fought, but this has not been established. For several days the main body of the Russian army has been moving north toward Mukden. General Kuropatkin may be obliged to destroy the immense quantity of stores accumulated at Liao Yang.

Military critics do not believe that General Kuropatkin can escape a general engagement. His army forms a wedge with General Oku at the point, and Nodzu and Kuroki operating against the sides.

The decisive battle of the campaign seems to be in progress. Having completed his enveloping movement of the Russian position, General Kuroki has ordered simultaneously an advance from all points against Haicheng and Liao Yang. Fighting is raging on both fronts.

It is reported that Lieutenant General Count Keller has been killed east of Liao Yang.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg confirms the reported death, saying he was killed by a fragment of a Japanese shell at the time he was opposing the Japanese advance along the railway near Hai Cheng.

Lieutenant General Count Keller at the opening of the war was in command of the second Siberian army division. He was 54 years old and resigned the governorship of Ekaterinoslaff in order to go to the front.

Count Tolstoi's son is leaving for the front as a volunteer in the infantry.

Both Sides Firm.

The close of the first week of the cotton mill strike at Fall River, Mass., involving eighty-one mills there and 26,000 operatives, finds the situation unchanged since the order went into effect. Each side to the controversy remains firm—the manufacturers holding to their position that the mills will be operated only on condition that the 12 1-2 per cent reduction be adopted, and the operatives are equally firm that they will not work under this reduction.

It is estimated by the strike leaders that it will cost $20,000 a week to continue the strike, but they are convinced that this amount will be forthcoming.

HIS BRAGGING THREAT

May Cause Lee Hancock to Face Judge and Jury on a Charge of Murder.

Some Gadsden boys quarreled with Lee Hancock and Hancock became enraged and swore that he had killed one Mowah man, Dave Naugher, and he could kill another one.

It is said steps will be taken to have Hancock arrested.

As was expected, the Jemison ring carried out its plan and secured the nominations for its members.

We doff our hat and make our best bow to the Albertville Banner for its kind opinion of the Editor of the Clanton Banner.

The Russians, who are getting whipped all the way around by the Japs, make a big blow of the Valdivostok squadron sinking one or two unarmed merchant vessels "without the loss of a man." But the Valdivostok squadron takes care to keep out of the way of the Japanese fleet.

We notice that Harwell G. Davis has resigned the editorship of the Tallassee Tri-County Weekly and gone to practicing law. Mr. Davis was doing good work on the Weekly and we shall miss him. Mr. F. L. McKenzie resumes the editorship of the paper, as a part of his multifarious duties.

A more disgraceful article never appeared in a presumably respectable newspaper than that which made its appearance in the columns of last week's Union, which is printed at Birmingham, thank goodness, as no printer in Chilton would ever have soiled his fingers putting such villainous matter in type.

It would not be worth while noticing its diatribe upon the entire Democratic party, but its reflections upon the fair character of the women of the South cannot be borne in silence. It is an execrable publication and is receiving the severe condemnation of all right thinking people. No white man with an atom of respect for himself or for the people among whom, for a short time, he has cast his lot, would father such publication. It is a disgrace to Clanton that such scurrilous abuse should appear in a paper bearing the name of our honored town upon its title page.

Governor Jelks will leave Las Vegas, N. M., where he has been for several months for his health, in a few weeks and go to the ranch of J. D. Hand, who is an old Chilton lumber man, where he will rough it for awhile before resuming his executive duties. Mr. Hand has had built in Chicago a wagon to travel in that country, which cost him $2,500. It will be fitted up with beds and every convenience and made comfortable for those who are to become Mr. Hand's guest.

THE JEMISON RING GETS THE NOMINATIONS.

It is a long time since the primary of last Tuesday week, but up to the present no authenic figures are available. From the information obtainable about 960 votes were cast, of which number it is said a considerable quantity were disqualified voters. It is a fair and conservative estimate to say that this primary proves the full strength of the opposition to be not more than 800 votes, even if it amounts to that in November.

It is a singular fact that for more than three weeks past the winners in the primary have been named by a number of persons, and with one exception there has been no variation, and that variation was announced by an old Popul ist voter a week before the election—the "trade" ticket was to go through with T. J. Hubbard in place of Mr Thomas, who for some reason was pushed aside at the last moment.

For Probate Judge—L. H Reynolds, Jemison.

For Treasurer—J. Bice, Thorsby.

For Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard, Jemison.

For Tax Assessor—L. B. Pounds, Thorsby.

For Circuit Clerk—S. W. Collins, Thorsby.

A nice family party, isn't it?

J. W. Moore was nominated for Supt. of Education; Frank Massey for Coroner. For Commissioners, W. H. Conway, first district; Alex Glasscock, second district; R. P. Kendrick, third district; Moses Robinson, fourth district.

It is a vulnerable ticket, with no strengh or stability to it, and the intelligent voters of Chilton county, who love their homes and families, will overwhelmingly bury it in November.

Maplesville.

According to promise we will tell your numerous subscribers all about the weather past. Having lived always on this earth can tell but little from the "fickle inconstant moon." Our farmers are groaning heavily about too much rain, not good for corn and making cotton shed. We will console them by trying to elect Parker and Davis, and the shedding will raise the price with the other prosperity in that case. Our peach crop is very abundant, many trees breaking down from excess of fruit. Second crops of garden truck are booming.

Our preacher in charge, Rev. Nelson, assisted by Rev. Feagan of Autaugaville have been holding services in the Methodist church the past week, and much good has been accomplished. The world does not know of the benefit these consecrated men do in preaching the Word of God to all the world. Maplesville has sustained her good name of hospitality.

Rev. Ed Roy is here with his beautiful young bride.

We are pleased to have Bro. Bob Roy with us during our preaching, who is ever ready to speak good words at the proper time.

Mr. Cox from near Randolph has been with us in church service.

Little Misses Gayaline Ricketts and Isabel Saportas are on a visit to their teacher in Uniontown, Miss Adair.

Miss Mattie May DuBose has returned from a most pleasant visit to Orrville, and is now entertaining Miss Ethel McKey of the same place.

Misses Edna and Elizabeth Ricketts have visited friends in Montgomery.

Mr. B. O. Glover has made a business trip to Selma.

Mrs. Fuller, we regret, has gone to Selma for treatment.

Mrs. Ainge of Birmingham is visiting her uncle here, Mr. Plant.

Mrs. Pattie DuBose attended the Baptist convention at Anniston.

Mrs. Buck Bowline has visited her son, Willis, in Selma.

Messrs. Berry and Mosley have returned from St. Louis and have been guests of their kinswoman, Mrs. P. DuBose.

Mrs. Myrk Smitherman and family have visited relatives here.

An accident happened to the T. T. lumber train engine, in which a white man named Lovelady was instantly killed and a colored man badly hurt. Mr. Lovelady was a man of family.

JUDGE PARKERS PERSONALITY

The Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of New York is a man of impressive stature and handsome appearance. He is six feet tall, weighs one hundred and ninety-six pounds and has the proportions of an athlete. He was fifty two years old on May 14. He has a large head and the face of a country bred gentleman,—strong, fresh-colored, and unwrinkled. There is a singular suggestion of power, courage, and good nature in his personality. The eyes are large, brown and luminous—sincere and direct. The nose is acquiline, the jaws large and curved, and the chin round and massive. The teeth are big and white, the lower lip heavy and protruding, and the thick mustache coarse and twany. The Judge has a wide, high forehead. The top head indicates penetration, energy, benevolence, reverence, and firmness. The hair is reddish brown. It is a head devoid of eccentricity in its lines—full, even, symmetrical. There is a simple, unpretending dignity about the man that fits his massive physique and easy, upright carriage. He is sober, sincere, unselfish, decent. Men in every walk of life turn to him instinctively with confidence. There is neither exageration nor self consciousness in his speech or manner. He does not boast. He has a hearty scorn for heroics. Firm in spirit, even tempered, charitable in his judgments of others, loyal in friendship, loving work for its own sake, seeing in law only the means of justice and order, he unites the virilities and the sobrieties in his strong, modest character. He has, too, a native sense of humor that will never permit him to become pompous.

Judge Parker may be said to be a man free from eccentricities, unless intellectual integrity and a sound moral imagination are to be considered abnormal in an age of weak demagoguery. He listens well, patiently searches for facts, makes up his mind slowly, and aims at general and permanent rather than particular or temporary results.—From "Alton B. Parker: A Character Sketch," by James Creelman, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

HENRY G DAVIS' VITALITY.

The physical endurance of Mr Davis is suprising, and almost irritating to younger men who do not possess this untiring vitality. He seems never to become tired. He is always fresh and vigerous. His capacity for hard work is unlimited. Neither loss of sleep nor hardship impairs his energy. A striking illustration of this charistic was given at the St. Louis Convention. Mr. Davis sat in a not over large room, as a member of the Committee on Resolutions, from 8 o'clock Thursday evening to 11:30 o'clock Friday morning,—fifteen and a half hours,—and emerged with his usual brightness of eye and composedness of manner. Men of but little more than half his age were haggard and weary. Mr. Bryan appeard to be on the verge of exhaustion. Senator Tiliman was near the point of collasping. Others were all more or less affeeted by the all night committee meeting, but Mr. Davis appeared to have been freshened and invigorated by the long and arduos session. Mr. Davis regards horseback riding as the best possible form of exercise. He may be seen on every pleasant day cantering along the mountain roads, sitting erect, and managing his animal with ease and skill. It is less than a year since he rode on horseback from Elkins to Charlston, a distance of more than two hundred miles, in five days. The road passes through an unbroken and mountainous country, and his friends and neighbors still marvel at this exhibition of unimpaired vigor. Long hours of almost incessant activity constitute the daily routine of Mr. Davis at his summer home. He allots the same period to labor now as when serving as a brakeman.—From Henry G. Davis, Democratic Candidate for Vice-President," by Charles S. Albert, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

Imitation may be the sincerest flattery; but a girl doesn't think so when she is presentcd with a paste diamond.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Aug. 1, 1904

It is the consensus of opinion in the national capital that in the line-up for battle between the two parties, the Democracy has the best of the situation. It is believed here by the leaders of the convention in St. Louis that the outcome of the convention has practically solidified the Democratic party in this country. It looked for a time in St. Louis that no power on earth could ever bring the two warring factions together. But conciliation and compromise on both sides and the splendid attitude of Mr. Bryan and his leaders have performed a political miracle and the old Democratic party is once more a solid phalanx and will move in serried ranks on the cohorts of corruption and extravagance in the Republican party. There are divergent opinions here concerning the telegram sent by Judge Parker to the convention, but the majority of Democratic leaders believe that it has had more of a benificial effect than otherwise. While, of course, Judge Parker did not mean literally that the gold standard was "irrevocably established," yet it practically is so until gold becomes so cheap that men who are now gold men will seek to demonetize it. So long as present conditions obtain the gold standard will remain fixed and nothing can disturb it. When, however, the per capita of real or basic currency becomes less than it is now, there will be more clamor for the double standard and the money question will become once more a paramount issue in our politics. There are some people who criticise Mr. Bryan for his action in criticizing Judge Parker and portions of the platform since the convention adjourned. But the truth of the matter is that Mr. Bryan has done more to help the ticket and hold his forces together for it than any one man in the country. If he had laid down immediately after the convention and accepted fully and entirely everything that was done, hundreds of thousands of his followers in the past two campaigns would have become angered at him, would have declared him insincere and dishonest, and would have bolted the ticket. When he was honest enough, however, to criticize the things in Judge Parker that he did not like and things distasteful to him in the platform, while at the same time he proclaimed that there was enough Democracy in the platform to warrant his entire support, his friends knew him to be honest and agreed that if their old leader could thus support the ticket, they, too, could make the same critizisms and give it their undivided support. The The friends of Judge Parker who know him best say that he will appreciate this fact as thoroughly as any man, and that it is his intention and the intention of the leaders to give Mr. to Bryan some of the heaviest tasks of the campaign. One of those tasks will be to carry the State of Nebraska, and, if he succeeds in doing this, in which they will render him valuable assistance, he can not only go to the Senate of the United States, but will be one of the biggest men in the Parker administration. It augurs well for our ticket that instead of all the enthusiasm for it being exhausted at the time of its naming, it has grown day by day since the adjournment of the convention. It is progressive in public favor instead of retrogressive. The only possible discord in sight at this time within the Democratic ranks is the fight in New York City between McCarren and Tammany Hall. It is believed, however, that Judge Perker is a good enough politician to send for Mr. Murphy and placate him by giving him all he asks, thus guaranteeing the biggest Democratic majority ever cast for any Presidential candidate in Greater New York. With that fight off our hands, it gives us every chance of carrying the State of New York and with it will go Connecticut, New Jersey and Delaware. The nomination of Davis gives us West Virginia, beyond all doubt. The negro question assures us Maryland, and with either Illinois, Wisconsin or Indiana, we will win the fight. It looks as though Wisconsin were absolutely assured to us on account of the factional fight in that State between the Republicans, and with Tom Taggart of Indiana for National Chairman, we are assured of that State.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN T. PARMER

On Tuesday morning Clanton had the misfortune to lose one of her best citizens, when Mr. John T. Parmer died at his home after a sickness of some time, of no specific disease, but the general break up of the system after a long and active life of 80 years. Some fourteen years ago he removed here from Montgomery county, where he had acquired a competency, and his latter years were passed in the quite retirement of his home and family. His favorite pastime was a walk into town greeting all he met with a cheery word, and his familiar figure has been missed from our streets lately.

Mr. Parmer was a member of the Montgomery Lodge of Masons, and a Knight Templar. A number of old friends came up from Montgomery Wednesday morning to attend the funeral, which took place in the Clanton cemetery. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Bass Jones, to whom we offer our deep and respectful sympathy in this their time of trouble.

Mr. W. H. Merritt of Birmingham was in town a day or two this week.

Dr Geo. A. Dennis of Montgomery spent Sunday here

Mr. E. H. Parrish of Birmingham was in Clanton this week.

We have had some heavy rains this week.

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew to wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co. Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

NEW POTATO HARVESTER.

Designed to Either Sack the Potatoes or Pile Them in the Field.

About fifteen years ago a new machine was reported from Michigan said to dig potatoes and load them on a wagon. The report proved unreliable, and since that time we have been hunting for such a machine. Now we hear of a new harvester. A picture of the machine is here shown, and the inventor gives this account of it:

to run at any desired depth; an endless chain carrier in the rear of the shovel, a revolving cylinder in the rear of the chain, a potato elevator projecting into the rear end of the cylinder, and a potato sacker in the rear of the elevator. The heads, or chines, of the cylinder are supported and revolve upon trucks or rollers. The periphery of the cylinder is composed of small rods placed a proper distance apart to retain the potatoes, and within the cylinder, attached to and revolving therewith, is a spiral which operates like an auger and forces the potatoes back until finally by an ingenious device the potatoes are carried up on to the elevator, which delivers them into sacks. In operating this machine two men and four horses are required when the potatoes are sacked, but when dumped in piles in the field one man only is needed.

"The machine is capable of harvesting 1,000 bushels in ten hours, or ordinarily will dig from four to five acres per day. I might add that the cylinder revolves slowly. The potatoes and lumps continually roll to the bottom thereof, which action breaks the lumps and sifts out the dirt. The vines are carried through the machine and dropped on the ground."—Rural New Yorker.

FARM AND GARDEN

VARIETIES AND PLANTING.

Newer kinds of potatoes are introduced every year, and many experiments have been conducted at the several stations with the view of discovering remedies for diseases, modes of planting, characteristics of seed and varieties, etc., with the result of much valuable information being disseminated every year. In one of the Government bulletins it was stated that the best soil for potatoes is a rich, sandy loam, well drained and which is abundantly supplied with vegetable matter. Green manures and fertilizers are consequently very suitable for a crop. It is better not to grow potatoes on the same land every year but alternate with other crops. Fertilizer should be applied to the previous crop rather than on the potato land. The preparation of the land should be deep and thorough, and the fertilizers consist of nitrate of soda, superphosphate and sulphate of potash. Planting depends on the climate, but should be done, if possible, so as to bring the period when the average rainfall is ample. On mellow soil from three to five inches deep is best for planting, especially if the season is dry, but on earlier crops, or in soils that bake, the depth may be less. Harrow well before the plants are up as level culture has given the best results. Seed may be cut a few days before planting without injury, and New England seed has proved superior to that grown in this section. The eyes on the seed end are the first to germinate, hence are best for an early crop. The yield from planting the seed or bud end is generally greater than from the stem or butt end of the tuber. Exposing unsprouted tubers in a warm place before planting hastens growth, but if continued until sprouts form (which are rubbed off) the yield may be considerably reduced. It is better to cut the pieces of seed into uniform sizes, and which a definite number of eyes, than to cut them indiscriminately as to sizes, and two or three eyes should be the quota for each piece.

A COMFORTABLE COOP.

We must not forget to provide suitable quarters for the hen with her brood of chickens. Various and curious is the collection of contrivances for enclosing the mother hen. Empty half barrels set upright with alternate staves on one side cut to allow chicks to run out and back; boxes of numerous kinds; "A" shaped coops and other devices are in use. Sometimes the hen is left to find any shelter that she can. A coop two feet square, two feet high in front, one and one-half feet at the back with a single pitch roof produces a safe and economical home for the mother hen and her little flock. The front of the coop has a slatted door or a frame door covered with one inch mesh wire netting. A shutter hinged at top may be provided for protecting the front of the coop at night and during bad weather. It may be fastened up for shading the front of the coop when the sunshine is too hot. If cats or hawks are likely to disturb the chickens a connecting yard at one or both sides of the coop, one foot high, two wide and three or six feet long, enclosed and covered with wire netting will keep in the chicks and exclude their enemies. Both coop and yard-frame should be made of light lumber so as to be easily moved to fresh ground. They must be placed where the chicks can keep dry under foot. An excellent plan is to place several coops for hens near together, letting the chicks intermingle from the first.—John M. Kester, in The Epitomist.

DEEP AND SHALLOW PLOWING.

The finer the condition of the soil the easier the facilities allowed the plants for feeding, and the greater the feeding room the greater the quantity of roots which are essential during times of drought and lack of moisture, to say nothing of the vigorous growth and rapid progress of the corn by reason of the greater root surface. Many controversies regarding deep and shallow plowing would perhaps find an amicable solution if the nature of the soil and method of plowing were considered in exact relation to each other. Some farmers have found deep plowing highly advantageous, especially on clay soils, simply because the roots were permitted to search through a larger quantity of soil for food, and also to more easily procure moisture from below as well as though absorption of moisture by the soil. Other farmers have found deep plowing highly advantagable especially on light soils which assist in the establishment of a greater mass of roots near the surface, while the porocity of the soil and its light nature enable the corn to go downward as easily as may be desired.

BREEDING CORN.

Much has been said and written of late in regard to the improvement of corn by selection of seed, and there is no doubt that by proper breeding the corn can be greatly increased independently of the improvement of the soil. But both should go hand in hand. Most of the so-called corn breeders give a great deal of attention to the character of the ear and grain, and these are important points. But the breeding of any plant that looks simply to the improvement of a single feature of the plant can never be successful as one that takes the whole plant into consideration. In breeding corn one must know what his particular section needs. If he is in the region of short season and early frost, he must take earliness of the plant into serious consideration, as well as its productiveness. If he is in the South where he has time enough to mature any variety of corn, he need give attention only to the character of the plant and its productiveness.

FIND CALVES NOW

People in buying a place will refuse one without a spring to keep their milk in, yet they make no preparation for it in the winter. If freezes or not as it happens, they save the strippings and keep them in a hot place and churn in a five gallon churn for two or three hours and then get a white puffy mass they call butter. They let the children do the milking and wonder how I can have butter and milk all winter. In the first place our cow finds her calf in July or August and then she is good for all winter; then when other people's cows are going dry (in eight or nine months,) here comes grass so she gives milk all the year. In the winter I have a little cupboard fixed under the chimney (or flue) and it keeps about the same temperature and is just right. I keep four jars setting and skim the oldest (unless sweet milk is wanted) in a half gallon jar, and when that's full I churn all cream. The butter comes in a few minutes. I make enough for our family of three and two other families, and I know there is no use going without milk and butter in the winter—Mrs. E. J. Holland, The Epitomist.

TO HALTER A HOG.

To tie a hog is one of the most difficult things in the hog raiser's experience. To tie by the leg requires a rope or strap to be drawn up so tight as to cause pain if not real injury. Now try this plan: take a horse halter, slip over the hog's head stall securely around the hog just back of fore legs, and you have him safely haltered, and in a way he cannot hurt himself. Then holding the strap and walking behind you can readily drive it anywhere desired—Lewis S. Alter, in The Epitomist.

THE ONE-HORSE PLOW

Having the ideal corn plant, the next important thing in the production of big crops is the preparation of the land, the feeding of the crop. The one-horse plow has been the cause of more poor crop than any one other thing. The gullies in hills have been largely due to the scratch plowing of the past. The shallow plowed soil fills with water and runs off on the hard soil below and a gully is started and is annually enlarged by the frosts of winter. We need deeper breaking of the soil to enable it to hold more water for the crop and to withstand droughts and to prevent washing.—Progressive Farmer.

FARM NOTES.

In selecting a good milker the udder should be large and capacious, but it need not only be fleshy. It should be broad and reach well forward.

To a very considerable extent, and on consequent profitableness of the flocks.

Unsually it is not good economy to turn the horses in the pastures all night. They will rarely secure the rest they need from the work during the day.

There is no feed that is more digestible than gluton food, but if too much is fed it makes soft butter. From two to four pounds a day may be fed without fear of this.

Wait until there is fair bite of grass before turning the cows out, and then give them two hours a day on pasture for a few days, with good clover and a grain ration for the remainder of their feed.

It is better to cut seed potatoes a few days before they are planted, in order to give the surfaces time to dry. It is also a good plan to expose seed potatoes to the light for a few days before planting.

Success or failure of the poultry season depends upon the days and nights now passing.

Don't forget lime and gravel. Both are necessary in the poultry yard.

Feed coops are very necessary to keep the large chicks and fowls from tramping the little ones to death.

When a polar bear is killed by an Eskimo, it is customary to cut off the animal's nose and throw it on the ice. If he failed to do this, it is the popular belief that he would have bad luck. This is the reason why nearly all the skins of polar bears are mutilated at the point about the snout.

Newspaper Reporting in Japan

"Newspaper reporting in Japan is by no means an unattractive business," said Masanao Hanihara, third secretary of the Japanese legation, who was himself at one time on the local staff of a Tokio newspaper, and who later branched out into special work, eventually establishing a magazine of his own.

"I remember the time," continued Mr. Hanihara, "when there were objections to reporting as a profession, but that was in the days when the government had a strict supervision of the newspapers. One couldn't be too careful then, but we have a free press in Japan now. Our newspapers are just as independent and enterprising as the American press, and every printing establishment is equipped with the most up-to-date apparatus. The facilities for collecting news are in line with the best methods of today.

"How are we handling the war news? Well, in very much the same fashion, I suppose, as an American paper would handle it. Nearly every one of the Japanese journals has a corps of special correspondents at the front, and they hurry the news back to the central office as fast as they can. I do not know after what school of journalism the Japanese newspaper is fashioned, but I do know that there is a corps of editors with designations just like yours, such as managing editors, news editors, city editors, etc.

"In Tokio there are about twenty daily newspapers. These sell on an average at about one cent a copy. All classes are omnivorous readers of the newspapers, and around the tea shops and in the homes you will find the sheets in eager demand. With Tokio's population of over a million souls the circulation of these newspapers is considerable.

"The duties of a Japanese newspaper staff are much the same rules as would be expected of a newspaper man in this country. The 'routes' for each reporter and the special assignments are just as well defined. The city editor of a Tokio paper usually has about thirty smart and alert young men under him. Police news when it is important is handled in American style. There is always a good man at police headquarters. Our police system is one of the finest in the world. Arrests are made promptly by the blue-coated officers who are stationed about the street and when the offenders are arraigned the next morning they are given a full measure of justice.

"Several men, of course, are assigned to the various executive and municipal offices, but of late the greatest feature has been the political reporting in which prominent statesmen and leaders in the nation's affairs are interviewed, and their views expressed in the public prints. At the Japanese diet special seats are assigned for the reporters, who take down the proceedings from their 'press gallery,' and are given every consideration.

"The Japanese reporter is provided with a typewriter, just as the Japanese newspaper is provided with the most modern press, and in that way no time is lost in the mechanical features of collecting and printing the newspapers. The typewriters are made with the Japanese characters on the keys.

"In handling social news, our newspapers are not as prolific as your American press, but in gatherings of State importance the names of those present are always given, and a special column is reserved for events of this kind. Perhaps the greatest social event of the year is the grand ball given by the Secretary of the State, at the Imperial Hotel, in Tokio, on November 3. This is attended by all the functionaries, and the leading society women of Tokio. The newspapers invariably give a full list of those who attend."

Mr. Hanihara long ago gave up the newspaper business to enter the diplomatic career in which his promotion is already assured, but during his connection with publications in Tokio he wrote many articles for Japanese magazines which attracted wide attention, and later he made arrangements to start a magazine of his own called the Diplomatic Review, of which he is still the owner, and which is rapidly gaining a very large circulation throughout the island kingdom.—Washington (D. C.) Times.

A New Sunshine Recorder.

The new Dawson-Lauder sunshine recorder consists of a drum on which silver chloride paper is fastened under a film of celluloid. An outer covering is rotated by clockwork in twenty-four hours, and a narrow slit is thus directed to the sun. A hood protects the slit from diffused light, and allows an error of about half an hour in the clock before sunlight is cut off from the slit. The drum with the sensitive paper travels along the axis of the cylinder, so that the record of a number of days is obtained, one below the other. The chloride of silver paper makes possible a standard of intensity of sunshine which can be reproduced. The same size of paper is employed at all seasons, and the instrument can be used in polar as well as temperate latitudes.—London Globe.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY BISHOP E. C. ANDREWS.

Subject: "Christianity and Love"—Church Ministrations Should Be Directed Toward Freeing the Human Soul of That Selfishness Which Is Inherent.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Bishop E. C. Andrews, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, preached Sunday morning in the Central Congregational Church. His subject was "Christianity and Love." The text was from I Timothy i:5: "Now the end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned." Bishop Andrews said:

Every careful reader of the English Bible takes knowledge of the fact that the English language, like every other living language, is in process of change. He knows the significance of words, as well as their form, and occasionally their order changes. He reads, for instance, in the Psalms: "My heart is fixed, oh God, my heart is fixed," and he remembers that that word "fixed" at the time our version was made had the meaning, which we still retain in our colloquial speech, "to be fixed up," and so he reads: "My heart is prepared, oh God, my heart is prepared." He reads in the Epistle to the Thessalonians that they which are alive at the second coming of Christ shall not prevent them that are asleep, and he remembers that the word "prevent" originally meant to precede simply, and came to have its present meaning because he that precedes another is likely to get in the way of that one and obstruct another who follows, and so he reads that at the second coming of Christ they that are alive shall not precede, or shall not have the advantage over them that sleep in Christ, for both alike shall be called to meet their Lord in the air.

So in this text we have the word "charity," a word which today signifies either almsgiving or kindly judgment of others, but in the time of our version it had the meaning to which the new revisers have returned, viz., "love," or "benevolence," and in this passage we read this statement: The aim of the commandment is benevolence, good will, effective love, even as we speak of the love of man to God, then also to his fellow men.

Another Bible criticism is worth our while. The word "commandment," like the word "law," may have either a narrow or a broad significance. The narrow significance of that is "particular precept" attended by "particular sanction." A broader meaning is that of a "holy ordained institution and system," and that broader meaning evidently should be here used because of the context. We come then to the entire statement: "The end, or aim, of the whole Christian institution is love out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned."

It originated in a heart of boundless love toward man in an act of love unparalleled, we may suppose in all the ages of eternity—even the gift of God's only Son. All its precepts turn in this direction. Church organizations and ministrations of every kind, if they be rightly directed, have simply this purpose to discharge the human soul of that selfishness that belongs to it by nature, and to enter into it all the love of God.

Now all familiar with the New Testament know that this is no solitary utterance—it is but one of many broad and comprehensive statements. One came to the Master saying: "Which is the first and great commandment?" And He answered: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment, and the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." In another passage St. Paul tells us that "Love is the fulfilling of the law." If there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Str James calls this the "royal law." St. Paul tells us: "Above all things, have fervent charity one toward another." And St. John, in a memorable passage, in one of his epistles, tells us that "God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him."

Christ told the story of a man who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among robbers, as one may nowadays do on that road. They robbed him, stripped him of his raiment, wounded him, and left him half dead. Then came one of the chief representatives of the current religion, a priest, and passed by on the other side. Then there came down a subordinate representative of the current religion, a Levite, and he came and looked and passed by on the other side. Then came a heretic in religion, an alien in race, and, looking upon the wounded man, he was moved with compassion and dismounted and bound up his wounds, set the wounded man on his own beast, brought him to an inn and took care of him for the night and paid the charges, leaving money for additional charges, saying to the inn keeper: "If it costs more I will repay when I come again." And that alien in race, that heretic in religion, the Lord Jesus presents before us as the one great example of our practical religion.

Now be pleased to notice two facts in this natural love. In the first place, much of it is simply instinctive, a divine implantation for high purposes, but because not founded in moral reason, divine reason, therefore without moral worth. It is but part of that endowment of human nature by which the propagation and the education of the race is made possible, but it does not imply of necessity any high moral quality. The bear will rush on the point of the spear in the defense of its cubs. The wildcat will die for its young. The eagle, with unwearied patience, will teach the young eaglet to fly. Will you, therefore, say: "Behold, what paragons of moral excellence!" Would you not say of them if they lacked parental and filial love: "Behold what monsters!"

In the second place, this natural love is marked by great limitations in its extent. It is laid upon one's family and one's friends, upon one's neighbors and country, upon those who are of the same race, or it may be of the same religious faith, or of the same political persuasion, and it is hemmed in by these limitations. How many a man goes to the market place and to the exchange with perfect indifference to the prosperity and happiness of his fellow man and wrestles with them in business to return to his home to lavish gladly upon his family all his ill-gotten gains.

There are many generous men in all our communities, but they may be also men desirous of having their generosity duly acknowledged and trumpeted abroad throughout the world, and if they fail of that acknowledgment somehow their charity seems to sour upon them, and they feel that they are not recognized as they expected to be. Benedict Arnold was an eminently brave and skillful soldier, and so far as we know a true patriot, but he was a spendthrift, and when Congress censured him in various ways he at length became Benedict Arnold the traitor. The truth is that it is very easy to overload all the joists and timbers of our soul with these defects, and we may notice in passing that a great deal that passes for charity is oftentimes a thin veneer over unmeasured masses of selfishness, and we may further notice that sometimes we have credited ourselves with very great tenderness and good will toward men, because, for instance, we wept over the griefs and woes of the heroes and heroines of fiction, and yet find ourselves (such is the inertia of our nature) never so much as lifting up our hands to relieve the unutterable woes that crowd in human souls all around us.

Another defect of the natural love is that it is simply an unrighteous love; I mean it lacks the quality of righteousness in that it is a mere kindly affection and desire to do kind things to those who are objects of our love, while at the same time there is no recognition of that foundation which upholds the whole problem of human life, that fundamental truth which only can render any large and permanent well being.

Finally, this natural love is oftentimes ungodly. That is to say, it is the recognition in man (the children of God) of that or that exhibition of the infinite goodness, while it withholds from Him who offers unto Himself all conceivable excellences, all truth, patience, generosity, tenderness, temperance, long suffering, all nobility—while it withholds from Him the heart's true loyalty. So that this natural love of which we speak is indeed oftentimes a very faint reflection and image of that perfect love toward which Christianity calls us. And as we turn back to the text, and hear the words that St. Paul said: "The aim of the commandment, the whole aim of the Christian institution, is love out of a pure heart, and out of a good conscience and out of faith unfeigned."

First—In this matter of Christianity we have to do with such divine forces in their operation upon human nature as we find hopes of even this great result. It is not that we expect outrages to attain unto such goodness, but is it not possible that He who made this thing we call "human soul" with all its varied powers of observation, reason, imagination, feeling and memory, conscience and will, He who made this strange, subtle, intangible thing we call the human soul may not He remake the soul, enter into its profoundest depths, so reconstruct, reorder and energize it that it may shine in all the likeness of God? Is it not said, "He will do for us far more exceedingly than we can ask or think"? And that is the warrant in this Christian church, and in all these Christian churches for the high aspiration toward which Christianity points us.

And the other thing to be said is this, that however true it is that most of us who profess and call ourselves Christians come far very far, short of this high ideal of character, however true it is that with many of us our Christianity is simply as it were, an attempt to secure self-well being in the long reaching future—alas! that it is such a narrow form of Christianity as that—however true that may be, nevertheless I take it for granted that perhaps every one present has during some time in his experience come in contact with some soul, has become intimate perhaps with some life, upon whom the divine truth, the divine providence and the divine inspiration has so operated in transforming power that the soul seems to have entered into the very fellowship of God, even has become radiant with divine life, the features have been chiseled by the soul within, the eye has looked tenderly out toward all men whom it has met, and now and then the very habitation and habit of such a person becomes unspeakably endearing, because of this dwelling of the Lord Christ within.

Second—The aim of Christianity is love not only out of a pure heart, but also out of a good conscience. That is to say, its aim is not a mere sentimental overflow of tears and pity; it shall be a living and mighty engine within, under the guidance of God, as to method, and as to measures, of a widely instructed moral sense. Christianity is something beside mere happiness. It aims at the great soul of life under the guidance and shaping of an instructed moral nature.

Let faith return. Bring back your Bible. Behold one living and eternal God. He is love, and He has loved this poor world so that He has effected redemption for mankind and lifted them across the heavens. Has thrown His arms around man, in order that He might lift him up by His Holy Spirit. Prayer, so that the broken hearted and the sufferer and desolate may go apart from the eyes of man and pour out their hearts to God, whose ear can catch their faintest sigh, and whose eye beholds the falling tear. Providence. No sparrow falls to the ground without His knowledge, and the very hairs of your head are numbered. Death; transformation. Life here, introduction to the life eternal. Let these truths enter and live within human souls, and somehow the human race has become transformed by these facts. I cannot meet a man, woman or child, but at once I know there is one whom God loves. Why should I not love that one? And so it comes to pass that wherever Christianity is there is still love where it was not.

Two inferences are interesting. There may seem to you to be various defects in the historical parts of the Bible, but if you will only tell me where there is a system whose breath is love, whose inspiration is love, which makes this earth a paradise and a very heaven of love, if you tell me where that comes from I am sure I shall know how God comes down to our world in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Second. How much Christianity have you? Not how much religion. The Brahmin, the Mahommedan have religion; that is common to all nations; but how much Christianity have you? There is one answer. So much Christianity as we have self-forgetfulness, self-sacrifice, charity; so much and no more. May God help us. There is infinite resources for us. Let us look to heaven, and let us look to earth, and do the little things at hand in order that when the opportunity may come we may nourish within ourselves the victorious forces of helpfulness until at length, if it please God, we shall be like our Lord Jesus Christ, who was the very fulness of love toward man.

Life Without Any Waste.

In the Rocky Mountain gold fields is a mine without a dump, writes Rev. E. Scott Stevenson, in the New York Observer. Father and son opened a vein of ore, and with some reward for their labors followed it back into the mountain until at the end of sixty feet the ore failed. One day when they were looking over the desolate place that once promised to produce a fortune the son said to his father:

"We'll try again. It looks like fire had burned off a great pillar of gold, and when it fell it broke in two, and what we've dug out was the upper end shoved down the mountain side."

They climbed up 200 feet further, dug down and found the original vein, which proved so rich and pure that no dump was needed, for there was no waste. A life of consecration is a life without waste. God can use all such a life brings to Him. Every word spoken in His fear, every act performed in the consciousness of His eye upon you, every service rendered willingly. He treasures and rewards. A life of real consecration is so near to God it finds and brings to Him only such gifts and services as He is willing to receive and bless.

What to Preach.

Dr. Theodore Cuyler tells us that he never preached a sermon in defense of the Scriptures. He preached the Scriptures themselves; and they proved to be "the power of God unto salvation." We have forty new books upon "The Changing Viewpoint," where we need a hundred upon "Jesus Christ, the Same Yesterday, To-day, and Forever." The apostle told us, many centuries ago, that there would be things to "be shaken;" but he also assured us that there would be "things that remain." Whoever devotes his attention to the shaken instead of to the firm has mistaken his call if he remains in the ministry. "What the world needs," said Dr. Van Dyke, "is not a new Gospel, but more Gospel." That hits the nail on the head.

The Duty of To-Day.

Let it be our happiness this day to add to the happiness of those around us, to comfort some sorrow, to relieve some want, to add some strength to our neighbors' virtue.—Channing.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 7.

Subject: God Taking Care of Elijah. I Kings, xvii., 1-16.—Golden Text, I Pet. v., 7.—Memory Verses, 13, 14.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1 Elijah and his message (v. 1). 1 Elijah. This prophet comes suddenly upon the scene. The records of the people seem to have had three origins in Bethel, in Gilgal and in connection with Mount Ephraim (Josephus). His name means: My God is Jehovah. 2 He was born at Thisbe in the tribe of Naphtali, and was [illegible] and the Tishbite. 3 [illegible] a governor to a man [illegible] and ragged out of a good conscience and out of faith unfeigned.

First—In this matter of Christianity we have to do with such divine forces in their operation upon human nature as we find hopes of even this great result. INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 7.

Subject: God Taking Care of Elijah. I Kings, xvii., 1-16.—Golden Text, I Pet. v., 7.—Memory Verses, 13, 14.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1 Elijah and his message (v. 1). 1 Elijah. This prophet comes suddenly upon the scene. The records of the people seem to have had three origins in Bethel, in Gilgal and in connection with Mount Ephraim (Josephus). His name means: My God is Jehovah. 2 He was born at Thisbe in the tribe of Naphtali, and was [illegible] and the Tishbite. 3 [illegible] a governor to a man [illegible] and ragged out of a good conscience and out of faith unfeigned. [illegible] with a native [illegible] hopes of even this great result. It is not that we expect outrages to attain unto such goodness, but is it not possible that He who made this thing we call "human soul" with all its varied powers of observation, reason, imagination, feeling and memory, conscience and will. He who made this strange, subtle, intangible thing we call the human soul may not He remake the soul, enter into its profoundest depths, so reconstruct, reorder and energize it that it may shine in all the likeness of God? Is it not said, "He will do for us far more exceedingly than we can ask or think"? And that is the warrant in this Christian church, and in all these Christian churches for the high aspiration toward which Christianity points us.

And the other thing to be said is this, that however true it is that most of us who profess and call ourselves Christians come far very far, short of this high ideal of character, however true it is that with many of us our Christianity is simply as it were, an attempt to secure self-well being in the long reaching future—alas! that it is such a narrow form of Christianity as that—however true that may be, nevertheless I take it for granted that perhaps every one present has during some time in his experience come in contact with some soul, has become intimate perhaps with some life, upon whom the divine truth, the divine providence and the divine inspiration has so operated in transforming power that the soul seems to have entered into the very fellowship of God, even has become radiant with divine life, the features have been chiseled by the soul within, the eye has looked tenderly out toward all men whom it has met, and now and then the very habitation and habit of such a person becomes unspeakably endearing, because of this dwelling of the Lord Christ within.

Second—The aim of Christianity is love not only out of a pure heart, but also out of a good conscience. That is to say, its aim is not a mere sentimental overflow of tears and pity; it shall be a living and mighty engine within, under the guidance of God, as to method, and as to measures, of a widely instructed moral sense. Christianity is something beside mere happiness. It aims at the great soul of life under the guidance and shaping of an instructed moral nature.

Let faith return. Bring back your Bible. Behold one living and eternal God. He is love, and He has loved this poor world so that He has effected redemption for mankind and lifted them across the heavens. Has thrown His arms around man, in order that He might lift him up by His Holy Spirit. Prayer, so that the broken hearted and the sufferer and desolate may go apart from the eyes of man and pour out their hearts to God, whose ear can catch their faintest sigh, and whose eye beholds the falling tear. Providence. No sparrow falls to the ground without His knowledge, and the very hairs of your head are numbered. Death; transformation. Life here, introduction to the life eternal. Let these truths enter and live within human souls, and somehow the human race has become transformed by these facts. I cannot meet a man, woman or child, but at once I know there is one whom God loves. Why should I not love that one? And so it comes to pass that wherever Christianity is there is still love where it was not.

Two inferences are interesting. There may seem to you to be various defects in the historical parts of the Bible, but if you will only tell me where there is a system whose breath is love, whose inspiration is love, which makes this earth a paradise and a very heaven of love, if you tell me where that comes from I am sure I shall know how God comes down to our world in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Second. How much Christianity have you? Not how much religion. The Brahmin, the Mahommedan have religion; that is common to all nations; but how much Christianity have you? There is one answer. So much Christianity as we have self-forgetfulness, self-sacrifice, charity; so much and no more. May God help us. There is infinite resources for us. Let us look to heaven, and let us look to earth, and do the little things at hand in order that when the opportunity may come we may nourish within ourselves the victorious forces of helpfulness until at length, if it please God, we shall be like our Lord Jesus Christ, who was the very fulness of love toward man.

Life Without Any Waste.

In the Rocky Mountain gold fields is a mine without a dump, writes Rev. E. Scott Stevenson, in the New York Observer. Father and son opened a vein of ore, and with some reward for their labors followed it back into the mountain until at the end of sixty feet the ore failed. One day when they were looking over the desolate place that once promised to produce a fortune the son said to his father:

"We'll try again. It looks like fire had burned off a great pillar of gold, and when it fell it broke in two, and what we've dug out was the upper end shoved down the mountain side."

They climbed up 200 feet further, dug down and found the original vein, which proved so rich and pure that no dump was needed, for there was no waste. A life of consecration is a life without waste. God can use all such a life brings to Him. Every word spoken in His fear, every act performed in the consciousness of His eye upon you, every service rendered willingly. He treasures and rewards. A life of real consecration is so near to God it finds and brings to Him only such gifts and services as He is willing to receive and bless.

What to Preach.

Dr. Theodore Cuyler tells us that he never preached a sermon in defense of the Scriptures. He preached the Scriptures themselves; and they proved to be "the power of God unto salvation." We have forty new books upon "The Changing Viewpoint," where we need a hundred upon "Jesus Christ, the Same Yesterday, To-day, and Forever." The apostle told us, many centuries ago, that there would be things to "be shaken;" but he also assured us that there would be "things that remain." Whoever devotes his attention to the shaken instead of to the firm has mistaken his call if he remains in the ministry. "What the world needs," said Dr. Van Dyke, "is not a new Gospel, but more Gospel." That hits the nail on the head.

The Duty of To-Day.

Let it be our happiness this day to add to the happiness of those around us, to comfort some sorrow, to relieve some want, to add some strength to our neighbors' virtue.—Channing.

Japan vs. Russia.

It is well known that Japan is a very small country as compared with the Russian empire. Its area is 147,000 square miles, while Russia has 8,000,000. In population the disparity is much less, but still very great—44,000,000 for Japan against 129,000,000 for the Russian Empire.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Our Life Saving Service.

So effective is the life-saving service of the United States that from disasters to 246 documented vessels on the coast during the year, having 3862 persons on board, only twenty lives were lost, and of the $20,000,000 worth of property put in jeopardy but a little more than $1,000,000 was lost.

Strapped to the lid of a coffin and escorted with all the ceremony of an ancient Egyptian funeral procession, a Chicago man was carried to the prenuptial reception given him by his fellow members of the Thirteen Club. CHIEF OF POLICE SAVED.

Newberry, S. C.—W. H. Harris, Chief of Police of Newberry, says: "I suffered for a number of years with kidney complaint. There was a dull aching across the small of my back that was worse at night and made me feel miserable all the time. The kidney secretions were dark and full of sediment, and lack of control compelled me to rise a number of times during the night. Between this annoyance and the backache it was impossible for me to get much sleep and my health was being undermined. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy according to directions promptly brought about a change for the better. After using two boxes the backache all left me, the kidney secretions cleared up and the action of the kidneys became normal."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Chief Harris will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

A TROUBLESOME BOY.

Two modern fathers once were deep
Comparing notes on sons,
The worry they had caused their sires
With horses, boats and guns;
They each retailed the money which
Their escapades had lost them,
And sighed to think of sleepless nights
Those thankless lads had cost them.

Just then Dame Venus happened to
Be passing and to hear;
"Ah, friends," she said, "you do not know
Whereof you speak, I fear;
I have a son who shoots no guns,
Has just a bow and arrow,
And yet the damages I've had
To pay would freeze your marrow!"
—William Wallace Whitelock, in The Criterion.

EARLY EXPRESS SERVICE.

Wells-Fargo Colorado and the Development of the West.

Thomas Sherman says that in eighty years California went through the same progressive changes that in England required 1000 years to accomplish, as a London Success. The history of the last half of these eventful years of the Pacific coast would in no small part be the history of the great Wells-Fargo Express Company. After its establishment in 1852 the company rapidly absorbed all other lines of the State, and was the banker, mail carrier and errand runner for every city, camp or cabin in California.

Henry Wells and William G. Fargo were veterans of the express service before we find their names coupled in that union as closely identified with the West as are the quartz and granite of her hills. Wells was Hargden's agent in Albany in the first branch establishment there, and in 1834 he, with others, planted the first express office of the West. This was at Buffalo—an outpost then four days and three nights from New York, almost as far as California is to-day. Fargo was express messenger for Wells on this Buffalo line. In 1845 Wells, ever lured toward the West, ever tracking the frontier, pushed out his express to St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati. On account of his fine tact and iron resolution Fargo was chosen as manager of this unique and adventurous enterprise. Here in this unfortified space, with his convoy of boats and wagons, he won a large experience in his work.

Wells, ever fertile in ideas and quick to give them shape, now set on foot a letter express at one-fourth the price charged by the Government—six cents instead of twenty-five. Immediately the Government was hot upon his track. He was haled into court again and again, but was always victorious. Then the audacious expressman proposed to the Assistant Postmaster to take charge of the entire mail service of the United States.

"Zounds, sir!" cried the zealous postmaster, his ear to the ground, "such a proceeding would throw 16,000 postmasters out of office. It would never do."

Wells' request was declined by the wary officer, but his protest against high postage went on sounding through the nation, and the next Congress, by the leverage of public opinion, was forced to divide the Government rate by four. So to Henry Wells, leading the host of reform, we owe one of the great forward steps in our civilization.

Kit Carson's Rifle.

It is perhaps not known to all the world that the rifle of Kit Karson, the great Western hunter, scout and explorer, is carefully preserved and may be seen by those who know its whereabouts. At the time of Kit Carson's death he left this rifle to Montezuma Lodge, F. & A. M., of Santa Fe, N. M., in whose charge it has remained ever since, an object of great interest and very highly prized by all members of that society.

Montezuma Lodge is one of the oldest organizations of that nature west of the Missouri River. It was organized as long ago as 1840, at which time the ancient town of Santa Fe was just beginning to take in part the color of the western bound Anglo-Saxon civilization. Fremont's first trip to the Rocky Mountains was made in 1842. There were few white men in all that part of the West at the time of the founding of Montezuma Lodge, but Kit Carson was one of these early members. To his brothers of the society he left what may have been one of his most cherished possessions.—Field and Stream.

The venom of the cobra contains an ingredient not well known that acts upon the nerves. Its effects are rapid and difficult to counteract. This ingredient exists in the cobra's venom to a greater extent than the other substances that make up the poison. The poison of the viperine and crotaline snakes (the rattle snakes, copperhead, moccasin, etc.) contains but a small percentage of this nerve-destroying (or paralyzing) element. The poison of these snakes acts principally upon the blood and in consequence its action is slower.—St. Nicholas.

The rails of the Mexican Gulf railway are laid on mahogany sleepers and the bridges built of white marble. In west Mexico is a line built with ebony sleepers and ballast of silver ore drawn from old mines beside the track. The engineers used these materials because they were the cheapest to be had.

The African Review says that in the Transvaal and the Orange river colony, if the present rate of intermarriage between Briton and Boers is kept up, within twenty years the two races will be so welded together as to be indistinguishable.

The life of an eyelash is from 100 to 150 days. It grows very slowly, but finger nails grow quite rapidly in comparison. If a person could live without breaking his nails for a lifetime they would attain the length of 73 inches.

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—MRS. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Reed, 2425 E. Cumberland St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you the good I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have been a great sufferer with female trouble, trying different doctors and medicines with no benefit. Two years ago I went under an operation, and it left me in a very weak condition. I had stomach trouble, backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, and was very nervous; in fact, I ached all over. I find yours is the only medicine that reaches such troubles, and would cheerfully recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass, as thousands do. Her advice is free and helpful.

No other medicine for women in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

An authoritative list of the surviving generals of the southern confederacy is furnished by General Marcus J. Wright, a confederate veteran employed by the war department. All the full rank generals had died in 1893 when Beauregard had passed away. There are now four surviving lieutenant generals—Simon B. Buckner, Stephen D. Lee, Alexander P. Stewart and Joseph Wheeler. Of major generals there are eleven, and of the brigadier generals fifty-one. The surviving staff officers of the confederacy shrunk one-half in number during the past decade, and their disappearance now has become very rapid.

One of the most highly prized relics in the British museum is the crown formerly used by the Irish kings in the cornation exercises which made them monarchs of the Emerald Isle. Strictly speaking, there were two of these Irish crowns, the one in question being that used by the MacMurroughs, a family who were anciently kings of Leinston. This regal relic, all that remains of the old Irish monarchy, is a plain gold band, rising to a kind of peak or point in front. It dates back to the middle of the tenth century.

William II., as emperor, does not receive a single groschen from the imperial exchequer and has to keep up his imperial state out of his income as King of Prussia, which in the year after his accession was raised by $625,000—his civil list, as king, being now over $3,750,000.

In 1896 the total democratic campaign fund was less than $500,000. The fund this year will be in excess of $5,000,000. The McKinley campaign fund raised by Hanna in 1896 amounted to nearly $16,000,000.

AN IOWA APPLE CAVE.

Very Satisfactory For Farm Storage. A Fruithouse Added to It.

For storing fruit on the farm nothing can equal a good cave. One of the leading orchardists in southwestern Iowa built a cave seven years ago and has found it an excellent place in which to store apples. The cave was dug into a north hill slope and the dirt removed with a spade and wheelbarrow. It is 16 feet wide by 50 feet deep and will hold two carloads of apples. The clay walls need nothing to hold them in place.

The roof is made of bridge plank held in place by posts along the sides

ENTRANCE TO AN APPLE CAVE.

The plank are covered with dirt and sodded over to turn the rain. Two twelve inch tiles at the top provide ventilation. Rats have not bothered much. A few got in, but were caught with a wire trap. A fruithouse 16 by 20 feet is built in front of the cave. Double doors open on the north, so that two wagons can be backed in for unloading. There is an orchard and timber on the south, so that hot south winds have no chance to enter this cave. Apples are stored in barrels, which are kept off the ground.—American Agriculturist.

MARKING CATTLE.

Characters Tattooed In the Ear With Forceps and India Ink.

The cut, from Country Gentleman, shows a means of marking cattle, which a Canadian correspondent says is open to the fewest objections and is practiced by many breeders of live stock in Great Britain. The operation of tattooing, he says, is simple and practically painless. The mark is legible and fairly durable, but unless some white fluid for use in tattooing black skinned animals is available this method would be useless for certain breeds of cattle and swine. The instrument used is simple and easily manipulated. It consists, as shown in the cut, of a pair of pinchers or forceps so constructed as to permit of changing the marking teeth or stamps. Numbers from 1 to 0 may be arranged in many combinations and so serve when tattooed on the ear effectually to distinguish the individual. Initials or whole words may be tattooed. The tattooing process is simple. The ear of the animal should be thoroughly cleaned. India ink should then be applied with a brush to the hairless or inner side of the ear so as to cover the surface where it is desired the characters should appear. The jaws of the forceps being so placed on the ear as to bring the piercing device over the ink, a sufficient pressure should be exerted to cause the points to pierce the epidermis and true skin, but not the cartilage of the ear. The ink should then be rubbed into the punctures, although generally the mere piercing operation drives enough coloring matter into the skin to leave a good mark. The wound soon heals, and a mark that cannot be easily removed or tampered with is left.

ATTRACTIVE STREETS.

Highways Should Be Wide and Houses Stand Well Back.

A narrow residential street may be a very attractive one if the houses stand well back from the street line, with pleasant grounds about them, says Sylvester Baxter in the September Century. In a growing town, however, the danger from such conditions comes with the liability to convert the street to business purposes or to erect more compactly disposed dwellings. If business comes in, the transition is commonly marked by jagged lines. Commercial structures, often of a cheap and undesirable aspect, are built out to the street, while the dwellings stand recessed back at irregular intervals. And when at last the street is fully occupied for business purposes it is altogether too narrow. The roadway and sidewalks are cramped, and often a widening has to take place at the public expense. If built up closely to the line with dwellings, the street is likely to lack air and sunshine, and the tendency is toward squalid conditions.

An excellent remedy for these evils is offered in the Massachusetts law that empowered municipalities to establish building lines at any desired distance back from the street line. When such a line is established, no buildings can be erected on the intervening space. The municipality acquires an easement in this strip of land, which can still be used by the owner for anything but building purposes, and on the establishment of such a line owners may claim damages, as in case of takings for a street widening. It is, however, commonly more of a benefit than a damage to have property thus restricted, for it assures a more permanently desirable character to the street, and in case a street widening should ever be called for no obstacles will stand in the way. By taking the restricted strips there will be ample room for the wider roadway and sidewalks.

Ideals for attractive street planning are to be found in many parts of the United States. There is nothing more charming as a rural street than that of a New England village at its best—lofty aisles of leafage, the trees with feet in a carpet of turf at the sidewalk border; the houses quiet and unobtrusive, standing well back and marked with the true home character, whether they are humble cottages or abodes of the rich. The noblest development of such rural streets is to be found in the old towns of the Connecticut valley and in western Massa-

The Care of Earth Roads.

Earth roads should be repaired, particularly in the spring and fall of the year, but the mistake of letting them take care of themselves during the balance of the year should not be made. The greatest need of the common road in this country is daily or weekly care. A road receiving daily attention will require no extensive repairs and instead of becoming worse will gradually improve. It is minute and frequent homeopathic treatment that the earth road needs.

Rye and Russian Thistle.

It is nothing uncommon for rye to yield forty bushels to the acre, and if the ground is properly prepared and good seed well put in failure will not occur if there is enough moisture in the ground to germinate the seed in the fall. Rye can be sown in August or any time before the ground freezes. We have seen good crops when the grain was sown so late that the plants could hardly be seen above ground until the following spring. If rye is not sown by Sept. 20, it is usually better to wait until the ground is about to freeze up. One who has land infested with Russian thistles will find great satisfaction in sowing rye thick and early. Some sow in July and pasture the stand so it cannot joint, then harvest a crop the next year.—Field and Farm.

New Jersey's Good Roads.

During the past twelve months $450,000 was spent in macadamizing public roads in New Jersey, and for this comparatively small sum the state now has 140 miles of the finest rural thoroughfares in the country. Altogether New Jersey has 641 miles of these fine highways.

FIRST BALE OF COTTON.

All previous records were broken Saturday when the first bale of this season's cotton was received in Montgomery and was sold at auction. The earliest bale of cotton ever received here before came in on July 30.

The bale received Saturday not only broke the record for the Montgomery market but it broke the States' record for early cotton. It was grown in Geneva county and was marketed at Hartford on July 26, which is declared to be the earliest that any grower of cotton in Alabama has ever sent a bale to market.

A company which manufactures fertilizers used by the farmer who grew this cotton purchased the first bale through P. M. Metcalfe of Hartford paying 15½ cents a pound for it. The bale was shipped to Marks and Gayle of Montgomery arriving there Satday. It weighs 452 pounds and classed middling. Saturday morning the new cotton bale was sold at auction in the office of a broker and notwithstanding the ruling price for middling cotton in Montgomery Saturday was 10 5-16 the bale was bought in by Marks and Gayle for 10 cents. But one other bid, 9 cents was offered. The lack of bidders for the new cotton was remarked upon by brokers and no explanation was made other than the suggestions that little interest was manifested, due to the fact that the cotton was not produced in what is known as Montgomery territory.

According to the records new cotton bales have been marketed in Montgomery as early as July but four times in 35 years. In 1882 a bale was received here July 30 which sold for 33 cents; July 31, 1888, a bale was received which sold for 10 cents; July 30, 1896 a bale was received which sold for 8¼ cents and July 31, 1902 a bale was received which sold for 10 cents.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like the Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send us $3 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and honest men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Clanton, Aug. 6, 1904

Editor Banner. For the last two or three months I have noticed a communication from Cooper in that tramp paper and as no one else seems to be fool enough to notice the ignorant writer of that piece I thought I would give him a punch.

I think the poor fellow has got hold of a cheap cheroot and a "Yallar Jackit" and imagines he's a politician. He keeps whining "did you know" so and so in his letters, and I just thought I would see what he knew. In the first place, Mr. "A M." did you know you lied when you said the Democrats hired Jennings, and that you told lie No. 2 when you said Cleveland waltzed with a negro? Do you know why Reynolds was nominated instead of Mr Dake? Pounds instead of Mims and Bice instead of Wiley Littlejohn, etc? Do you know that once, dispondent and hopeless, the Editor of the Union sat in a dark cell of our county jail, placed there for a cause that pity for a human being keeps me from mentioning here? Do you know who was his only friend in those hours of loneliness? Do you know that several good citizens of our county have sworn on the stand that they would not believe him on oath? Do you know why he is without a mate today?

Do you know that Reynolds never attempts to tell such tales as his flour tale, and use such arguments with sensible Democrats he comes in contact with in Montgomery, as he does with such ignorant men as you are, and that if he is elected he won't pat you on the shoulder or have any more use for you until he wants another office?

Do you know that Pounds, your nominee for Assessor, hasn't paid any tax in several years, that he owes honest debts and returns the statement sent to him unopened, and that the writer can furnish the names of half a dozen nice men and women, who were formerly his neighbors, that sincerely hope he will not move back to Clanton? Do you know that two years ago Bice was a Democrat, and left the party because the Governor would not give him a certain appointment, that he made a peculiar confession in church once, and that he was at the head of the ticket, and had done started to work until the trade ticket was organized? Do you know that the "Yallar Jackit" is of a low character, and that it has no circulation in the north where honest Republicans dwell.

My friend, if you will go to the glass and take a look you will see a pair of dull oxen eyes and a low, rounding forehead; let that convince you that you are not a politician, but one of those creatures whose only talent is a tiller of the soil, and there, and only there, will you ever be happy or successful.

Dear Editor, to you and your readers I wish to apologize for stooping so low as to mention in the columns of your paper anything concerning that Jailbird paper or any of its vicious communications, but while I know ignorance and prejudice are ruling supreme in their heads and hearts and that they should be pitied rather than scorned, I can't forever sit idly by and listen to the unreasonable slander of honest men in the Democratic party and not raise my hand in their defense, for I myself am a true Democrat. Boy's I'll get Frank, the gass bag, the next time I come.

Providence.

We have had plenty of rain and crops are good, and our Sunday school progressig nicely under the careful management of our superentendent, R. Robinson; and we have a nice singing school which we believe will prove a success to our community, taught by Prof. R. Robinson. The same will close on Friday before the second Sunday in August.

We are sorry to say that Miss Lurah Robinson had to go to Birmingham for her health, but we hope to see her at home again soon.

Singing school committee: R. M. Robinson, J. L. Powell, J. M. Parrish, Jr.

Verbena.

Once again I will ask space for Verbena in your colums. There is not much doing socially, but we've had lots of rain and everybody has a pleasant face.

For the first time since April 8th. We are having only a small amount of politics shoved at us just now. Though for awhile it seemed that something would have to be done; most everybody has recovered from the effects of the last primary.

We are glad to see Mr. F. A. Gulledge out again and hope to soon hear him say he is quite well. There is no serious sickness in Verbena. Being a health resort we are hoping not to have any.

Mr. Will Gulledge has gone to Benton to the bedside of his sick son; we truly hope he will find him very much improved.

We had quite a nice crowd of visitors at the Hotel Mabson Sunday and are looking for more today. Part of the ladies of this place are visiting the Exposition at St. Louis, and we hope are having a swell time.

The Misses Meriwether of Union Springs are visiting Miss Sadie Mitchell of this city.

Mr. Thos. M. Mitchell was shaking hands with his many friends here yesterday, having been absent some time on business.

We are told that there will be a change in the management of the Verbena Drug Co. soon.

Well, I guess I will desist as some one else might want to write some. PHRANCHS.

Deputy Sheriff McCann arrested a negro, Bill Thomas, on the plantation of Major M. Smith near Prattville, who is wanted for murder committed near Victoria, in Coffee county, in 1892. The negro had trouble with a prominent farmer who was very old, and threw a brick bat, wounding Mr. Morgan so that he never regained consciousness and after lingering for several days died.

State Examiner Gorman has filed with the governor his report on the books of Tax Collector P. B. Derion, of Mobile county. He says that $158,125.32 state taxes have been accounted for. It was also pointed out that increases of valuations of $23,874 had not been charged to the collector, which made him due to the state, after deducting commissions $152.68. This was at once remitted.

KUROPATKIN PRAISED

By the Japanese Army for His Generalship in the Peninsular Campaign.

A JAPANESE CRUISER IS SUNK.

General Kuropatkin's success in extricating his army from the Liao Tung peninsula without disaster has elicited much praise from the Japanese. The concentrating of his army at Kai Chou at one time seemed certain to involve it in destruction.

It was believed that a generally decisive battle would be fought at Ta Che Kiao or Hai Cheng. It is considered that Kuropatkin showed his ability by withdrawing his immense army without a battle. He was forced to abandon or destroy valuable stores and munitions of war when transportation was the most serious problem to the Russians. He also impaired the morale of his army, but he preserved his men and guns.

It is evident that he had hoped and planned to check the Japanese at Ta Tche Kiao. Then, after holding the enemy in check, it is believed to have been his purpose to concentrate his remaining force at Liao Yang and to strike Kuroki.

The possession of Yin Kow (the port of New Chwang) has simplified the transportation problem for the Japanese. It gives their two armies a freedom of movement which they have heretofore not possessed. The Japanese are repairing the railroad, which the Russians failed to seriously damage.

The Japanese force which captured Wolf's Hill is entrenched in the valley about two-thirds of a mile from the fortress at Port Arthur.

A Japanese cruiser is alleged to have struck a mine and to have sunk immediately. The Russian cruiser Bayan has a small hole above her water line, which was inflicted by the explosion of a mine which had floated to the harbor entrance. There are unofficial reports that the Japanese have captured commanding positions north and northeast of Port Arthur at a distance of two miles, fifty yards from the main line of the Russian defenses.

The Russian force in front of General Kuroki's army are reported retreating northward. A part of it has encamped at Anping, twelve miles from Liao Yang.

In connection with the death of Lieutenant-General Count Keller, killed on July 29, Chinese say that the Russians removed two coffins from that place with great ceremony.

Beaten to Death.

A mysterious murder was committed near Ridgedale, a suburb of Chattanooga. Mrs. Linda Holcom, a white woman who lived with her husband in a tent in the woods, was literally beaten to death with skillets and other kitchen utensils. She was found a short distance from the tent covered with blood, and with her clothes almost torn off her.

The woman stated that she had been suddenly attacked by a negro or a white man disguised as a negro. She died before an accurate description could be obtained from her.

To Start Two Furnaces.

It is reported on good authority that preparations are being made by the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway company to start up at least two of its furnaces at Bessemer. It is also stated that the company will start up its ore mines at Lower Smith's on full time.

Lives to Tell the Tale.

Miller Works, a little white boy, aged about 12 years, was struck by lightning near Avery, Etowah county, while he was en route home from school. A rain came up and he ran to a tree for shelter, when a bolt of lightning struck the tree and the boy, rendering him unconscious, tearing out the crown of his hat, burning the hair off of one side of his head and burning his body on the left side from his head to his feet.

SENT TO TURKEY.

United States Fleet Will Support Leishman in His Demands on the Sultan.

The European squadron has been ordered to Turkish waters.

The orders were cabled to Rear Admiral Jewell, commander of the squadron at Nice. His ships are the Olympia, Baltimore and Cleveland. It is understood that he will proceed to the eastern Mediterranean somewhere near the Black sea.

The destination of the fleet is Smyrna. This place was selected because it afforded direct cable communication with Washington and is only about 200 miles distant from Constantinople. The trip probably will be made in three days and when he arrives there Admiral Jewell will put himself in communication with Minister Leishman and also report to Washington.

Secretary Hay bluntly told Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, that the patience of the American government is well-night exhausted. The charge is expected to communicate this information to his home government speedily. Chekib Bey had no instructions from the porte when he called at the state department. He had seen the newspaper reports of the intention of the state department to second Minister Leischman's efforts diplomatically at Constantinople by the presence of a fleet of American warships in Turkish waters, and he doubted the reports. Secretary Hay soon satisfied him on that point and the minister returned to his legation to frame a dispatch for the information of the Turkish foreign office.

PARKER RESIGNS

As Chief Justice of the New York Court of Appeals.

Hon. John F. O'Brien, Secretary of State:

Sir—I hereby respectfully resign my office as chief justice of the court of appeals of the state of New York, such resignation to take effect immediately.

ALTON B. PARKER

Rosemont, Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 1, 1904.

Alton B. Parker ceased to be chief judge of the court of appeals of New York at 3:20 p. m. Friday and became the candidate of the democratic party for the presidency of the United States, lacking only the formal notification of his nomination, which will take place at Rosemont Wednesday afternoon.

For the first time in nearly thirty years he is only a private citizen. All of the cases in which Judge Parker was assisting judge were disposed of.

Judge Parker's resignation will enable the issuance of new orders to bring about the election of his successor this fall for the full term of fourteen years instead of an appointment by the governor for one year if the resignation had been delayed until after August 10.

It Was Mrs. Davis.

At the Knights of Columbus' outing giving a vaudeville performance and at Put-in-Bay recently the knights were the orchestra had rendered a few numbers, and for a closing selection struck up the lively strains of "Dixie." A sweet faced old lady in the front row stood up with somewhat of an effort, as she has to use a cane. Beside her stood her niece, her companion. The effect on the crowd was electrical. The notes of the musicians was drowned out by the cheers and hand clapping of the assembly. The old lady turned and bowed again and again to the right and left. She was Mrs. Jefferson Davis.

Not Badly Constructed.

The Mexican official gazette denies that the gunboats Tampico and Vera Cruz, built by Lewis Nixon at Elizabeth, N. J., were badly constructed, as rumored. The official gazette says the gunboats only need some small repairs to the boilers, when they will be in perfect condition for service. Their construction is solid.

Busy on the Canal.

A hurry call for 2,000,000 feet of lumber, mostly cypress, was received by Secretary Murphy, of the Panama commission, from the isthmus. Besides the lumber 400 pieces of piling also were asked for, with the request that the shipment be expedited. This is the second order for lumber for the canal. The purchasing agent of the commission is now in New Orleans supervising the shipment of 1,500,000 feet of yellow pine to the isthmus. The lumber is to be used in repairing old and constructing new buildings, and the piling for canal construction.

Marshal Dead.

M. W. O'Connell, former marshal of Victor, Colo., came to his death by falling from the fourth story window of a hotel.

The police hold to the suicide theory on the ground that an accident would be almost impossible, as the window in the toilet room from which O'Connell fell was small. Friends of O'Connell declared that he was murdered.

THROUGH THE BRIDGE

Colorado Passenger Train is Wrecked and Persons Killed and Drowned.

BRIDGE WEAKENED BY RAINS.

Death List Will Reach Nearly 100. Cars Washed Down Stream. Express Safe Empty.

A Rio Grande passenger train went through a bridge at Eden, Colo., Sunday night. The engine and five coaches were wrecked and a number of passengers injured. The accident was caused by the heavy rain, which weakened the bridge. The extent of the injuries to the passengers is not known, but it is rumored that about 100 persons perished.

The wrecked train was the Missouri Pacific world's fair flyer, the fastest train sent out of Denver by the Denver and Rio Grande, and usually carries a heavy passenger list.

A message from the Pinon railroad agent said that he could find no trace of the engine and three of the cars. He found the fireman wandering about in a dazed condition, looking for the engineer, and could hear the cries of the unfortunates. He said that the conductor, engineer and brakeman are among the dead.

The bodies of three young women, unidentified, washed down Fountain river. J. M. Killen, a Pueblo business man, injured, but not seriously, was washed down the river a distance of a mile, when he was enabled to crawl out on the bank.

A dispatch to the general office of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad company says that the number of passengers in the smoker and chair car are estimated at seventy, only three of whom are accounted for as living.

The train dashed through a bridge over Dry creek, an arroyo fifty feet across, near Eden. A cloudburst had filled the creek and water was flowing over the trestle when the train started across. The bridge went down under the weight of the train, and the baggage car, smoker and chair car were precipitated into the torrent. The engine got almost across, but fell back into the water.

The chair car was half a mile from the scene of the accident, half filled with sand, in which were found buried the bodies of many passengers.

The smoker was washed still further down stream and was not located until several hours after the time of the accident.

When Division Superintendent Bowergn reached the scene of the wreck the missing cars had not been located, and passengers and train hands who accompanied him organized searching parties to follow the course of the river. The three cars were found close to the shore in Fountain creek, of which Dry creek is a tributary, and which in turn flows into the Arkansas river.

Whether the engine and the torrent of water from the cloudburst struck the bridge simultaneously or the torrent had already undermined the structure is not known, but the reports at the Denver office say that the air was turned on and that this saved the diner and sleepers from being precipitated into the creek.

Most of the dead were in the cars buried under the debris.

Fireman Mayfield said as the engine struck the trestle it seemed to rear and fall on its side. The fireman jumped and escaped.

When the baggage car, smoker and chair car left the tracks and plunged into the stream they were swept down by the current and the trucks torn off. This lightened them, and the volume of water can be understood when it is reported by Superintendent Bowren that they were carried four miles before they came ashore.

PASSENGER TRAIN COLLISION

On the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. Thirty-three Injured.

Two Louisville and Nashville passenger trains met head-on early Thursday morning near Horse Cave, Ky.

Thirty-three passengers and four thought, will die. The condition of trainmen were injured, but none, it is Engineer Rehm is serious.

According to the information Rehm either disregarded orders or was sound asleep, as his train was going at a forty-mile clip when it struck the north-bound passenger. One baggage car was destroyed and one postal car damaged, but none of the coaches left the track.

Due to Recklessness.

Prince Shirenski, an eye-witness of Lieutenant-General Keller's death, says it was due to a reckless inspection of the batteries made on foot. During a lull in the fighting General Keller, though warned by his subordinates, laughed and slipped from his horse and walked to the front of the battery just as a schrapnel burst. He died within two minutes after being wounded.

TO MANASSAS

Certain Companies of the Alabama National Guard Will Go.

Gen. W. W. Brandon, who is to command the provisional regiment which goes to Manassas from Alabama, gave out the following as the companies so far selected to go to make up the regiment which will probably leave Alabama September 2.

Mobile company, commanded by Capt. John D. Hagan, Fort Deposit by Capt. H. H. Coleman, Dothan by Capt. J. W. Sanders, Gadsden by Capt. L. B. Rainey, Oxford and Anniston by Capt. D. Houston Smith, Birmingham by Capt. L. C. Brown, Woodlawn, Bessemer and Birmingham one company, Earle G. Evans, Florence and Decatur, Capt. J. E. Gillette, Montgomery by Capt. E. F. Raber, Jr., Girard by Capt. E. F. Coulter, Eufaula by Capt. Robert K. Stevens. The other company has not as yet been definitely settled upon, and there may be some changes in the list above.

Money for Education.

The adoption of the plan of special taxation for school purposes in Jefferson county will give to the children of that county for educational purposes $49,000 in excess of what they now receive. The present appropriation from the state is $32,000, showing that by the action of this law two sources of educational revenue provide $81,000, and also that the special taxes amount to more than the state appropriation.

Talladega county, which was one of the first to vote the extra tax, will receive from it $7,087 on the present valuation of property, which will give, with the state fund, $16,145, an annual fund of $23,000 in round figures.

Walker county has also voted the tax. It will receive from it $5,000 to go along with $12,380 now received from the state.

BACK TO WORK.

Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company Signs the Contract.

The Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron company, Col. T. G. Bush president, has signed the temporary contract or wage scale with the United Mine Workers of America, District No. 20, and work resumed at all their mines Monday.

The temporary contract is the same scale of wages which was in effect prior to July 1.

The Alabama Consolidated company owns and operates mines at Searles, Brookwood and Hewitt, in Tuskaloosa county, on the Birmingham and Mineral railroad, and at Lewisburg, in Jefferson county. Employment is given to about 600 mine workers.

Stores Burned.

George W. Wise's general merchandise store, Richard Rousseau's grocery store and Joseph Ward's meat market and residence were destroyed in a fire in Dallas village, near Huntsville, early Saturday morning. The fire started in Wise's and was communicated to the other stores adjoining. Several other merchants lost heavily by removing their goods.

Cost of Living.

Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of the labor bureau, gives the results of a comprehensive inquiry into the cost of living since 1896 and into the average wage rate during that period. An investigation of 519 occupations, representing sixty-seven industries, shows an average increase in wages of 16.6 per cent. The cost of living for workingmen's families, having under $1,200 income per year, shows an increase of 15.5 per cent.

Seek Damages.

Suits aggregating about $10,000 were filed against the Tuskaloosa Light and Ice company by Tuskaloosa merchants. The plant of the Tuskaloosa Light and Ice company was completely destroyed on the 5th of last August by the explosion of its boilers. The above claims are for the damage done by the immense twenty-one ton boiler, which was blown across the city, dealing destruction as it shot through the air for several blocks.

Peonage in Georgia.

State Senator Foye, of Egypt, Ga., and his brother are under arrest on the charge of holding negroes in bondage. Foye is one of the wealthiest men in south Georgia and is a democratic leader. He conducts several large turpentine farms near Egypt, and federal officers assert that he is holding many negroes as slaves. The negroes are confined at night in stockades and are worked in chains during the day.

FARM AND GARDEN

COVERING FOR THE SOIL.

...owers cannot control the rainfall, they can at least mitigate the effects of drouth to a certain extent by proper preparations and cultivation of the soil. It is a well known fact that when the soil is kept in a fine friable condition it not only retains moisture from the atmosphere rapidly at night, but allows the downward course of the water in showers instead of a loss by run off, as is the case when the soil is hard says a writer in an exchange. A loose, deep soil also permits an upward tendency of water by capillary attraction, the loose soil thus drawing moisture by its greater powers of absorption when rains are abundant. We therefore find in time of severe drouth that the frequent use of the cultivator even when the soil apparently does not require working is very beneficial, the green tinge of the grass being evidence that the constant stirring of the soil enables the roots to derive a certain proportion of moisture that it would not otherwise obtain. The leaves of plants give off moisture very rapidly. When we shade a plant with water the moisture is not absorbed by the leaves, as we suppose, but it arrests, temporarily, the rapid evaporation that constantly takes place which is greatest when the sun is very warm. We therefore impart a growing plant a pump which brings the moisture from below and discharges it from the leaves. The moisture is collected by the roots which spread in every direction, and the amount of moisture thus drawn off is a day by a plant, as corn, for instance, is very great.

Mulching, of course, water a field will not, but will at least lessen the amount of water which it gives off. It warms the soil the more active plant life in search of moisture, and the agencies used for assisting the moisture to plants, which are sufficient degree in the atmosphere. Any material used as a mulch will impart moisture to the growing crop, not only by preventing the evaporation of moisture from the soil, but also by keeping the earth cool. The only difficulty, however, for securing the proper proportion of moisture is, as is often, constant, thorough cultivation of the soil.

There is another race to be considered. Weeds and grass also give off moisture, and every weed that grows on the side of a plant intended for use deprives the desired plant of moisture. Sometimes the weeds or grass require more moisture than the plant and flourishes while the plant dies. Clean cultivation therefore prevents the robbery of the soil of moisture by destroying weeds that would. As two plants of the same kind growing together are rivals, the struggling against the other for moisture in procuring food and moisture, so should be cautious not to have too many plants to the hill.

The greatest danger occurs during drouth. Almost nearly every Summer, the plants should be to thin out every plant that can be spared in order that the stronger and more thrifty may have more opportunities to mature. A fine surface and deep tillage will save a crop that otherwise would be lost during a dry season.—Orange Judd Farmer.

SCALED LEG TREATMENTS.

Horses that have run at pasture are frequently troubled with swollen or scaled legs when first brought to the stable in the Fall, and others that have been run to grass are so affected after coming from "general debility." The following is an excellent remedy for such cases:

Sulphate of iron (copperas), three ounces, powder edgentian root, two ounces, sulphite (not sulphate) of soda, three ounces. Have the druggist mix these ingredients and then divide in his mortar and then divide the compound into twenty-four powders.

Give one of the powders night and morning mixed in the grain feed, until used. Moisten the grain slightly before putting in the powder.

This treatment does not effect a cure, give a teaspoonful of glauber salts in the feed every night for two or three days if necessary. Cases where the legs have been "stocked" continue and quite badly for some time can be permanently cured by glass.—Exchange.

GEESE.

The common geese have the male and female different in plumage. All the pure breeds have the plumage the same. The Toulouse is the largest and the China the smallest. The Embden is the best layer, being pure white in color. The cross of the Toulouse gander and China goose makes the best young for market. The gander may be known by being thicker around the body and also being more masculine in appearance. Though geese derive a part of their subsistence when allowed access to a pond, yet they may be pastured, or may be kept entirely and fed on grass, turnips (chopped), potatoes and grain. The goose lays from twenty to forty eggs, and the gander keeps a faithful watch over her at times when she is on the nest. When sitting it is best to disturb her as little as possible. She makes a good mother, and usually raises all her young ones.

LICE KILLER.

The most perfect way to rid chickens of lice, and the chicken house, too, is to fill a number of small narrow mouthed bottles with bisulphide of carbon, leaving them uncorked; tie one bottle to each perch, alternate on each side of the house, and always to the highest perches. If more than one tier is in house. The fumes of the crabon always descend, and if the house is reasonably tight, it will positively rid the whole flock and premises of lice. We have thoroughly tested this remedy in the past three years. I also use it in my wheat bins, and it exterminates every grain weevil, worm or moth which infests the grain in any way. It is also good to exterminate rats and mice, as all vermin of every description loath the scent of bisulphide of carbon, and will not stay where it is. It will not injure the grain in the least, as I have used it for a number of years.—C. W. Norris in The Epitomist.

GROWING PEAS.

Peas may be sown as soon as the ground permits. The dwarf kinds are the earliest, the American Wonder being an excellent variety. As dwarf varieties seldom give more than one picking, they should be sown in succession every week or two. One of the choice flavored peas is the Champion of England, but it does best when supported with strings or sticks, and answers well as an intermediate variety. Peas may be had throughout the entire season if sown at regular intervals, and they should find a place in every garden. This is a matter which should not be overlooked, as many are fortunate in having peas until the Summer is gone, and find it no more troublesome than growing them early. Peas are a luxury at all times, and by successive crops the garden can be made to yield much more than it does under the system of gathering the seed and allowing the weeds to appear.

HOOKS INSTEAD OF NAILS.

In fastening cold frames or hotbed frames together, use hooks in the corners. They may then be removed without injury to the boards when one is through with them. This does away with nailing every time. Small hooks may be made of plain wire, using a staple instead of an eye, or hooks and eyes may be purchased for the purpose.—Mrs. C. B. Barrett in The Epitomist.

TAKING AN AIR BATH.

It must be remembered that we rarely, if ever, give our skin the opportunity to breathe properly. Our perverted condition in regard to heavy, unventilated and very often restricted clothing has given us a skin that is constantly moist, clammy and cold to the touch. Or else it is dry and dead and can be rubbed off by the hand with little effort. Restricted clothing not only damages the lungs and internal vital organs of the body, but causes the circulation of the skin to become stagnant and poor. A great many ills that we do not understand are caused by the unhygienic practice of smothering the skin.

Give your body an air bath! Reanimate your skin! This is a splendid time to begin the habit of doing so, since a "cold" need not be feared at this time of the year, and you will strengthen the skin against the more severe season. Exposure and draughts against the body is a superstition more or less. The writer has often stood before a cold draught taking an air bath in winter, and the practice has yielded a day's tonic to the body that cannot be explained, but must be tried upon one's own person to be understood and appreciated.

Open your windows wide and exercise until the pores have become awakened. Then let the cool, fresh morning air play upon your body, lying down if you desire. It will be a treat that you will never want to miss again. It acts as a delightful tonic to the nerves. There is no better medicine for weak, nervous people than the air bath. The very blood tingles with the unaccustomed freedom of the body and its contact with the energizing air.—New York Mail and

LONDON POLICEMEN.

The Methods Pursued in Their Development.

All London constables, wherever they may be stationed, pass through the same initial course of training. Some of the candidates who apply come from the army, a smaller number from the navy; the majority are well grown young countrymen, who later on will startle one in the London streets with a whiff of Yorkshire or Devonshire in their speech. They must, of course, be strong and healthy, and their character must be unsmirched, according to the World's Work. Strength and health are of particular importance to a man who may have to grapple at any moment with a brawny criminal and must certainly spend two or three nights a week in the open without regard to weather. And every constable passes once a month under the doctor's inspection. As to character—well, that is of the essence of a constable, who must be not only a guardian, but an angel.

When a man has shown that he has the strength of a guardian and the character of an angel he may be accepted as a potential policeman. He is put through a six weeks' course of training. Day by day he goes to Wellington barracks and is taught the elements of drill—which seem unimportant to a man whose function is to act alone. He is also taught a little wrestling, and instructed as to the best method of overcoming a recalcitrant wrong-doer. Doubtless there will come a day when our constables will be taught by Japanese and adopt their system of applied mathematics. At present the young man learns only the raw methods of the West. During those six weeks, too, he attends police courts and watches the demeanor and listens to the evidence of constables—thus picking up some small knowledge of the powers of the police and qualifying himself to carry on the traditional laws of police evidence. When the six weeks are over he appears before the Commissioner of Police—who is by virtue of his office a justice of the peace—and swears in due form that he will carry out his duties in preventing burglaries, robberies, felonies, and murders; that he will protect property, and so forth; and, finally, will not divulge official secrets. That done, the young man—the young angel—becomes a guardian, with uniform and truncheon, and is sent on to the streets to see that London behaves itself.

How They "Registered."

"I see that the 'Big Thing' is on at last with the war correspondents in Japan," said an old newspaper man yesterday. "They're off at last, I know a lot of 'em, and they're a mighty bright bunch, I can tell you—a bright bunch—sixty ways from the Jack, at every stage of the game."

"Is Dicky Davis with 'em?"

"I guess yes. Richard Harding D. didn't start this war of his own volition, but being in't, he will push it to the bitter end. Ever hear that story about Dicky and his valet at Havanna in our late skirmish with the Don?

"You ought to have seen Davis when he struck Cuba. He was a show. Two or three special made-to-order duck and khaki suits, pockets for notebooks, silver-mounted revolvers and holsters, pencil with gold chain attachment (so that he would not lose his professional implements in the wild charge and have to make his notes with a pointed stick dipped in blood, and all that sort of thing. Oh, he was a get-up regardless, and he registered at the big hotel with a flourish:

"'Bill Gregory and Valise of Chicago.'"—Portland Oregonian.

Russia's Debt.

The public debt of Russia is $3,300,000,000; her gold reserve fund is about four hundred million dollars, and there is perhaps three hundred and forty million dollars in gold in circulation in the empire. M. de Witte said recently in a meeting of the council of state: "The imposition of direct and indirect taxes upon population has reached the last possible limit. To lay any further burden upon the tax-paying power will not only be fruitless of results, but can hardly be regarded as permissible in the present economic condition of the country."

SEVEN GIRLS DROWN

While Bathing in the Mississippi River Just Below Alton, Ill.

ONLY ONE SAVED OUT OF EIGHT.

While bathing in the Mississippi river Michael Riley, daughter and six of the latter's little girl friends were drowned. One child who was in the party was rescued.

Riley lived near the river in the southern part of Alton, Ill., and was accustomed to bathe on the beach in front of his home after his return from work.

His little daughter begged to go with him, and Riley took her and several of her little friends to the beach with him. When they entered the water Riley bade the children join hands, and they all waded into the water and walked along a sandbar which stretches out into the stream at that point.

They had gone some distance from the shore, when suddenly the whole party disappeared beneath the water, having in the darkness stepped from the sandbar into the deep channel.

Riley, who is said to have been a good swimmer, is thought to have been made helpless by the girls clinging to him and hampering his efforts to save them.

Fight Just Outside Port Arthur.

Admiral Togo cables that an exciting torpedo destroyer fight took place off Port Arthur on Friday evening, when the Japanese torpedo destroyers Akbono and Obosa approached the entrance of the harbor for the purpose of reconnoitering.

Fourteen torpedo boat destroyers dashed out, separated and endeavored to surround the Japanese boats. The latter broke through the cordon, however, driving three or four of the Russian boats. At this point the Japanese torpedo destroyer Ironmo joined the other two, and the three turned and attacked the eleven Russian boats. The latter retired within the harbor. The Japanese boats were uninjured. The damage to the Russian ships is unknown.

Four Hundred Delegates.

Delegates will come to Birmingham next week from all parts of the United States, Canada and Cuba to attend the biennial convention of the United Association of Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers of the United States and Canada. The delegates, numbering about 400, will spend about ten days or two weeks in Birmingham. They represent an international organization of over 40,000 skilled workmen. This will be the first convention of the body held in two years, the last convention taking place in Omaha two years ago. Only two southern cities—Birmingham and Nashville—have ever been honored by the body in the selection of places of meeting.

TWENTY-TWO PASSENGERS

Have Narrow Escape in a Railroad Wreck in Tennessee.

A Southern passenger train on the Knoxville and Ohio division was wrecked by spreading rails near Elk Valley, Tenn. While running along at a lively clip the baggage car and three coaches left the rail and turned over. Three trainmen were painfully hurt, but twenty-two passengers aboard had miraculous escapes from serious injury.

Five years ago a disastrous wreck occurred at the same point from the same cause, in which several lives were lost.

A Narrow Escape.

A freight train carrying a caboose in which were five traveling men came very near going into the Cahaba river. Just as the caboose got on the bridge the passengers heard a noise and felt the structure sink with them. The caboose crossed safely over, and looking back part of the bridge was seen to have been torn away. It was ascertained that a heavy log had rolled from a car just in front of the caboose and had broken out much timber and bent the iron of the bridge.

JEWELS VALUED AT $

Stolen From Summer Home of Yorker. No Clue at Present, but the Police Are at Work.

The most extensive jewelry robbery ever perpetrated in this country, involving a loss of $200,000, is reported to be engaging the attention of the police and scores of private detectives in eastern cities. Great secrecy surrounds the robbery, which appears to have been committed about June 21 in the Newport residence of a prominent New Yorker, whose name is withheld. Diamonds and other precious stones valued at the sum mentioned are missing. The matter has only become public through the publication of a list of the missing jewels. Orders have been issued to spare no expense or labor to find the robbers and restore the gems, and every suggestion that could aid in the discovery has been covered, but thus far the case is involved in mystery.

KILLED HIS FATHER

Matthew Driggers was shot and killed at Arcadia, Fla., by his son, Charles, who was insanely intoxicated at the time.

Driggers had threatened his wife and driven her from home when his father called to see him, and at the time was having a quarrel with his brother-in-law, who was also intoxicated. Matthew Driggers went into the house and his son followed, drew his revolver and shot him four times, the fatal wound being in the head.

After killing his father Charles Driggers went out on the front porch, where his brother-in-law, W. Hidden, was lying in a drunken stupor, and beat him over the head with his revolver. Young Driggers is now in jail.

Toulon Suffers a Disastrous Fire.

Fire broke out in the arsenal at Toulon, France, Sunday. The fire spread rapidly and threatened to embrace entire blocks of buildings.

The troops were at once called out and mustered in the street. The prefect of the maritime port is organizing assistance and admirals and generals are helping in the work at the pumps.

A division of the reserve squadron has been called upon to aid.

Within an hour after the fire broke out the entire population was aroused. Guns are being fired as signals for help, which is coming in from the whole countryside.

The flames are spreading with the greatest rapidity.

Iron Production.

A bulletin issued by the American Iron and Steel association puts the production of pig iron in this country in the first six months of the present calendar year at 8,173,438 tons, and it is believed the year's total will be about 16,000,000 tons, as against 18,009,252 tons produced last year.

Six southern states produce pig iron—Alabama, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky. The production of the six states in 1903 was 3,149,824 tons. Alabama's production is almost half of the entire southern production.

JUDGE Parker, who is no longer a judge, having resigned that position, was officially notified yesterday of his nomination for President. In November the people will, by a good majority, notifiy him of his election.

FALSEHOOD, coarse vituperation, vile insinuations, and making a mockery of the physical infirmities of another, are the malignant resources of a bully and coward, and none but a renegade Yankee would make use of them against a sick man.

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN.

The week, as a whole, was cloudy and too wet for maturing crops, particularly in middle counties, where excessive rains of last few days have caused all streams to rise rapidly, inundating considerable lowland corn and cotton; locally excessive rains and damaging wind storms also occurred in some northern and southeastern counties. Cotton continues to fruit well, though excessive moisture is still causing it to continue to to run too much stalk, retarding filling of bolls; considerable rust and shedding are reported, with scattered reports of blight and boll worms, and a few reports of "black rot" in southeastern counties; while the crop, as a whole, continues quite promising, it is at that critical stage, when a period of dry, comparatively warm weather is needed to prevent deterioration; it is opening slowly in southern counties, with very little picked; Corn, both early and late, is filling well and promises a good yield, except in a few localities, where damaged by previous drought or recent excessive rains; little fodder has been pulled, on account of wet weather. All minor crops continue promising, though, grapes and late fruit are rotting; pastures are good, and a good hay crop is promised; fall gardens are being prepared; more turnips have been sown, with some up to good stands.

POPULIST PARTY.

There is no Populist party in the United States and there cannot be one. It is not easily understood why any serious effort should be made in this campaign to establish one. The only hope any man can have of effecting any reform in the government must be in the Democratic party. Either the Democratic or Republican candidate will be elected and a man who refuses to vote one or the other of these tickets throws away his vote.

There are many good men who have in times past votedthe Populist ticket. They did it as a protest against convention nominations and ring rule. When the states under Democratic control decided to reform and allow the voters to nominate all candidates, it was the end of the Populist movement. All that they asked for was fair nominations and the will of the people. The Democrats gave them that in this state and in many others. The Populist then returned to the Democratic party, a very few went to the Republicans and still fewer went to other political faiths. Mr. Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, is willing to be a Populist candidate for President. He is a most excellent man, but visionary and wild in his politics. There will not be enough Populist votes to make a showing. There is no need for them. The Populist can come nearer getting what they want through the Democratic party and as they have voted that ticket all their lives, except a few times they will vote it this year.

The Ledger has frequently expressed its ideas that it is wrong for a good man in any election to throw away his vote. The South made that fatal error in 1860, when the Democrats voted for Breckenbridge instead of Douglas. The race was between Lincoln and Douglas and wisdom dictated that the Democrats should vote for the man most likely to defeat Lincoln. Breckenbridge more nearly represented the Southern Democratic ideas and they threw away their votes. Had they not done so Douglas would have been elected and the war averted, or if fought it would have been on different lines.

There have been other instances where men have thrown away what they could get, to reach for what they would rather have. A part of a loaf is better than no loaf.—Birmingham Ledger.

Her Sympathy.

Little Flora was complaining that her stomach felt bad, according to the Columbia Herald. "Perhaps it's because it's empty," said her mother. "It might feel better if you had something in it." Not long afterward the minister called. In reply to a question as to his health he said that he was well, but that his head felt rather bad that day. "Perhaps it's because it's empty," spoke up Flora. "It might feel better if you had something in it."

Genius.

Men give me some credit for genius. All the genius I have lies in this: When I have a subject in hand I study it profoundly. Day and night it is before me. I explore it in all its bearings. My mind becomes pervaded with it. Then the effort which I make the people are pleased to call the fruit of genius. It is the fruit of labor and thought. —Alexander Hamilton.

Mulberry, Aug 8.

Dear Editor: Let me have a small place in our Banner and I won't worry you on this subject any more. A Mr. Jones hailing from the city of Prattville, got hit in the neck, not on the head, and hollers at once. It is said the hit dog is the one that hollers, but it is a rare thing to make three holler at one throw, but such is the case, for I hear three howls, Jones, Republican and one signed A. M. Wish they would put down full name, so we could know each other. Now Bro. Jones, if it is soup you are after, I never heard of a postoffice job being called by that name. Will admit I am a fool but I have got sense enough to keep my hands out of snake's mouths, and enough to know that the Democratic party is the white man's party, and the Banner the white man's paper, and that Sid Bowie is a whole team and a horse to spare, and if I want something to eat I just turn the grindstone for the Dems, and when they get done eating they leave lots of whole cakes and I can get a better meal at their cleaning up of table than you can get at first table of Rep feast. Say bud, did you know it is very easy to be a fool? You can be one and not know it. If you have got "horse sense" come to the Democrats, if you don't the evidence is against you. Say, Jones, Jr., did you ever hear old Sid? If not, get your ma to let you go to see one of your defeated candidates, G. W. Edwards. I saw him, and heard him ask Sid a question. And the boy, oh where was he? Ask the winds that far awaw with fragments strewed the sea. I don't know where the boy went, I never heard from him, was afraid he committed suicide and was dead. But good old Sid was too good to kill him, but you boys who said you were his friends, butchered the poor boy July the 26. It hurts me to think how you treated him for I think he is a good boy for I saw him shake hands with lots of nice men. One more question, Jones, before you go to sleep, did you never shake hands with old uncle Simon or old black mammy Suckey, if not, try to get some true, good old time religion under your little tight 40 cents shirt, it will help you to see yourself as others see you. Now as for sense below my boots, I haen't any, nor socks either, and if you have put what little you have in your boots you get it out. Son I have given you a decent skinning with good will and friendship, we differ in politics only.

As for Rep and A. M. I know it hurts them for me to criticise their National representatives, they had rather not talk about them. Yes, well I don't blame you for that, but I do blame you for not thinking for yourselves and your political interest and the wellfare of our race. Now Boys I will not write anymore on this subject, but if either one of you wants to meet me at any convenient place, we will debate our subject and not worry the good people and editors any more. As for finance, I am a little embarrassed, but have some financial friends. As for my nose, it is as God gave it, but it is sharp. I claim it as a gift from one who does all things right.

A SPY'S CLOSE CALL.

Rescued From Impending Death by a Clever Newspaper Ruse.

On the battlefield of Antietam Mr. McClure met General William J. Palmer, then a captain, and strongly urged him not to continue his movements as a spy after Lee had crossed into Virginia, but the gallant young soldier gave no promise as to what he would be likely to do, and the very first night after Lee crossed the Potomac he was again in Lee's camp and brought back important information to General McClellan.

Again he returned and entered the Confederate lines, and when he did not report after a week it was assumed that he had been captured and would probably be executed as a spy. He had been captured, was tried and condemned as a spy and sentenced to be executed, but he was saved by a clever newspaper device determined upon after a conference in Philadelphia between President J. Edgar Thomson of the Pennsylvania railroad, Colonel Scott and Mr. McClure. Thomson took special interest in Palmer, as he had been his secretary, and was much attached to him.

It was decided that Washington dispatches should be prepared for all of the Philadelphia morning papers announcing the arrival at the capital of Captain William J. Palmer, stating in what particular lines of the enemy he had operated, and adding that he had brought much important information that could not be given to the public at that time. These dispatches appeared next morning in all the Philadelphia papers, prominently displayed, and of course reached the southern lines within forty-eight hours.

The result was that Captain Palmer's identity was never established in Richmond, and his execution was thus suspended. In a little while, when some prisoners had been exchanged, there was a vacancy made in the list of the exchanged men by death. Palmer's friends had him take the place and name of the dead soldier, and he thus escaped and returned to the service.

ODD FACTS ABOUT COLOR.

One of Them Is That There Is No Food That Is Blue.

Did you ever notice that there is no blue food? We eat things green, red, yellow and violet; flesh, fish or plants in all the colors of the rainbow except blue.

Many deadly poisons are blue in color, such as bluestone or the deadly nightshade flower. The color stands in our slang for everything miserable and depressing.

Heat a bar of iron and the particles of the metal are set in motion, shaking violently one against another.

Presently the surrounding ether is set in motion in large, slow waves through the air, like the waves of the sea, until they break upon our skin and give us the sensation of heat. As the iron gets hotter other waves are set in motion in immense numbers, traveling at more than lightning speed, and these break upon the eye, giving us the sensation of red light.

The redhot iron, getting still more heated, throws out other sets of waves, still smaller and more rapid—orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet, all the colors of the rainbow. The eye cannot tell one from another; the whole bundle of rays mixed up gives us an impression of white. That is the glow from white hot iron, and such is the light from the still greater brightness of the sun. Sunlight is a bundle of rays of light—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet all mixed together. The mixture of all colors is white light. The absence of all color is utter darkness.—New York Journal.

An Odd Court Incident.

Sensational incidents are not uncommon in the closing stages of famous criminal trials. One of the most remarkable occurred in Melbourne on the last day of the trial of Ned Kelly, known as the "ironclad bushranger of Australia." A knife dropped from a gallery overhead and fell at the feet of the desperado in the dock. He had every temptation to grasp it and put an end to his existence, for there was not the slightest chance of his escaping the gallows. But it was promptly picked up by a bailiff, and its owner was arrested and brought before the judge. He pleaded that the occurrence was purely accidental, and the explanation was accepted by the court.

Concentration.

The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The strongest, by disposing of his overmany, may fail to accomplish anything. The drop, by continually falling, bores its passage through the hardest rock. The hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous uproar and leaves no trace behind.—Carlyle.

Worse Than the Upper Ten.

"Only the upper ten go to your church, don't they?" inquired the plain person.

"Yes," replied the organist of the swell church, "but they're not a circumstance to the uppish tenor in our choir."—Philadelphia Press.

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew to wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

East Stanton.

Please allow me space in your paper to say a little of our community. I was "bread and buttered" here. After rambling over the west I returned to my old home near Stanton, where God has always been and is yet. But sorry that the Mormons, who call themselves saints, will be here with a tent meeting soon. But I think that our people are too high minded to be taken in with such stuff. We appeal to all who know Mitchell and his crowd to come to our rescue. We are all Baptists but one good man and his family who are consecrated Methodists. We don't need them here.

The Stanton High School will open on the 5th of September. A good school we hope to have.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR WORLD'S FAIR

PROMINENT VISITORS DECLARE IT SURPASSES ALL EXPECTATIONS

The Opinion is Unanimous That No Other Exposition Ever Equalled the One at St. Louis, and Attendance is Both a Duty and a Privilege.

St. Louis—During the past few weeks a great many men prominent in the various walks of life, but particularly in political fields, have visited St. Louis and the Exposition. The comments of some of them, showing a unanimous opinion of the surpassing greatness and beauty of the Fair, are given below.

Governor Benjamin B. Odell says St. Louis is no warmer than New York City. In answer to a query as to what he thought of the Fair, the Governor said:

"Two things strike me particularly concerning the St. Louis Exposition. In the first place the magnitude and the beauty of the whole enterprise impress themselves upon the visitor from the beginning of his stay. In the second place, I find that St. Louis has been badly misrepresented by accounts which say that her weather is unbearable. On the contrary, I find that St. Louis is a comparatively cool place as compared with New York City. I dare say from what I hear that St. Louis will be no warmer during July and August than New York or Chicago. The Fair is wonderful. I believe the people are not going to miss such a wonderful exhibition as is to be found in St. Louis. I think the attendance will be particularly large in the fall. I find that St. Louis is again misrepresented when it is said that the city is not prepared to receive visitors to the Exposition. The city seems to be amply supplied with hotels which will satisfy people of every degree of wealth. Then there are the numerous beautiful homes for which St. Louis is noted, all of which seem to be thrown open to the visitor. I shall not go into detail in regard to my views of the different exhibits, suffice it to say that they are all wonderful in their completeness and in their beauty. The whole Fair is worthy of being seen by every New Yorker. A glorious time awaits those who see the Exposition."

Hon. John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, and temporary Chairman of the Democratic National convention: "The Louisiana Purchase Exposition is, by far, the most wonderful thing of its kind and as an educator it cannot be excelled. No one should fail to see the Exposition, as it can not be appreciated by merely reading about it."

Governor Richard Yates, of Illinois: "The more I see of the Exposition the more I enjoy it. It is by all means the greatest World's Fair I have ever seen. As an opportunity for becoming acquainted with the resources of the country, for acquiring a general knowledge of every subject that I can think of, a visit to the Fair should not be missed. It is also an excellent means for having a good time. The amusement features are fine. St. Louis seems well prepared to take care of her guests. The city and the management of the Exposition in particular are to be congratulated for what they have accomplished. The Fair is beautiful and should be seen by all."

Hoke Smith, of Atlanta, Ga., Secretary of the Interior under President Cleveland: "I am highly pleased with the Exposition, and believe it to be one of the triumphs of modern civilization. The Fair is certainly better than all others I have seen, and it is indeed quite an education to see the Exposition. The kind of weather that St. Louis seems to have in store for her guests is quite an agreeable surprise. St. Louis is a beautiful city and seems to be caring for her guests in a most admirable manner. The Fair is wonderful and should not be missed by any one who has the slightest opportunity of seeing it."

Judge D. T. Marvel, of Wilmington, Del.: "One of the best things, in my opinion, that can be said of the Fair is the fact that it is so arranged that although hundreds of thousands may be in the grounds there is no crowding and no discomfort. The magnitude of the Fair is wonderful. The exhibits are beautiful; they represent all the interests of all countries. A thorough examination of them will impart more knowledge than could be obtained in many months at a university or a college. The grounds, the buildings, the style of architecture, the landscape work, all combine to make the Exposition the prettiest thing I have ever seen. The illumination at night is a wonderful sight. I hope that every one who has the opportunity will see the Fair."

Mr. Chas. M. Keezel, of Harrisonburg, Va., a delegate to the National Republican convention: "The Exposition surpasses the expectations of every one. One can have a glorious time in St. Louis at most reasonable expense. The Fair is beyond description. It is particularly beautiful at night, when it is illuminated with millions of electric lights. To see the Fair at such a time is a sight not soon to be forgotten. No Virginian should miss this opportunity of seeing the Exposition—the grandest ever produced."

Mr. William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., Republican State Committeeman for the State of New York: "You can say for me that this Fair has surpassed my fondest expectations. It is wonderful. For magnitude, beauty, completeness and arrangement it could not be excelled. The architecture, massive and picturesque, of the different buildings, is a treat for the eye. The Pike attractions have not been commented upon enough. Many of the attractions on the Pike are far more educational and instructive than many of the exhibits to be found in the Varied Industries building, for instance. Others could not be equalled from a point of view of entertainment. St. Louis seems to be well prepared to handle crowds. The people of New York will miss an opportunity if they do not see this wonderful Fair. However, they are not going to miss it. They are already here in large numbers and will come in even greater numbers as the season advances. No American should miss this Exposition."

FESTIVAL HALL FROM THE EAST.

HINDUS AS FIGHTERS.

Native-Born Fighters of India — Their Habits.

A native officer of India writes of the native soldiers: "The Sikhs, or reformed Hindus, have all the qualities of the best fighters, and the Indians as well as their fellow subjects in Europe have indeed reason to be proud of them. There are two other castes in Punjab also noted for their fighting qualities, the Jats and the Dagras.

"Another great fighting race in Punjab inhabiting the northwestern part are commonly known as the Pathans. They are now Mohammedans by faith. The Gurkhas of Nepal, the only independent State in India, though generally below average height, have proved themselves the most indomitable, brave and hardy hill fighters. European officers attached to Gurkhas regiments love their men and are proud of them. Their free and easy manners, abstemious habits, cheerful disposition, bravery in the field of war or of sport help to raise them in the estimation of all who come in contact with them. They are of Hindu origin."

"Some Nominations."

Party nominations for Vice-President have been declined a number of times. In the Democratic National Convention of 1844 Silas Wright, of New York, was nominated for Vice-President on the first ballot, receiving 256 of the 206 votes. He declined to accept, and George M. Dallas, of Pennsylvania, was nominated on the ticket with James K. Polk. The Democratic ticket was successful in the election. The nomination for second place on a national ticket by third parties has been several times declined.

THEY WERE HAPPY.

An amusing example of the blending of the sentimental and the practical was overheard at Olentangy Park the other day. Two people greatly interested in each other occupied the boat.

The man was leaning forward, with his heart in his eyes, and was overheard by two people on the bank to say to the girl, who rowed:

"Darling, you are the very sweetest person in the world, and I can never tell you—pull on the left oar there, you're going to run into the bank. There isn't any one in the whole world to compare with you, and never will be—the right oar, dear, pull hard, quick. You know as well as I do that we are made for one another, and—quick, the right oar, or you'll run into that tree. You are positively the sweetest—both oars, and hard on the left, darling. Just the dearest girl to sit there and row me so that I can look at you—look out there, dear—"

All this to the delight of the listeners on the bank who never intended playing eavesdroppers.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

Pure Food.

It is to be hoped that the movement springing up in the East in the interests of pure food will travel across the continent to the West, even to California, and that the people will manifest their anxiety to have their flavorings and canned meats and fruits pure and wholesome by holding up the hands of those who may undertake to organize a crusade against the adulterators. There is not a city in California where doubtful adulterations are not used in one way or another.—San Jose Mercury.

AN OLD SMOKER'S DREAM.

How He "Swore Off," Yet Enjoyed His Weed.

"It has been eighteen years since I was told to break loose from tobacco, as over-indulgence in smoking was about to knock me out," said S. J. Manson, of Chicago. "From that day, though so dear a lover of the weed, I haven't put a cigar or pipe between my lips, and yet, strange as it may sound, on numerous occasions I find myself puffing out huge clouds of smoke drawn from the most fragrant Havanas that ever were given to solace mankind.

"These smokes, let it be understood, come in my dreams, but the enjoyment they confer is as solid and substantial as in the old days, when the indulgence was a reality. Curiously enough, too, the visions always present a group of friends. I can see them puffing away vigorously. I catch the aroma they blow forth; I hear their conversation as in the old days, and the whole atmosphere is of tobacco. Yet, despite these vivid pictures, awakening brings no desire to resume the ancient habit, and so I expect to continue dreaming of smoking to the end of the chapter."

Grew So Fast He Died.

Physicians regard the case of Walter J. Ricks, a youth who died at the home of his parents in Lafayette, Ind., from the effects of too rapid growth, as one of the most remarkable in medical annals. Although but fourteen years old, young Ricks was over six feet in height, but slender. The development of his internal organs did not keep pace with that of his body and his limbs, and the strain on his heart resulted in injury to the vital organ and caused his death.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. A. B. KINSOLVING.

Subject: "The Debt to Caesar and to God"—We Must Not Permit the "Huge Mundane Machine" to Run Over Our Souls.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I.—Dr. A. B. Kinsolving, rector of Christ Church, Clinton street, Brooklyn, preached here Sunday morning in St. Andrew's Dune Church. His subject was "Our Debt to Caesar and Our Debt to God." His text was chosen from St. Matthew xxii. 21: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things which are God's." Dr. Kinsolving said:

Were ever words more palpably just and fair? Could any statement be more calmly self-evidencing? Could any disentanglement of the provinces of God and Caesar be more distinct, or any declaration of our respective duty be more lucid? Men have always been confusing these two things—their debt to Caesar and their debt to God—mixing up in some clumsy fashion the one with the other, fancying that when they have discharged one they have done the other also, finding the one to conflict with the other through some misunderstanding of the dignity and weight of the respective obligations.

And not only in private life, but in the history of peoples and States what confusion, what blundering has there been! Look how the cruel Roman empire tried through years to crush out the life of the Christian martyrs for simply doing their duty to God, and then in turn, when the empire had been conquered by the church and the papacy was seated upon its throne and had erected its palatial Vatican amid the ruins of the old order, see how the haughty earthly embodiment of the heavenly autocracy sought to bring low and make subservient the things of Caesar! You are familiar, doubtless, with the way the saying was brought about. A party of young Pharisees—the old hacks had recently retired in confusion—had joined with some Herodians or Jewish nationalists to put to Jesus a catch question to ensnare Him. "Master," said they with feigned earnestness, "we know that Thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest Thou for any man, for Thou regardest not the person of men. Tell us, therefore: What thinkest Thou? Is it lawful to pay this distasteful Roman poll tax or no?"

If He had answered "Yes" He would have been at once discredited as the Messiah—King of Israel. If "no" it would have been treason and rebellion against Rome. So instead of falling into the trap set for Him, with a complete, a divine grasp of the whole situation, He declares a principle which is the key to this whole complexity in life wherever it may possibly occur. "Why tempt Me, ye hypocrites? Show Me the tribute money. Whose image is this stamped on your current coin? Caesar's." Very well. Then what is Caesar's give back to Caesar, and what is God's to God."

The impression it produced at the moment was profound. "When they had heard these words they marveled and left Him and went their way." He had lifted the whole controversy out of the immediate and passing circumstances into the region of largest and widest statesmanship, and all the centuries of human history that have rolled by since have not exhausted its wisdom.

"Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." Not a great deal of time, I take it, needs to be spent in enforcing this behest. It marks the sanity, the wholesomeness of Christ's religion. It is no star-gazing cult. The charge against it of inveterate other worldliness is a libel. Christianity has always taught man to do nobly, patiently, heroically his full duty to the State, to rulers, to society. We are part of a social system which has already taken shape. We are in debt to it in many ways. "We pass its coins freely; we enjoy its endowments." Its image and superscription are on us: We belong of right to our age; our era of civilization, our nation, State, city, community. All that is around us is but the providential setting and environment of our lives. It is never perfect. There is, and for a great while to come is likely to be a vast deal that is faulty about it. But we have no charter from Christ to be hopelessly sour in our attributes toward it. We are to trust, you and I, the upward growth, the slow and painful evolution of human civilization. We are to believe that at the heart of the movement there are deep-hidden, interior principles which, in co-operation with those special and powerful incentives which God brings to bear from above, are steadily bringing the kingdom of Caesar to some better fulfillment of itself. So then, even when we see things in the nation, the municipality, the neighborhood, go wrong; even when we see tyranny and corruption and abuses, we are not permitted to turn away in despair and disgust. We have no right to stand aloof as if our hands would be contaminated by any contact with it. Our duty is to go bravely in and try to discharge our duty to the civil and secular powers, respecting the moral worth of the things of Caesar, and confidently trusting truth and God and humanity for the dawning of the brighter day. We are set as Christians not to build a dazzling visible church of God upon the ruins of the dynasties and governments of earth, as was dreamed by the medieval popes and doctors. No, but rather is our book to infuse into organized human society the healthful spirit of the kingdom of Jesus Christ, and meanwhile, as Christ's words here clearly teach us, to keep the two spheres distinct.

And on the same principle precisely I think our Lord would have us deal with entire honesty with the facts of science. To presume to use religious authority to deny the ascertained and verified conclusions of a genuine science—as was done, for instance, in the case of Galileo, and has often been urged since, is to break Christ's command. Natural science must proceed along its own distinct and separate lines. It cannot go out of its sphere to teach the world religion. Its function is to search out and interpret material facts. But in its own proper sphere we must respect it. We owe it the tribute of our sincerity. We must render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and there will be no sort of peril to us if we are at pains at the same time to "render to God the things that are God's."

But is it in the point that I have been urging that most men fail nowadays? Is it here that we need to throw our emphasis on this "Render to Caesar?" Are there not certain forces in the realm of Caesar which of themselves exact the payment of what is due there? Does not this tribute get itself paid in as do the State taxes by a sort of self-acting process, so that in a rough way it has to be forthcoming? Is not the real trouble now that we are in so many cases surrendering to Caesar more and more of the things which belong to God?

"It towers over us," some one has said, "this world movement of modern civilization, with its immense volume and weight of human interests, human growths, human skill and art and industry. It makes itself more and more felt as the one overpowering, ruling fact." It fills the scene. Where is there any room for the things of God? Where can the spirit move and breathe? Where has the soul fled? Because of the pressure upon their lives of the world of Caesar, because of the strong currents that sweep them along, soul and body, our debts to God too often go unpaid.

You know how it is without my attempting to describe it in detail. Industry, with its iron necessities, grips a man; he flings himself with good American pluck and purpose into the thing before him, and by and by the very headway of success, the very stress of competition, is found to be using up all his strength. Soon his prayers get thinner and poorer; he has scarce time for them and feels less and less need for them. When his days and nights at the office are through with, he recuperates his tired energies at the club, where he can still with the waning nerve power talk over the course of the market—or else he goes out of town to get the relaxation which will enable him to keep his place in Caesar's kingdom.

He does not mean at first to renounce his obligation to God. For some time he pays it in the worthless currency of good intentions and good-humored apologies. By and by even these are omitted, and he and his friends begin to justify the dereliction to God on the score of the increasing claims of Caesar. This laxity on the part of men and women to-day is going back to God the things that are God's is simply appalling in view of God's unmeasured gifts and blessings to us. If it be true that "to whom much is given of him shall much be required" and that judgment will ever begin at the house of God with the privileged, what is to be said when we all stand, as stand we shall, before the Son of Man? "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Christ Jesus does not mock the way of our paying our just debt to Caesar, but He does warn us with the utmost plainness not to give Caesar everything.

If we allow "the huge mundane machine" to run over our souls, like some car of Juggernaut, crushing out our religious feeling and initiative, we shall be horribly flattened in our manhood, our sympathies, our ideals, our conceptions of life. The results may not appear fully for a while, but in the end there will be experienced an impoverishment, an atrophy, a stunted, maimed and crippled growth which will make us unfit for our citizenship in the higher kingdom here or there. St. Paul, in beginning his Epistle to the Romans—that is, to the people who then lived at the capital city of Caesar's realm—accounts in the following words for the sin and misery, the failure and decadence of heathendom. He tells them that "when they knew God, they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools. They changed His truth into a lie, and worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever." It was an awful blunder. No greater could be made by any man or people. They made the world they lived in their god, their only god, and worshiped and served it with their whole hearts. They worshiped power, knowledge, pleasure, wealth, force, passion, art. They lived for these things until they fancied that these were the only things to live for. We know the result. As they rejected Him, so God rejected them. As a punishment He gave them over to moral corruption, to an abandoned mind, to a festering decadence. "And men crowded around and strove for place and food, and the strong beat down the weak, and the rich were gorged and the poor were sent empty away, and strife and cruelty filled the earth with violence." That was happening at the very moment Christ spoke these tremendous words: "Render to God the things which are God's." This is the sort of heathenism which exists everywhere on this earth where it is not persistently kept down by the spirit of Jesus Christ. "To God the things that are God's!" "To God the things that are God's!" Let that cry haunt you until it compels you to pay your debt. Have the courage to look on the one hand at what you are giving to the world represented by Caesar, and on the other at what you are actually giving to God. Is God missing His rights? Is your duty to Him threatened by the power and pomp of this massive earth? Ah! then be all the more careful that your debt to heaven is paid. By the blood of the Crucified, give back to God what really belongs to Him! Your soul, your heart, your convictions, your spiritual reality, your eternal being—all these to God, for they are His. Believe Him when He tells you that all else that we see and handle is but a shadow that passeth away. Aye, trust Him when He pledges you His help whenever you sincerely want to follow Him, and promises never to leave you to struggle on by yourself. Through Him who condescended to make His home in our hearts, who by His spirit "helpeth our infirmities," let us make such offering to God as yet we can. Give God, through Jesus Christ, your Saviour, first of all yourself. He will accept nothing in the stead of you. Do not clutch the portion of goods that falleth to you and try to have them all to yourself in some far country, where you shall never hear the Father's voice or see His face; but whatever you do have from Him, whether more or less, try to enjoy it as a child in your Father's house, under the constant benediction of His smile. In the face of the tremendous pressure of earth, which bears down so heavily upon every soul, resolve manfully that you will not yield; that the great and first commandment of Christ, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God," shall be kept. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

Oh, the littleness of the lives that we are living! Oh, the way in which we fail to comprehend, or, when we do comprehend, deny to ourselves the bigness of that thing which it is to be a man, to be a child of God!—Phillips Brooks.

A religion that stays in the clouds is of no use to anybody. Religion must be definite, practical, useful—a binding rule of daily life—or else it is as much a mockery as the gilded prayer wheel of the Buddhist.—Philadelphia Young People.

The Power of a True Life.

What I wanted, and what I have been endeavoring to ask for the poor African, has been the good offices of Christians, ever since Livingstone taught me during those four months I was with him. In 1878 I went to him as prejudiced as the bitterest atheist in London. I was there away from a worldly world. I saw the solitary old man there, and asked myself, "Why on earth does he stop here?"

For months after we met, I found myself listening to him and wondering at the old man and carrying out all that was said in the Bible. Little by little his sympathies for others became contagious. Mine was aroused. Seeing his piety, his gentleness, his zeal, his earnestness, and how quietly he went about his business, I was converted by him, although he had not tried to do it.—Henry M. Stanley.

The Need of God.

The thought of God, the sense of an immediate relation of the spirit of man to the Eternal and the Infinite, are easily displaced from men's minds by undue admiration for the achievements of a culture based on material progress, and supplying every need of human nature except the very deepest—the need of God.—J. Skinner.

When Small Things Become Great.

The smallest things become great when God requires them of us; they are small only in themselves; they are always great when they are done for God, and when they serve to unite us with Him eternally.—Fenelon.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE MALAYS.

Peculiar Belief of an Eastern People in Signs and Omens.

You can scarcely ever get your money from a Malay on Friday, because they believe that if they pay their creditors on a Friday they will be overtaken by penury. Malays never shave or cut their nails on Saturday or Tuesday because these are unlucky days, and if they do part with their hair or nails on these days they believe that they will always be in trouble or will die quickly. The Malay never sleeps in the afternoon, for such an action shortens life. When a rat bites a Malay's clothes, it signifies ill luck, and usually the rat-bitten clothes are given to the poor.

There is a kind of bird called by the Malays Rowk-rowk which does not build a nest, and lives in fields. The Malays say that whoever obtains a Rowk-rowk's nest will become invisible as soon as he puts the nest on his head. Of course, the Malays believe that there is such a nest, despite the fact that the bird never builds one.

If a Malay feels that his right hand is itchy, he is glad because he will receive a large sum of money, and if he feels that his right eye moves, he knows that he will see a foreign friend. If tears issue from either eye, he understands that a relative of his will die, and if he too often forgets his promises to his many friends, he is aware that he will die and will shed tears rather profusely.

When there is an eclipse of the moon or sun the Malays abstain from taking food and perform their ablutions, in order that no contagious disease may attack them. Crows are an ill omen, and whenever a crow caw-caws near a Malay habitation, it means death to some one of the inmates. Supposing a Malay walks along a road and suddenly a black cat crosses before him, he will at once turn back and walk another path. The crossing of the black cat signifies danger involving the loss of life.

You seldom see Malays bite their nails, because this action is likely to lead the doer into poverty. If a Malay sees a pig or a Chinese funeral before the sun rises, say at 5.30 a. m., he knows that he is lucky, and whatever he does on this day he is sure to meet with success. Dreaming of jumping a brooklet assures the dreamer that death will ensue in a short time, and in this case the unhappy man generally distributes alms to the poor so that his life may be prolonged. To see a monkey in the morning is an ill omen and signifies that the seer will lose money heavily in trade.—Penang Straits Echo.

The Camera Hunter.

To the hunter with the camera every wild creature is lawful and desirable game, and the open season lasts 12 months in the year, says Country Life in America. It is a most exciting sport "shooting" at birds in flight. In Florida the camera hunter stops his boat in a good locality and withdraws the slide from the plate, and waits in instant readiness for whatever may come along. A water turkey wings past, visible, as it advances, upon the ground-glass. The middle finger and thumb of the left hand turn a screw and focus, the thumb of the right presses the trigger, and the bird is ours, though it still continues its rapid flight; a thousand-fold more valuable in this form than if maimed and mauled, for thousands of people can now see it, and the splendid scene as well. The writer is called a good shot with the gun, but what care I now for my gun—which hangs long neglected in a closet—as compared with my cameras! And what surprising things these flight pictures show! Who, for instance, would imagine that a bird could ever assume such a grotesque attitude as does the cormorant when she springs from her nest?

Cat Summoned Maid.

A wonderful cat attracted the attention of every one who recently passed up or down Eighth street on the west side between Locust and Spruce. Pussy was pure white. She was standing upon the step railing of a house which was just high enough to enable her to reach the electric button with her paw. She manipulated this so vigorously that the door was soon opened by a servant, who picked pussy up, took her in her arms, entered the house and closed the door. It was the sentiment of all who witnessed the trick that Maria, or whatever her name might be, was a bright cat.—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

Wooden Shoes.

"The wooden shoe," says A. Qunerhish of Holland, "is worn almost exclusively by the peasant classes, and they find them more comfortable than the leather shoes that are form in America. The foot is clad in a heavy woolen stocking, and then slipped into the shoe without fastening. They never fall off because the people are used to wearing them. They would not exchange, because any other kind would not be comfortable. The shoes are elm wood and cost from ten to fifteen cents of American money. Two pairs will last a year."

A Deduction.

The late Channing Clapp of Boston was for some years after the civil war a cotton planter in the south.

Mr. Clapp had on his plantation a little boy in buttons called "Sam."

"Sam" one afternoon pointed to a bottle on his master's bureau and said:

"Mars Channing, am dat hair oil?"

"Mercy, no, Sam, that's glue," said Mr. Clapp.

"I guess dass why I can't git mah cap off," said "Sam," thoughtfully.

Denounces Khaki Uniforms.

Mayor Jameson said in the British parliament the other day that the sudden resort to khaki uniforms was a "senseless craze." Because the Boers wore khaki and slouch hats the white army was slapped into similar costume. If the Zulus had beaten it, the army would have gone about in feathers and paint. Three streaks of paint and an ostrich feather would have been the uniform of a field marshal.

Cure of the Hair.

It is now generally agreed that many of the shampoos in use are injurious to the hair. The best treatment is frequent washing with Cuticura Soap and rinsing the hair in plenty of water. Wash the hair first with Cuticura Soap and rinse thoroughly. Dry the skin and scalp, and apply a little Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, and purest of emollients. This treatment at once allays irritation, clears the skin and scalp, preserves the hair, and prevents baldness.—ELEANOR R. PARKER.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble, of eight or ten years standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime but just as bad at night and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

Whisky Not Alone Meat and Drink, But Washing and Lodging.

Mrs. John A. Logan, who has succeeded Miss Clara Barton in the presidency of the Red Cross, was educated in Kentucky.

In condemning intemperance Mrs. Logan said recently:

"Alcohol vitiates the mind that the degradation it imposes on its victims hardly seems like degradation to them. The woes of these men are changed to blessings in their besotted brains.

"For instance," said Mrs. Logan, smiling, "there used to live in Kentucky an old man called Fawcett Jones. Fawcett drank to excess, and he used to declare that whisky was meat and drink to him. But one hot summer night he drank so much that he fell into a puddle on the way home, and in this puddle he lay snoring until dawn.

"A clergyman who had risen early found him with his head in the mud and his legs and body in the water, and the good man woke him up.

"'Ah,' he said, 'so whisky is meat and drink to you, is it, Fawcett?'

"Fawcett rose to his feet and began to wring out his clothes.

"'It certainly is,' he said and washing and lodging, too, sir.'"

Emperor Menelik Flattered.

Sir John Harrington, who has been made minister plenipotentiary from King Edward's court to that of Menelik of Abyssinia, was appointed British agent in Abyssinia in 1898. He has done many things to establish cordial relations between the two countries. One of his great achievements was to persuade her late majesty to speak into a phonograph a message to Menelik and his empress. It was the only time she ever consented to such an experiment, and it was done then on the express understanding that when the message had once been spoken the record should be destroyed. Menelik was so excited when he heard the great queen's message in her own voice that he repeatedly stopped the machine in order to have a salute fired and his empress was so flattered to hear her own name mentioned that she called out her bodyguard as a mark of respect.

VALUE OF A GOOD WEEKLY.

We doubt if many editors of weekly papers, especially the country weeklies, know how their sheets are appreciated by persons away from their homes where the papers are published. For example, the editor of a weekly paper published in Virginia received a letter from a subscriber who was temporarily located in Baltimore. He had missed one issue of his home paper and wrote to the editor saying:

I cannot understand how I can get along without it. This paper gives me all the news from home which letters do not, and often fail to come when expected.

This is a matter that some papers pay too little attention to. We received some weeks ago a copy of a weekly published in a flourishing little Alabama town, and a careful examination of its pages failed to show a solitary item of local news of any kind. Almost every inch of its four pages was printed in plate matter, much of which was not of the slightest interest to its home readers and still less to those abroad. A person from that town or vicinity, absent for a time, could learn positively nothing about his home people or home affairs. A paper from Kalamazoo would have been more interesting.

A paper conducted in that manner has no right to complain of lack of patronage. This was an extreme case, but we have others in mind which are not very much better. It is not to be expected that a country weekly can obtain and publish the news of the world as the great city dailies can, or that its editor is so situated as to discuss the important events of the day as thoroughly as the editors in the large cities can, for they lack the facilities for obtaining information that their more fortunate brethren have, but that is not a matter of so much importance to a weekly as it is to the dailies of the great cities.

The country weekly has a sphere of its own, where no other can compete with it, and it should take advantage of it. It should be "the abstract and brief chronicles of the time" in its own domain. It should record the births, deaths marriages and all other happenings of its town and neighborhood; the movements of prominent people, and the various events that take place in its part of the world. We have some country weeklies on our exchange list which are almost entirely filled each week with local news, not only in town of publication, but from all portions of the county. To a man away from home, a copy of such a paper gives more home news than a dozen letters would, for it covers much more ground and embraces more subjects. These are the papers that are, and ought to be, both popular and prosperous.—Advertiser.

ANCIENT CURRENCY.

The Chinese Once Used Small Bronze Knives For Money.

Knife money, a species of ancient Chinese currency, was associated with the state of Ts'i, one of the most powerful of the early subdivisions of the Celestial Empire, which came into power B. C. 1122 and was subdued by the rival state of Ts'in, B. C. 224. This quaint form of money consisted of small curved bronze knives, some seven inches in length, with inscribed blades and handles terminating in rings.

This knife money dropped out of use with the reduction of Ts'i, but was revived by the usurper Wang Mang, who was murdered A. D. 23. The issues of this potentate were half as long again as the earlier currency. They were also much thicker, and the ring at the end of the handle was replaced by a rim and central square hole resembling the hole in the modern "cash." Other Chinese currencies of great antiquity and of similar sort were adze money, or small hatchets, with such varieties of tool currency as chisels, spades and planes, all of which passed from hand to hand in the ordinary way as a circulating medium.

THE WORD "HANDICAP."

It Comes From the Ancient Custom of Hand In the Cap.

In former days a "handicap" was conducted thus: A, wishing for something which belonged to B, say a horse, would offer his watch for it. If A agreed, C was chosen to fix the sum that should be given by one or the other to make the exchange fair.

The three then put down a stake, and A and B, each holding a piece of money, put their hands into a cap or hat, or into their pockets, while C, enlarging on the respective merits of the horse and watch, made his award in as rapid and complex a manner as possible, ending it with the words, "Draw, gentlemen!"

A and B instantly drew out and opened their hands. If money appeared in both the exchange was made; if in one only, or in neither, the award was off, and in every case C took the stakes.

The modern use of handicap has arisen from the employment of experts to make fair conditions for a race in which the competitors are of unequal age or power.

Intelligence In Monkeys.

A correspondent in the Field contributes an extraordinary instance of intelligence in the Royal park, Melbourne, Australia. He was watching some monkeys in a large cage when one of them came to the front and tried to reach a nut which had been thrown and was lying on the gravel path. Putting its arms through the bars and stretching as far as possible it found that the nut was just beyond its reach. There was straw on the floor of the cage and going to the back, where it evidently expected to find the straw less damaged, it tested straw after straw, discarding them one by one, not thinking them strong enough for the purpose. At last it found a satisfactory one, returned with it to the front of the cage and very quickly with this aid hooked the nut close enough to be picked up.

The Care of Earth Roads.

Earth roads should be repaired, particularly in the spring and fall of the year, but the mistake of letting them take care of themselves during the balance of the year should not be made. The greatest need of the common road in this country is daily or weekly care. A road receiving daily attention will require no extensive repairs and instead of becoming worse will gradually improve. It is minute and frequent homeopathic treatment that the earth road needs.

THOROUGH CULTIVATION

Its Aims and Results to Be Practice in Dry Summer Regions.

The prevailing motive for cultivation in the dry summer regions of the west is moisture conservation, to prevent great surface loss of water by evaporation, that though enough moisture may not be retained without it, enough can be retained with it to make a great difference in the amount it may serve to increase the yield of the tree or vine. Thus when winters into the fruit regions are sufficiently heavy to make large reinforcements of soil moisture desirable, as is the case in some parts of the Pacific coast region, but to make summer cultivation effective or to make small winter rainfalls effective by increasing the depth of soil in which the water is applied, it is not only a ruling consideration as to the effectiveness of a certain amount of rainfall, but it also determines the success of irrigation, and the amount of water required, for although it is the early and rude practice to apply irrigation to support uncultivated trees and to irrigate more and more frequently as the ground becomes poorer from its use, this policy has been outstanding in commercial fruit growing. Not only was it wasteful of water, but it was otherwise detrimental to the thrift of trees.

Thorough cultivation both in spring and summer has other very important ends in view. It opens the soil and promotes aeration; it encourages deeper rooting and thus encourages the tree to take possession of a greater soil mass both for moisture and for plant food. It is part of a very valuable policy of increasing the humus by plowing under the natural growth of weeds or specially sown legumes. This increases the amount of organic matter in the soil, adds new plant food, promotes the friability of heavy soils and the retentiveness of light soils, which is otherwise valuable.

Green manuring in some parts of the region is done by plowing in winter growths in the spring. In the humid parts of the country where summer growth of cover crops is not desirable as a soil cover is advocated as a substitute for cultivation, cutting the crop without removing it, but allowing it to disintegrate in place, is held by some growers to be additional protection to the soil surface and some addition to its supply of plant food.—E. J. Wickson.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

Hooks, Texas, Aug. 14, 1904

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in the dear old Banner. Health is very bad in this country at this time.

Well, I have had a nice visit to Red River country; had a fine time, enjoyed myself well. Crops are very good up there, but I think we can beat them for crop prospects now; I am sure we can beat them on corn. Boll worms and sharp shooters are working on cotton very bad now. I think the cotton crop is injured about one half. would like for all the farmers to write how crops are in Alabama.

Cotton will not average one-fourth of a crop here to take the State over. I will close by thanking the Editor for his kindness in publishing this letter.

Yours truly,
M. E. CULP.

Clanton, Aug. 16, 1904

Editor Banner: I have hoped that the political campaign, which is now on, would be fought upon high planes, and not by political slander, mud slinging and misrepresentation of the nominees on either side. Just here I do not care to mention or assail any special one for anything that has been said through the columns of the papers. But I hope that the people will see, or have already seen, that we never gain anything along the line that tends to make us better citizens, or that enable us to secure better men for filling the offices of our country, from abusing those who see fit to oppose us politically. I have ever tried to be fair in my opinions and tried to pay each one who may differ from me, the consideration and respect that may be due him. We should try to live upon a high plane in politics as much so as in any other business, calling or profession, and I must say I do not have much regard for anyone who feels that "anything goes in politics." We can, and should go before the people with honest methods, representing sound political doctrine, and ask them to rid their minds of any malice or prejudice and judge impartially those of us who are asking favors at their hands and make up their verdict and cast their ballots according to the merits of the different candidates; the principles for which they stand and for the best interest of the people. I feel that nothing can relieve me from the anxiety lest by any act of mine their interest may suffer, and nothing is needed to strengthen my resolution to engage every faculty and effort in the promotion of their wellfare.

Amid the din of party strife the people's choice must be made, and each succeeding year it more clearly appears that our Democratic principles need no apology, and that in their fearless and faithful application is to be found the surest guarantee of white supremacy and good government. Every citizen owes to the country a vigilant watch and scruntiny over its public servants, and a fair and reasonable estimate of their finelity and usefulness. In this way the peoples' will is impressed upon the whole framework of our government, municipal, State and Federal. Let us, from this hour, cheerfully and honestly abandon all prejudice, and determined, with manly confidence in one another, go forth, with high and noble intentions, to secure to the people of Chilton county the best officers to be had from those who are now before them for that position, that the result may be the "greatest good to the greatest number."

Very truly yours,
E. B. DEASON.

REDUCTION ACCEPTED.

Western Coal Miners Will Work for Lower Wages.

The proposition was for a reduction of 5 per cent in wages and affects 50,000 men.

District No. 14, which includes Kansas and a portion of Missouri, voted overwhelmingly against the proposition, giving a majority against it of 2,298. This was overcome, however, by the vote in districts No. 21 and 25, district No. 21 giving a majority of 4,688 for the proposition, while district No. 25 gave a majority of 2,096 votes in its favor.

Turkey Grants Demands.

The issues between Turkey and the United States were arranged Friday to the satisfaction of both governments.

Minister Leishman saw Tewfik Pasha, Turkish minister of foreign affairs, and renewed the urgent representations of the American government for an immediate settlement of the demands regarding the rights of American citizens in Turkey.

After the interview with the minister, Tewfik Pasha proceeded immediately to the palace.

The sending of a palace functionary unacquainted with the question to discuss the matter with Mr. Leishman is typical of Turkish methods. The sultan's ignoring of the proper channel, namely, the porte, is much commented on as evidently being an attempt to delay a settlement.

"If the man who just called me a liar will meet me outside of the park when I finish my speech, I'll cut his throat from ear to ear," declared Congressman Clark, of Missouri, during a joint debate with Congressman Chas. N. Landis, of Indiana, at New Albany, Ind.

Mr. Clark had referred to the assassination of ex-Governor Goebel, of Kentucky, charging that the republicans were protecting a man who should be hanged. "The republicans want to rule this country by assassination," he said.

Immediately Congressman Clark shouted his challenge.

The area of the land purchased from France in 1803, the "Louisiana purchase," was 875,025 square miles, 55,000 square miles greater than the area of the original thirteen states and but 10,000 square miles less than the combined area of the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands and Switzerland, in which countries there is a total population of 202,364,000 people. In the states forming this Louisiana purchase there produce 60 per cent of the wheat raised in the United States, 43 per cent of the corn crop, and 40 per cent of the oat crop, 30 per cent of the wood product. This latter, valued at $16,000,000, was alone sufficient to reimburse the country for the original purchase of the territory.

NOTIFICATION SPEECH

A CHARACTERISTIC ADDRESS

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 10.—In notifying Judge Parker of his nomination for the presidency, Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri, was spokesman for the notification committee.

Mr. Clark said:

Judge Parker—The most momentous political performance known among men is the quadrennial election of an American President. The supreme executive power of 80,000,000 free people changes hands with simplest ceremony and most perfect order. While the contest for votes is waged with earnestness and enthusiasm—sometimes with much heat and with bitterness—the ready acceptance of the result by the defeated is the surest augury of the perpetuity of our institutions.

Presidents come and Presidents go; but the great republic—freighted with the hopes of the human race for liberty—goes on forever.

All history proves that a government bottomed on popular suffrage is a government by party. Experience shows that he serves his party best who serves his country best. The names most fondly cherished are those of men who unselfishly devoted their time, their energies, their talent, their fortunes and their lives to the promotion of the public weal. Stronger incentive to high and patriotic endeavor no man hath than to stand through all the ages in that goodly company.

Out of the masterly debates and profound deliberations at the St. Louis convention emerged a reunited party, which goes forth conquering and to conquer. The flower of the democracy assembled there to consult on the state of the country and to take measures for restoring the government to the principles enunciated by the Fathers, from which it has drifted far in these latter days.

Every phase of the democratic opinion was represented and advocated by brave, honest and able champions in that great conclave of free and patriotic men. The St. Louis convention carried out on cut-and-dried program. Its delegates were not mere automatons or marionettes, moving and talking when the strings were pulled by one man. Speech and action were absolutely free, and the great debates which took place there will constitute part of the permanent political literature of the country. No effort was made to gag or bridle any one. If a delegate had a pet idea which he wished to exploit, he was given an adequate and respectful hearing before either the platform committee or the entire convention. Every man had his say. To none was opportunity denied. Out of it all there grew such unity as encourages lovers of liberty and of pure government everywhere.

We enter this campaign with the strength which grows out of the union of a mighty party; with the enthusiasm born of truth; with the courage that emanates from a righteous cause; with the confidence befitting men animated by noble purposes and lofty patriotism.

Democratic principles are grounded in eternal truth. As formulated by the father of democracy, they are not for a day, but for all time, and are as applicable at this hour as when he proclaimed them in his first inaugural address, which has become a classic.

The necessity for putting them into practice is as pressing now as it was then. To once more make them the basis of our political action is the pleasant but arduous task assigned you by the democracy of the land.

To serve the whole American people, without discrimination, faithfully and well; to distribute the blessings of the federal government impartially to all our citizens; to lighten the burdens of government by reducing taxation to the minimum and by rigid economy in the public service; to administer the powers conferred by the constitution justly, wisely, fearlessly, vigorously and patriotically, without diminution or usurpation; to maintain freedom of thought, freedom of speech and freedom of the press; to promote the onward cause of human freedom everywhere by the wholesomeness of our example; to vindicate and glorify the theory and the practice of representative government; to secure its blessings to our posterity for all time—these always have been, are, and forever must be the aims and purposes of democrats.

These aims and purposes of the democracy have been carefully, clearly and comprehensively set forth in the declaration of principles which was unanimously reported to the St. Louis convention in July last by the platform committee after more than sixteen hours spent in its consideration, in which every great live issue is frankly, boldly and fully discussed, and which was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted by the convention, composed of delegates from every constituency under our flag.

There was a splendid array of Presidential candidates before the St. Louis convention supported by loyal friends and ardent admirers. An unusually large number of men were placed in nomination for the greatly coveted honor.

You were chosen with such enthusiasm as foretells success. Having, on the only ballot, received the two-thirds majority indispensable by democratic usage, your nomination was made unanimous with the heartiest approval of all your illustrious competitors. "Absolute acquiescense in the decisions of the majority, the vital principle of republics" has ever been a cardinal tenet of democracy, and the signs of the times indicate that you will be supported at the polls by the democratic hosts with the same unanimity with which you were nominated.

The hope is not too extravagant for entertainment that in this campaign our candidates will have the support, not only of every democrat in the land, but also of every voter by whatever political name called who believes that the constitution of the United States is a living reality and that it is binding equally on high and low, great and small, public official and private citizen. They will also be supported, let us hope, by all men, without regard to political affiliations, who favor maintaining the lines of demarcation between the legislative, judicial and executive departments of the government, the separation of which has been generally conceded to be the wisest, most salutary and most difficult achievement of the masterful statesmen who framed the constitution. It is believed and hoped that, when President, you will use every legitimate influence at your command to restore and preserve the just and healthful equilibrium among the departments established by the constitution.

The most marked characteristics of the bulk of the American people are reverence for the constitution and obedience to law.

Your long and conspicuous career as a jurist in one of the highest courts in the world—the period which you have spent in expounding constitutions and statutes—causes your countrymen to believe that into that more exalted position to which they are about to call you, you will carry with you that profound respect for the constitution and the law which with you has become a confirmed mental habit and upon which depends the perpetuity of our system of government—the best ever devised by the wit of man—a system whose beneficent results have made us the most puissant nation on the whole face of the earth.

To preserve in its integrity and its full vigor this system which was bought with a great price is the grand mission of the democratic party whose head you have become.

Into your hands the great historic party of constitutional government has committed its standard with abiding faith in your courage, your integrity, your honor, your capacity and your patriotism, believing that under your leadership we will achieve a signal victory; hoping that your administration will be such a fortunate, such a happy epoch in our annals as to mark the beginning of a long era of democratic ascendency and that you will so discharge the duties of your high office as to rank in history with the greatest and best-beloved of American presidents.

The convention, according to democratic custom, appointed a committee—of which it did me the honor to make me chairman for which I am deeply grateful—to convey to you official information of your selection as the democratic nominee for president of the United States.

Speaking for the committee, with pleasure, I hand you this formal notification of your nomination together with a copy of the platform unanimously adopted by the convention. In its name and by its authority, I have the honor to request you to accept the nomination unanimously bestowed.

May the nomination find fruition in election. May the God of our Fathers guide, protect and bless you both as a candidate and as the chief magistrate of the republic.

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1904.

"To the Hon. Alton B. Parker:

"Sir—As the regularly appointed and duly accredited committee of the national convention of the democratic party, held at the city of St. Louis, Mo., on the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th days of July, 1904, we, the undersigned, have the honor, and it is our pleasure to convey to you as we now do, the official announcement of your unanimous nomination by that great and historic body of the people, as its candidate for the exalted office for the president of the United States, at the election to be held on November 8, 1904, a nomination manifestly wise and appropriate that already the country has indicated its approval of it, and the most convincing auguries are rapidly increasing of its formal endorsement by the American people.

"In requesting your acceptance of this nomination, we are, with assurances of our high esteem and sincerest good wishes.

"Yours respectfully,
CHAMP CLARK, of Missouri,
Chairman."

It was also signed by all other members of the notification committee.

Disobeyed Orders.

The trains were a local, east-bound, and a through passenger, west-bound. The wreck was caused by disregard of orders by the local engineer, who ran by the meeting point. The engines were locked tightly together, and Engineer McLaughlin was killed. A fireman and two brakemen were bruised.

Little Girl's Lucky Find.

While at an open air bazaar and fete in the Estrella gardens recently, the queen dowager of Portugal lost a gold bracelet set with diamonds, which she greatly prized as the gift of the late King Luiz on their wedding day. A close search of the grounds for the missing ornament met with no success.

It was found by a little girl who will now receive royal attention.

COMPLETING MUSTER ROLL.

Of Confederate Soldiers—Camps Have Greatly Added to Information.

As is known, the United States war department is engaged in the effort to compile complete rosters of the troops from the several states in the union and confederate armies. This work was undertaken more than a year ago under an act of congress of February 25, 1903, as follows:

"That under the direction of the secretary of war the chief of the record and pension office shall compile, from such official records as are in the possession of the United States and from such other authentic records as may be obtained by loan from the various states and other official sources, a complete roster of the officers and enlisted men of the union and confederate armies."

In Alabama the task of collecting the data necessary for this roster has been committed to the department of archives and history. Director Thos. M. Owen has made extensive inquiries by personal appeal, by correspondence and through the press, and has had very general co-operation.

Building Houses.

It is announced that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company will build a number of houses for their employes at No. 4 and No. 5 mines, Pratt division. These mines are in the vicinity of Wylam and Ensley, and the miners have been carried to their work from their homes and again on a train operated by the Birmingham Southern and paid for by the company. It is claimed that the building of the houses near the mines will obviate the running of this train and be a saving to the Tennessee company of something like $20,000 per annum.

The building of houses at the mines will be of injury to Pratt City, and as many of the miners own their homes at Pratt City, it will have considerable effect on them. However, President Bacon states that it is a business proposition and the idea mentioned will be carried out.

The Panama canal was practically begun in 1883 by the French company. They had completed about two-fifths of the length, when, because of fraudulent management, the company failed, and the work ceased in 1889.

Sheriff Injured.

While returning from a drive to Section Ferry, Jackson county, Sheriff D. O. Austin's team became frightened, caused by the breast yoke breaking, and ran away, throwing the sheriff out and dragging him under the carriage for several hundred yards.

Mr. Austin had his left arm broken in two places.

The omnibus was filled with passengers and fortunately no one was hurt except the driver, who received a slight shock. The horses were valued at $275.

The report that two Russian warships had entered the port of Kiao Chou bay, is confirmed. The cruisers are the Askold and the Diana, not the Novik as previously reported. Two Russian torpedo boats are said to have been captured on the Chinese coast.

It is believed that the attempt of the Russian ships at Port Arthur to join the Vladivostock squadron has been thwarted.

Dispatches from various points indicate that the attempt of the Russian Port Arthur squadron to reach Vladivostock failed and that the vessels have become widely scattered. One torpedo boat destroyer put into Che Foo, where she was boarded and captured by the Japanese. The battleship Czarevitch, the cruiser Novik and a torpedo boat have arrived at Tsing Chou, at the entrance of Kiao Chou bay, the German concession on the southern shore of the Shantung peninsula.

The German foreign office has given instructions that the uninjured Russian warships at Tsing Chou must leave port within twenty-four hours.

All the information received at the legation, which, however, it is said, is not official, tends to establish the fact that the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers entered Che Foo for the purpose of ascertaining if the Ryeshitelni was really dismantled and unable to take part in future operations. The Japanese boat's crew was attacked by the Russians and that the Japanese replied in self defense, and that as the Ryeshitelni was able to continue military operations, she was towed out to sea.

The Czarevitch bore the brunt of the fighting until [illegible] in the afternoon, when Admiral Witheft was hit by a shell which blew his body to pieces, only one of his legs being found after the explosion. Four officers standing near him were also killed.

Altogether, the Czarevitch lost 15 men killed and 45 wounded.

It is stated that the Tokio government will send a circular note to the powers on the subject of capture of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, but beyond intimating that the explanation will be on the lines of information the officials were unable to say anything additional until more fully advised as to the result of the official inquiry.

Street Cars Collide.

A head-on collision between street cars of the Spring Hill lines of the Mobile Light and Railroad company occurred Saturday night. One was fatally injured and six others slightly injured.

Thomas Taylor, motorman, both legs crushed off and will die.

A car in charge of Conductor Jackson and Motorman Sharp was running at a rate of nearly 25 miles an hour. Motorman Taylor had just gotten the other car under way and was attempting to bring it to a standstill when No. 166 crashed into his car at full speed, crushing off both his legs.

Out of It.

The flags on the Russian battleships Czarevitch and three Russian destroyers, which were put into port in a disabled condition, after the battle with the Japanese on Wednesday, have been hauled down. Among those who witnessed the action was the German governor. This means that these vessels will be dismantled and take no further part in the war.

Admiralty Orders Russian Ships Out of Tsing Chou If at All Seaworthy.

According to latest reports the Japanese fleet chased the Russian fleet returning from Port Arthur to the north of Round island off Talien bay. The Russian fleet finally defeated, fled during the night. The cruisers Askold, Novik and one other and one destroyer entered Kiao Chou bay on the night of the 11th, one destroyer fled to Chee Foo, five battleships, one cruiser, one hospital ship, several destroyers returned to Port Arthur at dawn and midday of the 11th. Apparently no damage to Japanese fleet.

IT IS A BOY.

Russia Rejoices in the Birth of an Heir to the Throne.

A son and heir to the Russian throne was born Friday, the 12th. The empress and child are doing well. In receiving the congratulations of his court the emperor said:

"I am happier at the birth of a son and heir than a victory of my troops, for I wait the future calmly and without fear, knowing by this sign that the war will be brought to a happy conclusion."

An imperial salute of 101 guns was subsequently fired, first from Peterhof and then it was repeated by all the forts around St. Petersburg.

The christening of the heir will take place in a fortnight. It will be a ceremony of the most elaborate sort. In accordance with Russian imperial custom, it will be performed in the imperial chapel of the Peterhof palace, credited with being the most magnificent chapel in Russia. The child will be named Alexis.

The emperor was greatly restricted in the choice of a name for the heir to the throne from the fact that the imperial initials, which are on all public edifices, saddle clothes, railway wagons, etc., are "A" and "N." The selection of a name not beginning with these litters would entail enormous expense should the heir come to the throne. There are a great many traditions about the name.

ADMIRAL WITHOFT KILLED.

Admiral Withoft was standing on the bridge of the battleship Czarevitch at the height of the battle, when a shell exploded blowing him to atoms. The casualties aboard the Czarevitch were 210 killed and 60 wounded. The battle ship is reported at Kiao Chou with its steering gear shot away and most of the machinery so damaged as to be useless.

A message from Chee Foo says the Russian cruiser Novik, which took refuge at Kiao Chow, escaped from there at the expiration of the twenty-four hours' limit.

The Japanese embassy received from Tokio a report sent by Admiral Togo on Wedneaday's fight. The report says five of the six Russian battleships in the fight are believed to be seriously damaged. The Pobieda's masts were broken off. The Retvizan apparently suffered most. The message adds that the Japanese damages have already been temporarily repaired.

Admiral Togo, it is learned, concentrated fire on the battleships and this accounts for the escape of the cruisers. It is ascertained that five battleships with the cruisers Diana and Bayan are now at Port Arthur.

JAIL DELIVERY

At Centerville Narrowly Frustrated. One Prisoner Escaped.

What came very near being a wholesale jail delliery occurred at Centerville Tuesday. Sheriff Crawford had seventeen prisoners in jail and during the day they were allowed to take exercise in the corridor of the jail.

In some way Nolie Woodie and his brother, Frank Woodie, charged with burglary, unlocked the door leading into the jail yard and were soon at liberty. In a few moments all the prisoners desiring to escape would have done so, but Hugh Watson, a white man charged with murder in the first degree, closed the door and kept any other prisoners from escaping.

One of the negroes was shot and recaptured. The other escaped.

Lost an Arm.

Simon Pridmore, fourteen years old, was the victim of a terrible accident in the yards of the Southern railway in Columbus, Miss. The young man boarded a box car attached to a switch engine near the depot intending to ride to the crossing a few blocks away. As the car passed over a switch he lost his holding and was thrown underneath the car. The trucks hit his body as he was falling and dragged him for some distance, but his right arm was run over by the wheels and almost completely severed just below his shoulder.

The Cane Crop.

Very heavy rains have fallen during the past week throughout the cane belt and in most instances quite a sufficiency of moisture has now been had, and the planters would like to see a period of hot sunshine with high temperature during both day and night.

The crop condition is so good that it can scarcely be criticised and a heavy tonnage is assured this year. The rains have been detrimental to both cotton and rice.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending August 8, 1904.

General Conditions.

The week, as a whole, was cloudy and too wet for maturing crops, particularly in middle counties, where excessive rains of last few days have caused all streams to rise rapidly, inundating considerable lowland corn and cotton. Locally excessive rains and damaging wind storms also occurred in some northern and southeastern counties. Cotton continues to fruit well, though excessive moisture is still causing it to continue to run too much to stalk, retarding filling of bolls. Considerable rust and shedding are reported, with scattered reports of blight and boll worms, and a few reports of "black rot" in southeastern counties. While the crop as a whole continues quite promising, it is at that critical stage when a period of dry, comparatively warm weather is needed to prevent deterioration. It is opening slowly in southern counties, with very little picked. Corn, both early and late, is filling well and promises a good yield, except in a few localities, where damaged by previous drouth or recent excessive rains. Little fodder has been pulled on account of wet weather. All minor crops continue promising, though grapes and late fruit are rotting. Pastures are good and a good hay crop is promised. Fall gardens are being prepared. More turnips have been sown, with some up to good stands.

JAPS SURROUNDING LIAO YANG.

General Kuropatkin Is Waiting. The Situation at Port Arthur Is Critical.

Emperor Nicholas has received dispatches from General Kuropatkin dated August 8 and 9, mentioning a few minor reconnoisances, but saying there has been no particular change in the positions on either the east or south fronts. He points out the fact that the Japanese are using bullets of different calibre, some with nickel and others with copper coverings, showing that their reserve men are now in the fighting line.

Nervousness over the situation at the front seems to be increasing since the occupation by the Japanese of Wolf Hil, before Port Arthur. It is admitted that the besiegers have an elevated position, whence emplaced guns can command the fortress, and while still professing confidence that General Stoessel will be able to hold out with his comparatively small garrison against the attackers, the state of affairs creates apprehension.

Similar misgivings exist regarding General Kuropatkin's position, the advantage of the new Japanese base at New Chang in greatly simplifying the problem of provisioning their army being fully realized.

Tax Valuations.

The state auditor estimates that tax valuations of property in Alabama for the present year will exceed the valuations of last year by $7,000,000.

The total amount of last year's assessment for the whole state was $308,625,6[illegible]. It is estimated by the auditing department that the total assessment for this year will be $315,000,000.

Montgomery Fires.

There were only six fires during July in Montgomery, not counting the loss on the big plant of the Alabama Rift Flooring Company, which was $75,000, this being outside the corporation. The value of buildings at risk was $178,250, and of contents $15,550. The loss on buildings was $1,223, with insurance of $132,600, and total loss paid; loss on contents, $900; total insurance, $15,000, with full losses paid.

YACHT TURNS TURTLE

And Ten Persons are Drowned While Watching Races in the Potomac River.

They Had Come to See the Regatta and Were Not to be Disappointed by Tragedy.

Ten persons were drowned as the result of the capsizing of a naphtha launch on the Potomac river off Georgetown during the annual Potomac regatta Saturday afternoon.

Four others who were on the launch escaped. All but one of the dead lived in Washington.

The capsized launch was the Recreation and carried the fourteen people mentioned. During the first race the launch got in the way of the eight oared shells, and its wash was such that the regatta officials reprimanded its crew and ordered them out of the way. There was some show of resentment at this order, and the launch headed for the shore, but miscalculated its course, and striking the strong undertow, caused by a mill race, rocked for a moment, and as the passengers rushed to one side, turned turtle.

Many of the spectators, including the officials in charge, declined to stop the sport, saying it was inexpedient because people came from numerous other cities to take part, and the regatta was the result of long laid plans in which many outside interests were concerned. There was a great deal of criticism of this decision.

The cheering for the competing crews as they passed the scene of the tragedy, and the shrill and deafening whistles of the pleasure craft continued while the bodies of the unfortunates were being grappled for, dragged into view and sent to the police station.

MAY INVOLVE UNITED STATES.

Japanese Breach of International Law Affords Grave Situation.

The report of the capture by the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers of the Russian destroyer Ryeshiteini in the harbor of Che Foo as conveyed to Washington was received with deep interest and also concern, for it was realized that there was in this incident the germs of serious international trouble.

If the expedition was a genuine cutting out one, then there is no question in the minds of the officials that the Japanese have committed an offense against international law by violating Chinese neutrality and in addition have broken the agreement they entered into at the beginning of the war at the instance of the United States government to limit the field of warlike operations to Manchuria and Korea and their waters. Should this prove to be the case, the results probably will be grave and vexatious. Under the tenets of international law the captured vessel must be returned for the offense against Chinese neutrality. But if Russian lives have been lost as reported in the press dispatches, a greater complication will follow, for Russia may in turn hold China responsible for the punishment of the Japanese who caused the death of her sailors when under the shelter of Chinese port authorities.

The British officials and foreign diplomats regard the action of the Japanese in cutting out the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshiteini at Che Foo as raising a serious question of importance to all nations.

Back to France.

The United States customs department has received notice from Santos-Dumont to pack up his airship for reshipment back to France. The boxes containing the airship are at present in the Brazilian pavilion at the world's fair.

Compresses Leased.

The Dallas Compress company, the new concern which has taken charge of the two Selma compresses, has concluded a lease for five years with the Gulf Compress company. The Gulf Compress company and the Atlantic Compress company operate practically all the presses in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia and Mississippi. C. C. Hanson, of Atlanta, is president of both companies. The common report is that the railroad interests of the south control both concerns. The lease of the Selma presses provides that the city shall not be discriminated against and that no extortionate prices shall be charged. The old employes will be retained.

August 1st pig iron production had fallen to 246,092 tons per week.

The anniversary of Manila's fall was observed at the exposition Saturday, this being designated as "Philippine day." Among the distinguished guests participating in the exercises of the day were Secretary of War Taft, formerly civil governor of the Philippines; General Chaffee, chief of staff of the United States army; General Merritt, who received the surrender of Manila; Generals Funston, Charles King, Bell, Bates, Wheaton and Summers.

M. WALDECK - ROUSSEAU DEAD.

His Cabinet Served Longer Than Any Other. Was an Authority on Legal Matters.

died Wednesday afternoon as the result of an operation.

Pere Marc Ernestc Waldeck-Rousseau was born at Nantes, France, December 2, 1846, and was a son of Rene Waldeck-Rousseau, at that time a prominent member of the assembly. Waldeck-Rousseau studied law at Saint Lazare, where he practiced for some time before settling at Rennes. There he made his first entrance into politics, being elected deputy in 1879. He was considered one of the most prominent orators of the assembly.

His best work was for the reform of the judiciary. He was re-elected on August 21, 1881, and on November 14 of the same year, although only 35 years old, was admitted into Gambetta's cabinet as minister of the interior. The short-lived ministry of Gambetta did not offer him a fitting chance to prove his ability at that time. The resignation of the governor took place January 26, 1882. Having been offered the same portfolio in Jules Grevy's cabinet, he held the same from February 21, 1883, until the resignation of M. Grevy's cabinet in February, 1885. In 1886 he was elected senator, although he was not present at the election. In 1889 Waldeck Rousseau was entered at the bar of Paris and since then pleaded some of the most important cases of the time. He also favored a revision of the Dreyfus case.

On June 22, 1889, Waldeck Rousseau was called upon to form his ministry, and after having been successfully in office for over three years he resigned in June, 1902, his ministry having the longest duration of any cabinet under the republican regime. He was also a writer of eminence on judiciary matters.

INJURED BY RAIN.

Reports From All Over the Country Say Too Much Moisture.

The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions says:

Weather conditions during the week ending August 8, as a whole, were less favorable than in the previous week. The central and east gulf and Atlantic coast districts suffered from excessive rains. Generally sufficient rainfall has offered relief in Texas. Over the central and western portions of the corn belt, corn continues promising.

Reports of rust in spring wheat continue general in the Dakotas and in portions of Iowa and Minnesota, and indicate the crop has been greatly damaged. Harvesting is in progress in southern Minnesota.

Generally well distributed rains have benefited cotton in Texas, but in the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt the crop has suffered from excessive moisture, many of the fields being grassy and of too rapid growth. Rust and shedding are reported from nearly all states east of the Mississippi. West of the Mississippi, with the exception of Louisiana, the crop is in a good state of cultivation and complaints of rust and shedding are less numerous than in other states.

CAPTURED WOLF HILL.

Japanese Cannon Now Command Port Arthur Harbor.

A dispatch from Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, confirms previous reports that the Japanese before Port Arthur are in possession of Wolf Hill. The general says that on July 30, the Russians withdrew from their position on Wolf Hill, before the numerical superiority of the Japanese.

White Wolf Hill, and a hill to the westward of it were strongly fortified. It would appear from the maps available that long range guns of the Japanese should command the harbor of Port Arthur from White Wolf Hill.

Will Rebuild the Road.

Contract has been awarded to rebuild the Atlanta, Knoxville and Nashville railroad from Knoxville to Wetmore, Tenn., a distance of sixty miles.

The contract involves about $2,000,000. The work is a part of the plan of the Louisville and Nashville to complete its through line from Cincinnati to Atlanta by way of Knoxville.

The contract is to be completed within ten months. Mr. Oliver will at once put three hundred teams and several hundred men to work on the job.

Bridge for Montgomery.

The Montgomery Bridge and Road company was incorporated Friday with a capital of $100,000 and $37,000 paid in. The purpose is to build a foot and wagon bridge over the Alabama river.

Rev. W. E. Mumford died at Macon, Ga., after a month's illness of typhoid fever. He was well known throughout the south as a philanthropist, having devoted the past fifteen years of his life to the care of orphan children in Georgia. He founded the Georgia industrial home in Macon, where 150 children are being cared for. Rev. Mumford was a Methodist minister and a former newspaper man.

It is highly significant that at the meeting of chairmen of school districts held at the court house last Saturday, when it may fairly and justly be said the very best of Chilton's citizenship was assembled together, acting entirely upon their own judgment, they duly elected four good Democrats as the Board of Trustees.

THE sudden death of Harry J. Gilliam, Democratic nominee for Chancellor of the northeastern division, makes it incumbent upon the party to nominate another man. Some action will probably be taken by the district executive committee shortly and they may fill the vacancy perhaps order another primary. At At the April primary Oliver and Whiteside received the next highest vote to Gilliam. The present Chancellor, Hon. Richard B. Kelly, is now a candidate to succeed himself.

His Wish.

A wicked story is told about two partners who respected each other's business ability, but who hated each other cordially. To one of them came a fairy saying that he could have any boon he desired and whatever he had his partner should have in double portion. Naturally his first wish was for a barrel of money. "All right," said the fairy, "but your partner will get two barrels on that wish." "Stop a little," said the first. "Perhaps you'd better not give me a barrel of money. I'd rather you would make me totally blind in one eye."

Korean Customs.

According to the Rev. C. F. Collyer, an English missionary, the Korean "never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reverences. Any hairs that may happen to come out and even the parings of his finger nails are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to Mother Earth intact."

Forgetful.

TRUSTEES MEETING.

Pursuant to call, the Chairmen of the School Districts met in Clanton on the 13th inst. to elect the new County Board of Education. Fifty nine districts, out of a total of sixty-six, were represented. The importance of the work elicted an active interest in the meeting. There was no political axe to grind; but on the contrary, everyone seemed to be actuated by the highest motives. Rev. W. J. Armstrong was called to the chair with G. L. Speer, Secretary.

On motion, the names of delegates were enrolled and the convention proceeded to business.

After some delay in lively discussions upon duties and qualifications of the board, and upon methods of selecting them, a motion finally prevailed to elect from the county at large. The following gentlemen were placed in nomination:

J. L. Ruffin, C. L. Speer, R. A. Rasco, W. O. Perry, H. L. Davis, V. G. Gregg and L. A. Callaway. A motion prevailed that if R. A. Rasco, Democratic nominee for office of County Superintendent of Education, shall be placed on board in his stead, on ballot, the following, receiving the highest vote, were declared elected:

G. L. Speer, Maplesville; R. A. Rasco, Thorsby; H. L. Davis, Clanton; W. O. Perry, Stanton.

The Secretary was requested to submit the proceedings of the meetings to the county paper for publication. G. L. SPEER, Secretary.

Miss Marie Campbelle Entertains.

On last Tuesday afternoon, from four to six, Miss Marie Campbelle was at home to her little friends, in honor of her polite and bewitching guest, Miss Melrose Brown of Oklahoma City. Mrs. Campbelle's elegant home on Eighth street was tastefully decorated for the occasion, and everything was done to make the little folks spend a delightful afternoon. The color scheme was pink and green, with which the large reception hall was beautifully adorned. In one corner of the hall, almost hidden in a bowyow of roses and ferns, was an immense cut glass bowl, from which delicious punch was served.

The decorations of the dining room were artistic to a degree. From the Chandelier, which illuminated the darkened room, ropes of evergreen and pink ribbon extended to the four corners of the room, in each of which reflected the brilliany of the scene many amusing games were played for sometime, after which Miss Marie invited her guests into the dining room where dainty refreshments of ices, cakes and fruits were served. After they had partaken of the good things to eat, then came the very interesting contest of "cutting the cake." At one end of the table was a beautiful unbossed cake, upon which was "M. B.," the initial letters of the guest of honor. Within the cake was a silver coin, which was dexterously cut by Master Jim Mullins.

"Hiding the Switch" prize, a silver button book, was won by Miss Mary Will Stewart, while the guest's prize, a silver book mark, was awarded Miss Melrose Brown. The pleasure of the little people was greatly enhanced by a string band which furnished music throughout the afternoon. Mesdames Guy Higgins, C. Jones, T. Mullins and Gamma Anderson assisted Mrs. Campbelle in entertaining the children.

Miss Marie proved herself a gracious hostess, and the following are indebted to her for a delightful afternoon: Miss Melrose Brown, Mary Sue Williams, Catherine Davis, Glannie Evans Myrtle, Maud and Ethel Mullins, DeLeon Hayes, Willie and Estelle Moffett, Mary Will Stewart, L. E. Morgan, Mattie Lee Harper, Elena Sartor, Bessie Vanderveer and Emmett Matthews. Masters Burton Higgins, Wallace Jones, Wilbur Stanfield, Clarence Evans, Jim and Joe Mullins, Dixie Hayes and Wesley Adams.

The County Poor Farm will be let to the lowest and best bidder on the premises five miles north of Clanton, Sept. 12, 1904.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Chilton County Sunday-school Association.

A meeting of the Chilton County Sunday School Association was held at Collins' Chapel on the 5th Sunday in July to perfect plans for a thorough organization of the work before the Annual Convention to be held in September.

The attendance was very gratifying to those interested in the welfare of the Association. In addition to a large crowd of visitors from the immediate neighborhood and nearby villages, there was present, Mr. E. B. Deason, the County President; Prof. Judson Strock and Dr. A. Horn, of the Executive Committee and about twenty five delegates representing Sunday schools at Thorsby, Jemison Clanton, Verbena, Collins Chapel, New Salem, Cedar Grove and Sardis. Talks were made by Mr. Deason, Dr. A. Horn, Messrs. Strock, Bice, Skaggs, Mims, Rasco, Mrs. Winslow, Mrs. Horn, and Miss Gibson. All the work of this meeting was done with the hope of forming the best practical plan to awaken and foster the interest of the people of Chilton county in the State and County Sunday school Association. It is the desire of the State officers to have every beat in every county organized into a Sunday school Association, and this is what the county officers are trying to do in Chilton. At present there are only five beats organized Beat 9, Beat 7 and 8 organized together and a very recent organization in Beats 5 and 10.

As it is impossible for the County President, Mr. Deason, to visit all the Beats, the following gentlemen were appointed to organize their respective Beats as early as possible, as it is important to have this work done before the county convention in September:

Beat 1. W. H. Conway and Charley Glass.

Beat 2. J. A. L. Skaggs.

Beat 4. E. B. Deason and Judson Strock.

Beat 6. F. W. C. Bice and J. W. Vinson.

Beat 11. Geo. Willis and E. L. Smith.

A very pleasant feature of the meeting was the singing led by Messrs. Durham, Gore and Billingsley, and especial mention is made of the solo by Mr. Durham which gave pleasure to all. Dinner was served on the grounds by the good people of Collins Chapel and they have the heartfelt thanks of the visitors for the cordial welcome and kindly hospitality that makes the day spent with them so pleasant a memory.

The County Convention will be held September 24-25 at Cedar Grove, two miles from Thorsby. Judge Carthel and Miss Kennedy, two of the state officers, will be present and it is earnestly hoped that every Beat in the county will be organized by that time and that every school will be represented, for we want to show what Chilton county can do in Sunday school work when she "puts her mind to it." M. C. GIBSON, Secretary.

Liberty.

The health of this community is very good.

Well, it is almost work time again. I hear some of the boys say they will have to pull fodder soon.

You can hear the hunters horns and their dogs barking almost every morning, but the number of fox they catch, I am not able to tell, but they make melons get.

Some of the young folks of this place attended church at Lomax Sunday and report a nice time.

The ball team from this place met the Mulberry team at the Hosey ball ground Saturday morning and a most interesting game followed, the score being 17 to 26 in favor of Liberty. Come again boys, you played well.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Aug. 15, 1904

It is the consensus of opinion among the leaders of the Democratic party here, that the paramount issue in this campaign is the personality and the record of Theodore Roosevelt. He is "It." He is the "whole cheese." He dominates the Republican party and bestrides it like a colossus. Let us see if the record he has made will bear out the assertion:

More absolutely than any of his predecessors in office ever did, he procured his own nomination. He dictated the platform. He edited the nomination speeches. He appointed the campaign manager. He moved his Cabinet officers like pawns to meet the exigencies of his game of politics. By an act of Executive usupration he added many thousands of pensioners to a roll already containing a million names, in order to make votes for himself—the first open use ever made of the National Treasury as a party's campaign chest.

He has glorified war and threatened the future peace of the country by proposing a bullying over-lordship of the other countries in this hemispere and offering to constitute the United States the Constable and Collector for Europe in the rotton and irresponsible states of Central and South America.

He has, by his recomendations to Congress and his signature to its extravagances, increased the national expenditures during his term to more than $2,500,000,000—an excess of $211,000,000 over the expenditures during President McKinley's term (which include the expenses of the war with Spain), and exceeding the cost of President Cleveland's second term by $880,000,000.

He and the Congress of his party have converted a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1900 into a deficit of more than $40,000,000 for the fiscal year just closed.

This extravagance is encouraged, and in fact made inevitable, by the high tariff and the policies of war and imperialism of which he is the most strenuous champion. The greater the revenue from customs the greater the temptation for lavish expenditures. The more colonies and dependencies we have the greater the need of more warships, more fortifications, more coaling stations more soldiers. Every high protectionists is a jingo, and every jingo a high protectionist. These cardinal features of the Republican policy are interrelated and interdependent. They stand to each other in the relation of cause and effect.

In the view of this surpassing record of extravagance, it is perhaps not strange, but will be regarded by the taxpayers as significant, that the words "economy," "retrenchment" and "reform," once the rule of the nation and the shibboleth of statesmen, do not once appear in his entire speech of acceptance—not once!

He says in his speech of acceptance that "prosperity has come at home." Are there not many thousands of workingmen who have great reason to feel that prosperity is departing? Does the army of striking cotton operatives, whose wages have been reduced 22½ per cent. since 1900, find that "wages are higher than ever before?" Do the tens of thousands of employees dismissed by our great railway systems share his roseate view? Are the participants in or the victims of the strike against the exactions of the Beef Trust throwing up their hats over the "full dinner pail?"

Deserting his early convictions in favor of a free trade, he cultivates the monopolistic campaign contributors of his party by "standing pat" for a tariff higher in its average duty than the highest schedules of the war time—a tariff which the Republicans of Iowa have declared to be a "shelter to monopoly," which the Republicans of Wisconsin demand shall be revised in the interest of consumers, and which ten of thousands of Republicans in Massachusetts and elsewhere insist shall be modified by a reciprocity treaty with Canada.

Can it be maintained that a tariff law which enables favored manufacturers, in return for big campaign contributions, to levy tribute on the whole body of people is an example of "fair and equal justice?

Clanton District Conference.

The Fourteenth Annual meeting of the Clanton District Conference met with Mountain Spring church Aug 5-7. Although we had several showers of rain, we certainly did have showers of the Holy Spirit. Everybody seemed to be interested in God's work; this is the way we have to be if we expect to receive blessings from God. If we could become as much interested in church work as we are in ball games and other worldly pleasures, we would have much better times. We could have revivals in our Sunday schools and prayermeetings as same as we can in our protracted meetings.

During conference we ordained two preachers. It was the first time the writer ever saw this done. It is certainly a pretty part of God's work to ordain a man to go forth and preach the Gospel. After the conference we protracted our meeting and we had a glorious good meeting all the way through, we received 5 members in the church and we believe every one of them means to lay aside worldly things and go to serving God. May God bless and sanctify us all is the prayer of the writer.

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew to wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

A PLAGUE RELIC.

The London Gazette Was One Result of the Great Epidemic.

A curious relic of the great plague survives still in the London Gazette. During the epidemic the autumn session of parliament was held at Oxford from Oct. 9 to 31, 1665, and Charles II. and his court went there to attend the session and to escape infection.

As it was essential that London should be kept informed of the proceedings, the king started an official journal, entitled the Oxford Gazette, the first number of which appeared on Wednesday, Nov. 15, 1665. It contained an account of what had been done in the way of appointments and gave some items of court news. About two months later the publication was transferred to the metropolis as the London Gazette.

The first Oxford issue does not appear to have reached London until Nov. 22, at least Pepys records under that date, very characteristically: "This day the first of the Oxford Gazettes come out; very pretty, full of news, and no folly in it. Wrote by Williamson. It pleased me to have it demonstrated that a purser without professed cheating is a professed loser, twice as much as he gets."

Candy.

"The talk about adulterated candies," said a manufacturer, "is nonsense. There is a national organization of confectionery manufacturers which makes a business of investigating all reports of poisoning from eating candy and has succeeded in exploding most of such rumors. When a child is hungry it will fill up on almost anything it can get hold of—green apples, for instance, or even gravel or grass. It gets sick, and the mother, knowing it had eaten candy that day, spreads the report that the sweets were poisoned. The organization looks into every such case it hears about and finds out the truth. Competition is too strong for any concern to try to sell adulterated goods. The firm's competitors would immediately analyze the piece which is sold suspiciously cheap, and if it contained injurious ingredients would not be slow in proclaiming the fact. Good business principles demand honesty in the manufacture of candies."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

PARKER IS NOTIFIED

THE EXERCISES WERE SIMPLE

Judge Alton B. Parker was formally notified Wednesday of his nomination as the candidate of the democratic party for the presidency.

The ceremony occurred on the lawn of Rosemount, his country home, and in addition to the members of the notification committee and many prominent men of his party, hundreds of friends and neighbors assembled to witness the event.

The weather was not auspicious. The sky was overcast and threatened a downpour.

There was no wait in the ceremonies. As soon as the party reached the stand Representative Clark began his address.

Mr. Clark was enthusiastically cheered throughout his address, and at its close was accorded an ovation, which was merged into the reception extended to Judge Parker. During the speaking rain began to fall fitfully and many umbrellas were raised. Realizing that the ceremonies might be interfered with Representative Clark left out a portion of his speech as originally prepared.

Judge Parker, with bare head, stood on the platform throughout the speech, with utter disregard of the rain, which dampened him from head to foot. His composure was unruffled, and he smiled with the spectators at the witticisms with which Mr. Clark interspersed his address.

"We don't mind the wet," was the spontaneous reply. Judge Parker began his address at 2:18 p. m. and concluded at 2:54. He was given tremendous and continuous applause.

Esopus, N. Y., August 10.—In reply to the speech of Hon. Champ Clarke, notifying him of the nomination, Judge Parker spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee:

I have resigned the office of chief judge of the court of appeals of this state in order that I may accept the responsibility that the great convention you represent has put upon me, without possible prejudice to the court to which I had the honor to belong, or to the eminent members of the judiciary of this state, of whom I may now say as a private citizen I am justly proud.

At the very threshold of this response and before dealing with other subjects, I must in justice to myself and to relieve my sense of gratitude, express my profound appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the convention. After nominating me and subsequently receiving a communication declaring that I regarded the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established, a matter concerning which I felt it incumbent upon me to make known my attitude so that hereafter no man could justly say that his support had been secured through indirection or mistake, the convention reiterated its determination that I should be the standard bearer of the party in the present contest. This mark of trust and confidence I shall ever esteem as the highest honor that could be conferred upon me—an honor that whatever may be the fate of the campaign, the future can in no degree lessen or impair.

The admirable platform upon which the party appeals to the country for its confidence and support clearly states the principles which were so well condensed in the first inaugural address of President Jefferson, and points out with force and directness the course to be pursued through their proper application in order to insure needed reforms in both the legislative and administrative departments of the government. While unhesitating in its promise to correct abuses and to right wrongs wherever they appear or however caused, to investigate the several administrative departments of the government, the conduct of whose officials has created scandals, and to punish those who have been guilty of a breach of their trust, to oppose the granting of special privileges by which the few may profit at the expense of the many, to practice economy in the expenditure of the moneys of the people, and to that end to return once more to the methods of the founders of the republic by observing in disbursing the public funds the care and caution a prudent individual observes with respect to his own, still the spirit of the platform assures conservative instead of rash action, the protection of the innocent as well as the punishment of the guilty, the encouragement of industry, economy and thrift, the protection of property and a guarantee of the enforcement for the benefit of all of man's inalienable rights among which, as said in the Declaration of Independence, are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Liberty, as understood in this country, means not only the right of freedom from actual servitude, imprisonment or restraint, but the right of one to use his faculties in all lawful ways, to live and work where he will and to pursue any lawful trade or business. These essential rights of life, liberty and property are not only guaranteed to the citizen by the constitution of each of the several states, but the states are by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States forbidden to deprive any person of any one of them without due process of law.

Occasionally, by reason of unnecessary or impatient agitation for reforms, or because the limitations placed upon the departments of government by the constitution are disregarded by officials desiring to accomplish that which to them seems good, whether the power exists in them or not, it becomes desirable to call attention to the fact that the people in whom all power resides, have seen fit, through the medium of the constitution, to limit the governmental powers conferred and to say to departments created by it: "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther." To secure the ends sought the people have by the constitution separated and distributed among the three departments of government—the executive, legislative and judicial—certain powers, and it is the duty of those administering each department so to act as to preserve, rather than to destroy, the potency of the co-ordinate branches of the government, and thus secure the exercise of all the powers conferred by the people.

Thomas Jefferson, in a letter to William C. Jarvis, touching the perpetuity of our institution, written many years after he had retired to private life said: "If the three powers of our government maintain their mutual independence of each other, it may last long, but not so if either can assume the authority of the other." It must be confessed that in the course of our history executives have employed powers not belonging to them; statues have been passed that were expressly forbidden by the constitution and statutes have been set aside as unconstitutional when it was difficult to point out the provisions said to be offended against in their enactment; all this has been done with a good purpose, no doubt, but in disregard, nevertheless, of the fact that ours is a government of laws, not of men, deriving its "just powers from the consent of the governed." If we would have our government continue during the ages to come, for the benefit of those who shall succeed us, we must ever be on our guard against the danger of usurpation of that authority which resides in the whole people, whether the usurpation be by officials representing one of the three great departments of government, or by a body of men acting without a commission from the people.

Impatience of the restraints of law, as well as of its delays, is becoming more and more manifest from day to day. Within the past few years many instances have been brought to our attention, where in different parts of our beloved country supposed criminals have been seized and punished by a mob, notwithstanding the fact that the constitution of each state guarantees to every person within its jurisdiction that his life, his liberty or his property shall not be taken from him without due process of law.

In a struggle between employers and employes, dynamite is said to have been used by the latter, resulting in the loss of life and the destruction of property. The perpetrators of this offense against the laws of God and man, and all others engaged in the conspiracy with them, should, after due trial and conviction, have had meted out to them the most rigorous punishment known to the law. This crime, added perhaps to others, led to the formation of a committee of citizens that, with the support of the military authority, deports from the state, without trial, persons suspected of belonging to the organization of which the perpetrators of the dynamite outrages were supposed to be members.

In both cases the reign of law gave way to the reign of force. These illustrations present some evidence of the failure of government to protect the citizen and his property, which not only justified the action of your convention in this regard, but made it its duty to call attention to the fact that constitutional guarantees are violated whenever any citizen is denied the right to labor, to acquire and to enjoy property, or to reside where his interests or inclination may determine; and the fulfilment of the assurance to rebuke and punish all denials of these rights, whether brought about by individuals or government agencies, should be enforced by every official and supported by every citizen. The essence of good government lies in strict observance of constitutional limitations, enforcement of law and order and rugged opposition to all encroachment upon the sovereignty of the people.

The foregoing suggestions but emphasize the distinction which exists between our own and many other forms of government. It has been well said, in substance, that there are but two powers in government, one the power of the sword, sustained by the hand that wields it, and the other the power of the law, sustained by an enlightened public sentiment. The difference in these powers is the difference between a republic—such as ours, based on law and a written constitution, supported by intelligence, virtue and patriotism—and a monarchy—sustained by force exerted by an individual uncontrolled by laws other than those made or sanctioned by him; one representing constitutionalism, the other imperialism.

The present tariff law is unjust in its operation, excessive in many of its rates and so framed in particular instances as to exact inordinate profits from the people. So well understood has this view become that many prominent members of the republican party and at least two of its state conventions have dared to voice the general sentiment on that subject. That party seems, however, to be collectively able to harmonize only upon a plank that admits that revision may from time to time be necessary, but is so phrased that it is expected to be satisfactory to those in favor of an increase of duty, to those who favor a reduction, and to those opposed to any change whatever.

Judged by the record of performance rather than that of promise on the part of that party in the past, it would seem as if the outcome in the event of its success would be to gratify the latter class. With absolute control of both the legislative and executive departments of the government since March 4, 1897, there has been neither reduction nor an attempt at reduction in tariff duties. It is not unreasonable to assume, in the light of that record, that a future congress of that party will not undertake a revision of the tariff downward in the event that it shall receive an endorsement of its past course on that subject by the people.

It is a fact and should be frankly conceded in the coming contest that we cannot hope to secure a majority in the senate during the next four years, and hence we shall be unable to secure any modification in the tariff save that to which the republican majority in the senate may consent. While, therefore, we are unable to give assurances of relief to the people from such excessive duties as burden them, it is due to them that we state our position to be in favor of a reasonable reduction of the tariff; that we believe that it is demanded by the best interests of both manufacturer and consumer, and that a wise and beneficent revision of the tariff can be accomplished as soon as both branches of congress and the executive in favor of it are elected, without creating that sense of uncertainty and instability that has on other occasions manifested itself. This can be achieved by providing that such a reasonable period shall intervene between the date of the enactment of the statute making a revision and the date of its enforcement as shall be deemed sufficient for the industry or business affected by such revision to adjust itself to the changes and new conditions imposed. So confident am I in the belief that the demand of the people for a reform of the tariff is just, that I indulge the hope that should a democratic house of representatives and a democratic executive be chosen by the people, even a republican senate may heed the warning and consent to give at least some measure of relief to the people.

The combinations, popularly called trusts, which aim to secure a monopoly of trade in the necessaries of life, as well as in those things that are employed upon the farm, in the factory and in many other fields of industry, have been encouraged and stimulated by excessive tariff duties. These operate to furnish a substantial market in the necessities of eighty millions of people, by practically excluding competition. With so large a market and highly remunerative prices continuing long after the line of possible competition would naturally be reached, the temptation of all engaged in the same business to combine so as to prevent competition at home and a resulting reduction of prices, has proved irresistible in a number of cases. All men must agree that the net result of enacting laws that foster such inequitable conditions is most unfortunate for the people as a whole, and it would seem as if all ought to agree that the effective remedy would be to appropriately modify the offending law. The growth of monopoly, of which complaint is justly made, cannot be laid at the doors of the courts of this country. The decisions of the supreme court of the United States, the court of appeals of this state and the courts of last resort in many other states warrant the assertion that the common law as developed affords a complete legal remedy against monopolies. The fact that they have multiplied in number and increased in power has been due not to the failure of the courts to apply the law when properly moved by administrative officials or private individuals, but to the failure of officials charged with the duty of enforcing the law to take the necessary procedure to procure the judgments of the courts in the appropriate jurisdiction coupled with the facts that the legislative departments of some of our state governments as well as congress in the manner already referred to have by legislation encouraged their organization. What is needed in addition to the passage of a statute revising the tariff duties to a reasonable basis, is not so much other and different laws as officials having both the disposition and the courage to enforce existing law. While this is my view of the [illegible] the common law, if it should be made to appear that it is a mistake, then I favor such further legislation within constitutional limitations as will give the people a just and full measure of protection.

It is difficult to understand how any citizen of the United States, much less a descendant of Revolutionary stock, can tolerate the thought of permanently denying the right of self-government to the Filipinos. Can we hope to instill into the minds of our descendants reverence and devotion for a government by the people while denying ultimately that right to the inhabitants of distant countries whose territory we have acquired either by purchase or by force? Can we say to the Filipinos, "Your lives, your liberty and your property may be taken from you without due process of law for all time," and expect we will long glory in that feature of Magna Charta which has become incorporated in substance and effect into the Constitution of every state, as well as into the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States? Can we hope for the respect of the civilized world while proudly guaranteeing to every citizen of the United States that no law shall be made or enforced which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, or deny to any person the equal protection of the laws, and at the same time not only deny similar rights to the inhabitants of the Philippines, but take away from them the right of trial by jury, and place their lives and the disposition of their property in the keeping of those whom we send to them to be their governors? We shall certainly rue it as a nation if we make any such attempt. Viewing the question even from the standpoint of national selfishness, there is no prospect that the twenty millions of dollars expended in the purchase of the islands and the six hundred and fifty millions said to have been disbursed will ever come back to us. The incident of war brought the Philippines into our possession and we are not at liberty to disregard the responsibility which thus came to us, but that responsibility will be best subserved by preparing the islanders as rapidly as possible for self-government and giving to them the assurance that it will come as soon as they are reasonably prepared for it. There need be no fear that the assertion so often made of late, that we have now become a world power, will then be without support. Ours is a world power, and as such it must be maintained, but I deny that it is at all recently that the United States has attained that eminence. Our country became a world power over a century ago, when having thrown off foreign domination, the people established a free government the source of whose authority sprung, and was continuously to proceed, from the will of the people themselves. It grew as a world power as its sturdy citizens, to whose natural increase were added immigrants from the old world seeking to obtain here the liberty and prosperity denied them in their own countries, spread over the face of the land, reduced the prairies and forests to cultivation, built cities, constructed highways and railroads, till now a nation which at the formation of the government numbered only three millions in population, has become eighty millions, and from ocean to ocean and the lakes to the gulf, the country is the abode of a free and prosperous people, advanced in the highest degree in the learning and arts of civilization. After lingering for weeks between life and death, former Senator G. G. Vest passed peacefully away Tuesday. He had been so near death for the past three days that the end came without a struggle. The remains will be taken to St. Louis for interment.

EDUCATORS MEET

In Fourth Annual Session at Troy for Three Days.

The fourth annual meeting of the South Alabama Educational association is convened in Troy for three days. Governor Cunningham is to speak on "Local Taxation for Schools." Superintendent of Education Hill is to select his own subject. Congressman Howie will deliver an address on "The Needs of Education in Alabama."

The officers of the association are President W. W. Benson, of Fort Deposit, first vice president, Miss Catharyne Gardner, of Troy, second vice president, J. T. Hardage, of Opp, secretary, G. S. Clark of Highland Home, and treasurer, B. H. Boyd, of Brundidge.

Misunderstanding With Turkey is Adjusted.

After prolonged pourparlers and considerable haggling on the part of the Turks a satisfactory solution of the American schools question has been arrived at.

This matter, which is the most important of the American demands, was settled by extending to American schools the same treatment as that accorded to schools under the protection of other powers. A settlement of other matters affecting American interests in Turkey of secondary importance has also been effected and Minister Leishman has telegraphed to Admiral Jewell, in command of the United States squadron sent to Smyrna, instructing him to salute the batteries on land and depart.

The sitting of the council of ministers at which the settlement was agreed upon was a long one and it was not until near its close that an agreement was reached. The delay in the settlement is believed to have been caused by the intervention of the palace functionaries whose policy in order to retain the sultan's favor consists of combating the rights and privileges of foreign subjects.

FIVE BOYS HURT

In a Runaway Near Gadsden, One Seriously.

A serious accident happened below Gadsden Saturday afternoon in which four boys were seriously hurt and one perhaps fatally. Farrington and Alexander Greet, Joe Price, John Riley and Sam Hughes were in a one horse wagon on their way to the city with a wagon load of jugs filled with water from Mint springs for delivery to their customers.

As the horse came down a slight hill the holdback strap broke and the horse began to run when the wagon ran onto him. The boys grabbed for their lines and with two boys pulling on each line the horse ran into a ditch and turned the wagon over, throwing all of them out.

Joe Price had his left thigh broken in two places, just above the knee and again close to his body. All the boys are about 12 years old and playmates and were in the habit of going daily to the spring for water and this is the first accident they have ever had.

The injured included two negro employes, one of whom may die. The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is reported to have been low water in the boiler.

J. F. Arnold was one of the wealthiest and most popular men in the county.

The first bales of the new cotton crop in the Mobile district were received Sunday, one by boat from Monroe county and a second by express from Covington county. This is ten days earlier than last year. The cotton is pronounced high grade.

New Bridges.

Jackson county's commissioners' court, after a week's session, has adjourned. Orders were made for the building of seven new steel bridges at a cost of $13,447.50 and for four wooden bridges to be let to the lowest responsible bidder. The contracts for the steel bridges were awarded to the Converse Bridge company of Chattanooga.

The West End pharmacy, the West End barbershop and two cottages were destroyed by fire Sunday night. The loss is estimated at $6,000, covered by probably $4,000 insurance.

Struck by a Train.

At Sulligent, James Abernathy, a young man about 20 years old, was struck by a train and now lies in a very precarious condition. Report is that he and a companion were walking along the track, and in some way Abernathy was struck by a passing train.

The Gellersdet Tailoring company has been organized at Troy with capital of $6,000.

THE AFRICAN SPIDER TREE.

Extraordinary Plant Which Grows One Foot High in a Century.

One of the most curious plants in the world is one described by travelers recently returned from the Cape Negro colony, a little known region of Africa, and called the spider plant, says the Chicago Chronicle. These travelers often heard from the natives of a plant that was part spider, and that, growing, threw its legs about in continual struggles to escape. It was the good fortune of Dr. Welwitsch to discover the origin of the legend. Strolling along through a wind swept tableland country, he came upon a plant that rested low upon the ground, but had two enormous leaves that had twisted about it in the wind like serpents, in fact, it looked as the natives had said, like a gigantic spider.

Its stem was four feet across and but a foot high. It had but two leaves in reality, that were six or eight feet long, and split up by the wind, so that they resembled ribbons. This is probably the most extraordinary tree known. It grows for nearly, if not quite, a century, but never upward beyond a foot, simply expanding until it reaches the diameter given, looking in its adult state like a singular stool on the plain from ten to eighteen feet in circumference.

When the wind came rushing in from the sea, lifting the curious ribbon like leaves and tossing them about, it almost seemed to the discoverer that the strange plant had suddenly become imbued with life and was struggling to escape. When a description and picture of the plant were sent to England it was, like many other discoveries, discredited, but soon the plant itself was received, and now Welwitschia mirabilis is well known to botanists.

Level Best an Unworthy Aim.

Only by getting above our usual level can we make the progress we ought. The man who merely maintains the level to which his life has hitherto risen is, at the best, standing still—and that means falling behind. "I did my level best" is not enough. Our average ought to be constantly higher, and an average is never raised by being merely equaled. Only by beating our average can we raise our average. "Better than my best" is a worthier standard than "my level best."

Two Interesting Inscriptions.

In Russia, beside an old highway, is a bronze tablet bearing this inscription: "Napoleon Bonaparte passed eastward along this road in 1812 with an army of more than 600,000 men." And beside another road only a few miles distant is another tablet, on which these words are inscribed: "Napoleon Bonaparte passed westward along this road in 1813 with an army of less than 200,000 men." That's all.

Tame Reindeer.

The range of the tame reindeer has been widely extended in northern Asia by the tribes that number him among their valuable assets; and now he is in process of being widely introduced into Alaska. Civilization, therefore, has done much to extend the habitat of this animal to the South, but the domesticated reindeer has not been introduced into most of the great regions of the Arctic, where the wild animal roams at will.

A Business Term.

"Now, this is an old antique," explained the dealer.

The professor took off his glasses, smiled quizzically, and glancing at his wife to see if she was listening, said, "My dear man, that is tautological. If it is an antique, it must be old."

"In the dictionary, yes," conceded the dealer. "But we carry three grades—antiques, new antiques and old antiques."—Woman's Home Companion.

Washington's Wheat Crop.

The wheat farmers of Eastern Washington expect to harvest a crop of 30,000,000 bushels this season. They planted a larger area than ever before, and have a favorable season. Much of the harvesting is performed by modern machines, which head the grain and thresh it at the same time. Five men and thirty horses harvest twenty acres a day.

The Farmer With an Umbrella.

A farmer in Indiana rode up to the village store on a bright spring day. As he dismounted it was noticed by the crowd that he carried an umbrella, and after much fun was made over it he said: "Any fool knows enough to carry an umbrella when it's raining, but it takes a smart man to go prepared."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Killed by the Lights.

Seth Sinnot, of Saco, Me., found upon entering his parlor recently that the two lower lights in his window, which were sixteen by thirty-two, were broken in fragments. A dead partridge lay under the window. It is supposed that the bird hit the sash when flying at great speed and was killed by the shock.

In the employ of the United States in 1903 were 271,188 persons. Of these 25,810 hold positions in Washington. The total includes all who draw pay from the national government excepting elected officers. About one-half the number, 134,549, obtained their appointments under competitive conditions.

There were produced last year 100,461,337 barrels of petroleum.

ACHED IN EVERY BONE.

Chicago Society Woman, Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Marion Knight, of 23 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Orator of the West Side Wednesday Club, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

The world's best timekeeper is said to be the electric clock in the basement of the Berlin observatory, which was installed in 1865. It is encased in an airtight glass cylinder, and has frequently run for periods of two or three months with an average daily deviation of only 15-1,000 of a second. Yet astronomers are not satisfied even with this, and efforts are continually made to secure ideal conditions for a clock by keeping it not only in an airtight case, but in an underground vault where neither changes of temperature nor of barometric pressure shall ever affect it.

The most extraordinary pearl—or, rather, cluster of pearls—known as "the Southern Cross," is owned by a syndicate of Australians, who value it at $500,000. So far as is known, it occupies an absolutely unique position. It consists of nine pearls naturally grown together in so regular a manner as to form a perfect Latin cross.

Of the eight taverns in Bennington, Vt., that entertained man and beast prior to and after the revolution only one, what was known as Harmon tavern, is now standing. This was built about 1769 by Daniel Harmon, and for nearly a century it was kept by himself or some of his descendants. For fifty years it has not been occupied except as a storehouse. It was in this house that Gen. John Stark took his breakfast the morning of the battle of Bennington.

The Doctor Was Out.

She was a maid who had been with the doctor for years, and the habitual expressions of those years could not be easily laid aside.

When the doctor died she remained at the house. An old friend of the doctor, who had been abroad and had not heard of his death, called and was admitted.

"I would like to see Dr. H.," he said.

"I'm sorry," said the maid, "but the doctor is dead!"

"Will you—will you—wait?"—Lippincott's.

Pure Food Demanded.

Uncle Sam is very particular to prevent, so far as it is possible, the importation of any food stuffs containing injurious ingredients. This is excellent work, indeed, but if home products should be submitted to the same careful scrutiny given foreign products the work would be even better. Adulteration pervades in almost every line of food products, and it does not meet the complaint to declare that the consumers never know the difference. Pure food is demanded and it should be made possible.—Wilmington, Del., News.

Miss M. Cartledge gives some helpful advice to young girls. Her letter is but one of thousands which prove that nothing is so helpful to young girls who are just arriving at the period of womanhood as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly, for it is the only medicine I ever tried which cured me. I suffered much from my first menstrual period, I felt so weak and dizzy at times I could not pursue my studies with the usual interest. My thoughts became sluggish, I had headaches, backaches and sinking spells, also pains in the back and lower limbs. In fact, I was sick all over.

"Finally, after many other remedies had been tried, we were advised to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am pleased to say that after taking it only two weeks, a wonderful change for the better took place, and in a short time I was in perfect health. I felt buoyant, full of life, and found all work a pastime. I am indeed glad to tell my experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it made a different girl of me. ORANGE PROTECTION.

The Open Fire Wins a Battle Royal Against Frost in Florida.

There are many orange growers, especially in the milder latitudes of southern Florida and some indeed in the coldest ranges of northern Florida, who ask nothing better for protection than the open pine wood fire. It is remarkable how this simple protective device has spread since the freeze of 1895. Many years ago there were growers who persistently contended for the bricks of sawdust and rosin and other forms of smudging. These were based on the supposition of a still freeze, and Florida seldom indulges the grower in that sort. Winter after winter their smudges were blown away like fleecy skittles, smutting up the trees and doing no perceptible good until the whole system became a jest and a byword and was abandoned.

Then came the ruinous freeze of 1895. Men saw that they must do something. In that memorable freeze a stout hearted Methodist preacher of the pioneer fighting stock made a heroic stand for his orange grove. It was worth thousands great seedlings thirty feet high or more, a better living than twenty horseback circuits. He threw himself into the fight like an old Confederate. He had his foreman kept up a huge, roaring wall of fire all along the north. For three nights and two days they cut down and hauled trees and fed the fire hot. They burned to death all the first row of big seedlings, burned some to mere blackened stubs, but they saved the grove. Hundreds of dollars the fighting parson spent in that battle royal, but his grove was worth more thousands than he spent hundreds.

Nowadays they do things better. They build the outside fires farther back, and they scatter smaller ones all through the grove. The plucky parson had only one line of defense, and he had to make a prodigious blaze to carry the heat across the grove to the farther side. Heat rises as it flies. With only one fighting line on the front you may go a few rods toward the rear and find men sitting, roaring with fun and roasting oysters on one end of a log, while at the other end the water is skimming over with ice in a pool.

An alert man who will provide a store of seasoned wood and not let the blizzard catch him napping and his wood piles wet can make this protection suffice against a mercury point of 18 or 20 degrees, and a man of dauntless courage like the parson will make it avail even against 14 or 12 degrees, which happens once in half a century perhaps.—S. Powers, Florida, in Country Gentleman.

THERMOMETERS.

The Bulbs, the Tubes and the Marking of the Degrees.

There are many different uses for thermometers and as many different styles as uses. They range from the tiny half inch tubes attached to Christmas calendars to the enormous twelve foot instruments used in experimental work by meteorologists.

Perhaps the most difficult part of the manufacture of thermometers is that of fitting the tube with a bulb of exactly the right capacity. The size of the latter must have an exact relation to that of the former. If it is too large for the bore the mercury or colored alcohol, whichever is used, will not rise high enough in the tube; if too small, it will rise too high. In the little clinical thermometer on whose story the physician depends so often for his decision the bore is so fine that a human hair can hardly be inserted. As these thermometers must be regulated to record minutely the temperature, the person on whose judgment depends the size of the bulb to be attached must be a highly skilled workman. The men who do this part of the work have to be highly paid.

The marking of the degrees on the hollow tube is the step next in importance in the making of the little curse and blessing. The process is so simple that one can prove the accuracy of a thermometer for one's self by the same method. The freezing point is secured by immersing the bulb in a box of melting ice and the boiling point by attaching it to a steam pipe or immersing it in boiling water. Scratches are made on the tube at the points reached by the mercury under these two tests, and the space between is then marked off into 100 spaces for a centigrade thermometer and 180 for a Fahrenheit instrument, the marking beginning in the first instance at zero and in the second at 32. This makes the boiling point in one case 100 and in the other 212 degrees. Thermometers are apt to deteriorate in value as they age, owing to a contraction of the glass of the bulb. The amount of the error can be determined by immersing the bulb in melting ice and making a mark for the new freezing point. To insure the accuracy of thermometers the manufacturers usually store them for a year, testing them from time to time.—New York Tribune.

WHAT THEY READ.

Hogarth was fond of joke books and farces and enjoyed them immoderately.

Mario, the great tenor, read anything he could obtain relating to sports or hunting.

"Papa Haydn liked stories, and he said, "The more love there is in them the better."

George III., for many years of his life, read nothing but his Bible and prayer book.

Swift made a special study of the Latin satirists and imitated their style and language.

Da Vinci read Pindar and thought him the noblest poet who ever wrote in any language.

Heine seldom read anything but poetry, but he read that with the most scrupulous attention.

The Cotton Crop and Prices.

Southern Cultivator says there will not be a very large cotton crop. No "bumper crop" is now possible. All the cotton we can make this season will be needed to supply the world's demand for the next twelve months. This should cause the price to be good, and it will have this effect if our farmers do not rush their cotton into market. If no cotton were sold before the 20th of October, cotton would bring 12 cents. Sell slow, and you will get more for it.

The injuries we do and those we suffer are seldom weighed in the same balance.—Simmons.

A THRILLING SHOT.

An Incident in a German Drama Based on "William Tell."

When a performance of the play "William Tell" was given at a German theater it was announced the stage effects in the play were extremely fine and that the scene in Tell's splendid marksmanship was apparent would astonish every. The audience waited in patience they could until that scene and certainly astonished.

The scene arrived where Tell was about the apple from his devoted head, and the apple and Tell's bow were connected by an invisible wire, along which the arrow was speed to the target.

At the proper cue the arrow speed halfway toward the apple, there stuck, to all appearance in air. In vain did the doughty shake his bow to carry the arrow its mark. The son of Tell looked frightened and didn't know what happening.

The apple, firmly fixed on his ful cranium, was bobbing about, audience was laughing, and the burst into a roar when one of guards took in the situation and ing forward from his position at side of young Tell, calmly gave the row a smart rap with his spear, it sped on its way and buried the apple on the boy's head.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—Editor.]

Hon. L. B. Pounds:

As you have seen fit to be so offensive and slanderous in your unwarranted charges of corruption in the Democratic party, it prompts me to send you this enquirry concerning your record as a member of the legislature, and as a "short horse is easy curried" I will ask you what method you used to pass the Thorsby winnery bill? Is it not a fact that you opposed the bill when it was first introduced, and come to several churches around about Thorsby and got petitions against the measure, and nearly every man entered his earnest protest against it, realizing that it would be a death blow to the school and demoralize the community?

Did you not lecture against it, and say it would be an easy matter to kill the bill? But, not withstanding these facts, you went to Montgomery the next week and passed the bill.

Sir, does it not look suspicious that there was some infiuence rather than the merits of the bill that caused you to change your position?

If there was not, why in the name of common sense could you not, on the merits of the bill before you against lectured it? Or did it require a conference with its promoters and the Thorsby winery Co. before you could see what a grand thing it was? I would advise that you "sweep around your own door" and explain your deal with the Thorsby winery Co., before trying to convert Democrats.

You forced this damnable wine upon the people against their earnest protest, and you, a Baptist preacher; one of the anointed ones of God Almighty that has so often proclaimed salvation to the fallen men of Adams race and condemed liquor in the most bitter and vehement terms. You betray the confidence of the christian people, and for the sake of gain, joined hands with the whiskey bumns in their endeavor to open saloons in Thorsby.

No Democrat has ever passed such a corrupt measure in such a corrupt manner, over the protest of the people of Chilton county.

R. U. ONTOIT.

Lily Ala. Aug. 20, 1904

Mr. Editor: Please allow me some space in the Banner, our county paper, to say a few words to the voters. I will throw no chunks at anyone. I want to look at both parties as I see them. Now we will look at the Republican party, what has it ever done for the State of Alabama? Go with me back from the close of the Civil war 'till 1880, and I will tell you what it done. It sunk the State something like $80,000 dollars. Now, voters, I was living in South Alabama then. I want to tell you how it was there. There, voters, I was on the jury bench; half white, and half black in the grand jury room, and right here I was put on the stand and questioned by a thick lip, ginger cake negro lawyer, in the court house of Selma; all the county officers were Republicans. Voters, do you want that in this State again? If not, vote the Democratic ticket. In 1880 the Democrats of Dallas got enough of Republican rule and stuffed ballot boxes and came out from under the Republican and negro rule. Does anyone blame them? Now, the Democrats have raised that indebtedness that was brought on by Republican rule, and now we get from five to nine months free tuition for our children, and they give the poor, worn out Confederate soldier a pension, and many other things, to numerous to mention. Mr. Editor, I hope you are improving and will soon be well, to help us to elect the Democratic ticket in November.

Verbena.

I guess I am becoming cronic but I see every other place so well represented in your good paper I cannot resist.

Since the rains have given us rest, the presence of the gloom faced farmer have been less numerous. Everybody appears to be in better spirits, and while there are not so many people in Verbena, we still have enough to run the business and keep up the whittling club.

Since the last issue of the Banner we have had something to talk about, that passifier by Young Dem. I have never met the gentlemanly that name, but just pass him by compliments and say to him that he expresses himself nicely and very much to the point. Though I think his treatment too heroic or so small an ill, and besides that he has drawn so many people's attention to a little bundle of nothingness that would soon have ben forgotten. You see as it is, he has drawn public attention and at the same time don't give any of the opposing faction a chance to do anything but dry up. Why I read Young Dem's discour I wanted to cry loud enough to reverbrate throughout of Chilton, "who hit Billy Patterson."

Well, socially, I have but ttle to say. Our little crowd of Verbenians who visited St. Louis are back and report that they ha an excellent time.

We are sorry to say that A. F. A. Gullege is confined to hised, again, though we hope the respe is only slight.

Teachers are better paid in New York City than anywhere else in the world. This is not an accident, nor is it because New York people are more intelligent or liberal-minded than others. It is the result of organization and agitation by the teachers themselves.

Major General Mackel, retired, who for some years was professor of military tactics in Japan, and who received a cable message recently from General Kodama of the Japanese general staff, announcing the victory of the Japanese at the Yalu river "by officers whom you educated," estimates Japan's fighting force to be from 250,000 to 300,000 line troops and 100,000 reserves. These, he adds, are actual and not paper numbers. The organization of the army is perfect. The soldiers are excellent marksmen and the artillery is splendid. Continuing, Major General Mackel said: What an abundance of bright minds in the officers' corps! The number is more thinly scattered with the Russians. Only last year I instructed six Japanese officers. Their knowledge astonished me, and their teachers in the art of war were once my pupils.

The popular fear that radium, the new and mysterious element, would be kept beyond the reach of the plain people is about to be dispelled, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Radium has been quoted at $16,000,000 a pound. Only plumbers, hotel clerks and chorus girls can afford to carry it in their clothes. But radium must come down. A condition which shuts out the plain people from the enjoyment of this luxury canpot be long tolerated. Dr. George F. Lee, a Philadelphia chemist, announces that he has discovered a method of producing radium which will reduce the cost of the element from its present price of $16,000,000 a pound to $500,000 a pound. If Chemist Lee makes good his promises and can bring radium within the reach of the ordinary purse he will confer a great boon upon mankind. The next thing, of course, is to guard against the cornering of the supply. If the promoters will keep their hands off and give science a chance we may soon be able to go to bed with radium candles and thus give the gas and electric light companies the look of chilly hauter, commonly known in street parlance as the "icy stare."

JAPANESE LOST 28000

In Assaults on Port Arthur. They are Reinforced with 30,000 from the North

800 SHELLS DAILY ARE FIRED

Russians Explode Mines Under Their Assailants—10,000 Lost in One Charge.

According to a Moscow correspondent, Lieutenant General Stoessel concluded a telegram to an intimate friend with the words: "Farewell forever, Port Arthur will be my tomb."

It is reported that Russia is trying to induce France to buy Argentine and Chilean men of war.

The following is supplied by a Russian correspondent:

"With each additional report from Port Arthur wonder increases both at the persistence of the Japanese attack and the heroic stubbornness of the defenders of the fortress. The Japanese are literally throwing away thousands of lives in the hope of shaking the courage of the Russian troops.

"Major General Fock says he is confident the fortress can not be taken, but that if it is taken the whole Japanese army will have to immolate itself on the slopes of the fortifications.

There were five desperate assaults on Green Hills July 26th, the Japanese returning each time with apparently inexhaustible reinforcements. On the final assault, however, the Japanese broke badly, throwing away their guns, cartridge belts and even their boots to facilitate their flight and leaving seven thousand dead or wounded.

It is asserted in reliable quarters at Port Arthur that the Japanese have received reinforcements of thirty thousand men from the north.

Pigeon bay had been the scene of fighting for several days before the final assault had begun, the Japanese never being able to hold for long any territory they might gain. Their attacks were mostly at night, during foggy days and misty mornings.

ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Senator Henry G. Davis Notified Wednesday of His Selection.

CHAIRMAN WILLIAMS SPEAKS

Ridicules the Republican Party—A Large Crowd Present at the Simple Ceremony.

Henry Gassaway Davis was formally notified Wednesday that he is the nominee of the democratic party for vice president of the United States.

Representative John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, chairman of the notification committee of the St. Louis convention, delivered the notification address. The ceremonies were held on the lawn of the hotel at White Sulpher Springs, W. Va., which affords a natural ampuitheater.

Mr Williams, in his address, said:

We have been appointed by a most notable convention as a committee to notify you of your nomination by the democracy as their choice for vice president of the United States.

As soon as I learned that I was, by resolution of the convention, to be the mouthpiece of the committee for the performance of this pleasant task I began to look about me in order to see how the duty had been performed by others. I found from recent performances of a similar character in the republican camp that for a notification speech a historical essay is altogether the proper things, absolutely necessary for the emergency. We shall, therefore, entitle our notification address "A Brief Historical Disquisition Upon Some of the Blunders of Our Ancestors as Viewed from the Standpoint of the Wisdom of Republican Statesmen Who Have Embraced the Strenuous Life."

What a queer, old-time, childish idea was that of our ancestors that the president of the United States is simply a chief executive and that his duty consists in executing the laws as they were written I need not tell you, sir, that if you should be elected vice president it would be one of your duties as sort of heir apparent to the crown to train yourself and to influence your chief—Judge Parker—in the way of usurping the other departments of the government. Your opportunity will not be as great as that of the president himself, but as president of the senate you may have some opportunity; the opportunity of changing the senate rules on your own motion, or doing some other revolutionary thing, which as a play to the galleries, will make your good old Welsh name famous as that of one of the most spectacular and strenuous of men. Men, sir, are [illegible] for taking advantage of them—sometimes for not making them—as in re Panama republic, for instance.

It has been a pleasure to us to do our duty to notify you of your nomination. This has been a pleasure notwithstanding the fact that you had been in a manner notified by Hon. Elihu Root, who, while pretendedly notifying Senator Fairbanks, could not get his mind off'n you, as the darkies say, and whose speech consisted principally in saying: "Go to, thou art an old man," and in bemoaning the fact that you might possibly die before you go to be president. So might he for that matter.

That would be bad enough, but not as bad a case I know of—the case of a man who was once elected vice president, and who, becoming president late, "tickled the ears of the groundling, but made the judicious to grieve." Mr. Root forgot that democratic presidents are never killed and that they never die while holding office, although some of them do afterward.

In real conclusion, Mr. Davis, it is a sincere pleasure indeed to know and to be able to help to place in high position a man of your character and sense and modesty, a man who has the fruit of a life of continence, temperate, self-containment and useful and onest industry, presents a picture, in virile, though advanced age of mens sana in corpore sano, which is a delight to the eye, a satisfaction to the sul and was taught by wise ancients to be the summum bonum of indivieal earthly existence.

In rply, Mr. Davis said:

The official notification which you bring f my nomination for the vice presidncy of the United States, by the national democracy, gives me a feeling of the sincerest gratitude to my pay for the honor conferred. At the sae time it brings to me a deep sense of my responsibility to my party as a cididate, and to my country in case of my election.

A spit of determination to succeed in the impaign before us appears to pervade the rank and file of our party in all sions of the country. Of that rank a file I have for many years been a ember and have at all times devoted my humble powers to party success, believing that success to be for the country's good. Unexpectedly called as I am now to the forefront, I am impelled by an acceptance of the obligation by a sense of gratitude to my fellow workers, and the hope that I may be able the better to assist in restoring to power that party whose principles and past history guarantee a safe, wise, economical and constitutional administration of the government.

I find therefore a great pleasure standing here upon the borderland of the two Virginias to receive and accept the commission you bear, and to send greetings through you to the democracy of the entire county. Is it not significant of a closer and truer brotherhood among us that for the first time since the civil war a nominee on the national ticket has been taken from the section of our country that lies south of Mason's and Dixon's line—a happy recognition of the obliteration of all sectional differences which led to and followed that unhappy struggle.

As introductory to the few remarks I shall make, I desire to say that I heartily indorse the platform upon which I have been nominated, and with the convention and its nominee for president, regard the present monetary standard of value as irrevocably established.

In the language of our platform, "the rights of labor are certainly no less vested, no less sacred and no less alienable than the rights of capital."

The time is opportune to emphasize the truth of this utterance. The most sacred right of property is the right to possess and own one's self and the labor of one's own hands—capital itself being but stored up labor.

My experience as a wage earner and my association with labor have alike taught me the value of democratic principles, for in them the humblest has the strongest security for individual right and the highest stimulus to that independence of spirit and love of self help which produce the finest private characters, and form the base of the best possible government.

The receipts of the government for the year ending June 30, 1902, the first fiscal year of the present administration, showed a surplus over expenditures of $21,000,000, but for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, instead of a surplus there was a deficit of $41,000,000. From the 1st of July, 1904, to August 10, or for about a month and a third of the present fiscal year, the expenditures of the government have exceeded the receipts by $21,715,000.

The cost of government has largely increased under republican rule. The expenditures per capita for the last years, respectively, of the administrations given, taken from the reports of the secretary of the treasury, were as follows:

In 1893, under Harrison	5.47
In 1897, under Cleveland	5.13
In 1901, under McKinley	6.56
In 1904, under Roosevelt	7.10

The republicans now claim great consistency in their attitude upon the currency question, and the president in his recent speech of acceptance said that they know what they mean when they speak of a stable currency; "the same thing from year to year," and yet in the platform of their party in 1884, 1888 and 1892, they favored the double standard of value. In the platform of 1888 they said: "The republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and condemns the policy of the democratic administration in its efforts to demonetize silver."

I congratulate your committee and the constituency it represents, in the selection by the delegates to the national convention of the nominee for the presidency. He is a man of courage, yet prudent; of high ideals, yet without pretense; of the most wholesome respect for the constitution and the majesty of the law under it and a sacred regard for their limitations; of the keenest sense of justice, which would rebel against compounding a wrong to an individual or to a nation; positive in conviction, yet of few words; strong in mental and moral attractions and yet withal modest and reserved; possessed of a sturdy constitution and magnificent manhood, and yet temperate in his demeanor.

With a candidate whose personality appeals to the good sense and sound judgment of the American people, a platform whose principles are for the greatest good to the greatest number, and a reunited party earnest for the restoration of good and economical government, we should succeed and the principles of democracy again triumph.

I beg my countrymen, as they value their liberty, to guard with great care the sacred right of local self-government, and to watch with a jealous eye the tendency of the times to centralize power in the hands of the few.

It will be my pleasure and duty at a time not far hence to accept more formally in writing the nomination, and to give my views upon some of the important questions commanding the attention of the country.

Arrangements are being made to develop coal fields in Walker county, Alabama on an extensive scale. The Southern railway owns 72,000 acres of land in that county, and has recently sent its mining expert over that territory with a view of ascertaining the feasibility of developing it. The expert has submitted a report that the land contains some of the finest coal in Alabama and that a considerable portion of it is coking coal.

Captain R. H. Reed, captain of the Bessemer Rifles, has resigned and his resignation has been accepted by the adjutant general. An election has been ordered on August 21st to elect his successor.

Captain Reed was in command of Company H, Second Arkansas regiment, during the Spanish-American war. His reason for retiring from the military is the pressure of business.

The money was willed by Mrs. Mary E. [illegible], mother of ex-Marshal Walker, who died some time ago in this city. The contestants are the nephew and niece of Captain Walker, Trimble and Miss Adele Walker, who allege undue influence on the part of their [illegible].

The National Business Men's League is making its movement to amend the constitution so as to lengthen the presidential term to six years, making the president ineligible for re-election. One reason urged is the constant danger of business depression following the presidential election.

Auditor T. L. Bowell has decided that sheriffs and tax collectors and assessors do not have to pay commissions for the terms of office extended by the new constitutional legislature. It is only necessary to file new bonds. All officers in this class are requested not to send in their fee for commission, as it will have to be returned.

[illegible] were filed with the secretary of state for the printing and binding [illegible] contracts of the state for printing and binding portion of which will be put in by the Brown Printing company and James Armstrong, of Montgomery. All copies of the supreme court reports and acts of the legislature will be included in this contract. [illegible] will be opened August 29th by the Brown Printing company.

[illegible] cane growers meet in Montgomery next January. This body has a membership of over 6000 and [illegible] of some of the most successful farmers in the country. It met [illegible] ago at Macon, Ga., where the government experiment station was located some time later.

[illegible] committee from Birmingham's Commercial Club will go to Washington to appear before the rivers and harbors committee to urge that the government make the necessary appropriation of $300,000 to have the channel in improving Mobile's harbor.

[illegible] which are declared by [illegible] to be genuine Mexican boll weevil have been discovered in Hernando and Little river counties, in the northern portion of Arkansas, and specimens have been forwarded to Washington with a request that an investigation be made.

[illegible] Cole, postmaster of Enopus, Miss., many years ago. His face is [illegible] with smiles and the merry jingle of much coin issues from his capacious pockets. Judge Parker's [illegible] has raised his income from $30 per month to $11.50 daily.

The Universal Electric Equipment company has been organized in Birmingham with a paid up capital of $[illegible]. The company will, at once engage in the manufacture of electric lighting apparatus, and will as soon as possible build a factory in Birmingham to make a line of electric [illegible].

BUILDING NEW DAMS.

Another One Across the Chattahoochee to Cost

The mills of Columbus, Ga., has contract for the building of a stone dam across the Chattahoochee river. Work began June 1st, to be completed in two years. The dam will be built of granite, laid in cement.

About a short time work will be begun on another big dam across the Chattahoochee two miles from the site of the old Clapp factory shoals, where the development of the Chattahoochee Falls company's power will occur. This dam will develop 12,000 horse power.

Work is now in process of erecting the dam on the Chattahoochee at Langdale, about thirty miles north of Columbus.

HIBERNIANS

State Convention in Birmingham.

The biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Alabama was held in Birmingham Sunday. Fifty delegates, representing divisions in Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery and Pratt City attended the meeting.

Officers were elected and Mobile was selected as the next place of meeting. The following are the officers:

President, George J. Sullivan, of Mobile; vice president, W. H. Cutcliff, Birmingham; secretary, Hugh Gallagher, of Montgomery, re-elected; treasurer, Dan Donohue, of Birmingham; chaplain, Father Eton, of Montgomery.

IN A GOLDEN CARRIAGE

Czarevitch Alexis Will Ride to His Christening.

St. Petersburg's golden carriage, which are used only at the time of imperial christenings, have been taken from the annex to the palace where state coaches and sleighs are kept, and drawn by six pairs of milk white steeds gorgeously caparisoned, removed to Peterhoff to be used in conveying the heir of all Russians from the villa Alexandria to the great palace a couple of miles distant.

Two of the highest personages in the land—the young empress and Emperor Nicholas—will be absent. Their majesties cannot enter the church while the christening is in progress because it is contrary to the rule of the orthodox church for parents to attend such ceremonies, the god parents being considered as representing them before the Almighty.

Little Alexis will be borne to the font accompanied by Prince Henry of Prussia and Prince Louis of Battenberg, representing the god fathers, Emperor William and King Edward, and by the godmother, the empress dowager. The metropolitan of St. Petersburg will have the honor of annointing the infant and immersing him in holy water (complete immersion is necessary, according to the rules of the church).

It was at first intended to follow the custom of giving a grand banquet at the palace after the christening, but the sovereigns have decided to forego functions of this kind while the country is undergoing the ordeal of war.

RYANS CLAIMS SEABOARD.

Recent Purchase of Stock Gives Him Its Control.

Thomas F. Ryan states that he has purchased for himself and associates, Blair and Co. and T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., the Seaboard Air Line stock which was held by Messrs. Williams and Middendorff, amounting to 140,000 shares, and that these gentlemen will resign from the board of directors the transaction. It is understood that Messrs. Ryan, Blair and Coolidge now own about $25,000,000 of Seaboard stock and that their friends, including C. Sidney Shepard, own $15,000,000 more, making about $40,000,000 out of a total capital stock of $62,000,000.

The gross earnings of the Seaboard Air Line system for the twelve months ended June 30, 1904, exceeded $13,000,000. The surplus earnings after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and fixed charges, including interest on bonds, interest on car trusts and rentals amounted to $5,000,000.

Seaboard Air Line railway has loaned Atlanta and Birmingham road for construction purposes in advance of the issuance of the first mortgage bonds on that property, and as the track is laid and completed these bonds are being delivered to the Atlanta and Birmingham bond syndicate and paid for.

BANK ROBBED.

While the Cashier Was Gone to Dinner—No Clew.

A bold daylight robbery took place at Stevenson Saturday during the noon hour. Charles Alston, the cashier of the bank, went to dinner at the usual hour, 12 o'clock, and on his return found that robbers had entered the bank from the rear of the building through a window and had taken from the cash drawer all the money in it, between $800 and $1000, leaving as silently as they entered without being detected by any one.

Bloodhounds were telegraphed for, and in three hours after the discovery was made Detective Chipps was on the spot from Chattanooga with his dogs. The dogs took the trail readily and run it a mile due west to the coal chute on the Southern railroad and could do nothing more with it.

The supposition is the robber boarded a train at that point thus making good his escape for the time.

Shot Three Times.

Richard Pettus, a young man said to have been in several altercations in the past, put his pistol in the face of W. E. Dickerson, a peaceful Montgomery mechanic, and was shot three times. His wounds are expected to prove fatal.

Dickerson went to a grocery store, and Pettus was there, and, it is said, was under the influence of whisky. He walked up to Dickerson, whom he knew only slightly, and wig-wagged his revolver in his face. Dickerson tried to get away and finally dropped his hands to his side. Pettus took this for an attempt to draw a gun and fired, the ball grazing Dickerson's neck.

The latter then drew his pistol and fired three times, hitting Pettus twice in the breast and once in the neck, all the wounds being regarded as fatal.

The presence of an engineering party operating in the vicinity of Tuscumbia in the interest of the Illinois Central railroad has revived the rumor that that road is planning to enter this territory. The company made a preliminary survey from Jackson, Tenn., to Sheffield and through the mountains to Tuscumbia last spring, suspending work rather unexpectedly, and the renewal of operations gives color to the belief that the work is being continued.

REFLECTION.

What is the work I have done today?
Have I left a mark upon the way—
A kindly word, or a pleasant smile
That has lingered in some heart awhile?

Straightened a path or a crooked road,
Lightened the weight of a weary load;
Into the shadow of someone's night
Sent even a tiny ray of light?

Or have I loitered upon the way,
And left my debts for others to pay?
Taking the good that has come to me,
And careless what others' rights may be.
—Ram's Horn.

THE END OF A RAINBOW.

The sudden summer shower was over and two children stood on the hotel veranda gazing wistfully at the glorious bow that spanned the sky.

"I wish we could tough it," the girl said longingly; "it is the most beautiful thing in all the world."

"Well," the boy returned practically, "I don't care much about touching it, but I'd be mighty glad to find the end of that rainbow."

"Why?"

"Don't you know, goosie? There's a great pot of gold at the end, and it will belong to the person who can find it. Jiminy, but I wish I had it here this very minute.

"Let's go and get it."

The boy stared at his tiny companion in surprise. The feminine mind was much more daring than his own, it appeared. Did the girl really mean that they should go off alone into that limitless forest when they were never even trusted near it unless accompanied by some older person? Still, he took another look at the brilliant bow. This was certainly the chance of a lifetime, and, of course, he would not refuse to go any place that a girl was willing to go.

Besides, it was her suggestion, anyway, not his, and if there were future reprimands and scoldings in store he could say that it was she who proposed going.

"Come on," he said briefly, holding out his hand, and off the two trudged toward the alluring, treacherous bow, giving no heed to the awful terror which their absence would surely inspire.

It was nearly twenty-four hours later that they were found. The boy's father, heading one of the many search parties that were scouring the woods, stumbled over them, and his pale lips sent forth a triumphant shout—for the children were safe, and in view of that fact all minor matters sank into insignificance.

Death had hovered too near to leave room for any feeling except thankfulness, though both were questioned closely regarding the escapade.

The girl always remembered with fervent gratitude that the boy never told any one that it was she who had proposed seeking the pot of gold.

The boy rather wondered at his own reticence, but after all it seemed rather a mean sort of trick to palm the responsibilities of his misdeeds on a girl! He kept a discreet silence on that point, and by doing so exhibited considerable more manliness than a certain ancestor of us all once displayed.

Two weeks later the hotel closed for the season, and the girl and the boy went their several ways. Off in her eastern home the girl did not quite forget the boy who had done his best to comfort her in the terrible forest, and who had protected her by his silence when they were found.

Off in the west the boy remembered with a feeling of pride that the girl had never cried during that awful experience, and that she had never reproached him for allowing her to go into such peril. Of course, he should have known better, for was not he a boy, and the elder, too?

The girl had been a casual summer acquaintance and the two were effectually separated when the brief summer season ended. For several years the boy begged his mother each June to go back to that place, but she had a shuddering horror of the valley and the mountains, and nothing would induce her to return.

So at last the boy gave up asking, and the experience was crowded into the background by a hundred new interests and aims.

Long years after, when he was a man, playing a man's part in the world the old desire suddenly seized him to return to that place. The hotel was still there, very modern in every way, but somehow he felt bored and missed an intangible something which he had imagined he would find. He stood it for a week, then the quiet became intolerable. He resolved to leave the place. That day she came.

He knew it was fate from the very first. He was not ordinarily inclined to be shy, but he felt like a awkward schoolboy in her presence.

She had many friends at the hotel, but he managed by sheer persistence to monopolize a good share of her time.

He could not tell whether he was making any headway or not. She was friendly, but very elusive, and the time had come when he must go back to his work, for there were obligations which he could not ignore.

He lured her out that morning for a row, with the promise of a lovely spot which she had never seen. He was unusually silent and she leaned back in her corner of the boat watching him with speculative eyes. Apparently he was searching for some particular nook. At length his quest appeared ended, for he drew the boat carefully to the shore and held out his hand to her. Then they wandered over a wooded knoll near by. "This is the place, I am sure," he said at last. "I have seen it often in my dreams, and here is just where the end rested."

She stared at him in mild wonder.

"No, I am not out of my mind," he assured her, "I wanted to tell you a story, and I had an unaccountable fancy for telling it to you in this spot. Will you hear it?"

"Is it interesting? Does it commence 'Once upon a time?'"

"Of course it does. It would be an exceedingly poor story if it didn't. I hope," and the man's face grew very earnest, "that you will be interested in the poor little story—but—I cannot be sure—

"Once upon a time' when the world was nearly two decades younger than it is now, a boy and girl started from the hotel down in that valley to find a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow—at least the boy, who must have been a very mercenary creature, was thinking only of the gold, but the girl was much more poetic, for she cared nothing at all for the gold. She only wished to see more closely that wonder of mist and light which held and enthralled her fancy. They got lost, of course, that was a foregone conclusion, you know, and they were only discovered and saved by a kindly miracle of fate. The girl was a genuine brick, though, and never taunted the boy with his rashness and wickedness in leading her into such peril. The boy should have known better, you see, for he was considerably older, but he was always a good bit of a fool. He did not find the end of the rainbow, but for years he dreamed of it, and in some mysterious way he came to fancy that the treasure was not gold after all, as his nurse had told him, but that it was something infinitely more precious than gold. He was never quite sure what the mysterious treasure might be, but he knew that when he was a man he must seek it here—just on this very spot, for it was here that the rainbow seemed to end as the children looked up to it from the valley below—just here by this little hill."

There was a silence. Her face was turned quite away. The man looked at her keenly and then went on with his story in a low voice which, perhaps, shook just a trifle.

"And so—and so—he came here today. He knows now what the treasure is at the end of the rainbow. A woman's heart and a woman's love. He does not know whether he dare claim it or not, but it is the gift which he most covets from life. And—can I have it, dear?"

Her face was still turned away. The man's heart had time to grow very heavy before she spoke.

"I was always wildly grateful to you for not don't what it was actually," breathlessly, "that you were—"

"And—and—I did want to find the end of the rainbow, too, and if you think that we could, perhaps, find—it—together—why—"

He was holding her hand in a tight clasp, and was looking down at her with eyes full of a reverent, incredulous joy.—Mabel C. Jones in "Every Where."

Something About Canaries.

There is no much more fascinating hobby than of bird-keeping, and if canaries are properly managed and healthy they seldom fail to do well. Canary lovers are now putting up their birds to nest, that is, if they are wise enough to wait until the cold winds are over and April well on its way through. The exquisite little rollers, nature's music boxes, are particularly well worth breeding, as the young cocks, if they hear no alien song, but are kept under the tuition of a really first-class parent, will probably reproduce his beautiful song fairly well. It is, however, quite useless to expect the youngsters to inherit good voices and the desired tunefulness, unless hens of the proper strain are used. The common German country canary is not the same as the superior roller. Thousands of common hens are sent over and sold in couples, at very low rate, each so-called "pair" in a tiny wooden cage. These latter are not in any way connected with the aristocratic rollers, but every reliable dealer who sells a first-rate cock roller knows where to put his hand on hens of the same strains, which are not cheap, but worth having.

An Istmian Puzzle.

Victor Smith in the New York Press says: "The Panama canal commissioners are now asking pertinent questions concerning the most important project before the civilized world. Here is a poser for all Americans who have not heard it before: 'How far east of the city of Panama, on the Pacific, is the city of Colon, on the Carribean? The usual answer is "About 40 miles," or the length of the canal, which is just 42 miles wrong. Colon being two miles west of Panama instead of 40 miles east. Question No. 2: 'What is the general direction of the canal?' The answer will be, 'East and west,' which is precisely wrong, as it is north and south."

How He Knew.

The teacher in this case thought her pupil very stupid, and finally asked:

"Do you know whether George Washington was a soldier or sailor?"

"He was a soldier," replied he promptly.

"How do you know?"

"'Cause I saw a picture of 'm crossin' the Delaware, an' any sailor'd know enough not to stand in a boat."

HOW THE COREANS DRESS

It is only the lower classes of Coreans whose garments are dirty. The better class Corean wears an attire the immaculate cleanliness of which is probably excelled anywhere on earth. It is certainly the quaintest in the Orient, and as its owner invariably swings along with a supercilious swagger, as if he and he alone were the owner of the street and all he surveyed besides, the incongruity of his manly gait contrasted with his exceedingly effeminate dress is a thing which must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated. He is clothed in white from head to foot, the white being sometimes varied by cream-colored silk, every garment being of spotless cleanliness. He wears the baggiest of baggy breeches, tightened just above the ankles, and his padded white socks are partially inclosed in white and black cloth sandals. He wears—in summer—a silk or grass-cloth coat of gauzy texture, which is tightened under the armpits and spreads loosely from there downward, and, being stiffly laundered sticks out in a ridiculous manner all round his legs like the starched frock of a little child. On his head he wears a hat not unlike that formerly worn by Welsh fishermen, only the crown is not so high. The hat is black and glossy, and a close inspection of that of a yang-ban (aristocrat) showed that it was made of fine woven silk and bamboo in an open mesh that resembled crinoline while those worn by the less prosperous are made of horsehair. The truncated cone does not fit the head, but perches jauntily on top of it. At its base is a round brim about four inches wide; the whole is kept in place by a black cord or band tied under the chin. The office of this peculiar capillary attire is not alone to protect the head from the weather, but to form a receptacle for an equally curiously shaped skull cap, which in turn contains the topknot. This hat is worn on all occasions, both on the street and in the house, and its gauzy construction enables the topknot to be plainly seen within its airy walls.—Harper's Weekly.

THE COUNTRY BRIDE.

For the bride who lives in the country nothing is prettier than a clover wedding. If the ceremony be performed in a great orchard, or in a [illegible] of peonies and hot house roses would be out of taste when all out-of-doors is trying to make the day glad and fragrant.

The bride, in white, carries white clovers. The maids in pale green muslin carry bouquets of pink clovers. In the grove or orchard there will undoubtedly be few if any of the fragrant blossoms, but the fields abounding must yield their treasure. If the clover is removed with the sod and well moistened it will retain its freshness for days. This will mean work for the small boys of the family. But the effect is beautiful.

A border of clover beds, or a mound of clovers here and another there, or clover sods built up about the base of a tree—all produce an artistic effect.

Vocal music by choir boys or by a mixed chorus can be made one of the most enjoyable features of the out-of-door wedding.

If the grass is imperfect a green carpet can be unrolled from the door to the place where the vows will be spoken. Two tiny flower girls, with chains of white and pink clovers, leading the wedding party, form with the chains an aisle, through which the bride and her attendants pass. One end of each long clover chain is fastened to the porch rail or to the doorway.

PORTRAIT OF EMPRESS.

The first portrait ever painted of the Dowager Empress Thi An of China is now on exhibition in the Fine Arts Building at the St. Louis Exposition. It was painted by Miss Kate Augusta Carl, an American artist, who has lived much abroad and whose brother, Francis E. Carl, was chosen as vice-commissioner to represent China at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. It was while staying in China with her brother that Miss Carl enjoyed the unusual experience of meeting the dowager-empress at a reception given to the women of the foreign legations. Shortly afterward she was invited to the imperial palace and the arrangements completed for the painting of the portrait. During a number of the sittings the dowager-empress and Miss Carl were alone except for the empress' attendants; at other times Miss Carl sat behind a screen and painted the empress while the latter was engaged in receiving the members of the legations or in other social or administrative duties. The portrait is a full length painting. Later it will be placed in the National Museum of Fine Arts in Washington.

FOR THE ATHLETIC GIRL.

The Peter Thompson waist is the correct thing for the woman fond of sports. It is about to put the shirt-waist out of business, so far as the girl who plays tennis and golf or who sails a boat is concerned and, indeed, it is finding great favor with those who go in for nothing more strenuous than yachting or holding down a rocking chair on a summer hotel verandah.

The newest fad in waists is nothing more or less than a blouse that slips over the head exactly like that worn by the naval reserves, and has a gathering string in the bottom, which ties snugly about the waist. It is built of cotton or linen duck, coarse or fine linen or of a coarse cotton material resembling sail cloth, and a short skirt always goes with it.

A smart sailor collar and band embroidered insignia on shield or sleeve give the finishing touch. This has many advantages over the shirtwaist. It is quickly put on and off stays in place and gives wonderful freedom in swinging a tennis racket or a golf club.

WASHED FACE IN MILK BECAME WRINKLED.

A writer on beauty in one of the society papers urges her readers never to wash the face with soap and water, as being certain destruction to a fine complexion. I cannot indorse this view.

Cleanliness is absolutely necessary to the beauty and delicacy of the texture of the skin. If soap is not liked, at least oatmeal should take its place, and pure or distilled water invariably be used. I once saw the result of only washing the face with milk in a lady who started life with a good complexion, but before she reached middle age had lost all freshness, and showed a faded skin covered with fine wrinkles. Nothing equals the complexion of the country woman who rises early, is much in the open air and bathes freely in cold water. The homely idea of washing in the dew of the morning as an aid to beauty is simply a practical way of expressing this fact.—Lady Greville in London Graphic.

MOTHER HUBBARDS FOR MOTORISTS.

The latest thing in in automobile clothes is a "Mother Hubbard" linen duster. It is of extraordinary length [illegible] "Mother Hubbards."

When the average man who wears one gets out of the car he has to hold it up to prevent walking on it. The ribald small boy has fun with the wearers of these garments, and usually asks if he knows he has his nightgown on.

The nearest thing to the motorist's "Mother Hubbard" in the way of sporting attire is the long white coat worn by the umpire at a cricket match. On any public cricket grounds the scoffing bystanders seldom fail to inquire of the umpire: "What butcher shop do you work in?" an inquiry that conveys an excellent impression of the sportsman's appearance.

IMPERATIVE CALLS.

It is not only courteous, but imperative, where you have acted as bridesmaid or maid of honor, to call upon the mother of the bride shortly after the wedding, calling upon the bride herself soon after her return from the honeymoon.

Those invited to a home wedding or a wedding reception or breakfast must call in due course on the bride's mother—later on the bride herself, says the Philadelphia North American.

It is obligatory to call on your hostess after a dinner, breakfast, musicale or luncheon. The dinner call is of especial importance—for men as well as for women. Whether the invitation be accepted or not, this call must be paid within two weeks' time.

When such invitations as those for dinners or balls are declined and no call follows, the hostess has a right to feel offended and to consider the matter as an indication that her hospitality is not wanted.—Mirror and Farmer.

DECORATION NOTES.

In decoration and furnishing, as well as in dress, green is a dominant note of color. Green has even invaded piano cases, pianos for country cottages having all the woodwork stained a soft "forest green," says the Ladies' World.

A charming piano in forest green had for its decoration designs of stately fleur-de-lis stained in the royal colors of that regal blossom, only in flatted tones of the lilac and purple. This departure is at once artistic and elegant.

Lamps of very decorative character come in metal finished in a gray green bronze effect, touched here and there with splashes of dull purple and old rose. These lamps accord with the general use of green in furnishing and are made for that purpose.

THE BIGGEST OFFER YET —The Banner every week and The Birmingham Daily Ledger every day in the year except Sunday, for only $3.00. 365 papers with all the news of the world and Chilton county. Less than one cent per copy.

It is hoped and expected that Judge T. Scott Sayre will appoint W. H. Foshee to the vacant office of Clerk. It is not that some men who would fight for the privilege of exercising the franchise, virtually disfranchise themselves at the polls by voting for some candidate impossible of election. A vote to be effective must be for one of two prominent candidates, if cast for an outsider it is nothing but a vote thrown away. In the coming election every observant man knows that either a Democrat or Republican will be elected, and there is not the remotest possibility of any of the side candidates being successful. A Populist meeting was held at Birmingham Monday and an electoral ticket for Watson and Tibbles put out, and every vote cast for this ticket is a lost vote. Why throw a vote away?

We had hardly expected, until after the election in November, to have the pleasure of announcing E. B. Deason as Judge of Probate of Chilton county. Judge Deason is so well-known to the people of the county that it is almost unnecessary to say a better selection to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Adams could not be made. A native Chiltonian, known to nearly everyone in the county, he is thoroughly familiar with its requirements, and a clean and honest administration of its affairs may certainly be looked for. His term as Circuit Clerk, together with his experience as justice of the peace, have made him familiar with the duties of a judicial office and in this capacity we feel sure he will give the greatest satisfaction to the people. As an advisor and safe counsellor he may safely be consulted by all, and will cheerfully give all applicants such information at his command in the various duties connected with his office. We congratulate him upon his appointment, and extend our congratulations also to the people of the county in having this son of the people so highly honored.

JUDGE ADAMS RETIRES FROM PUBLIC LIFE.

Following up his determination to retire from public life, which sometime ago was foreshadowed by his resignation of the Democratic nomination for Judge of Probate, Judge S. M. Adams last Saturday tendered his resignation as Judge of Probate, of Chilton county, which was duly accepted and Gov. Cunningham has appointed Hon. E. B. Deason to fill out the unexpired term.

The Public is familiar with the causes that have led Judge Adams to desire the quietutude and repose of private life after many years of political turmoil and unrest, and in whatever he may undertake in the future he carries with him the hearty good wishes of an immense number of friends and admirers throughout the State of Alabama, who recognise in him an upright and conscientious man whose sole motive has been the betterment of the condition of his fellowman.

As a minister of the Baptist church the Rev. S. M. Adams was beloved by his several congregations, and his forceful preaching has aided many a storm swewt sinner to a new and better life.

As a leader of men in the stormy field of politics, Judge Adams has made an impress on the history of the State, and his earnestness of purpose made him a valuable ally and a formidable opponenent. Once convinced that he was in the right, the Judge maintained his position unfalteringly, but when assured that the logic of events necesitated a new state of affairs, or rather, as he puts it, the political changes having turned in the direction he had been advocating he was glad to fall in with the great majority.

As to his future plans we understand the Judge has reached no definite conclusion. He purposes shortly making an extended tour throughout the northeastern States of the Union. Our best wishes are with him in all his undertakings, and we trust he will find that peace and contentment in private life

Editor Banner: I know that some of the people of the county will ask why I resigned the Probates office, and I will state briefly my reasons. First, I have, for a long time, desired to make a trip to the west, and see for myself what I think of that section of our country, and I felt that September and October would be a better season to look at the country than it would be in mid winter, and it would have been the middle of November or the first of December before I could have gotten off if I had remained until my term expired, and by going now I can go on half the cost, so far as railroad expenses are concerned, and knowing that all my arrangements were to be made for another year, I thought it best to begin now. I wish to say further that the duties of the probate office have not been burdensome to me, in the main, the work has been six years of pleasure, I mean the work of the office strictly. It is true no man can take upon himself the responsibility of the office of Judge of Probate without feeling the weight of the trust reposed in him, for without doubt in my mind it is the most important office to the people that a public servant was ever called to fill. The Judge of Probate is in a large sense the guardain of orphan children, their rights in property after their father is laid away, depends greatly upon the Judge of Probate, and he, above all men, ought to be an honest, upright Christian.

And again the economical expenditure of the people's money in the county's government depends largely upon the Judge of Probate, and in this I have endeavored to be as careful with the money of the county as I would have been with my own, and in some things more so. I may have made mistakes, doubtless have, for we all know it is human to err. But I have done my best, and I am gratified that so many people are willing to say that I have made a good officer. And now Mr. Deason takes my place by appointment, and I hope and believe that he will make the people a good and faithful officer. Elijah Deason was born and reared in this county and his experience has been much like my own, he has stood loyally by his widowed mother, and to her has been wholesome and obedient son, and he has battled with all the disadvantages that a poor boy is subject to, and through it all, he has maintained his honor, and the people of this county can do no better than to give this worthy young man the office of Judge of Probate of his native county. Respectfully,

S. M. Adams.

P. S. When I took charge of the probate's office the county had on hand $543.03; I go out with $4,658 55 in the treasury, and not an outstanding claim against the county.

THE GREAT HIGHWAY.

Automobiles and the New York-Chicago Road.

The owners of racing automobiles have thought that machine, which might be useful, into such disrepute that it is pleasant to find one of them engaged in useful public service. Colonel Dickinson of Springfield, Mass., left recently on an automobile trip to Chicago which promises to strengthen the movement for good roads, says the Brooklyn Eagle. He is treasurer of the New York and Chicago Road association, which hopes to have a line of smooth, hard highways connecting the two cities. The distance is some 850 miles, of which only 320 miles are of good macadam. The association, which numbers some 2,000 members, will ask the next legislature to bond the state of New York to build a good state highway, and Mr. Dickinson seems confident of state help in Ohio. Indiana he regards as the enemy's country.

There is no question that smooth, hard highways would be of immense benefit to farmers and not be merely a convenience for the owners of automobiles and bicycles. It has been shown over and over again that the farmer could draw four times as heavy loads to market with the same span of horses over a properly made road as over the average roads through even, level country. The roads ought to be made and kept in repair from local taxation by the towns and counties through which they run. But co-operation between such neighboring divisions in the matter is more difficult to secure than uniform divorce laws among the states or uniform trust legislation. One long, fine road as an object lesson in the communities.

If the automobile can be used to promote interest in that movement, it is a good thing, but farmers are not going to vote taxes for roads which would be practically speed courses for these machine wagons and on which it would be dangerous to drive their family carryalls. Colonel Dickinson and his association should take the racers of their favorite machine in hand. If they could suppress those public nuisances, their good road movement would thrive better.

A TRUTHFUL INDIAN.

He Didn't Get Tired Like the Rest, For a Very Good Reason.

Clement Scott, the English dramatic critic, took a profound interest in the American Indian. He had at his tongue's tip a hundred incidents wherewith to illustrate odd phases of the Indian's character.

"There was a farmer in the west who was hard put to it for help upon his farm. Indians were plentiful in the neighborhood, but they were poor workmen. Always tired, they would put down the hoe or rake as soon as the master's back was turned, and, selecting a cool spot, they would lie down on the grass and sleep the day away.

"But one morning a very tall, robust Indian asked the farmer to give him work.

"'No,' said the white man, 'you will get tired. You Indians are always getting tired.'

"'Oh, no,' said the other. 'This Injun never get tired. This Injun not like the rest.'

"'Well, I'll try you,' said the farmer, and he engaged the man. He put him to work in a wheatfield; then he went away for an hour or two. When he returned he found the Indian asleep under a tree.

"'Ugh,' said the other, yawning, 'this Injun don't. But if he not lie down often he would get tired just the same as the rest.'"

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Aug. 18, 1904

One of the "funny" features of this campaign in the National capital is the evident desire of the leading Republicans to keep President Roosevelt and his record in the background; to efface him and his record absolutely.

When the average Republican here meets his Democratic friend and proceeds to a discussion of the political situation, he gleefully says to the Democrat: "You have no issue; where and what is your issue?" When the Democrat, with a smile, remarks that we will make all other issues subordinate and a secondary consideration to Roosevelt and his record, the Republican immediately throws his hands up and practically says: "For heaven's sake don't do that!" it simply accentuates the importance to the Democracy of Roosevelt as a campaign issue.

When every effort is being made by Republican leaders to compel Roosevelt to hide behind his former self; when the ex Secretary, chairman of the Republican National committee announces that the President will make no speeches in this campaign, it means that he will be given no opportunities to make a blunder; it means that he will try self-effacement as an effort to overcome his record for rant, strenuosity, display, military spirit, hypocricy and moral cowardice.

Roosevelt has fooled a whole lot of people. If Democrats, everywhere, will only instruct the people who have been fooled on the facts of his record, they will be fooled no longer.

Speaking of the St. Louis World's Fair, a prominent Government official said to me:

"The Government exhibition at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is admitted by all who have seen it and previous Government exhibits at other expositions to be the most complete in every respect and the most interessing to the American people that our Government has ever made. It illustrates in a practical way the functions of the Government as well as the power of the nation in times of war and peace. All of our people and especially the rising generation are interested in the administrative features of the Government. Never has there been an opportunity to study this branch of our governmental affairs, except by visiting the Capital of the Nation that the Government exhibit here affords. For the first time in the history of the Treasury Department displays at St. Louis a Government mint in active operation. Our people are handling money every day, but 99 per cent. are wholly ignorant of the process by which the Government supplies the coin passing through their hands constantly. A visit to the Government exhibit when the mint is in operation will give anyone a complete idea of how money is made and the various processes, from the crucible in which the pig ore is melted to the machine that finally imprints upon the round disk the inscriptions and figures and dates, indicating the authority of the Government that issues it and making it a legal tender. In the Agricultural Department of the Government exhibit will be found a miniature farm in active operation, and the various divisions of the Agricultural Department exhibit in active operation showing what the Department is doing for the agriculturist of the land. For the first time the Government at St. Louis makes a complete exhibit of the Postal Service of the United States. The millions of people who are visiting the Government exhibit see there a complete and perfect model of the Capitol Building at Washington, the most beautiful and imposing structure of the kind in the world. The Navy Department there exhibits a battleship and many other interesting and instructive features of the naval service; while the War Department exhibit is equally as interesting and instructive.

To interest and benefit to be derived by a visit to the Government building at St. Louis is manifest by the fact that the building is crowded from the time it opens in the morning until it closes in the evening.

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew to wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co. Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Falakto.

Prof. H. A. Harris' school at Maple Springs came to a close, the 19th. It was a ten month's session. The patrons of the school and a few visitors met there to witness the closing exercises. Classes in the different branches of study were examined and the progress made for the last ten months show that both teacher and students have been at work. A nice little program was prepared and carried out and at noon dinner was spread, the pupils remaining in the school room. There they were formed into double line with the flag of the country borne by little Miss Sallie Wilson. Altogether it was an enjoyable day. But amid all there was a vein of sadness which the last day of school always muses. We wish to say a few words in behalf of Prof. Harris; he has taught in our community and has given satisfaction. He is among the best of teachers.

TORNADO AT ST. LOUIS

Kills Three Persons, Injures Many and Destroys Much Property.

IT CAME WITHOUT WARNING

Crossed the Mississippi River and Injured Illinois Points and Shipping.

A tornado of extreme fury swept down upon the residence portion of North St. Louis Friday, resulting in the death of two persons, injury to probably fifty and damage to property estimated at $100,000.

A shower passed over St. Louis early in the day, but there had been no rain in North St. Louis. The sky had cleared and the atmosphere had become very murky and hot when citizens in North St. Louis noticed a dark cloud approaching from the southwest.

Suddenly, without the slightest premonition, an arm seemed to shoot to the ground like a gigantic cable, twisting and turning. The end touched the ground at Nineteenth and Angelrodt streets, and with incredible swiftness and force swept east along Angelrodt for ten blocks, then turned north and swept three blocks along Broadway, when it jumped eight blocks northeast to the foot of Breman street and the river, where considerable property along the river front was destroyed.

The tornado then jumped to about the middle of the river and encountered a ferry boat, which was turned and tossed about, but was not sunk.

Leaving the ferry the capricious tornado once more jumped and struck the Illinois shore near Madison, where it demolished several dwellings, the Leiderkrantz hall and blew down a portion of the Madison Cooper works, killing John Ellington. Severe damage was done also to the buildings in Venice and Granite City, which adjoin Madison, and a number of persons were injured.

The width of the tornado was about a block and a half and houses were unroofed, window panes were generally demolished, several large manufactories partially demolished and the streets littered high with debris.

A Broadway car was suddenly buried under six telegraph poles, which crashed into the top and wrecked the car. The passengers had a remarkable escape from injury and only the motorman received slight bruises.

Probably the heaviest loss suffered by a single concern was the destruction accomplished at the Neidringhaus rolling mill. The plant covers two squares. The big smokestack was blown down and half the plant was demolished, entailing damage estimated at $25,000. Six employes were injured in this place.

A concert was in progress at Festival hall at the exposition grounds during the heavy thunder storm, when suddenly there was a flash of lightning and immediately all the lights went out. A panic was only prevented by a woman's voice taking up the strains of "America" and others joining in.

In the Chinese village on the Pike 360 Chinamen, just arrived, were being watched over by the immigration officers temporarily when the storm struck. The celestials became panic-stricken, and the officers were forced to draw revolvers to subdue the excitement. Lightning struck near by and one Chinaman was severely shocked, while another jumped from the roof of the building and broke his arm.

The tornado that swept across the river at Venice killed one person, injured ten others and caused considerable damage to property. The tornado was of short duration, but was remarkably destructive in force.

The tornado was seen jumping across the river, but almost before a word of alarm could be given it swept into Illinois north of Venice, turned, and the next moment was plowing its way through the streets.

A terrific thunder storm broke over St. Louis at night and rain fell in torrents, accompanied by a heavy wind. The weather bureau reported that .67 of an inch of rain fell within ten minutes and the velocity of the wind was 52 miles an hour.

A report from Paris states that Russian revolutionaries declare that the Czarina's child was a girl, not a boy, and that the son of a peasant was substituted. The peasant woman, they say, was smuggled into the royal palace a few days before the Czarina's accouchment was expected. The czarina' child, a girl, was given to the peasant woman and the peasant's child, a boy, was placed in the royal cradle.

SEEKS $3,000,000 DAMAGES.

George Rice Alleges That Standard Oil Company Ruined His Business.

George Rice, of Marietta, O., commenced suit in the United States circuit court for $3,000,000 damages against the Standard Oil company for the alleged ruining of his oil business by the defendant company.

Rice charges that the Standard Oil company compelled him to charge his customers exorbitant freight rates; that the company opened grocery stores to break down his competition, and in other ways succeeded in taking away from him 4,000 customers, an oil refining plant worth $750,000 and a business worth $50,000 a year.

This suit is brought under the interstate commerce act of 1890, and is similar in character to one entered in the court of chancery of New Jersey by Rice in which he seeks to compel the revocation of the company's charter under the laws of New Jersey. While the damages claimed are $3,000,000, the actual amount is $1,000,000.

MOB KILLS NEGRO

Who Had Shot the Town Marshal of Cordova.

City Marshal J. C. McNelson, of Cordova, while attempting an arrest was shot and almost instantly killed by Ed Avery, a negro. The negro was captured and placed in the city jail and a mob overpowered the city officers by breaking down the doors of the jail, secured the prisoner and killed him with bricks and pistols.

Mr. McNelson had been on the police force scarcely two months. He was reared at Cordova and was well known and liked by the entire community.

Town Marshal McNelson went to the house where the negro lived to collect 25 cents due the town of Cordova by the negro, and the negro shut the door in the marshal's face, whereupon he knocked again for admittance. He was answered by the negro opening the door and shooting him with a pistol.

TESTIMONY COMMENCED

The hearing of testimony in the Louisiana-Mississippi boundary dispute commenced Thursday. Louisiana is represented by Mr. Zacharie and others, while Mississippi is represented by Attorney General William Williams and ex-Attorney General Monroe McClurg. It is not likely that any more hearing of testimony in this case, which is one of the greatest ever launched in Mississippi and involves vast sums of money, will be held at Jackson, but there will be several more meetings yet, the next one taking place in Louisiana to last for two or three weeks.

Brighton's Progress.

Preparations are being made to begin work on the new water works system at Brighton. Arrangements will also be perfected in a few days with the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power company to furnish the town with electric light.

The new waterworks company was organized with a stock of $10,000, all of which is composed of home capital. Brighton was incorporated about three years ago and since that time the population has grown until it numbers over 1500.

The Brighton water works company will get its water from Parker Springs, an unusually bold spring near the city. The elevation is higher than most of the town and a fine pressure can be gotten without going to very much expense.

Unrestricted Passports.

The United States government has again formally proposed to Russia the opening of negotiations for the unrestricted recognition of American passports. In accordance with the law of the empire, only foreign Jews, of specified classes—merchants having business connection in the country, etc.—are allowed to enter Russia, but quite a liberal policy has been pursued in making exceptions to the rule where legitimate reasons therefor are given. The exceptions, however, are seldom made in the cases of Russian Jews, who have been naturalized abroad. The inhibition is not against the United States alone, but extends to the Jews of every country.

Populists Notified.

Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, the populist leader, and Thomas E. Tibbetts, of Nebraska, the candidate for vice president, were formally notified of their nomination Thursday night at Cooper Union.

Mr. Watson opened with the statement that there was never a time when the plain people of America were more dissatisfied with the conditions which prevail in this republic.

After a formal notice that he would soon prepare a formal letter of acceptance, Mr. Watson gave up a great portion of his address to a discussion of the democratic and republican platforms and the candidacy of Judge Parker.

Soldiers Killed.

Two soldiers, members of the military of Durham, N. C., were instantly killed while returning from the national guard encampment near Moorehead City.

Their heads struck the covered bridge at Stoney creek. The bodies did not fall from the train.

The discovery of the accident was made by the dripping of blood past the windows.

FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR.

The first detailed news of the general assault on Port Arthur indicates that a tremendous conflict is raging and that victory is hanging in the balance.

The Japanese have swept the Russians from Pigeon Bay and captured the northernmost fort of the western line of inner defenses at Port Arthur. The Russian artillery prevents the Japanese occupying the fort on Pigeon Bay.

The belief is increasing that the Japanese do not intend to make a direct attack on General Kuropatkin's position at Liao Yang. The movements of the Japanese and other information indicate that they will try to force an engagement in the vicinity of Mukden.

Shanghai was thrown into excitement by the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat. She passed Woo Song at full speed and started up the river for Shanghai. The United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey slipped her cable and followed the Japanese destroyer.

The Japanese boat was cleared for action. She anchored off the Cosmopolitan dock, where the Russian cruiser Askold is undergoing repairs. The Chauncey came to anchor practically between the dock and the Japanese destroyer.

The dock where the Askold lies is owned by British interests. On one side of this dock is German and Dutch property and on the other side American property. There are eight American, one German, two British and four French warships here.

The intervention of the American squadron at Shanghai, in the Japanese operations against the Russian cruiser Askold, created considerable surprise in official and diplomatic circles in London.

An official said: If the report is not untrue the American officer must have had good reason for his action, such as the protection of the American interests, which would have been endangered by flying shells. Whatever reason actuated the American commander, if he really did as reported, it is certain that no complications will follow.

An official dispatch from Vladivostock shows that every officer on the Rossia and Cromobol was either killed or wounded. Rear Admiral Jessen narrowly escaped the fate of Admiral Withoft. He was standing on the bridge of the Rossia when it was wrecked by a shell. The two Russian cruisers were literally riddled, their guns and engines being partly dismantled. The escape of the Russian vessels from Admiral Kamimura's four armored cruisers is regarded as a wonnerful piece of luck. It is presumed that the pursuers of the Russian ships did not dare go far north, fearing that some of the vessels of the Port Arthur squadron would break through the straits of Korea.

A dispatch to the Japanese legation from Tokio announces that a reply was received from the commander of the Russian forces at Port Arthur refusing either to surrender to the besieging force of Japanese or to send out the non-combatants.

William Martin, United States consul at Nankin, China, is quoted to the effect that immense bodies of Chinese troops are now drilling in the central portion of the kingdom under the direction of Japanese officers well versed in the art of modern warfare. The soldiers have been supplied with the mauser type of rifles and the most up-to-date machine guns obtainable are now being purchased for their use.

Referring to the issue of a new loan in the form of state notes amounting to $50,000,000, the realization of which it says is already provided for, a Russian paper points out that the official return issued May 31st showed that upward of $150,000,000 was available for military purposes at the beginning of the war. Up to August 16th the military expenditure had absorbed only $128,725,500, and therefore the money obtained by the recent loan of $160,000,000, taken up by France, is not yet touched.

A Mississippi jury gave judgment for $30 against a railroad for killing a dog.

The big revival which has been in progress at the McTyeire Memorial church in West Gadsden the past two weeks closed Saturday night. There were thirty new members added that night and several by letter. The meeting was conducted by the Rev. W. W. Scott and the Rev. W. R. Howell.

The Alabama Great Southern has reached no definite decision with reference to the proposed three-mile

COUNTERFEITERS CAPTURED.

$30,000 in Bad Bills Recovered, Engraver and the Plates.

As a result of nearly two months work by the secret service department, four men were arrested at Atlanta charged with making and circulating counterfeit ten dollar bills of the "Buffalo" pattern; the plates from which the bills were printed were surrendered and about $20,000 of the bills were recovered.

The men under arrest are Oscar L. McMichal, a pressman in the local establishment of the La Hatte Printing Company; Clarence W. Rebb, a printer employed by the same firm; J. N. Little, an artisan, and P. S. Coffey. There is still one man to be arrested and it is believed he lives in St. Louis.

The spurious bills were printed at night in the La Hatte establishment, although the proprietor knew nothing of it until he was informed by the officers. He gave material assistance in preventing the men from escaping. Rebb confessed his part and his confession led to the arrest of the others.

From him it was learned where the money that had not been passed was to be found. The bills it is reported are fairly good, sufficently so to have been accepted by a number business houses, including one bank in this city. All the men were brought together and admitted their guilt. The inspector in a statement said that Little and Coffey met an engraver who is believed to have lived here, but who has moved to St. Louis. From him they bought the plates for $500, each paying one-half. Four plates were used, one for the front of the bill, one for the back, one for printing the numbers and the fourth for printing the seal.

CLAIMS HE ROBBED LOOMIS.

English Police Have a Prisoner, But His Story is Not Believed.

A man giving the name of Franz Schneider surrendered himself to the Birmingham police accusing himself of stealing papers "from a person about Hampton, believed to be F. Kent Loomis."

The man's story is being investigated by the police, but the latter attach no credence thereto, it being pointed out that Mr. Loomis is not believed to have reached Southampton, and that no papers are reported to be missing.

The alleged confession, which is a vague account of how he and two other foreigners were hired by a man speaking with a Russian accent to steal important papers from a passenger arriving at Southampton on a German liner, Schneider says they waited at the pier and when the passenger reached the gang plank no was pointed out by their employer.

Schneider, according to one statement, abstracted from his pocket a large envelope containing papers bearing the seal of the United States government.

He gave the police the name of a man who is alleged to have employed him to secure the papers and also the names of two others said to be concerned in the theft. He now asserts that this employer was a Russian and says that after the robbery all four slept in a ware house, before leaving which he and his two associates received $25 each.

Floods in Arizona.

Seven lives at least were lost in the flood that swept through the town of Globe, Ariz., and surrounding country. The Gila Valley, Globe and Northern railroad tracks were washed out for a distance of three-quarters of a mile. Telegraphic communication with Globe is interrupted.

New Railroad.

The carter of the Delta Southern Railroad company, a new corporation recently organized in Mississippi, has been favorably passed on by Attorney General Williams and is now filed in the governor's office awaiting his approval. This railroad will do business only in Mississippi, extending through the counties of Washington, Bolivar, Sharkey and Yazoo. The applicants ask five years for its completion, and the road will begin at Elizabeth in Washington county, run north to Kuhns in Bolivar county, and then in a southerly direction to its terminal at Campbellville in Yazoo county. Capital stock $50,000.

Since the Birmingham, Selma and Northern railroad was acquired by the Louisville and Nashville, engineers have again gone over the route surveyed two years ago for the extension to Meridian.

Nothing has been done toward selecting successor to Hon. Harry J. Gilliam, deceased, nominee of the democrats for chancellor of the northeastern chancery division, who died suddenly at Lexander City.

DEATH AND DAMAGE.

Cyclone Strikes Minnesota's Twin Cities. Fifteen Persons Killed.

GREATEST LOSS IN THEATERS

Total Property Damage Estimated at $3,000,000—Path Eight Miles Long.

Five reported dead, twenty injured and property loss estimated to reach $2,000,000 are the results of a fierce tornado which swept down on St. Paul, Minn., about 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The Tivolo theater was demolished, the Empire theatre razed, the high bridge, an immense steel structure crossing the Mississippi river at a height of 200 feet was almost totally destroyed and 244 buildings are more or less damaged.

A report at midnight is that the House of Good Shepherd, a Catholic institution, was wrecked and twenty-five injured. All communication with outlying districts is cut off and it is impossible to say whether or not the damage there has been as great as that done in the city.

The property damaged at Minneapolis is said to have been nearly as great as at St. Paul. The storm was of short duration lasting not more than fifteen minutes.

The wind according to the government observer blew thirty miles an hour coming from the southwest. Buildings were unroofed and blown in, the interiors being flooded by the rain which came in great waves along with the wind. Electric wires were prostrated and many persons injured by contact with the current from electric light and trolley wires.

An excursion steamer towing a barge on the river below St. Paul is reported to have been wrecked. Relief parties in steam launches have been dispatched to the rescue.

Wm. Donaldson & Co., big department store in Minneapolis was badly damaged by the storm. The loss is said to be $300,000. Later reports from Minneapolis are to the effect that no one was killed but many were injured.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha round house building collapsed. Five engines and a steam wrecker were damaged. Numerous cars were blown from the track. Damage estimated at $20,000.

LATER—Fifteen people were killed in the fierce tornado which overwhelmed the twin cities and which wrought devastation in other parts of the state. The aggregate property loss is placed at $3,000,000. Of this St. Paul suffered to the extent of about $1,000,000. Minneapolis' damage estimated at $1,500,000, while in the outside districts it is feared that $500,000 will not cover the damage.

Both the Tivoli concert hall and Empire theater were fairly crowded with men watching the performance. Both theaters stood on the edge of the bluff overlooking the river, with the sides of the buildings open, and were wrecked. The full force of the tornado struck them.

DYNAMITE EXPLODED.

Two Persons Killed and Three Injured by Shock of Explosion.

Two persons were killed and three injured, two perhaps fatally at Minden, Mo., by the explosion of fifteen cases of dynamite piled on the Missouri Pacific depot platform being struck by a freight engine. The depot was completely demolished.

The engineer, fireman, station agent and his wife were either killed or fatally injured.

The dynamite was consigned to a mining company. It had been unloaded carelessly and had been on the platform for two hours when a southbound freight train struck a case that projected over the tracks. A terrific explosion followed. The depot was wrecked and a hole made in the ground large enough to bury a box car while the engine was dismantled and the track torn up for a distance of 200 feet.

Desperate Criminals Escape.

Two desperate convicts, Pearl and Horace Wallace escaped from Rankin convict farm, taking guns with them. They were sent up from Franklin county for twenty years and life, respectively for murder. A reward of $200 has been offered for their capture and sergeants with dogs are pursuing them through Pearl river swamp.

After a severe engagement with the projected cruisers Chitose and Tsushima the Russian cruiser Novik has been vanquished. The fight occurred Sunday, but the details are not yet known.

Line Completed.

The work of constructing the Northern Alabama railroad, which is really a part of the Louisville and Nashville and built at its expense, is now completed. The main line extends from Boyles westward to the Warrior river, a distance of thirty-five miles and it has spur tracks aggregating fifteen miles.

This line was built at a cost of about $1,000,000.

GRADE CROSSING FATALITY.

Four Killed and Twenty-three Injured. Brakes Failed to Work.

Four people were killed, another fatally hurt, and twenty-three others injured in a collision between an express train and a train of three trolley cars in Chicago. The train, according to some witnesses of the accident, was running at a high rate of speed. Others said the train was due to clare that it was not going over twenty miles an hour.

The trolley train approached the crossing at a rapid rate of speed just as the train came around a sharp curve to the west of the crossing.

Ryan put on the brakes with all his strength in the effort to stop the car, but the brakes refused to work, and with undiminished speed the motor car ran upon the track at the same time that the locomotive came up. The car struck the train between the engine and tender, the motor car was torn to splinters, the car immediately behind it was overturned, smashed nearly to pieces and dragged along the track for 100 feet. The third car was not dragged from the tracks.

Motorman Ryan remained at his post to the last and was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured.

WILL BUILD LINK.

Southern to Complete Line Between Bessemer and Mobile Junction.

The engineers of the Southern railway are making preparations to begin active operations on the road to run from Mobile Junction to Bessemer. The right of way has been secured with the exception of two short tracts of land. The route has already been surveyed and the maps completed. The company intends to commence on the road in the near future and rush the work until it is completed. The road will not be hard to build, as it passes over almost level ground, leaving very little grading to be done. When this is finished the Southern will have its own tracks all the way into Birmingham from Mobile. They have been using the Alabama Great Southern track since the Three B division of the Southern was built from Mobile Junction into Birmingham.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Fatility in Mississippi Attributed to a Feud.

A special from Laurel, Miss., says that while W. C. Windham, E. Windham and J. T. Blakley were going home from Tallahala Swamp, about two miles from Bay Springs, Miss., they were fired upon by an assassin from ambush, and W. C. Windham was shot in the breast by a Winchester rifle bullet.

His horse ran about eighty yards when Windham fell dead. The shooting is believed to be a result of the Ainsworth-Windham feud in Smith county. Sloan Ainsworth having recently been killed by one of the Windhams. There is no clue to the assassin.

From Statesboro, Ga.

Captain R. M. Hitch, of Savannah, who was in command of the troops at Statesboro, will demand, so it is reported, a court of inquiry of his conduct, and that of his soldiers.

Captain Hitch in his official report alleged that Sheriff Kenrick and his deputies betrayed all his plans to the mob. The sheriff has entered a most emphatic denial of every charge, and in effect charges the military with neglect of duty. The matter is in a state of rest until the return of Governor Terrell from St. Louis.

BOOKS ARE RIGHT.

But Money is Due the State for Convict Hire.

The books and accounts of the state convict department have been examined by Examiner of Public Accounts George F. Sedberry, and reported correct in all particulars. The examiner found, however, that some of the lessees of the convicts of the state had not been prompt in meeting their indebtedness to the state.

The convict department, he says, in using every diligent effort to secure a complete settlement. The largest debtor to the state is the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, which owes the state $3,633.40.

Some of the items in the account are in dispute between the board of inspectors and the Sloss company people. These differences are now being considered by the board and an early adjustment of the matter is hoped for.

There is a movement on foot at Corona to make a new county, taking in part of Fayette, Walker and Tuscaloosa.

Coal mines in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma Territory are closed because of too much rain.

...While [illegible] men are ...brainy, and while there is a passion for ...new ideas, but our most urgent necessity ...is not of ideas but of power. What we ...need most of all is not schooling but bap... ...and that is to come through faith.

What is this faith that is to give us the supreme victory and insure our safety? It is at this distinct point that we begin to learn the real meaning and purpose of faith. Every little while I am tempted by one and another that he would like to have faith in this particular matter in regard to the Bible, or in regard to Christ in the future life as though if his mind could only be brought intellectually to consent to it, the consummation would be reached and a great result achieved. Being prepared to assent to this or that particular statement in regard to Christ, for example, is a very distinct thing from faith. Faith is personal attitude, personal relationship. Faith of such a personal yielding of ourselves to another as brings us into living contact with that other and so makes us recipient of what it has in that other to confer. The child becomes like his father by faith in his father, because his faith is that inward surrender that makes him susceptible to every impression that goes forth from his father. A child's faith toward his mother is not faith that what his mother says is true; it is faith in his mother, the hiding of himself in the one life that enwraps them both, so that he lives in the sweep of her inspiration and grows up toward manhood by the appropriation of personal vigor, wisdom and sweetness hourly made over him. And that is cast in the same mold as Gospel faith, which is as a cord by which the living Christ holds the believer to Himself. Faith is not a condition wherein we hold to something or somebody, as that in which we are held by something or somebody. It is not holding a doctrine, but being held by a person. "I know whom I have believed." The iron flings sticks to the magnet, not because they try so hard to stick, but because they are mastered by the magnet.

Faith, then, has for its very essence a personal self commitment, one ounce of which is worth a whole ton of intellectual affirmation. It is this sense of being held by God that makes a man safe and secure. I do not know how the grace of God can take a man like Saul of Tarsus and make him Paul the Apostle; but no man will question his knowledge when he says: "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." That is exactly what John B. Gough cried as he went like a flaming torch blazing the way for a multitude of hopeless drunkards. The hope, and the only hope, for us all is in the grace of God. If I were to strike a tuning fork on this desk and hold it to my ear not one in this room could hear the sound thereof, but I could hear it and tune my violin. Strike it again and instead of holding it to my ear, set it upon this desk. Instantly the sound would be heard everywhere. But what do you hear? Not the tuning fork, for the tuning fork makes no louder sound the second time than it did the first. What do you hear? You hear this hard wood desk, which has no music in itself, but just as soon as it comes in contact with a musical instrument it itself becomes musical and delights every one that has music in his soul.

The individual life may be insignificant alone by itself; it may come from a good family or a bad; it may have great force or little; it may have choice furnishings or not; but the safety and security of all will depend upon the personal self surrender to the Son of God, who alone has the power to make them Sons of God, who are born not of a family or of force or of furnishings, but of faith.

Power of an Ideal.

A beautiful statue once stood in the market place of an Italian city. It was the statue of a Greek slave girl. It represented the slave as tidy, well dressed and handsome. A ragged unkempt, forlorn street child, coming across the statue in her play, stopped and gazed at it in admiration. She was entranced and captivated by it. She gazed long and admiringly. Moved by a sudden impulse, she went home and washed her face and combed her hair. Another day she stopped again before the same statue and admired it, and received new inspiration. Next day her tattered clothes were washed and mended. Each time she looked at the statue she found something in its beauties until she was a transformed child.—Treasury of Religious Thought.

Wanted: "A Positive Gospel."

It is the preacher of positive faith and conviction who most deeply impresses a congregation and who has the greatest staying power among a people. Neutrality of belief and statement does not commend him to the public. A firm grip of truth makes him strong and vigorous in preaching and influential in and persuasive in spirit and activity. The more clear cut he is in his views of Bible doctrine and practice, the more ready are choice and intelligent souls to accept him as their religious guide, and the greater their combined influence in the community in which it is centered. A larger enthusiasm is quickened among its adherents, and a growing increase in the number of recruits is sure to follow his faithful and zealous ministry.—The Presbyterian.

The First Result of Effort.

Every real and searching effort of self-improvement is of itself a lesson of profound humility. For we cannot move a step without learning and feeling the waywardness, the weakness, the vacillation of our movements or without desiring to be set upon the Rock that is higher than ourselves.—William Ewart Gladstone.

Exalt Our Lives.

We reduce life to the pettiness of our daily living; we should exalt our living to the grandeur of life.—Phillips Brooks.

How One Man's Terrible Sufferings Have Ended Many a Person. How Doan's Cured Him.

A. C. SPRAGUE.

A. C. Sprague, street duties of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse, and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

IN THE BARREN LANDS.

Casper Whitney's Experiences in an Inhospitable Region.

The Barren Lands, called by the Indians "Land of Little Sticks," are absolutely devoid, not only of trees, but even of brush, except for some stunted bushes to be found in occasional spots near the water's edge. These lands lie in British Columbia, near the Great Slave Lake. Mr. Casper Whitney, in describing a hunting trip through this region, in "Musk-Ox, Bison, Sheep and Goat," says that a venture into this north country, except in summer, means a struggle with both cold and famine. Yet the lack of food was not so hard to bear as the wind, and camping was a continual discomfort.

"One of the first lessons I learned," writes Mr. Whitney, "was to keep my face free from covering, and also as clean shaven as possible under such circumstances. It makes me smile now to remember the elaborate hood arrangement which was knitted for me in Canada, and which then seemed to me one of the most important articles of my equipment. It covered the entire head, ears and neck, with openings only for the eyes and mouth, and in town I had viewed it as a great find, but I threw it away before I got within a thousand miles of the Barren Grounds.

"The reason is obvious. My breath turned the front of the hood into a sheet of ice before I had run three miles; and as there was no fire in the Barren Grounds to thaw it, of course it was an impossible thing to wear in that region. After other experiments, I found the simplest and most comfortable headgear to be my own long hair, which hung even with my jaw, bound about just above the ears with a handkerchief, and the open hood of my caribou skin capote drawn forward over all.

"The most trying hour in the twenty-four was at the camping time in the afternoon. The fire furnished no warmth; it was not built for that purpose; it was simply to boil the tea, and perhaps an idea of its size can be given by saying that by the time the snow in the kettle had melted into water and the water begun to boil the fire was exhausted.

"Having drunk the tea, we rolled up in our robes, lying side by side round the tepee, with feet toward the fire and head against the sledge, knees into the back of the man next to you, and with your snowshoes under your head, away from the dogs that would eat the lacing.

"Sleep never came until the dogs had finished fighting over us, for as soon as we were rolled into our robes the dogs poured into the tepee. There were twenty-eight dogs, and the lodge was about seven feet in diameter at its base. No hour in the day or night was more miserable than this, when these half-starved brutes fought over and on top of us before they finally settled down upon us.

"In extremely cold weather a dog curled up at your feet or back is not unpleasant; but to have one lying on your head, another on your shoulders or hips, or perhaps a third on your feet, and you lying on your side on rock, uneven ground, is not a happy experience."

The cost of the coronation of King Edward VII. establishes a record for modern times. It was considered until recently a lordly and magnificent thing for the subjects of George IV. to spend $605,000. William IV. and Queen Adelaide were content with a modest $250,000. It is not easy to understand in what King Edwards $1,795,000 was sunk.

Last year Oscar Zeller, of Zosse, started on foot from Berlin for a trip around the world. His plan was to go via Mukden, Vladivostock and Japan to America. The war frustrated that plan, and he has now started from Bering straits, along the northernmost Siberian telegraph line. His success is considered very doubtful.

The warm wave over the west has spread all over the country between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains and also over the southern states. It was particularly severe in South Dakota, where maximum temperatures reached 100 degrees. In the cotton belt the average maximum was 90 degrees and above, except in the Atlanta district, where it was not so warm. The maximum at Birmingham was 90 degrees.

When a Japanese girl marries she is taught that she is to reverence and obey her husband's relatives, his mother and father, as she has reverenced and obeyed her own parents. She must be able to cook rice properly, and her being unable to do so is considered not in the light of mere ignorance, but almost as a mortal sin. A young wife ignorant of the proper fulfilling of this domestic duty would very likely be returned to her parents' home.

One of the largest and most noticeable business signs seen anywhere is that of the National Casket Co. on their mammoth new factory at Nashville, Tenn., made on a wire frame with aluminum letters six feet high and one hundred feet long, which can be read from a long distance by day, and when reproduced in electric lights, can be read even further at night. This is the concern that is called on to furnish Caskets for the most prominent people everywhere, including among its recent orders, Caskets for Presidents William McKinley, Benjamin Harrison and the late lamented Gen. John B. Gordon, and yet whose goods can be had through the smallest undertaker in every town. From the fact that they are called on to furnish Caskets for the best citizens everywhere, there must be some merit in their claim that their goods are the best, and the South should be proud to have a branch of such a high class establishment within her borders.

Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes) and ovaritis, which are most distressing and painful ailments, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—Miss Irene Hapgood, 1021 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.

"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

Barnum & Bailey's Marvelous ... vation, the Missing Link of ... Imagination and Realism—The Only Unique Feature in the ... Shows ... Inexhaustible ...

... aquatic army surround... ... boat's manometer indicates our depth now ... fathoms below the surface—and our captain, a careful, brave and experienced submarine skipper, skillfully manipulating the electric switchboard at which he stands—always and ever alert to the dangers of the deep—stops our downward course and points his vessel straight ahead; the pressure of an electric button is simultaneous with a convulsive throb as the mighty engine responds, the giant propeller churns the sea into a foaming fury and with a leap and bound, as of a frightened thing of life, we plunge forward through the transparent watery mass to explore the ... known depths.

The denizens of the sea startled into ... activity they have seldom known, so engross our attention, the approach of a mammoth narwhale or unicorn of the sea is quite unnoticed until almost upon us. The at first startled passengers are quickly reassured by the captain. There is no danger; our armament has been well looked to in the emergency of attack, but as the monster fish playfully circles around us, strangely familiar and pleasant sounds fall upon our ears; presently the massive jaws of our friendly inclined escort open and reveal a semi-earthly being, contentedly seated on its monster green tongue, and in a fine basso voice is singing the lay of the deep blue sea; the torpedo-like velocity of ... craft, however, soon leaves the serenader, far in our wake, the echoes of this presumably Jonah's voice, have hardly died away, when far ahead and immediately in our course is seen the mermaid's play-ground, various kinds of isia, clusters of pure tuft coral, and prickly fungi form a beautiful garden on the ocean's bed; a shoal of mermaids appear to our now thoroughly delighted visions, the delicately tinted gold and silver be-scaled bodies gracefully bounding over, under and around the boat, as if imbued with earthly vanity, they would rival each other's brightness.

With never-ending and tireless energy, our great speed undiminished, we rush madly on; our goal is soon at hand; the pumps are set in motion—the water drawn from the tanks. Our now buoyant vessel speedily finds the surface, and the thrilling subterranean passage has ended. Disembarking, we are guided to the base of Eiffel Tower; immense elevators take us to its summit, where a massive airship restlessly tugging at its mooring awaits to carry us back over land and sea. All aboard! Cast anchor; and the bird-like wings moving up and down, the flight through space has commenced. Paris soon fades from view as with the speed of light we rush along the pathless wastes; meteors, comets, beasts of the air, and lightning storms are encountered, but undismayed is the captain of this weird craft, and emerging from a bank of clouds, our astonished and bewildered senses are now completely dazed at the vision that greets our eyes—the World's Fair is spread out immediately below us; gently the airship descends and discharges her precious cargo of mystified and delighted passengers at the Pike landing dock, we have enjoyed a marvelous experience and completed our trip, under and over the sea.

ORIGIN OF "KICKERS."

Supposed to Come From an Occupation in Cornish Mines.

"I believe that the origin of the expressive bit of slang 'kickers' may be found in the very lowest form of occupation any member of the human race follows," W. M. Robinson states.

"Between Wormsley's and St. Helen's, in Cornwall, is an underground canal connecting the lower levels of the coal mines at Wormsley's with the surface station at St. Helen's which saves a great deal of money for the mine owners in handling the coal, which is simply loaded on the barges in the mines and transported by the canal under the mountains to the harbor at St. Helen's. When the canal was devised, however, how to provide for locomotion for these barges was a problem.

"Mules couldn't be used, and there were circumstances which made steam impossible, but an inventive genius finally solved the riddle by suggesting that cross pieces of timber be placed along the roof of the canal, which was very low, and men could lie on their backs on top of the loaded barges and 'kick' the vessel along. After the barge was once started this was found to be feasible.

The men could easily keep the load in motion by the means suggested, and it has ever since been in use. There is no question about the low grade of this sort of work, and even the men who follow it are constantly 'kicking' around the villages where they live. They were known at the mines officially as 'kickers' because of their work, and their vocal complaints, continually indulged in, caused every one at Wormsley's or St. Helen's, no matter what their station or employment, who indulged in complaints to be called 'kickers.' I presume that the origin of the word, as we use it, is just what I have suggested."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DUTCH SUPERSTITIONS.

If you walk backward, the errand you are bound on at the time will fail.

To prevent cramp wear an eelskin garter about the left leg below the knee.

To cure warts rub a black snail over them, but the snail must afterward be impaled on a rose thorn.

The first person to enter your house on New Year's day will, if he be light haired, bring bad luck to you; if dark haired, good luck.

To test your sweetheart's humor make him stir the fire. If he stirs it to a hearty blaze he is good humored. If he makes it smoke and fade he is hard to live with.

If a lock of your hair burns bright and long you will have a happy life of seventy years or more, but if it burns weakly and soon goes out your life will be both sad and short.

Mistaken Identity.

The wearied flat hunter pushed long and persistently at the button labeled "Janitor." The house bore a sign stating that there were apartments to rent. The janitor was evidently absent from his post of duty, as there was no response to her repeated ringing.

Disheartened, the seeker for a home was about to turn away when the door was opened from the inside and a bright faced boy of about seven years was disclosed. He looked wonderingly at the visitor, who asked:

"What kind of an apartment is there for rent here?"

A look of mingled disgust and scorn slowly overspread the youngster's face. He surveyed the questioner from head to foot and finally said with an aggrieved air:

"Say, I ain't the janitor."—New York Press.

Why They Smiled.

Brother Jones was noted for his long and laborious prayers, and although the good people of the church respected him they were not at all pleased to hear him pray in meeting. The new minister was not aware of Brother Jones' unpopularity as a "prayer," so he had no idea why a ripple of amusement passed over the congregation when, after a hymn had been sung, he said, "Brother Jones will lead us in prayer," and in a fervent tone added, "and may God help us."

THE LOWER ANIMALS.

They Are Keen of Perception, but Are Incapable of Thought.

Animals have been presumptuous—better in many respects than our own—but they form no conceptions, have no powers of comparing one thing with another. They live entirely in and through their senses. To all that inner world of reflection, imagination, comparison, reason, they are strangers. They never return upon themselves in thought. They have sense memory, sense intelligence, and they profit in many ways by experience, but they have not soul memory or rational intelligence. All the fundamental emotions and appetites men and the lower animals share in common, such as fear, anger, love, hunger, jealousy, cunning, pride, curiosity, play, but the world of thought and thought experience and the emotions that go with it belong to man alone.

It is as if the psychic world were divided into two planes, one above the other—the plane of sense and the plane of spirit. In the plane of sense live the lower animals, only now and then just breaking for a moment into the higher plane. In the world of sense man is immersed also; this is his start and foundation, but he rises into the plane of spirit, and here lives his proper life. He is emancipated from sense in a way that beasts are not.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to spend $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—Editor.]

Clanton, Aug. 29, 1904

Editor Banner: When a man settles in our community and shows by his actions that he is trying to make up for an erring past, and is willing to work and attend to his own affairs, it is our duty, as good citizens, to aid and encourage him. But, when two men with the characters of Pounds and Edler, set themselves up to accuse and abuse the good Democrats of Chilton county, then I say, let them take the consequences; they should expect nothing else. Right here I want to say that the law of our land protects the good name of its citizens from lies or slander, and, if in my last letter I was guilty of either, the finding of my name, and punishing me for so doing, is only a small matter. I am neither a "thief," "liar" or "coward," but only a young man, and I wrote my letter without aid or encouragement from anyone. Every word I said in that letter was true, absolutely true, and I am willing to back it up in our county court if necessary.

But, we have some things of far more importance than this in our county just now; a ticket, that if elected, will throw a shadow of disgrace over the fair name of our county that it can never outlive. I believe that just after the Democrats had nominated Adams and polled two hundred more votes than was expected of them, L. H. Reynolds, taking advantage of the two committees, selected a ticket to suit himself, and secured their pledge of support. They might not have sworn to him that they would support it, I don't suppose they did, but this man is no fool, and before he announced he knew that they would not only support it, but would use all the influence they could command for it. Like the cowards they were, these men that have so long and bitterly opposed the Democrats for rascality, kept their pledge a secret, and returned to their homes and went to work for the ticket. They allowed good men to spend their money and time in what they knew to be a vain effort, and never raised a murmur to prevent it. It was not only an insult to those voters who had entrusted them with so much confidence, but an outrage to such men as Thomas, Adams, Mahan and others, that were honestly seeking a little compensation and honor in return for a lifetime spent in work for the party, and I believe if these good men knew the facts as they are, they would denounce it, as every other honest man would. And now what does this ticket offer the men that were once Populites? Simply a chance to vote for a ticket composed of a few Populites, a black and tan Republican and a Socialist, that was selected by an ungrateful rascal, yes, a chance to vote for men that have robbed you. On the other hand, the Democrats offer you their best men, chosen on their merits by the voters of their party, men who are honest, upright and capable to hold the offices for which they have been selected, men who are not abusing you, but are quitely waiting your choice. And again, it is the only hope of peace in our county. The Democrats are used to defeat and they have fought when their numbers were far smaller than now, but this time they fight to win, and even if they are defeated again it will only make them stronger and more determined, for they are right. The men that left the party once are its reformers, and they do not have to "come back" to it, for it has followed them, and is now an honest party, and they can join it without sacrificing a single principle. Yes, indeed, they are "honor-bound," honor-bound to protect their tender, trusting wives, and their innocent babes, honor-bound to guard those little homeless orphans at the poor house, and honor-bound to protect our dear old county from the rule of a careless, selfish, greedy set of men that are seeped through with corruption. God help them to realize the true meaning of this honor.

Valley Creek.

Well, Mr. Editor, as it has been so long since I wrote anything for the good old Banner, I will try and give you a few items. The barbecue at this place on the 25th was fine; there was upwards of 1000 people present and all seemed to have had plenty of dinner, there being 25 fine fat hogs, sheep and goats well cooked, and a bountiful lot of other things which was greatly enjoyed by all who were present, and above all things, we had the very best of order.

We had a short speech from Prof. Robert Jones of Stanton, and a most grand and noble lecture from Hon. Ira Dunsmore on education and the resources and development of Alabama. Mr. Ira Dunsmore is a small boy, quite young; he is a natural born orator and another Henry Grady. He is a Stanton boy and a true Democratic boy in whom we are well pleased. God has created him for a grand and noble purpose, I would to God old Chilton had more such boys.

The 25th was a day that will long be remembered at Valley Creek, and I wish to thank the people for their good order during the day.

There has been an abundance of fine fodder saved in these parts this month and people find their corn a heap better than they expected. But cotton crop is cut off with rust.

Politics are cool over this way at present, but however, we are making ready for the battle in November, in which it is greatly to be hoped that the Democratic white men will turn out to the polls in November and elect the white man's ticket. I am proud to know there are so many Republicans turning over and coming back to that good old party, the Democratic party, the only true white man's party. Yes, come back, men, to the party that will keep the negro from going into office again in Alabama. We must respect and protect our wives and daughters. I can't see what a man who has a white face can promise himself to vote the Republican ticket. Come back, men, come back to the white man's party.

West Chilton is well supplied with steam saw mills; when everything is still in the morning I can here the whistles blow of nine different saw mills.

There seems to be a powerful courting boom with the young folks over this way. This is leap year, look out, boys! Success for the Democrats. SAME OLD MIKE.

Editor Banner—Will you allow me to say a few words through the columns of your paper to the young men of the county. While I live in another county, yet having been bred in Chilton county, I feel an interest in her affairs. You cannot afford to throw your first vote away, you may afterwards regret it.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, believes that the fact that our sympathies are with Japan in her contest with Russia is very largely due to the liberal and progressive open-door policy of Japan and the narrow, restricted and monopolistic shut door policy of Russia, particularly as shown by her grasping and encroaching course in Manchuria.

The practice of attentive and sympathetic silence might well be followed by people in general far more than it is, says Annie Payson Call, in Leslie's Monthly Magazine. The protection of a loving, unselfish silence is very great; a silence which is the result of shunning all selfish, self-assertive, vain or affected speech; a silence which is never broken for the sake of "making conversation," showing off," or covering selfish embarrassment; a silence which is full of sympathy and interest—the power of such a silence cannot be over-estimated.

It is interesting to watch the rise in life of slang and colloquial words and expressions. A very convenient phrase that has entered into the common spoken vocabulary was incorporated into an official report not so long ago by a committee of Harvard professors, which declared: "The large lecture course has come to stay." Now we find in the last number of the Spenker, a dignified library periodical of London, the rather obvious statement: "The city has come to stay." It is time for "come to stay" to be embalmed in the dictionary.

"There is no superstition connected with the rearing of children that dies harder than the idea that they are natural gluttons and would speedily perish from overeating, or eating the wrong things if left to themselves," said a young mother recently. "My own opinion is that nature knows a greater deal better than I do what my children need, and, therefore, I pay careful attention to what she says through their appetites. I take care that their food shall be of good quality and sufficiently various to allow of a proper range of selection, but beyond that I am not prepared to go, and I am quite satisfied with the results of my dietetic system. I do not see that mothers who are so extremely careful about what they let their children eat get on any better than I do, or half so well."

The president of Bryn Mawr has made a strong argument against the idea that college education makes for race suicide, says Collier's Weekly. Thirty per cent. of English-speaking women and girls are not really well, but college-bred women are at least a little stronger than other women, they have slightly larger families, and their children are somewhat more likely to survive. Miss Thomas puts the situation on an economic basis, there being in her opinion only two classes in which the woman is not an expense, but contributes her share in household labor at home or in paid work outside the home, and the wealthy class where the women bring inherited wealth to their husbands. In the large class between, where a woman neither works nor inherits money, only fifty per cent. marry, as a wife in that class is a luxury which many men can ill afford.

Iron ore has not been extensively imported or exported in this country, declares the Philadelphia Record, for our own rich supplies have made us independent except as to certain varieties and for furnaces near the coast and distant from the domestic mines, and our supplies have been too distant from other countries to make exportation promising. But recent ore shipments to Great Britain and the Continent have been large enough to attract some attention. Twelve thousand tons went to Antwerp and Glasgow, and orders for 18,000 tons more have been reported. England is obliged to import increasing amounts of ore. Within a few years new Spanish deposits have been exploited on account of the English demand, and Norwegian deposits have been connected with the sea by rail so that shipments can be made to British furnaces. If our lake ore could be floated down the St. Lawrence and sent to Great Britain it would be a very interesting development of commerce, but it is too early to predict an important trade in this line.

BATTLE OF LIAO YANG

Is Now Raging with 40,00 Men Engaged. Russian Guns Captured.

ARMIES ARE EVENLY BALANCED

Russians are Well Intrenched and Japanese Assaults Have Been Repeatedly Repulsed.

The great battle of Liao Yang, which began early Tuesday, which was the birthday of the mikado, raged throughout the day with increasing intensity, but no official details, beyond two brief telegrams given out in the afternoon, have been received.

Every confidence is expressed in General Kuropatkin's ability to meet the Japanese assault on ground of his own choosing, but St. Petersburg is hungrily awaiting further news of the progress of the fight. The Japanese forces engaged in this battle can only be estimated, but they are believed to number about 20,000.

General Kuropatkin is known to have six army corps, besides 147 squadrons of cavalry in which great confidence is reposed, bringing up the Russian total to about the same number that the Japanese have. How the armies compare with regard to artillery is not definitely known, though throughout the war the Japanese have shown great preference for this arm and skill in its use.

Reports from the front credit the Japanese with having about 1,200 guns and many mountain batteries, and it is known that they have recently shipped 24 heavy guns to Yinkow. Four of the guns already have been mentioned in the dispatches as being in action.

General Kuropatkin, in addition to his field batteries, has a number of very heavy guns emplaced at important positions at Liao Yang, where the Russians have been strongly fortifying for some time.

The Japanese claim to have captured two field batteries during the past two days. Russian official accounts admit the loss of only six guns.

It is stated that a Japanese battery was captured south of Anshanshan during the preliminary fighting and that several Japanese guns have been captured since then.

A dispatch says:

The Japanese artillery fire only ceased at 8 o'clock this evening. The casualties have not yet been ascertained.

The Russian corps repulsed a hot Japanese assault, the Japanese being hurled back by bayonet charges no less than six times.

Two Japanese companies which succeeded in occupying a position were mistaken for Russians and annihilated by Japanese artillery fire.

There has been an immense quantity of ammunition used throughout the day, especially on the southern front against the Russian third corps.

It is believed that the Russian loss so far has been not shrdlu un mnnn so far has not been very heavy, except to the regiments which sustained bayonet charges. All the men serving one Russian gun, except one, were killed by shrapnal. The survivor, who was badly wounded, heroically brought his gun to headquarters and then refused to quit his place until the general peremptorily ordered him.

A dispatch from Mukden says that in the stubbornly fought battle which has been in progress near Liao Yang all attempts of the Japanese to turn the Russian flank have been repulsed. It is said at Mukden that the Japanese lost over ten guns, but details have not been received.

The news from Port Arthur up to August 26th was reassuring. The account of the battleship Sevastopol having gone out on August 23d to bombard the Japanese in Tahe bay does not mention that vessel as striking a mine.

The finance ministry has practically arranged with German bankers for a new loan of 500,000,000 roubles (approximately $250,000,000) at a higher rate of interest than that on the last loan. Only minor details remain to be settled, and the date of issue is not stated, but it is not likely that the loan will be floated until after the fall of Port Arthur.

Weather Observer, L. A. Denson, announced that the government has approved and accepted the bids of contractors, for installing river gauges at points on the Pearl and Pascagoula rivers, and their tributaries. The gauges are to be put in at once at Columbia, Hattiesburg, Merrill, Shubuta, Enterprise and Jackson and will vary in construction.

R. H. Agee, president.

7,000 PERSONS.

Will Be Thrown Out of Employment at Pullman.

The great shops of the Pullman company are to shut down on September 1, and thousands of men employed in the various departments of the car-building corporation will be without work.

Thirty thousand people at Pullman and in the surrounding towns will be affected. When the Pullman company is working on full time, 7,000 persons are employed. During the last few months, owing to a lack of new orders, men have been laid off 300 and 400 at a time, until now the force does not aggregate more than 2,000.

These men are engaged in finishing the construction of cars already under way, and when these are ready for the rails the shops will be closed and the plant rendered idle.

The plant may remain closed for more than a month.

GRIFFIN COMES HOME.

Not Known Whether He Will be Selected Panama Secretary.

Letters received from Secretary Virgil Griffin, of the Alabama railroad commission, announces that he will be back from the canal zone, Panama.

It is not yet known whether Mr. Griffin will be selected as the clerk of the Panama judiciary or whether he will continue as secretary of the railroad commission. Secretary Griffin left Montgomery six weeks ago with Judge Osceola Kyle, who was appointed a member of the judiciary for the canal zone by the president. The intervening time Secretary Griffin has spent with Judge Kyle in his new home in Panama.

WITH AN AX

Prisoner Cuts His Way Out of Jail. Father Remained.

Ben White, who with his father, Frank White, was arrested at Jacksonville, Saturday for an assault with a knife upon Ollie Williams, succeeded in making his escape from the local prison.

White effected his escape by means of an axe which was slipped into his cell during the night by some unknown person and the local authorities are unable to discover a clue as to his whereabouts. Insisting on his innocence and having a firm faith in his acquittal by the court the elder White refused to go with his son. If young White is caught he will be removed to Anniston.

SULTAN'S BROTHER DEAD.

Declared Insane and Was in Solitary Confinement for 28 Years.

It was reported in May that Murad V, the thirty-third sovereign of the house of Osman, was dying, and that his adherents all over Turkey, known as the young Turks, were secretly arming and awaited the signal to rise in insurrection.

Murad V was born in 1840, and ascended the throne after the murder of the Sultan Abdul Aziz, in 1876. In July of that year Murad was placed under the regency of his brother, the present Sultan Abdul Hammid V, and in August was dethroned. Outwardly this act was performed legally by the council of ministers, on the ground that he was insane. The real facts of the case, however, will probably never be known, but it has been claimed that Murad was a good deal more sane than his brother.

The confinement of Murad has been one of the cruelest character. Only his jailers were allowed to see him, and every precaution was taken to prevent any intelligence of what was going on in the outside world from reaching him.

DR. FARLEY ACQUITTED

Grand Jury Indicted Him After an Exoneration.

Dr. John R. Farley was acquited of the charge of murder in the first degree after a trial of two days in the circuit court. The jury was out twenty-seven minutes. The verdict was received with applause.

Dr. Farley killed Davis Johnson, a well known young man last Christmas. He was exonerated after a preliminary hearing. The probate court and the grand jury made a notable case of it by returning an indictment against the defendant charging first degree murder. Dr. Farley was in jail a week. He proved self defense.

It Was Brilliant.

A large meteor fell not very far east of Ellisville on Sunday night. It appeared very suddenly, like a huge ball of fire, and when seemingly close to the earth burst with a report similar to, though not quite so loud, as a cannon-cracker.

Newspaper Man Drowned.

E. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, Tenn., vice-president of the Banner Publishing company, news editor of the Evening Banner, and day correspondent of the Associated Press, was drowned in the Cumberland river. Mr. Stahlman was cruising up the river in his launch when the propeller refused to work. He dived under the launch to remedy the trouble and failed to reappear. Mr. Stahlman was 35 years of age.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending August 29, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The week, as a whole, was favorable for growing and maturing crops, except in some middle and southeastern counties, where locally heavy to excessive rains occurred, elsewhere, the rainfall was in scattered, light to moderate showers, and rain would be beneficial in some northern and western counties; about the average warmth was received, though the last two nights were quite cool for the season. Cotton has continued to deteriorate quite generally in middle and soufnern counties from effects of rust and shedding, though these adverse conditions are on the decrease in some localities; in some places plants are still blighting and bolls rotting; there are a few reports of damage by boll worms, and several reports of damage by "black root" in central and southeastern counties; late cotton continues to fruit fairly well in some places, but in a number of fields it has stopped fruiting; in some northern counties damage from rust and shedding has increased, but the crop, as a whole, continues promising in that portion of the state; cotton is opening rapidly in southern and some middle counties, where picking is active; a little "top crop" is forming in some localities. While it is too early to estimate the prospective yield, it is now thought it will be a little above that of last year. Corn is maturing satisfactorily, except late corn needs rain in northwest counties, and has been damaged by excessive moisture on some lowlands; gathering of early corn continues, with a very good yield; fodder pulling is being pushed to completion, with a generally good yield, though more of this forage has been damaged where rains were heavy. The hay crop continues promising, though showers retarded cutting; all minor crops and fall gardens are generally satisfactory.

Killed in Vaccue.

Advices from Tokio state that the Japanese government has abandoned the electric chair method of executing criminals, which was copied after that used in various parts of this country, in favor of a method which is considered more advanced and humane than that employed by any other nation. Under the new method death is dealt out by means of a "vacuum" chamber, in which life is extinguished in record time, and with a minimum of suffering, by the almost instantaneous exhaustion of air.

Death Rate Low.

The physicians on five of Mississippi's convict farms in the delta report to the board of control that during the month of August only four convicts have died.

Fruit Growers Incorporate

The present prospects for Cullman's fall crops of fruit and sweet potatoes are that they will be better this year than ever before. This section is already shipping three carloads of potatoes per day and the number will be increased before the end of the week.

Acquitted of Dynamiting.

Henry Martin, charged with dynamiting and trespassing on the property of the Woodward Coal and Iron company, was acquitted of both charges.

It appears that the company failed to make out any charges against Martin in either of the counts.

Martin was charged with placing dynamite under the house of a non-union miner at Dolomite last Wednesday night.

Won't Have to Borrow.

Announcement is made semi-officially by members of the world's fair management that the $1,000,000 loan applied for more than a month ago to be used in case of emergency will not be needed. It is stated the revenue to the world's fair has exceeded expectation and the total daily receipts amount to about $75,000, with the expenditure of about $65,000 per day.

One of the big problems before ranchmen in the Southwest is the rejuvenation of their ranges. Overstocking has practically killed out the grass in many sections and this is bound to decrease. The holding capacity of the ranges. Similar conditions exist in parts of the Northwest. The range does not need a rest so much as a change. Diversification is the solution of the problem.

The London papers tell many stories about Oom Paul Kruger, most of them familiar, but there is a characteristic one, which is new, about his visit to England. Americans travelling in England are exasperated by the warning, "Trespassers will be prosecuted," which confronts one everywhere in the rural districts of England. On one occasion during his visit Mr. Kruger said: "The hedges in England are very fine, but I find no happiness on your veldt. I ride right away from London, and get down, under a tree on the veldt, smoke, but before I get two whiffs up comes some one who says the land is his, and he does not want me there. No, there is no freedom on your veldt."

Ingratitude pretty nearly reaches the limits in the case of a Brooklyn woman who jumped from a moving car and would have fallen under the wheels but for the conductor, whose leg was crushed, and after a month's suffering has died from his injuries, says the Philadelphia Record. Now has the woman expressed her obligations to the man who lost his leg in savings hers, and never did she make an inqury for him or show consciousness of his existence. That the life of a brave man should be taken so and that of such a woman be spared is one of those mysteries that made the writer of Ecclesiastes to refer to "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity."

Although Harvard came in for much stinging ridicule when it protested against Princeton's vociferous "rooting," that protest has never been less heeded. The college yell is about done for in American athletics, says the Kansas City Independent; at least it will never again be the feature of every game that it was. A good thing at the outset, a source of inspiration and cheer, it came to be an unmitigated nuisance both to players and spectators. England played a large part in bringing about this reform. The British are notably quiet at games, and "Well played!" or "Well done!" being the limit of their enthusiasm. When Yale and Harvard competed at London last year their college yells fell decidedly flat, and last week, when the Americans college won over Cambridge and Oxford, the yell was noticeably absent.

The serious student of nature will have no interest in belittling or exaggerating the intelligence of animals, declares the Century magazine. What he wants is the truth about them, and this he will not get from our natural-history romancers nor from the casual, untrained observers who are sure to interpret the lives of the wood folk in terms of their own motives and experiences, nor from Indians, trappers, or even woodsmen, who give such facts as suit to their fancies and superstitions. Not to Romanes or Jesse or Wood-mals, but to the patient, humble observer, to such calm, keen, and philosophical investigators as Lloyd Morgan, and to the books of such sportsmen as Charles St. John, is our own candid, intelligent, and wide-awake Theodore Roosevelt—all capable of disinterested observation with no theories about animals to uphold.

The Russian losses to date are said to be about 1,500. The Russian forces inflicted heavy losses upon the Japanese.

Information which to a very great extent confirms previous reports of the conditions at Port Arthur has arrived.

The most important statement agreed to confirms the reports that the Russians have been driven from the fort immediately east of the railroad. This fort is located in the [illegible] of the dragoon hills, along the summit of which the eastern defenses of Port Arthur are built.

When the Russian forces retired from Fort Erzshen they entered Fort No. 15, to the north of Chaochanzoo. During the nights of August 18th and 19th, while it was raining, the Japanese attempted to storm Fort Atzshen, which is a strong position adjoining Erzshen, toward the city, but they were repulsed with heavy losses. During the night of August 22d an entire land of five hundred Japanese attempted to capture Fort No. 15, in the midst of a storm. Almost the entire detachment was killed. The Chinese declared, however, that the Russians have evacuated Fort No. 15, but whether or by reason of this assault or the Japanese artillery fire can not be learned. The Japanese are unable to occupy Fort No. 15.

Following an inspection made by government engineers, the Japanese government has issued a proclamation making complete preparation to develop gold fields recently discovered in the province of Iwate. The foreigners estimate that these fields will yield gold to the value of $500,000,000, and they are now preparing to start mining operations. It is estimated that the annual yield of the mines will be $15,000,000,000.

ALABAMA'S GRETNA GREEN.

Columbus, Ga., Enjoys That Reputation—Ministers Talk.

At Columbus, Ga., a lively discussion is going on as to the propriety of issuing marriage licenses to and marrying young runaway couples, most of them elopers from Alabama. Ministers in self-defense are taking a hand in the discussion.

For many years it has been a custom for runaway couples in east Alabama to come to Columbus, this being the nearest city in the adjoining state, and the city has acquired the reputation of being the Gretna Green of Alabama couples who desired to be married under circumstances other than private. Often the girls are under age. The ordinary, who says that when a young couple are a long way from home, in a strange city, with no friends or relatives who may aid and advise them, if they wish to get married the best thing to do is to marry them. The honor of the young girl often demands that the license be issued, for if it is not she would be placed in a most embarrassing position. Couples often arrive on the night trains from Alabama.

Local ministers, in explaining why they marry young couples from Alabama and other points, give practically the same reason.

Tax Values.

LINES ARE CLOSER DRAWN.

Japanese Being Driven Out Gradually From Port Arthur's Defenses.

All the advices from Liao Yang show that General Kuropatkin is gradually drawing in his advanced positions to the inner ring of his defenses. After three days of heavy fighting, the latter part of which was impeded by rain, the Russians were compelled to abandon six guns, which it was impossible to take from high positions over the muddy roads, but during the fighting on the southern front they captured some Japanese guns. It is reported also that they destroyed some Japanese mountain batteries.

General Kuropatkin has not yet disclosed whether he intends to make a decisive fight at Liao Yang.

General Kuropatkin seems to be well satisfied with the situation. One dispatch describes him as being in high spirits and laughing and joking at a meeting of the St. George society at Liao Yang.

The Russian losses to date are said to be about 1,500. The Russian batteries inflicted heavy losses upon the Japanese.

Information which to a very great extent confirms previous reports of the conditions at Port Arthur has arrived.

The most important statement agreed to confirms the reports that the Russians have been driven from the fort immediately east of the railroad. This fort is located in the tail of the dragon hills, along the summit of which the eastern defenses of Port Arthur are built.

When the Russian forces retired from Fort, Itzeshen they entered Fort No. 15, to the north of Chaochankou. During the nights of August 18th and 19th, while it was raining, the Japanese attempted to storm Fort Atzshen, which is a strong position adjoining Itushen, toward the city, but they were repulsed with heavy losses. During the night of August 22d an heroic band of five hundred Japanese attempted to capture Fort No. 15, in the midst of a storm. Almost the entire detachment was killed. The Chinese declared, however, that the Russians have evacuated Fort No. 15, but whether by reason of this assault or the Japanese artillery fire can not be learned. The Japanese are unable to occupy Fort No. 15.

Following an inspection made by government engineers, the Japanese government has issued a proclamation making complete preparation to develop gold fields recently discovered in the province of Iwate. The foreigners estimate that these fields will yield gold to the value of $500,000,000, and they are now preparing to start mining operations. It is estimated that the annual yield of the mines will be $15,000,000,000.

ALABAMA'S GRETNA GREEN.

Columbus, Ga., Enjoys That Reputation—Ministers Talk.

At Columbus, Ga., a lively discussion is going on as to the propriety of issuing marriage licenses to and marrying young runaway couples, most of them elopers from Alabama. Ministers in self-defense are taking a hand in the discussion.

For many years it has been a custom for runaway couples in east Alabama to come to Columbus, this being the nearest city in the adjoining state, and the city has acquired the reputation of being the Gretna Green of Alabama couples who desired to be married under circumstances other than prosaic. Often the girls are under age. The ordinary, who says that when a young couple are a long way from home, in a strange city, with no friends or relatives who may aid and advise them, if they wish to get married the best thing to do is to marry them. The honor of the young girl often demands that the license be issued, for if it is not she would be placed in a most embarrassing position. Couples often arrive on the night trains from Alabama.

Local ministers, in explaining why they marry young couples from Alabama and other points, give practically the same reason.

Tax Values.

If the counties yet to be heard from keep up the pace set by those which have already reported the taxable value of Alabama property is going to be at least $18,000,000 in excess of what it was last year.

Saw Mill Burned.

The saw mill of White & Wheeless at Alden's Bridge, 42 miles from Shreveport, was destroyed by fire with a loss of about $100,000, covered by insurance.

CORBIN IN COMMAND.

Troops to the Number of 2,500 Are at Manassas.

Major General H. C. Corbin assumed command of the maneuver camps at Manassas, Thoroughfare and Gainesville Sunday. The Fourth artillery band welcomed him with "Tenting on the Old Camp Grounds." Mrs. Corbin accompanied the general.

General F. D. Grant, in command of division No. 1 at Manassas, and General J. F. Bell, in command of division No. 2 at Thoroughfare, as well as all brigade commanders from the two camps, paid their respects to General Corbin during the afternoon. Reports from the two division commanders were requested. The strength of the two main camps is at present between 2,000 and 2,500 men. During the coming week this force, which will be augmented somewhat daily and will be occupied in this time in the laying out of two camps in skeleton form for the reception of the larger number of regular army troops and state militia to arrive next Saturday and Sunday.

EXPLOSION OF GAS.

Fatal Furnace Accident at Lafollette, Tenn.—Two Killed.

An explosion of gas in an iron furnace of the Lafollette Coal and Iron company at Lafollette, Tenn., resulted in the death of two men and the serious injury of one other.

R. S. Kinkannon, aged 35, of Max Meadows, Va.; leaves wife and child.

Fred Walker, colored, of Middlesboro, Ky.

C. W. Berry, of Lafollette, was desperately burned and can not recover. He had been married only a week.

The property loss will be light.

Their Emblems.

So far no political party in the state has complied with section 62 of the general election law passed by the legislature of 1903 requiring facsimilies or copies of emblems to be filed with the secretary of state. Each party is required to have an emblem and a copy of such must be filed within sixty days before any general election in which state officers are to be voted for.

Murder the Charge.

W. S. Morgan, a prominent citizen of Richland, Webster county, Georgia, was taken to Americus and put in jail, after a committment trial on a charge of murder, growing out of the killing of Joseph Phillips by William Ellis, both negroes, at Preston, recently. Ellis has made a confession, wherein he declared he was hired to kill Phillips and named W. S. Morgan as one of the parties thus employing him.

Didn't Hear the Cars.

John Rapier, a well known deaf and dumb citizen of Fort Payne, was instantly killed by being struck by a freight train on the Alabama Great Southern railroad.

Mr. Rapier was crossing the track on a bicycle and did not near the coming train. The body was terribly mangled.

Little in Charge.

George K. Little has been appointed government engineer in charge of all the locks and improvements on the Warrior river. Mr. Little has had charge of the Tuscaloosa office since the death of Richard McCalla and O. E. Strehloe has had charge of the Demopolis office. Mr. Strehloe has resigned and the two offices have been put in charge of Mr. Little.

Collector Resigns.

A. C. Chisholm, who for twelve years has been tax collector of Lauderdale county, has resigned and T. E. Jones, the democratic nominee, has been appointed by Acting Governor Cunningham to fill the unexpired term.

West Alabama Cotton.

Cotton has begun to come into Eutaw. About 75 to 100 bales were received last week. The crop is not as good as was expected, but something like a 75 per cent crop will be made. Corn is very good the county over.

Election Ordered.

Tuscaloosa county commissioners have ordered an election to be held on Monday, September 19th for the purpose of determining whether or not a special tax shall be levied for the next twenty years for the support of

A correspondent declares that the Japanese minister of war has confidentially informed his colleagues that there is no hope of taking Port Arthur by direct assault, and that long operations will be necessary. Therefore, the minister has ordered the field marshal, Oyama, to avoid entailing heavy loss of life. This, the correspondent says, has been concealed from the public.

Discoverer of Mine Dead.

Robert Parrott, discoverer of the Parrott mine at Butte, Mont., is dead at the age of 75. He did not profit greatly by his discovery, and his estate will not exceed $6,000. He sold his mine in a few years to Marcus Daly.

New Church.

Work has been started in Decatur on a $10,000 church building for the First Presbyterian church. The work will be pushed to completion.

IDEAS FOR THE FAIR ONES

BYRON'S OWN OPINION.

It would be rather interesting to know the date of a letter written by Byron's mother, which has lately been offered for sale. In it she says that her son has "no opinion of his talents." "I had a letter from Byron yesterday, and he abuses himself worse than the Edinburgh Reviewer. He says if I have any regard for him I never will mention his poetry to him more, as he wishes to forget it; as a school boy it was well enough, but as a man he has done with it—forever."

OUR BOYS SHOULD LEARN.

To laugh; to run; to swim; to be neat; to make a fire; to be punctual; to do an errand; to cut kindlings; to sing, if they can; to help their mothers; to hang up their hats; to respect their teachers; to hold their heads erect; to sew on their own buttons; to wipe their boots on the mat; to speak pleasantly to older persons; to put every garment in its proper place; to remove their hats upon entering a house; to attend strictly to their own business; to be as kind and helpful to their sisters as to other boys' sisters.

SIMPLE NEEDLEWORK.

Here is a suggestion for ornamenting a white cambric shirtwaist which looks quite elaborate, but is not difficult to manage. Draw or trace a life-size butterfly on white paper. Cut it out, pin it on a shirt front that has been tucked a short distance from the neck, and with a pencil draw its outline on the muslin. Then cut out the material and lay under it a piece of point d'esprit, and with a narrow wash braid turn in and cover the edges of the muslin. The body of the butterfly can be embroidered with linen floss and the markings of the wings put in with a darning stitch. As many butterflies can be inserted as desired, and they can be of different sizes, thereby adding to the effect.

WHEN GIRLS SHOULD WED.

What is the ideal age for a girl to marry? Twenty-six years, Edwin Warfield, Governor of Maryland, told a class of sweet girl graduates the other day. "I do think," he said, "that many lives are made failures by persons marrying before their characters have been formed. You know 'whom first we love we rarely wed.' This is a very true saying. Young people are impressionable and romantic, and, if left to ther own free will, are apt to rush into matrimony without properly considering the grave responsibilities of married life. Many cases have come under my observation where youthful and hasty marriages have resulted in unhappiness, discontent and lifes of drudgery. The old saying, 'Marry in haste and repent at leisure,' proves too often true. Young men and women should remember that the romantic attachments of youth are not generally lasting.

"I would not wish to be regarded as laying down iron-clad rules concerning the exact age when a girl should marry; it might be at 22, 24, 25 or 26 years—it all depends upon the physical and mental development of the girl. I meant rather to indicate that a girl should not marry until she was over 21 and of an age to comprehend the responsibility of the marriage state and to make an intelligent choice of the man whose companionship will be either a help or a hindrance to her life."

AS TO THE DRESS WAIST.

The prophecy has been made that dress waists will be more popular next fall than tailored shirtwaists. The former are prettiest made of some dainty material, lace, allover net, crepe de chine, or Liberty chiffon. In the allover lace the point de Paris and the new Valenciennes seem to be most favored. Point d'esprit and bobinette come in this class, and both bid fair to be frequently seen made up in the dressy waist. A pretty effect is given when these thin stuffs are made on foundations of contrasting color.

According to an authority: "With the printed nets, black grounds with trailing motifs in colors, pink, green, blue or violet, the illuminating silk would be of pale pink or coral, reseda green, wistaria or old bide, with an outside suggestion of color at the throat, the girdle or the waist."

Taffeta waists will not be left out of the wardrobe for the autumn of 1904. Plain colors will stand before checks or stripes in popularity, although the two latter will be used as trimming to a noticeable extent. Narrow, fancy silk braid is also counted upon as a trimming accessory.

Two materials which are pretty certain to be revived are moire and brocades. They are most appropriate in these days of "Louis tendencies," and are certainly charming made with yokes of lace, girdles and sleeves with puffs on sleeves at the elbow.

THINGS SHE SHOULD KNOW.

To care for milk and make good butter.

To sweep a room and never neglect the corners or the spaces behind the doors.

To make the beds fit for a king to sleep in.

To read and enjoy the papers of the week, especially those published for farmers.

To get ready for company if mother is away from home or unable for any reason to do it herself.

To read and speak in public if called upon.

To be well enough posted in the everyday doings of the world to talk or write about them whenever necessary.

To read good books and to know them when she sees them.

To milk a cow if help is short or work progressing.

To harness a horse and drive it anywhere.

To write a letter and sign her name to it so that no matter who receives it he may have no doubt who his correspondent is.

To keep her own room in order.

To tell a man when she sees him and waste no time with those who are not worthy the name.

To make a good home for some man.

THE WAY SOME GIRLS EARN MONEY.

Many girls who are educating themselves look to summer as the time when they must earn most money. One finds at numerous resorts waitresses and housemaids recruited from this class of young women.

For girls who cannot leave home both summer and winter (summer for work and winter for study), these hints from Harper's Bazar may be found useful:

Often the mother of a family of children cannot afford to take a nurse into the country with her, paying both board and wages, who would be thankful to pay a nice, intelligent girl to relieve her of the care for a few hours each day.

If the girl wanting work lives near (within walking or bicycling distance) a country hotel, or boarding house, all she would have to do would be to explain her willingness to do such work to the manager and get permission to put up a written card in the office, giving her address and qualifications.

Another employment would be to sit with and read to or amuse an old person or invalid, thus leaving the family and friends free.

One clever girl earned several hundreds of dollars last summer by announcing that she would do mending, pressing and delicate lace washing. She had all that she could do. The mending varied from the three-cornered tear in the small child's frock to gloves and lace waists; the pressing from a boy's tumbled sailor suit to the most delicate chiffon gown, and the delicate washing, from cobweb handkerchiefs to lace boas. All this work was done at home, but this year the hotel management, realizing the convenience to their guests, have rented her an office in the building and she has someone to help her beside.

Girls who are clever in putting up fruit can often secure many orders from summer visitors, and home made cakes find a ready sale to boarders tired of the monotony of even the best hotel fare.

FASHION NOTES.

Girdles of taffeta are plaited or shirred to fit the curves of the figure.

Quaint percales—for instance, a white ground sprigged with tiny rose clusters on a lattice of little gray dots—are French fancies copied from old designs.

The most popular fad which has struck New York for many years is the wearing of colored spats.

Something really quite new, which has come to us from Paris, is to line your little Eton jacket with chiffon instead of silk.

A pongee petticoat will be found of greatest service for morning wear. These petticoats are light, but have sufficient body to be worn with comfort, shed the dust as well or better than brilliantine, launder perfectly and wear extremely well.

A hat made of course brown straw is trimmed with a leather peacock feather. The hat is in sailor shape. Around the low crown is a stitched band of leather and on the left side a handsome peacock feather made of leather and painted in the natural colors.

Vest effects, both for simple and elaborate styles of tailor gowns, are going to be very popular the coming season.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "REWARDS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS."

The Rev. Dr. N. McGee Waters Says That if You Would Attain Earthly Prosperity Christ Must Be Your Teacher—The True Prescription For All Scholarship.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Dr. N. McGee Waters, pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, took as his subject Sunday morning, "Rewards of Righteousness." His text was from Matthew vi: 33: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Dr. Waters said in the course of his excellent sermon:

From the beginning until now man's search has been for the golden age. Sometimes he named it the Golden Fleece, sometimes Holy Grail. Plato prophesied it in a republic yet to be. Banyan, after a weary pilgrimage, found it beyond the Delectable Mountains. Bacon saw it in Atlantis, rising out of the midst of an unsailed sea. It is always afar off and in the future. Like the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow, it is always over the next hill.

Jesus also prophesied a golden age—called it "the Kingdom of God," and found it in the present time. For a long time men went hungry, and lo! there was always plenty in the ground—when they "scratched the earth with a hoe it laughed with a harvest." They prized diamonds, and lo! they were always in the river beds for the finding. They shivered for warmth, and lo! coal was stored under the hills. They longed for some pack horse, and lo! giants were chained in every flowing river. They were always looking for the golden age. Jesus said: "Look within—the Kingdom of God is within you."

Men are always expecting the Kingdom of God to come through some device of their making. They cry, "Let us have a better government and a better wage, and we will have the Kingdom of God; let us toil and hoard a mountain of gold, and when our barns are filled we will have the Kingdom of God. Let us search after knowledge, and when we are wise we will have the Kingdom of God. Let us trade our strength for popularity and reputation, when with the laurel we have bound our brow we shall be blessed."

Jesus says just the opposite: "Seek the Kingdom of God and you will have no labor problem, for you will have an increased wage; seek the Kingdom of God, and you will find wealth; seek the Kingdom of God, and you will be enrolled among the children of immortality." Men say, "Let us get rich and we will be content." Jesus says, "Be content, and you will be rich." Men say, "Let us get wisdom, and we will be happy." Jesus says, "Be happy and you will be wise. Men say, "If we can gain all these things, like houses and lands, we will be the children of the Kingdom of God." Jesus says, "Enter into the Kingdom of God, and you will have all these things."

When will we believe the teachings of Jesus? He was ahead of His time. We are growing up to Him, to understand Him better than early generations. Every saying of His we find true as law and fact. Take that saying of His, "The meek shall inherit the earth." It was too hard for His age. But time, the great tester, pronounces it pure gold. The wise man everywhere sees the exceeding reward of meekness. They get who forget.

Jesus said to His disciples: "It is expedient for you that I go away." They could not believe that then. But when a long time hath passed we know that really death is a benefit, and that great men are never so valuable to their disciples as after they have gone away from the earth. The text, "Seek first the Kingdom of God," etc., is one of those sayings that we have to grow up to. Generally men have read it in some mystical way. They have regarded it as true only in some peculiar religious sense. But it is a literal fact; it is truth; it is law of the universe. Virtue is the road to fame. Godliness is profitable in this world.

"And all these things shall be added." What things? Christ has just named them—food and clothes and the material prizes for which men strive. Men are swayed by motives as trees are by the winds. Tell me what you most love and I will tell you what you will be. You love knowledge with a passion—the Greek did and he became a scholar; you love power—the Roman did and Rome is yet law giver for the nations; you love beauty—John Keats did and he became a poet. Among the motives that sway men's daily lives, we may put first these three—the pursuit of wealth, the gaining of knowledge and the winning of fame. How can these things best be won? According to Jesus, by a deep hearted search after the Kingdom of God.

Wealth—the laws of wealth are the laws of righteousness. Knowledge—the kingdom of knowledge is the Kingdom of God. Fame—"the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, but the ways of the wicked shall rot."

Let us look at the world of wealth. The savage has no prosperity; it is only the civilized man who grows rich. What is wealth? Emerson tells us it begins "with a tight roof that keeps out the rain and a good pump that yields sweet waters, and horses, or a locomotive to cross the land, and a boat to cross the sea." But whence come the roof and the pump and the ship and the locomotive? Man did not invent them; he only discovered them. They are the laws of God dressed up in clothes of wood and steel and stone. The laws of wealth are the laws of righteousness. Men go toward prosperity as they find the laws of God.

Again, how do we get wealth? There are three possible ways. A man may beg it, he may steal it, or a man may earn it. But neither pauper nor beggar increases the wealth of the community. Only by the laws of industry and vision can we increase wealth. But the laws of labor and vision are the laws of the Kingdom of God. Barbarism has been, with its poverty, defined as "society without the commandments." Contrariwise, then, civilization, with all its houses and lands and stocks and bonds, is society with the commandments. Violation of the laws of God in every age means bankruptcy. Obedience to the laws of God in every age makes for prosperity. History writes down the tale of empires. When she writes down "Pyramids" and "Parthenon" and "Hanging Gardens," she expresses their desolation by saying over their ruins, "These people forgot God, and hence their waste places." She writes down "London," "Chamber of Commerce," "Shipyards," "Temple," "Library," and expresses their glory by saying, "These have remembered God—hence their prosperity."

The Bible pronounces "Anathema" against those who "make haste to get rich"—that is, they who, despising the laws of God, take a short cut to prosperity. Their wealth is poverty; their gain is loss. The mistress who holds back the just wage from the maid; the borrower who refuses to return to the lender; the government that debases its people with debased coin, may temporarily gain; but such wealth destroys the possessor and is like the wrecker's handful of coin, gleaned from the beach to which he has beguiled an argosy; is like the camp follower's bundle of rags stolen from the breast of men slain in battle; it like the coin of Judas—only blood money paid to buy a potter's field wherein liberty and justice and prosperity shall at last be buried in the grave of dishonor. Way back in the Old Testament we have Moses saying: "Thou shalt not have diverse measures in thy sanctuary." The words call up for us a scene from that far off time. There are booths with baskets of figs and grapes and golden wheat and bottles of oil and silks and cloths, and the merchant has two scales under one scale, with a long arm, in which he buys the grapes from the husbandman, and another, with a small arm, in which he sells the grapes to the housewife. And the King begins to say, his men in debased coin, and honesty and integrity and justice are being exterminated, and there is growing up a people with lying King and lying merchants and false words. The old prophet rises in his anger and says: "A false measure is an abomination unto the Lord." Any falsehood in commerce at last poisons the very foundation of civilization. The city and the nation and the individual man who have forgotten God and His laws do not stand for a long time in the world of commerce. "The laws of wealth are the laws of righteousness. If you would become rich, if you would attain prosperity, if you would multiply houses and lands and banks, if you would make a desert place bloom as the rose, let Christ be your teacher. 'Seek first the kingdom of His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.'"

What is knowledge? How do we gain knowledge? There sits Thomas Carlyle, the lonesomest man in England, and one of the poorest, feeding his shaggy intellect on French revolutions, storm of modern ages. When he speaks we call him our greatest prophet and scholar. And his message is: "I have found God reigning among all peoples." He writes down for us the laws of divine retribution which run through the nations. Like the old Scandanavian Titan that he is, he drinks the liquid fire of divine wrath out of the skull of perished empire. And he smacked his Puritan lips as though it was savory wine. Knowledge is finding out divine laws. There is Charles Dickens. He is not satisfied to meet people on the street as we do and shake hands with them and learn their names. But looking into their hearts and homes and haunts and sins with sympathy, with pathos and with rarest humor, he writes his books. These books become a sort of Bible of the submerged tenth of society, and in them we find written down the great divine laws which govern action and conduct and character. He is the poor man's prophet, because he found on the heart of the poor man the handwriting of God. All knowledge is revelation.

Seeking the way God made the stars go, Kepler became an astronomer. Seeking the way the world was made, Wallace became a scientist. Seeking the mysteries and secrets of the human soul and God's dealing therein, Kant became a philosopher. Seeking to find out how God wrought upon human nature, Shakespeare penetrated into the soul depths of Iago, Hamlet, Desdemona, Richard, Henry and Lear, and transcribing into words what he found written there, he has given us his great dramas. Lo! the dramas of Shakespeare are almost another book of God in which we find written the divine law of retribution and forgiveness and sacrifice and redemption. Augustine comes and his one word is law, but it is the law of God. Browning comes and has one word is inspiration, but it is the inspiration of God. And Beecher and Phillips Brooks come and their one word is love, but it is the love of God. Save he bring us a word of God, the wisdom of the scholar is foolishness.

Have you ever seen the shimmering of a lake when the sun was playing in its surface? Have you seen the gleams of sunlight dancing like angels on the water? You know the glory was in the sun, not in the water. The sun was the source; the waters were clothed in a borrowed glory. If you have ever stood in a great valley surrounded by mountains, and heard the echoes repeated from mount to mount, some loud, some soft, some distant, some near at hand, you know the voice was not in the mountains. The mountains only carried the voice. So great scholars are only waters and mountain peaks. It is God Almighty who speaks. It is His glory that shines. There is a difference in men. The difference between great men and little men always consist in this—the great man is always listening for the voice of God. The little man is taken up with the sound of his earthly ongoing. The Jews heard a sound and said: "It thundered." Jesus standing with them knew "it was an angel that had spoken unto Him." Wisdom is revelation. There is no other way if you would be a scholar, if you would wear a scholar's crown and have a scholar's power, you must seek and know face to face and to find out His ways, which are above our ways, and His words, which are above our words. Here is the prescription for all scholarship: "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

In every age men believe that fame can be bought for a price, and so they tear down their warehouses and build larger. So they multiply their fleets until their white sails cover every sea; so they get for themselves houses and lands and stocks and bonds. When they die the market drops down for a day or a week and then the world goes on. You do not know the names of any rich men in Athens or Rome or Thebes or Babylon. You may know the name of some orator or some scholar who had wealth, but you do do not know the name of any man who had nothing but wealth. There was a man who laid the foundation of his fortune in the days of the Stuarts. He was a powder manufacturer. He drove his coach and four and lived in a palace. He built silken nests for his children. He had been an ardent Royalist, but when the Revolution came, he said: "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, if taken in its flood, leads on to fortune." And he cut off his powdered curls and left off his jeweled sword. He even sang psalms. He turned Puritan. He turned his back on the cathedral and went to worship in a Puritan conventicle. He had his reward. He got the contract for making powder for Cromwell's army and became a multi-millionaire. And when the restoration came he grew again his Van Dyke beard, he again wore his velvet doublet, he again went to church with prayer book and crucifix. He even stood by and applauded when Cromwell's bones were hung up to dry on Tyburn Hill. He quickly became a cavalier and he had his reward. For lo! Charles made him a Knight of the Garter and he still had the contract for making powder for the English Army. What was his name? You do not know. What was his name? You cannot find it written down in any book. But in that same time there was a poor man who was a Puritan under the first Stuarts, who was a Puritan secretary of commonwealth under Cromwell, and who was a Puritan blind and poor, an exile threatened with his life under the returned Stuarts. He had the pen of a ready writer and the Stuarts offered him gold to make the worse appear the better side. He said: "Nay, nay, I will live in hunger and I will hear my children cry for bread, but I will not sell my honor. I care not for parties. I strive only for the truth of the Kingdom of God." And everything he ever said in prose or in poetry is still remembered. His name was John Milton, and every school boy knows it by heart. Seek first the Kingdom of God and fame will find you out. Always the pathway to greatness is along the line of loyalty to the Kingdom of God.

Seek the Kingdom of God, that is the great thing. Any man who seeks wealth for wealth's sake will always be poor, though he be clad in purple. Any man who seeks first and always the Kingdom of God will be rich, whether he live in a garret or a king's palace. It is the law of the universe. They who love truth and serve her, receive a true man's reward—houses and lands in the present time, and in the time to come, life eternal. Changing an old poem a little:

Then to side with truth is noble,
Though we share her wretched crust,
For how soons brings fame and profit,
And 'tis groveling to be just.

A suggestion has been made that The Banner devote a colnmn each week to Farming and Stock Raising, and we shall be pleased to publish short articles on these subjects.

Last Friday was a day of first bales in this section. Clanton got its first bale and paid 12½ cents per pound for it. Montevallo's first bale brought 12½ cents per pound, and Sylacauga paid 11 cents for its first. Well done, Clanton, the best cotton market in central Alabama!

The troubles in New York State have been satisfactorily settled and every man there who ever called himself a Democrat has his coat off and is working for Democratic success.

West Virginia is better organized than it has been in twelve years. Maryland is solid for Democracy. The Republicans of New England are badly scared, and the chances are excellent for the Democrats to carry Rhode Island and Connecticut and add several Congressman to Democracy's string in Massachusetts. We will cut down the Republican majorities in Vermont and Maine in the September election in those two states, which will have a great moral effect.

There are splendid reports from Indiana and Wisconsin, Colorado, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Washington and California. There never was such hopeful feeling manifested by leading Democrats who visit the National capitol since 1902.

The Ledger has not at all times been an admirer of Judge Samuel M. Adams of Chilton, but has always believed him to be a man of sterling personal honesty. To that we are now glad to add a commendation of him as a public officer. He has made a fine probate judge and has retired voluntarily and commends his Democratic sucessor to the people of the county for election. When Judge Adams went into office Chilton county had only $543 in the treasury. When he left the office there was $4,600 in the treasury and the county does not owe a dollar. It would be well if all the counties could do as well. —Birmingham Ledger.

Evergreen.

On last Friday we saw the close of one of the most successful schools that has ever been taught in our community. Dr. B. J. Baldwin of Montgomery employed two lady teachers from Montgomery, Misses Craik and Centerfit, to teach us a summer school. The school was entirely successful and free to all. It seemed that their motto was come, let us aid you in attaining a most elevated plane in life.

During the term the Doctor and Mrs. Baldwin served the school with ice cream and cake. On last Friday morning the people gathered to see the closing exercises, which consisted of prayer by the school and that grand old song, America. Then came recitations and singing, interspersed with music by Headley's string band.

After exercises closed, Prof. Murphy of Montgomery made us a speech on education. There were short talks made by Dr. Baldwin and others. Then came the best part of it for the children, everyone of them received a nice present from the teacher, presented to them by Dr. Baldwin. Then the good Doctor and wife, assisted by kind ladies, served ice cream and cake, and everybody then came. The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Dr. B. J. Baldwin of Montgomery, with Mrs. Baldwin, Miss Jean Craik and Miss Centerfit have established and conducted a most successful summer school for the young people of the 14th district of Chilton county. Therefore be it Resolved by the trustees and the citizens of the district in massmeeting assembled, that we extend to Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin, and to Misses Centerfit and Craik, the heartfelt appreciation of their labors.

Resolved 2d, that we recognize in the unselfish spirit which has emanated from this work the purpose of true patriotism, and we assure Dr. Baldwin and his associates that its fruit will long remain among us.

Resolved 3d, that we pledge to these honest workers our cordial co-operation in the future, and we part with them to-day asking the blessings of God upon them and upon all this work in our midst and we wish to conclude and establish these resolutions by a rising vote.

Resolved 4th, that these resolutions be published in the county paper. J. M. Grant.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

A CARDBOARD WOMAN

THE MALIGN INFLUENCE OF A MUMMY CASE FROM EGYPT.

Queer Sequence of Fatalities and Hard Luck Experiences That Appeared to Be Unhappy Legacies to Those Interested in Its Custody.

In a corner of the first Egyptian room at the British museum, behind the crouching body of the prehistoric chief who lived before there were pharaohs in Egypt or pyramids on the Nile, stands a woman molded from some ancient form of cardboard. She is merely a shell, the cover of a mummy case. Her hands are crossed above her breast, and her dark eyes stare forward into vacancy.

According to the catalogues she is No. 22542, a problematical royal personage and a priestess of the College of Amen Ra. She lived in the mighty city of Thebes some 1,600 years before Christ.

And about this same coffin cover there hangs as terrible a story as ever an Edgar Allan Poe or a Balzac or a Kipling produced from a gloomy imagination.

If you question the attendants in the first Egyptian room they will shake their heads and say nothing. But there is a famous professor in the museum who knows that the facts are true, though whether they be a coincidence or a manifestation of supernatural power who can say? He says:

"For three months I have been gathering the tangled threads of evidence. I have now in my possession proofs of the identity of all those who suffered from the anger of the priestess of Amen Ra. But for the sake of friends and relatives I have been requested to suppress the names.

"About the middle of the sixties of the last century a party of five friends took ship in a dahabeah for a trip up the Nile. They traveled to Luxor on their way to the second cataract, and stayed there to explore the ruins of the great and wonderful city of Thebes, with its avenues of sphinxes and rams, its vast hall of columns and its temple to Amen Ra, which is unequaled on earth in the sublimity of its ruined magnificence.

"One night an Arab sent by Mustapha Aga came to one of their number, Mr. D., as we may call him, saying that he had just found a mummy case of unusual beauty. What became of the mummy the man did not explain The next morning Mr. D. bought the case. Both he and his companions were impressed by its remarkable beauty and by the curious face of the woman portrayed, a face that was filled with a cold malignancy of expression unpleasant to witness.

"They had agreed that, being all interested in Egyptology, they should apportion their finds by lot, and so, though Mr. D. had been the cause of its discovery, he lost the mummy cover, which passed to a friend, whom we will call Mr. W.

"It was on their return journey that the series of misfortunes commenced. Mr. D.'s servant was handing him a gun, when without visible cause it exploded, the charge lodging in his arm, which had to be amputated; a second died in poverty within the year; a third was shot, while Mr. W., the owner of the mummy case, discovered on his arrival in Cairo that he had lost a large part of his fortune. He died soon afterward. The priestess of Amen Ra had signified her displeasure in a very convincing manner.

"From the date it was shipped on board the steamer Mr. D. lost sight of the mummy case for several years. He did not at the time in any way associate the misfortunes that had occurred to the party with its discovery, but when he next heard of it and had full information of the disasters which had been subsequently associated with its possession he began to suspect that it was not merely chance, not merely a coincidence, that had brought so sinister a fate on all who had dealings with the priestess of Amen Ra.

"On the arrival of the case in England it was given by its owner, Mr. W., to a married sister living near London. From the day the case entered the house misfortune followed misfortune. The family suffered large losses, and the end came with painful troubles which need not be specified.

"The lady while in possession of the case received one day a visit from Mme. Blavatsky. The great theosophist became very disturbed on entering the room, and after a few minutes' conversation told her hostess that there was something in her house possessed of a most malignant influence. She asked to be allowed to search the house and on discovering the coffin lid appealed to her hostess to send away an object which she described as of the utmost danger. Her hostess, however, refused, laughing at what she imagined to be an example of foolish superstition.

"Some time afterward the lady sent the case to a well known photographer in Baker street. Within a week the chief of the firm came down to this lady's house in a state of great excitement. He had, he said, photographed the face with the greatest care, and he could guarantee that no one had touched either the negative or the photograph in any way, yet it was not the cardboard features that looked out of the photograph, but a living Egyptian woman staring straight before her with an expression of singular malevolence. Shortly after the photographer died suddenly and mysteriously.

"It was about this time that Mr. D. happened to meet the owner of the coffin lid and begged her upon hearing her story to get rid of it at once. She agreed, and a carrier was found to convey it to the British museum. This carrier died within a week."—London Express.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Aug. 29, 1904

The strange transformation that has taken place in Mr. Roosevelt within the past few months—his conversion from the fierce hussar, besworded and bespurred, seeking the bubble reputation even at the cannon's mouth, into the meek and peace loving civilian wrapped in gentle silence, is generally and disrespectfully regarded as a mere political dodge. It is assumed that wholly for the purpose of getting votes he is making a belated effort to live down his violent past.

His conduct continues to be a favorite topic of conversation and discussion here in the National Capital wherever politicians of either party do congregate.

This assumption that Roosevelt may be doing this repression act for effect, may be doing a cruel injustice to an awakened and repentant man. Goaded by a sense of wrong, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt may ere long burst to indignant speech and explain that he always was in reality the quite inoffensive and modestly retiring person we now behold, and that the other Roosevelt with whom the world had grown familiar was the creation of Loeb, his secretary since he became Governor of New York, and who seems to be his evil genius in every way.

Hon. James A. Tawney, of Minnesota, chairman of the House Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions, never tires of talking about the great St. Louis Exposition. While passing through this city a day or so ago, he entertained a group of friends in the lobby of the Wiggs House by glowing descriptions of the glories of the World's Fair at St. Louis. Among other things he said:

"Many people who visited the Columbian Exposition at Chicago no doubt feel that because that Exposition excelled all previous expositions in beauty and style of its buildings and in the extent and magnitude of its exhibits, that the St. Louis or Louisiana Purchase Exposition held eleven years later cannot contain or exhibit enough that is new or different to interest them especially or compensate them for the time and expense of visiting it. This is a great mistake. Those who visited the Chicago Exposition had then before them an exhibit of the world's advancement during the previous centuries. Those who saw that exhibit and visit the St. Louis Exposition will not only see the advancement of the world during the past nineteen centuries, but they will also by contrasting the exhibits here with those of Chicago see in what part of the world the greatest advancement has been made especially the progress made in all lines of industry, art, science and education during the past eleven years.

In the Transportation Building at St. Louis the principal exhibit and the most attractive is of something that was not only not on exhibition at Chicago, but was not even thought of by the masses of our people, that is the automobile exhibit. Every country in the world in which automobiles are manufactured is making an automobile exhibit and this modern means of transportation is exciting as much if not more interest than almost any other exhibit in that building. Another exhibit is the Transportation Building which illustrates the marvellous progress during the last eleven years will be found in the Pennsylvania Railroad exhibit. In the first there is a locomotive engine resting on counter wheels, corresponding to the track of the railroad, and equipped with a machine that tests the pulling power and speed of the engine, and at the same time estimates the amount of coal consumed per mile to each ton of load, the amount of water consumed and analyzes the gases passing out of the smoke stack; and all of this information is obtained at the same time, by the same tests. It is indeed marvelous to stand by and see a locomotive engine with the engineer in his cab, running at the rate of sixty miles an hour and not moving forward an inch. C. A. Edwards.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." Emergency Medicines

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflamation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

A suggestion has been made that The Banner devote a colnmn each week to Farming and Stock Raising, and we shall be pleased to publish short articles on these subjects.

Last Friday was a day of first bales in this section. Clanton got its first bale and paid 12¼ cents per pound for it. Montevallo's first bale brought 12¼ cents per pound, and Sylacauga paid 11 cents for its first. Well done, Clanton, the best cotton market in central Alabama!

The troubles in New York State have been satisfactorily settled and every man there who ever called himself a Democrat has his coat off and is working for Democratic success.

West Virginia is better organized than it has been in twelve years. Maryland is solid for Democracy. The Republicans of New England are badly scared, and the chances are excellent for the Democrats to carry Rhode Island and Connecticut and add several Congressman to Democracy's string in Massachusetts. We will cut down the Republican majorities in Vermont and Maine in the September election in those two states, which will have a great moral effect.

There are splendid reports from Indiana and Wisconsin, Colorado, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Washington and California. There never was such hopeful feeling manifested by leading Democrats who visit the National capitol since 1902.

The Ledger has not at all times been an admirer of Judge Samuel M. Adams of Chilton, but has always believed him to be a man of sterling personal honesty. To that we are now glad to add a commendation of him as a public officer. He has made a fine probate judge and has retired voluntarily and commends his Democratic sucessor to the people of the county for election. When Judge Adams went into office Chilton county had only $543 in the treasury. When he left the office there was $4,600 in the treasury and the county does not owe a dollar. It would be well if all the counties could do as well. —Birmingham Ledger.

Evergreen.

On last Friday we saw the close of one of the most successful schools that has ever been taught in our community. Dr. B. J. Baldwin of Montgomery employed two lady teachers from Montgomery, Misses Craik and Centerfit, to teach us a summer school. The school was entirely successful and free to all. It seemed that their motto was come, let us aid you in attaining a most elevated plane in life.

During the term the Doctor and Mrs. Baldwin served the school with ice cream and cake. On last Friday morning the people gathered to see the closing exercises, which consisted of prayer by the school and that grand old song, America. Then came recitations and singing, interspersed with music by Headley's string band.

After exercises closed, Prof. Murphy of Montgomery made us a speech on education. There were short talks made by Dr. Baldwin and others. Then came the best part of it for the children, everyone of them received a nice present from the teacher, presented to them by Dr. Baldwin. Then the good Doctor and wife, assisted by kind ladies, served ice cream and cake, and everybody then came. The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Dr. B. J. Baldwin of Montgomery, with Mrs. Baldwin, Miss Jean Craik and Miss Centerfit have established and conducted a most successful summer school for the young people of the 14th district of Chilton county. Therefore be it Resolved by the trustees and the citizens of the district in massmeeting assembled, that we extend to Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin, and to Misses Centerfit and Craik, the heartfelt appreciation of their labors.

Resolved 2d, that we recognize in the unselfish spirit which has emanated from this work the purpose of true patriotism, and we assure Dr. Baldwin and his associates that its fruit will long remain among us.

Resolved 3d, that we pledge to these honest workers our cordial co-operation in the future, and we part with them to-day asking the blessings of God upon them and upon all this work in our midst and we wisn to conclude and establish these resolutions by a rising vote.

Resolved 4th, that these resolutions be published in the county paper. J. M. Grant.

Sunday School Beat Association.

The Sunday schools of Beat 2, with the exception of three met at Providence church on August 28, and organized a Beat Association by electing W. H. Shaw, President; J. A. Skaggs, Vice President; John Lowery, Secretary and Treasurer.

The next meeting will be held at Jemison on the fourth Sunday in September, when it is hoped the missing schools will be represented.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

A CARDBOARD WOMAN

THE BALEFUL INFLUENCE OF A MUMMY CASE FROM EGYPT.

Queer Sequence of Fatalities and Hard Luck Experiences That Appeared to Be Unhappy Legacies to Those Interested in Its Custody.

In a corner of the first Egyptian room at the British museum, behind the crouching body of the prehistoric chief who lived before there were pharaohs in Egypt or pyramids on the Nile, stands a woman molded from some ancient form of cardboard. She is merely a shell, the cover of a mummy case. Her hands are crossed above her breast, and her dark eyes stare forward into vacancy.

According to the catalogues she is No. 22542, a problematical royal personage and a priestess of the College of Amen Ra. She lived in the mighty city of Thebes some 1,600 years before Christ.

And about this same coffin cover there hangs as terrible a story as ever an Edgar Allan Poe or a Balzac or a Kipling produced from a gloomy imagination.

If you question the attendants in the first Egyptian room they will shake their heads and say nothing. But there is a famous professor in the museum who knows that the facts are true, though whether they be a coincidence or a manifestation of supernatural power who can say? He says:

"For three months I have been gathering the tangled threads of evidence. I have now in my possession proofs of the identity of all those who suffered from the anger of the priestess of Amen Ra. But for the sake of friends and relatives I have been requested to suppress the names.

"About the middle of the sixties of the last century a party of five friends took ship in a dahabeah for a trip up the Nile. They traveled to Luxor on their way to the second cataract, and stayed there to explore the ruins of the great and wonderful city of Thebes, with its avenues of sphinxes and rams, its vast hall of columns and its temple to Amen Ra, which is unequaled on earth in the sublimity of its ruined magnificence.

"One night an Arab sent by Mustapha Aga came to one of their number, Mr. D., as we may call him, saying that he had just found a mummy case of unusual beauty. What became of the mummy the man did not explain The next morning Mr. D. bought the case. Both he and his companions were impressed by its remarkable beauty and by the curious face of the woman portrayed, a face that was filled with a cold malignancy of expression unpleasant to witness.

"They had agreed that, being all interested in Egyptology, they should apportion their finds by lot, and so, though Mr. D. had been the cause of its discovery, he lost the mummy cover, which passed to a friend, whom we will call Mr. W.

"It was on their return journey that the series of misfortunes commenced. Mr. D.'s servant was handing him a gun, when without visible cause it exploded, the charge lodging in his arm, which had to be amputated; a second died in poverty within the year; a third was shot, while Mr. W., the owner of the mummy case, discovered on his arrival in Cairo that he had lost a large part of his fortune. He died soon afterward. The priestess of Amen Ra had signified her displeasure in a very convincing manner.

"From the date it was shipped on board the steamer Mr. D. lost sight of the mummy case for several years. He did not at the time in any way associate the misfortunes that had occurred to the party with its discovery, but when he next heard of it and had full information of the disasters which had been subsequently associated with its possession he began to suspect that it was not merely chance, not merely a coincidence, that had brought so sinister a fate on all who had dealings with the priestess of Amen Ra.

"On the arrival of the case in England it was given by its owner, Mr. W., to a married sister living near London. From the day the case entered the house misfortune followed misfortune. The family suffered large losses, and the end came with painful troubles which need not be specified.

"The lady while in possession of the case received one day a visit from Mme. Blavatsky. The great theosophist became very disturbed on entering the room, and after a few minutes' conversation told her hostess that there was something in her house possessed of a most malignant influence. She asked to be allowed to search the house and on discovering the coffin lid appealed to her hostess to send away an object which she described as of the utmost danger. Her hostess, however, refused, laughing at what she imagined to be an example of foolish superstition.

"Some time afterward the lady sent the case to a well known photographer in Baker street. Within a week the chief of the firm came down to this lady's house in a state of great excitement. He had, he said, photographed the face with the greatest care, and he could guarantee that no one had touched either the negative or the photograph in any way, yet it was not the cardboard features that looked out of the photograph, but a living Egyptian woman staring straight before her with an expression of singular malevolence. Shortly after the photographer died suddenly and mysteriously.

"It was about this time that Mr. D. happened to meet the owner of the coffin lid and begged her upon hearing her story to get rid of it at once. She agreed, and a carrier was found to convey it to the British museum. This carrier died within a week."—London Express.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Aug. 29, 1904

The strange transformation that has taken place in Mr. Roosevelt within the past few months—his conversion from the fierce hunter, beswordedd and bespurred, seeking the bubble reputation even at the cannon's mouth, into the meek and peace loving civilian wrapped in gentle silence, is generally and disrespectfully regarded as a mere political dodge. It is assumed that wholly for the purpose of getting votes he is making a belated effort to live down his violent past.

His conduct continues to be a favorite topic of conversation and discussion here in the National Capital wherever politicians of either party do congregate.

This assumption that Roosevelt may be doing this repression act for effect, may be doing a cruel injustice to an awakened and repentant man. Goaded by a sense of wrong, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt may ere long burst to indignant speech and explain that he always was in reality the quite inoffensive and modestly retiring person we now behold, and that the other Roosvelt with whom the world had grown familiar was the creation of Loeb, his secretary since he became Governor of New York, and who seems to be his evil genius in every way.

Hon. James A. Tawney, of Minnesota, chairman of the House Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions, never tires of talking about the great St. Louis Exposition. While passing through this city a day or so ago, he entertained a group of friends in the lobby of the Wiggs House by glowing descriptions of the glories of the World's Fair at St. Louis. Among other things he said:

"Many people who visited the Columbian Exposition at Chicago no doubt feel that because that Exposition excelled all previous expositions in beauty and style of its buildings and in the extent and magnitude of its exhibits, that the St. Louis or Louisiana Purchase Exposition held eleven years later cannot contain or exhibit enough that is new or different to interest them especially or compensate them for the time and expense of visiting it. This is a great mistake. Those who visited the Chicago Exposition had then before them an exhibit of the world's advancement during the previous centuries. Those who saw that exhibit and visit the St. Louis Exposition will not only see the advancement of the world during the past nineteen centuries, but they will also by contrasting the exhibits here with those of Chicago see in what part of the world the greatest advancement has been made especially the progress made in all lines of industry, art, science and education during the past eleven years.

In the Transportation Building at St. Louis the principal exhibit and the most attractive is of something that was not only not on exhibition at Chicago, but was not even thought of by the masses of our people, that is the automobile exhibit. Every country in the world in which automobiles are manufactured is making an automobile exhibit and this modern means of transportation is exciting as much if not more interest than almost any other exhibit in that building. Another exhibit is the Transportation Building which illustrates the marvellous progress during the last eleven years will be found in the Pennsylvania Railroad exhibit. In the first there is a locomotive engine resting on counter wheels, corresponding to the track of the railroad, and equipped with a machine that tests the pulling power and speed of the engine, and at the same time estimates the amount of coal consumed per mile to each ton of load, the amount of water consumed and analyzes the gases passing out of the smoke stack; and all of this information is obtained at the same time, by the same tests. It is indeed marvelous to stand by and see a locomotive engine with the engineer in his cab, running at the rate of sixty miles an hour and not moving forward an inch. C. A. Edwards.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflamation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

IN MAIN DEFENSES

Of Port Arthur the Japanese Soldiers are Swarming. Port Must Fall.

BATTLE EXPECTED AT LIAO YANG

Fighting Night and Day With Heavy Losses—Russians Evacuate Anshanghan.

The Russians retired from Anshanshan Saturday after a fight which commenced on the morning of Friday, and continued in a desultory manner all day and night.

Arrangements for a battle had been completed by night time, when the order to retire was given on account of the situation to the east.

The order was received with disappointment by the troops. The retirement was made in an orderly manner.

The plain between Anshanshan and Haicheng was covered with Japanese troops, who burned the bridge and shelled the railway station after the Russian retirement.

Sunday the Japanese drove the Russians back from the first line of defenses outside of Anshanshan. The fighting was confined to an artillery duel and lasted all day.

It is expected that a big battle will occur shortly near Liao Yang.

The fall of Port Arthur is imminent. The Japanese are withing the main defenses and their guns command the town. Desperate fighting occurs night and day and the losses on both sides are enormous.

The Russians are making furious counter attacks, but the Japanese are clinging to the position they have won at so great a cost.

A dispatch dated Saturday says:

Following is the position of Port Arthur:

The Japanese have captured all the outlying fortifications, but the Russians still hold the citadel on Antzshan, Golden Hill forts, and the forts on Tiger's Tail and Liao Ti mountain. The Japanese are in possession of the parade grounds and barracks under the Antzshan fort on the outskirts.

The fall of Port Arthur is believed to be imminent. It is believed that the garrison will make a desperate sortie before the end comes.

Numerous reliable reports through a dispatch carrier and other persons are to the effect that despite the extreme Japanese measures of the past fortnight to perfect a blockade of Port Arthur by means of sinking all junks near that place, the Russians inside of Port Arthur are considerably underestimated, as is also the resisting power of the fortress, which is likely to hold out for two months, and possibly until January, even under such a strength of assault as the Japanese are using.

Contrary to the belief that the Japanese have taken the outer forts at Port Arthur, it is now understood that the Russians up to August 15th were successfully defending a five-mile circular zone, and that although the old town was receiving an average of twenty-five Japanese shells daily, the restaurants and clubs, properly safeguarded, continued open and there was order throughout the town. The Japanese occasionally shell the new town, and often attempt to rush the outer trenches, sometimes arriving to within 100 yards of them, when they are unable to hold their own owing to the mortality in the ranks.

Round House Completed.

At Boyles the new round house, coal chute and sand house of the L. and N. have been completed.

Lumber Deal.

Edward Hines, of the Edward Hines Lumber company, of Chicago, has just completed the purchase of 50,000 acres of pine land in Mississippi. The land lies twenty miles north of Grove Port and is penetrated by four railroads. It is said that the consideration was something more than $1,000,000 cash.

Building Not Accepted.

Except in a provisional settlement the city of Selma and the contractors of the new municipal building have not come to a complete closing up of the affair. Mayor Atkins, Chairman Norris, of the building committee, and Architect Chamberlain went over the building and made a note of the defects and non-failures to come up to the requirements of the contract. These were served on the contractor and his reply as to offsets is awaited. It is probable that some arrangements may be made whereby the city will provisionally accept the building, holding back enough of the bonds to insure their compliance.

Fifty-five per cent of the divorced women in this country earn their own living, 32 per cent of the widows and 31 per cent of the single women do likewise, while but 6 per cent of the married women have anything to do with the financial end of the livelihood making. The figures would indicate, however, that 94 per cent of the marries need earn the family bread.

Went the Wrong Way.

With barely a cloud in the sky and against a light east wind, George C. Tomlinson, of Syracuse, and Professor Carl Meyers, of Frankfort, N. Y., the contestants for the $5,000 prize offered by the Louisiana Purchase exposition to the aeronaut who comes the closest to reaching the Washington monument at Washington, made successful ascension from the fair Saturday.

The balloons gently inclined toward the west as they ascended and then, suddenly striking a heavy current of air sweeping from the east, they simultaneously headed due west at considerable speed. Both were stocked with provisions sufficient for two days. Each balloonist carried with him carrier pigeons which will be released periodically en route and convey messages to the world's fair grounds.

Cut in a Fight.

In a saloon fight at Jacksonville, Ollie Williams was badly cut by Ben and Frank White. Williams received one four-inch gash in the left back and an ugly wound of about three inches was made on the left cheek. Ben White, father of Frank White, was cut through the hand as a result of his interference.

The cause of the fight could not be ascertained, but it is generally ascribed to a standing grudge which has long existed between the White and Williams families.

Getting in Line.

Thomas L. Lipsey has been appointed coroner of Pickens county. It is rumored that there is dissatisfaction with the sheriff and that he may resign or fail to qualify for his extended term. It is thought that the citizens asked for a coroner for the reason that the incumbent of that office is the only man in a county who can take the place of the sheriff if it is necessary to designate some one to do his work. There has been no coroner in Pickens county in many years.

Launchman Burns Hand.

Mr. George Nicolls, who has charge of the government naphtha launch, had his hand badly burned while attempting to put out the flames caused by a leak in the tank. He was making a trip to lock 9 and had in tow two barges and a drudge boat occupied by a number of workmen. His hands were severely burned, and it was only through hard work that the launch was saved.

Cotton Crop.

Last of the week reports from the various sections of the state indicate that cotton is really suffering in many places because of rains. There has been almost daily precipitation and the crops of the low lands are cut off very much. The highlands have been more fortunate, the water running off so fast that it had not time to settle between the rows and produce rust and rot to the low hanging bolls.

Talladega's Books.

Assistant State Examiner W. F. Wilkinson has reported on the books of J. B. McMillan, treasurer of the State Deaf, Dumb and Blind school at Talladega, and of the officers of the county of Talladega. There was found no trouble of any kind, save one little error of bookkeeping in the accounts of the probate judge.

New Industries in Mississippi.

New Albany—$25,000 brick and tile works.

Starkville—Telephone company.

Hattiesburg—Wood alcohol factory.

Utica—Electric light plant; water works.

Louisiana Launched.

The battleship Louisiana, sister ship to the Connecticut, building at the Brooklyn navy yard, was successfully launched at the Newport News Shipbuilding yards Saturday. Miss Juniata Lalande, of New Orleans, was the sponsor, and broke a bottle of wine across the prow of the new fighter.

Soil Survey.

Montgomery, Wilcox and Pike counties are to have a soil survey. W. E. McLendon, who is now at Saginaw, Mich., will begin the survey in Montgomery county October 1st. These surveys are being made in many southern sections at this time, and are done under scientific conditions.

Clergy Arrested.

Excitement has been caused by the fact that some of the Italian clergy have been summoned to appear before the court which is investigating the theft of the ancient cope in 1892, stolen from the cathedral of Ascoli and sold to J. Pierpont Morgan.

Lost Both Legs.

Walter Kellier, of Anniston, was run over by some freight cars and both of his legs were cut off, one above and the other below the knee.

Cotton to Russia.

The first of Texas' cotton crop was shipped to Russia—500 bales.

The English postmaster general is considering a penny-in-the-slot machine by which the purchaser will be enabled to obtain stamps at all hours.

Japan, it is said, will consider it a breach of China's neutrality if the Russian ships Askold and Grozovoi, now at Shanghai, are not speedily disarmed.

ITS FALL ADMITTED

Port Arthur's Commander Telegraphs Czar Garrison Will Die Fighting

FOUR MORE NEW REGIMENTS

Will Go Forward to Reinforce Kuropatkin. Troops Arrive at Mukden.

It is reported from a reliable source that Lieutenant-General Stoessel, commander of the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, has telegraghed to the emperor thanking him for the recent message of encouragement sent to the garrison of Port Arthur saying that the defenders of the fortress are ready and willing to lay down their lives, but adding that the garrison has already suffered severely and intimating that it is hardly possible to hold out for more than a month or six weeks.

Four more regiments will be raised in the Caucasus. The first contingent of the first army corps has arrived at Harbin. This corps was destined for Vladivostok, but upon urgent request of General Kuropatkin it will be diverted to Mukden.

From an excellent source it is stated that the ill fated battleship Orel which already has suffered two accidents will not be able to join the Baltic squadron. According to reports when her engine trials began it was discovered her engines had been practically wrecked by workmen introducing iron fillings into the valves and cylinders. It will probably require many months to repair the damage. This is the secret of the Orel's failure to go out on the trial trip with other ships last week.

An official dispatch from Liao Yang to the general staff reporting the continued Japanese advance on Sunday, confirms the report that General Routkovsky was killed during the rear guard engagements and adds Col. Von Reaben was also killed.

The total of the Russian losses on Sunday is not known, but 400 have passed through the first aid stations. The losses of the Japanese were considerable.

The Russian army has effected its retirement with transport and artillery on Liao Yang, and is now in position awaiting the advancing Japanese. In the attack on the Siaolindy position one Japanese battalion lost all of its officers.

The retirement of the Russian transport of four corps across the plain while the artillery and troops in the rear held off the Japanese afforded a magnificent spectacle. All along the extended lines there was a roar of batteries, the Russians working their guns with great coolness, and not retiring until the transport was in safety.

On the Japanese advancing to attack Anping the Russians evacuated the place, abandoning large quantities of stores.

It is roughly computed that the Russian force around Liao Yang consists of thirteen divisions.

In the fighting of August 26, the One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Sraisk regiment with a battery, executed a particularly successful flanking movement on the Japanese extreme right. The Russians, unperceived, got in the rear of the Japanese, whole columns of whom were mowed down before they were able to extricate themselves.

Eye-witnesses agree in admiring the fanatical bravery of the Japanese. Many of the wounded committed suicide rather than fall into the hands of the Russians.

Russian losses in the fighting of August 25th and 26th, east and south of Liao Yang, were 3,000 killed or wounded. The great majority of the casualties were sustained in Anping. The withdrawal of the Russians from their front at Anshanshan and from their eastern position was made simultaneous for strategic reasons.

German military men are discussing the situation of General Kuropatkin with intense interest. They have information that the defences of Liao Yang are of extraordinary strength. The fortifying of the town was entrusted to General Melishtko, who enjoys the reputation of being a master of military engineering.

During the past two months he has fortified all the strategic positions around Liao Yang in a manner well-nigh impregnable. Triple lines of trenches crown every height where artillery could be effective. The entire line of fortifications is connected through passages for facilitating the re-inforcements of endangered points, while bomb-proof retreats covered with steel rails protect reserves.

All important points have telegraphic communications with headquarters.

Postmistress Resigns.

Mrs. S. L. Smith, who has been postmaster at Alabama City several years, has resigned, her resignation to take effect at once. Mrs. Smith has given general satisfaction and resigned on account of ill health.

Colored Feud.

In a negro feud which took place at Flower Hill, Lawrence county, Rufus Elliott was killed and five other negroes badly wounded.

TENNESSEE TOWN BURNED.

Total Loss Will Reach $60,000. Court House Gone.

For three hours a fierce fire raged in the little town of Hartsville, Tenn., Sunday, causing the greatest loss of any conflagration in its history. The total loss is estimated at about $60,000.

The handsome new court house, ten business houses, the principal hotel, two livery stables and five residences were destroyed, the fire making ruins of an area of four or five acres in the central part of the town. The insurance is very light on account of the high rates charged.

The town had a disastrous blaze several years ago, when a large loss was incurred by insurance companies. The court house was then destroyed, and other buildings in the same section devastated Sunday. The rates of insurance are from 3 to 6 per cent and the town has no facilities for fighting fires.

SOUTHERN BANKS.

Alabama Reports Six New Ones as Her Record for July.

There were fifty-seven new bank companies reported in the south during July, and later information shows that many other financial institutions are also proposed and will soon apply for incorporation or charter. For July, Texas reports nine, North Carolina 8, Alabama and Tennessee six each, Mississippi five, Georgia, Indian Territory, Kentucky and Virginia three each, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and South Carolina two each, and Florida, Louisiana and West Virginia one each. The total capital represented by these institutions is nearly $2,000,000. A list of those in Alabama is as follows:

Bank of Andalusia, Andalusia, incorporated, capital $50,000; Interstate bank, Florala, organized, $50,000; Oneonta Trust and Banking Company, Oneonta, incorporated, $25,000, First National bank, Headland approved, $25,000; Central Trust Company, Birmingham, incorporated, $50,000; Citizens' National Bank, Thomasville, organized, $25,000. Total capital, $225,000.

HOUSE DYNAMITED.

Negro Miner's Home at Adamsville Blown up. No one Injured.

Dynamite was exploded under a house at Adamsville, late Sunday night. The house was occupied by a negro working in the Murray mines at Blossburg, a short distance away, but neither he nor any member of his family was hurt. No statement is made as to the perpetrators of the deed.

It is understood that the dynamite was exploded so that the full force would not be felt. Further developments will follow.

THROUGH A MISTAKE.

Father and Son Seriously Wound Each Other in Shooting Scrape.

Dr. R. B. Austin and son, Will, of Zion, Miss., are suffering from wounds received by the unintentional shooting of each other. The doctor had some trouble with a negro workman on the place, and while he was in the house looking for a gun with which to run the man away, Will took a stand behind the negro's cabin without telling his father. Dr. Austin then approached the house from the front, and both father and son, taking each other for the negro, fired several times, with the result that they were painfully but not dangerously hurt.

FIRE AT DECATUR

Destroyes Several Stores and Injures Hotel. Were Weel Insured.

On Sunday night, fire at Decatur caused a loss of fully five thousand dollars to flank street property. The fire originated in the colored saloon of Smith & Thompson. Losses: Three buildings owned by L. M. Falk, loss $1,500, insurance, $600; R. M. Purcell, restaurant, loss $1,000, partly covered by insurance; G. F. Barnesfield, grocery, loss $700, insurance $275; Dr. W. E. Sterrs, colored, drug store, loss by water $200, covered by insurance. Just before the fire occurred the Brooklyn hotel caught fire and the fire company responded. When they reached the scene this fire was out, but immediately the Bank street fire occurred and they responded promptly. Damage to Brooklyn hotel, $200. Origin of fires unknown.

Wood Alcohol Plant.

In a few weeks Mississippi will have in successful operation the only wood alcohol factory in the world using yellow pine in the distillery. The factory is being built by the Lignum Product Company, and when completed will employ about one hundred and fifty hands. Experiments have shown that the yellow pine makes an excellent article of alcohol, and the chances are that in a short while there will be more than one such factory in the piney woods section of Mississippi.

Alfonso's Regatta.

King Alfonso has undertaken to organize an international regatta. The king will present a cup and has promised to endeavor personally to obtain foreign entries.

Yellow Fever at Military Post.

Texas health department has been notified of the breaking out of yellow fever in the government military post at Brownsville. One death and several cases are reported there.

A BAREFOOT BOY

Robbed Jewelry Store at Cullman. Knew the Best Articles In It.

ABOUT $200 WORTH WAS TAKEN.

Police Have Clews and Are Following Them—Entrance Was Effected Through the Transom.

Burglars broke into the jewelry store of C. B. Sargent, at Cullman, Thursday night and stole about $200 worth of the finest goods in the store. An entrance was made through the transom over the door which was protected only by a wire screen. A hole was cut in this and foot prints on the walls and door indicate that the entrance was made by a barefoot boy.

The thief, whoever he was, was a good judge of jewelry, as he took nothing but the very best quality of goods in the store. It is thought that there were more than one connected with the burglary and the officers are following up clues.

Refusal to Pay.

On the advice of the attorney general, Acting Governor Cunningham has refused to pay a bill of $95 costs incurred by Dan Rogers, a negro, who was convicted of manslaughter and took his case to the supreme court of the United States after failing in the state supreme court, on the ground that there were no negroes on the jury. The court gave a judgment against the state of the amount mentioned and the governor was asked to pay it.

The clerk of the supreme court of the United States is not authorized to issue any process against the state, and there is no way to get the money unless the governor should see fit to pay it out of the extraordinary fund.

Jefferson's School Census.

There are in Jefferson county, according to the new school census, 52,301 children of the school age, which is between 7 and 21. Of these 31,595 are white. The school census last year gave the total number of school children as 49,978.

Two Trains a Day.

Sewer System.

Ensley's storm sewerage system was completed Saturday and turned over to the city, also the sanitary sewerage system. The sanitary sewerage was finished three or four days ago. Both systems were completed two months ahead of the time named in the contract and represent an outlay of over $60,000 by the city.

To the Fall Term.

Owing to the decision of the judge of the circuit court that he could not hear the mandamus proceedings instituted by members of the Bessemer bar to test the constitutionality of the Morrow court act, the case will have to go over until October.

Rust in Cotton.

Rust is threatening to cut the cotton crop short in the vicinity of Thorsby. Picking will be on in a few days where the rust has struck the cotton. The corn crop is reported as being fairly good.

Land Mark Gone.

The large wooden public school house which has stood in Decatur for more than twenty years and within whose walls some of the most influential citizens of today obtained the foundation of their education, is being torn down. The building was erected about the year 1882, and at that time was considered a fine structure. It will be replaced at once by a handsome modern brick which will cost $20,000.

Cotton Mill Church.

The Ella White cotton mills are erecting a church at their mill near Uniontown for the operatives, which will cost about $500 and will be nonsectarian. The church will be built at the company's expense.

Dallas Cotton.

The United States census bureau's special agent for Dallas county is preparing to take the first report of the cotton ginned in this county from the crop of 1904. The report will cover all cotton ginned from this year's crop up to September.

Appointed Postmaster.

William O. King has been appointed postmaster at Jones, Autauga county.

His Expenses.

Acting Governor Cunningham was 49 years old Thursday. The month of August seems to contain the governor's luck stone. He was born in that month and received his medical certificate in the same; was admitted to practice in August and married in August. In the same month his son was born. He was elected to both houses of the state legislature in August, and was nominated lieutenant governor on his birthday.

Four Hurt in Runaway.

An exciting runaway in which a prominent young society girl was badly hurt took place on the road between Stevenson, Saturday, Messrs. Henry Huddleston and Bogart and Misses Pearl Thomas, Lula Mason were returning from church in single buggies. The driver of the horse that was driven by Huddleston became detached before it could be adjusted the horse bolted, throwing Mr. Huddleston at the start, then running into the buggy being driven by Mr. [illegible] causing his horse to run away, the parties being thrown to the ground and dragged quite a distance before they were finally extricated. The two young ladies and Mr. Bogart were badly hurt and the buggies wrecked. The horses ran for two miles before being caught.

Cabbage Beaten.

The much dreaded cabbage worm has made its appearance in this section and the cabbage are not in demand. Several persons have reported finding them. The description given by all who have found them is the same. They are described as being about four inches long and the size of a cord, green and yellow in color. Two were brought to this city by a farmer Saturday and shown to a prominent physician who pronounced them as being deadly poisonous.

Hurt in Texas.

Four persons were severely injured in a collision on the Texas & Pacific near Fort Worth, Tex., Saturday. The injured are:

Passenger Brakeman R. [illegible] cut about the head, shoulder and arms.

Mrs. P. H. Sallee, of Montgomery, Ala., nose broken and cut in head.

Fireman Brown, two fingers cut off.

J. R. Allen, express messenger, broken.

Struck by Lightning.

While soliciting timber in the woods near his home in Franklin county, Miss., Jack Worthy, a prominent citizen of that neighborhood, was instantly killed by lightning the other day. Mr. Worthy was seeking shelter from a storm when he met his death and it was several hours before his body was discovered.

The Latest in Wells.

Lexington, Miss., can now boast of one of the finest artesian wells in the state. It has just been completed to a depth of one thousand feet, with a flow of 200 gallons per minute. It is the best well of the kind in Mississippi.

The Cane Crop.

From all quarters of the state comes the same story, that the hot weather and the moist soil is making the cane crop along and very promising. Those who are experimenting with cotton and rice, and are experiencing reverses in the cotton staples, are promising to return to cane ways and to return to cane.

American School Burned.

The American school in Erzeroum, Turkey, has been burned. It is believed the fire was the result of accident.

This is the second American school to be burned, the first being a institution for girls, burned last year. The loss in this instance is attributed to incendiaries.

Press President Dead.

George W. Cummings, president of the American Press association, died suddenly Sunday, at his home in Los Angeles, California. He was a native of New York.

Bought It Back.

J. W. Burcum, of Iowa, bought a big plantation near Vicksburg, Miss., that he sold three years ago. In disposing of his farm he sold numerous sections of the land and says that no place is more adapted to agriculture in all lines than Alabama.

Dead From Poison.

E. L. Tillery, representative of a Cincinnati soap factory, died at the Birmingham city hospital from the effects of poison, taken Friday last. Mr. Tillery was a native of Ohio.

Committed Suicide.

W. S. Crawford, a citizen of Jackson, Miss., for [illegible] years, died in New Orleans, is dying as a result of poison taken with suicidal intent. Doctors have been working with him for several hours, but see no hope for his recovery. Crawford left a note addressed to his sister, Mrs. A. Summers, his sister, asking her children good-by.

An English county judge remarked: "Not a case comes before me but what there is perjury on one side or the other."

Sues the City.

Allen Clay, of Girard, has brought suit against the city of Columbus, Ga., for $5,000 damages. He was injured by a bridge, resulting in the loss of his limbs, injuries sustained by his horse and wagon also being involved. He alleges that it was the duty of the city in that the guard rails on the side of the bridge were not properly kept up.

A correspondent writes to the Birmingham Journal:

Years ago we had occasion to visit a typically western community, this in the plains and in the midst of an immense cattle and horse raising district. It was in the time of their local races. The horseflesh of the track to be viewed, and when the noble steed or steeds of worldly goods. There were a number of good horses in the field and the owners, as the trotter is the world over, is too slow for the west of sport.

The Indians had congregated from every direction and the chiefs of many tribes with their little bands accompanied by their squaws and progeny. The squaws are generally tall and handsome, dressing in Indian fashion, discriminating as elsewhere in style, features and general bearing, as they would in the mountains and plains. Custom-like their wild little papooses. Admittance is always granted outside the circular fence in the center of the course, and they line up in rows on their canvases seemingly cold and indifferent to what is going on. However, their looks do not always tell the truth, for there were never any more inveterate gamblers than the Indians. They will, year after year, risk everything they possess on earth at a horse race.

The manner of betting is so extraordinary that, as we watched them, we saw there hundreds of articles of all sizes and value, from their saddles down to a jackknife. It was natural to suppose there was a limit to the amount that they would be able to circumvent out. But each race they swarm back to the ring, picking out exactly what he has ventured against the other and what is won by that venture. Then they throw down again what they bet the next time, in the same way. Then back to their places along the course, rarely smiling, seldom talking, but an occasional grunt of dissatisfaction.

The heirs to this great and rich country, have only now begun to lay their heads, and are dying off rapidly since the "running" of civilization came to them. In a very few years the full-blooded American Indian will be no more except but history. As they sat in line, calmly waiting for the race we were conjecturing what ideas of us were, and whether, after all, they were not happy in their ignorance, when the friend who was acting as host touched my arm and pointed to a man crossing the track. "Look," said he, "there goes John Black, the most practical joker in this county. I wonder what he is up to." The man referred to was passing behind the backs of silent figures with a small bundle in his hand and seemed to drop some of its contents on each horse as he passed along unnoticed by the Indians, who were looking straight ahead.

That is what they call 'root-em-toot-em,' said our friend, "and"—but at this point such a scene began as we shall never forget. The first cayuse that had switched his tail, picked up his feet and began to back; the second uneasily, looking around carefully at his rider. Then they, and dozens of others, broke into a wild prancing and bucking. A wild scene of excitement ensued. Worn out horses who had not bucked for years were reared, dashed and flew around with the wildest young ones. Riders were unseated, papooses dislodged from the family stem, and sent madly into the air, and bucks, minus their saddle, bridle, mane, or tail within reach were dumped into the ceremony, onto the ground. The uproar caused by the yells of the excited Indians, neighing horses and peals of laughter from the spectators made matters worse. It seemed as though Satan and his hundred imps were let loose. Even those erstwhile sad-eyed squaws took to fury with red-hot pitchforks. One dignified old lady in particular was in my eye. Her cayuse was making heavy detour of the immediate vicinity, at times standing on his hind legs and striking wildly in the air; again he would "buck" legs skywards endeavoring to form a front somersault, and coming down with such a stiff jar as seemed to settle the old fellow's head down through her spine. Once, and had she not already been dead, the sight would have killed her of her assailants. She was a striking example to a tenderfoot mounted on a pony that knew or ever was born how to buck.

The melee did not last only about five minutes, but was so inexpressibly funny that the realization of not being able to reproduce the picture makes one envy the pen of a Jerome or a Twain.

The Indians, after picking themselves from various corners of the field, actually hurrying together and getting to their scattered belongings, families, held a council of war, during which guttural sounds that we knew were imprecations. They were, dust-begrimmed looking after a brief time it was decided by a majorities man who was not on a horse, a hatless (the hat being lost in the race) and with one of his limbs, injured by having his horse and wagon fall on him. He alleges that it was the duty of the city in that the guard rails on the side of the bridge were not properly kept up.

That night the committee on entertainment for the coming festivities of the fair placed all power in the hands of John Black, he having demonstrated his ability to provoke mirth.

In explanation it must be said that the drops from his bottle were of some fluid which evaporates so quickly as to leave a peculiar stinging sensation, of course, which terrified the poor little beasts.

BIRD POACHERS TAKEN.

Seventy-Seven Japanese Found on a United States Island in the Pacific.

With 77 forlorn-looking Japs aboard in addition to her own crew, the United States revenue cutter Thetis came into the port of Honolulu, Hawaii, recently, with a queer story of the sea to tell. The Japanese were bird poachers whose presence on an American island was reported by Captain Niblack of the United States steamer Iroquois some weeks ago, and the Thetis was sent to stop their operations, but she arrived to find them only too anxious to leave their hunting ground and to abandon spoil which is worth at least $20,000.

The Japanese were employed by a Tokio firm, and they fitted out in the schooner Yeiju Maru of Yokohama last December. Their destination was Lisianasky Island a wonderful centre of ocean bird life in mid-Pacific, not far from Midway Island. The island is the property of the United States. The Japanese met with a mishap on their way out, a huge wave "pooping" the schooner and carrying away part of her stern. They put into Midway Island to get some lumber, and thus the United States authorities learned of their object.

According to their story they arrived at Lisianasky Island on January 8, and commenced at once to kill birds. They had a staff, not only of hunters, but also of skilled taxidermists and skinners, for the birds' plumage was intended for the millinery markets of Paris. On January 18 a fierce gale struck the island, and the Yeiju Maru, dragging her anchor, struck a coral reef, and was totally lost, ten of the men who happened to be aboard being drowned.

Another ship was expected, and on February 27 the Tiyu Maru arrived, bringing 39 more hunters. She sailed away, however, leaving word that she would soon return, and so the hunting continued. Week succeeded week and the Tiyu Maru never appeared. The Japs on the lonely island found their supplies getting dangerously short, having only a couple of hundred pounds of rice left, so they started to kill for food. There is little on the tern and other sea birds of the island that can be eaten, but the Japs cut what little there was and dried it. So they lived for many weeks, until on the 16th of this month the Thetis arrived. It is presumed that their expected ship was either wrecked or fell a prey to some Russian ship.

Captain Hamlet of the Thetis states that the destruction wrought by the party to bird life was something appalling. He estimates that they killed at least 300,000 birds, to judge from the number of cases of plumage they had secured. All of their spoil had to be abandoned, but it is properly preserved and will keep for a long time. There are 335 of these cases, the plumage in them being of the highest quality. The Japanese will be returned to Yokohama.—New York Post.

In the City of Mexico is a Thieves' Market, in which stolen goods are publicly offered for sale. It occupies an entire square. Here may be found everything that is portable, from a telescope to a ring, a silk dress, or a pair of stockings, and the articles are sold at about one-fifth of their actual value. The thieves do not sell the goods openly, for that would be dishonest, in the estimation of the Mexicans, but the sellers are they who purchase secretly from the thieves.

Dr. Forel, a well known American neurologist, who has devoted much time to the study of the nervous systems and the sensations of ants and bees, concludes that the vision of insects is in "mosiac," that is, as it were made up of bits separated by dark lines, the lines corresponding to the edges of the facets of the insect's eye The image is usually not sharp, though when the number of facets is considerable (twelve thousand to seventeen thousand), the definition is good. It is his conclusion that the insects have more than instinct—they have a soul, so to say; and at any rate, a mind capable of forming judgments, of choosing. Bees have, for example, an astonishing memory for localities. Instinct and automatism are far from constituting their mental life.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Having Also Put Twenty-Five Years Younger.

J. B. CORTEN.

J. B. Corten, farmer and lumberman, of Dept. N. C., says: "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor ride in an easy buggy. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me, and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors, and they have also found good results. If you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble you are liberty to do so."

Mr. Astor's Joke.

In a speech that William Waldorf Astor delivered before the London Clubmen's Benevolent Society he told of a costermonger who lay dying. Nevertheless, he expressed a desire for something to eat, and his wife asked him what he would like. "Well," said the costermonger, "I seem to smell a ham-a-cookin' somewheres. I think I could eat a bit of that." "Oh, no, John, dear," said his wife; "you can't have that. That's for the funeral."—Argonaut.

A Story of the Pope.

"My life has been strangely ruled by the number nine." Pius X. is quoted as saying previous to being chosen Pope. "Nine years I was a schoolboy at Riese; nine years a student at Padua; nine years a curate at Tombolo; nine years a priest at Salzano; nine years a canon at Treviso; nine years a bishop at Mantua; now for nine years I have been a cardinal-patriarch at Venice. As Pope—as long as God wills; perhaps another nine years."

The Japanese are considered to be among the very strongest people on earth. They are strong mentally and physically and practically they eat no meat at all. Their diet consists almost wholly of rice, steamed or boiled, while the better to do add fish, eggs, vegetables and fruit. For beverages they use weak tea without sugar or milk, and pure water, alcoholic stimulants being rarely indulged in.

Rueben Laycock, the atheist sage of Danville, Iowa, is dead. Just before his death he wrote his own funeral oration, setting forth his religious views at length, picked four girls of the village to sing at his funeral, and composed the music and wrote the words of two or three philosophical poems, setting forth his views of life, death and immortality.

The treasurer of the United States on May 6, 1903, redeemed two half-cent pieces. This is the first time in the history of the country that any such coins have been presented for redemption. It is more than a century since the first half-cent piece was coined, and it is nearly fifty years since the government discontinued minting them.

Until recently it was almost universally believed that petroleum was, like coal, derived from fossil vegetation or possibly from animals or fishes of some long past age. Now it is asserted by many scientific men that it may not be of organic origin, but may be due to subterranean chemical action.

It Walked In.

Early in the morning L. H. Haney, landlord of the City hotel at Barnesboro, Cambria county, was aroused from his slumbers by a crash in his room. Opening his eyes, he was startled to see a big bear. The noise had aroused Mrs. Haney, and she screamed for help. Her husband sprang out of bed and seized a chair to protect himself and wife.

Bruin came toward them, and Haney swung the chair. Mrs. Haney was still screaming and the guests of the hotel were coming from their rooms. About this time the bear concluded that things were getting too interesting and he decided to leave. As he emerged from the landlord's room into the hall there was a rush to get out of the way. Arms were quickly obtained, and the bear driven off.

Perhaps the most remarkable bridges in the world are kettle bridges, of which Cossack soldiers are expert builders. The materials of which they are constructed are soldiers' lances and cooking kettles. Seven or eight lances are passed under the handles of a number of kettles and fastened together by means of ropes to form a raft. A sufficient number of these rafts, each of which will bear a weight of half a ton, are fastened together, and in the space of an hour a bridge is formed on which an army may cross with confidence and safety.

In the royal mausoleum at Frogmore near Windsor castle, repose the remains of Queen Victoria and Consort Prince Albert, in one tomb. When the prince died the queen had a recumbent statue of him made and placed upon the tomb. At the same time a statue of the queen was made, by the same sculptor, and when she died this was placed alongside of that of her husband, in the space that had been reserved for it. The queen is depicted in regal robes, wearing a jeweled crown and holding a scepter in her clasped hands.

From Russian sources it is learned that streams of colonists are still pouring into Siberia to develop its agricultural resources, and on the shores of fifty rivers homes are rapidly being made. Farms as large as those of Illinois, Iowa, the Dakotas and Minnesota are cultivated. Siberian farmers are still backward in the use of agricultural machinery, although there is steady progress in that regard.

In the Japanese army every soldier carries with him a kettle made of ordinary thin Japanese paper. It is filled with water and then water is poured over it. It is hung over the fire and in ten minutes the water is boiling. The kettle can be used eight or ten times, and the cost of it is about two cents.

VEGETARIANISM.

A Theory That Has Been Maintained From the Earliest Days.

From the earliest days vegetarians have maintained that fruit and vegetables are the proper food for mankind, and in ancient times such leaders of thought as Plato, Pythagoras, Empedocles and Plutarch can be counted among the advocates of this doctrine.

It is in this connection that we find Virgil singing the praises of a natural diet apart from the use of flesh:

Soft chestnuts we possess
And apples ripe, with store of curdled cream.

Still more to the point are his words in the Second Georgic at the close of a vivid description of the joys of a golden age:

Before the reign
Of the Dictean king, before the days
When on slain bullocks fed an impious race.

Forbear, O mortals, to taint your bodies with forbidden food.
Earth is lavish of her riches and teems with kindly stores,
Providing without slaughter or bloodshed all delicacies.

DUCKS AND THUNDER.

The Possible Origin of an Ancient English Expression.

The phrase, "like a dying duck in a thunderstorm," probably originated in the peculiar susceptibility exhibited by these birds to electrical disturbances. They hang their heads at such times and turn up their eyes in the most comically pathetic fashion, giving a faint die away quack now and again, as though they had quite made up their minds that their last hour had come, but were resigned. They are thus precisely typical of people whose submission, more or less forced, is made mainly with an eye to effect.

This susceptibility seems to be inherent in ducks, for their eggs in course of hatching are spoiled by a thunderstorm when hens' eggs escape.

It is worth noting in this connection that Shakespeare in "Timon of Athens" says, "We, poor mates, stand on this dying deck." It is just possible that this may be the real origin of the phrase, as it refers to the sinking of a ship during a thunderstorm, and deck may have been carelessly recast as duck.—London Answers.

MARINE TURBINES.

They Date Back to the Time of Hero of Alexandria.

In turbine steamers there is a marked absence of vibration, while the position low in the hull of the machinery gives great stability and in men-of-war makes better protection possible and affords facilities in maneuvering.

The practical advantages of turbines are many. They reduce the oil bill considerably and while they occupy less floor and cubic space are simple in construction and operation.

In a turbine there is nothing to wear out. The only parts subjected to friction are the bearings at the extremities of the spindle, but these run in oil and after years of constant service show no wear. Parsons' turbine plants of 400 horsepower and 1,800 horsepower, which have been driving electric generators for years, have not yet cost a penny for repairs.

The steam turbine dates back to 120 B. C., when Hero of Alexandria described it in his book on pneumatics.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Print of the Springs.

A politician upon his arrival at a certain small town where he was to make a speech the following day found that the two so called hotels were crowded to the doors. Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the politician discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could. He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot which had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As the statesman is a fat man, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.

"Well," asked a friend, when the politician appeared in the dining room in the morning, "how did you sleep?"

"Oh, fairly well," replied the statesman nonchalantly, "but I looked like a waffle when I got up."—Youth's Companion.

STICHOMETRY.

A Book Custom That Never Attained Any Very Extensive Usage.

Stichometry, from the Greek stichos, a row, line or verse, and metron, a measure, is used in two senses. The first applies to the subject matter of Hebrew literature, whereby the rhythmic lines which constitute the parallelism of the poetical books are portioned off from one another; the second to an entirely artificial method of measuring off the contents of each book by so many lines of fixed or average length.

The former is of great antiquity and may have been introduced by the sacred writers themselves. The latter is due to Euthalius of Alexandria, 458, who applied it to the Pauline epistles and later to the gospels.

St. Jerome professed to have founded his method upon a similar treatment of the text in existing manuscripts of Demosthenes and Cicero. His original arrangement is thought to be represented by the Codex Amiatinus at Florence and that of Euthalius in the Codex Claromontanus at Paris.

GROUND PEARLS.

The Product of the Young of Certain Scale Insects.

The large order of hemiptera includes what are known as scale insects (coccidae), some of which are very destructive to fruit trees, while others are the source of cochineal and, perhaps, were the manna upon which the children of Israel fed in the wilderness.

The life history of these insects includes a motionless pupa stage, similar to the chrysalis of a moth or butterfly. Before passing into this dormant and helpless condition, the young of certain scale bugs make their way into the earth, and then a sticky fluid exudes from their bodies and quickly hardens into a protective coating, resembling plain or colored glass, and causes them to look something like beads, so that in some parts of the world they are known as "ground pearls."

The best known of these are dug out of the earth in the West Indies and strung into necklaces or other ornaments. Similar objects are prized and worn by the natives of other regions.

A Family Problem.

Teacher was explaining the meaning of the word recuperate.

"Now, Willie," she said, "if your father worked hard all day he would be tired and all worn out, wouldn't he?"

"Yes'm."

"Then when night comes and his work is over for the day, what does he do?"

"That's what ma wants to know."—Cleveland Leader.

His Point of View.

"What is your idea of a truly good wife?" asked the youth.

A Bottomless Lake in Sweden.

In Thomas Nauber's "Legends of Night," published in 1804, he mentions Lake Wetter, Sweden, is bottomless. He also tells other peculiar things respecting it. "Over it no fowls fly, it is frozen to death nor eatle cross it, but is consumed like a shadow of the Awfe ye inhabitants around it are deafened with ye hideousness of hits waters when out of its bed as out of Mont Gibell a pestiferous stinking smoak issues that will poysons ye whole countrie about."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

A Hint From the Baron.

Upon a client complaining to Baron Rothschild that he had lent 10,000 francs to a person who had gone off to Constantinople without leaving any acknowledgment of the debt the baron said:

"Well, write to him and tell him to send you the 50,000 francs he owes you."

"But he only owes me 10,000," objected the other.

"Precisely," rejoined the baron, "and he will write and tell you so, and thus you will get his acknowledgment of it."

Picture Books For Foreigners.

Picture books for the benefit of travelers are kept in the Paris police stations. It frequently occurs that foreigners lose things which they are unable to describe, because of unfamiliarity with the French language. The picture books contain representations of various articles, and the inquirer has only to turn the leaves and point out the illustration which most resembles the property he has lost.

One of the surest and most saturnal evidences of the growth and prosperity of a town is the amount of the post office receipts, and we are glad to learn that the amount of business done at the Clanton postoffice now justifies its advance from the fourth class to that of the third, or what is known as a presidential office. Steadily and surely Clanton is building up a thoroughly solid foundation, and it is conceded on all sides that we are by far the most prosperous town between Birmingham and Montgomery, with a rapidly growing business.

In fact Chilton county has made wonderful strides forward in the last seven years; there has been a large increase of population, vast tracts of land have been brought under cultivation, and new and thriving towns have come into existence. Less than ten years back no one ever dreamed of such a town as Thorsby being located and prospering on what was considered the barren an unprofitable tract of land in Chilton? In the northern part of the county the big lumber town of Ocampo has been the means of making a goodly town. Over in the west, Riderville has come into existence with its bustling population. Pletcher is another of the smaller communities which has come into being in the last dozen years.

The whole south of us Verbena does a land business than formerly. Mountain Creek is becoming an important place. Jemison more than held its own and has space. In the last few years Maplesville has gone ahead with bounds and promises in the future become an important railroad point, while Stanton continues to grow and flourish as never before.

Three rural routes out of Clanton, two from Jemison, one from Maplesville, and one from Stanton help to bring our farmers in closer touch with each other and the outside world, the mail visit each day being quite an interesting event. A route from Montevallo serves a considerable of northern end of Chilton, so that we may say we have routes in the county, and as soon as practicable will have several more.

Few of our farmers but own a good buggy, rendering visits a pleasure, and in many happy homes the organ or piano, accompanied by sweet voices, speak of the glad words of contented hearts and a prosperous people. Churches and school houses are filled, the people are greater and better than ever before and add to the sum of human usefulness at every opportunity. Chilton county has much to be thankful for, much to be proud of, and ranks high among the counties of Alabama.

It is easy to make a great many friends by being engaged to a man who make one miserable when with him.

DEATH OF Mrs. N. S. JOHNSON.

A gloom was cast over Clanton Sunday morning when it was learned that Mrs. N. S. Johnson, the beloved wife of Dr. N. S. Johnson, had expired during one of the periodical fits to which the unfortunate young woman was subject.

'Tis only about two years ago that Dr. Johnson brought his charming bride here from Mobile, and her pleasant ways and winning manners soon endeared her to a large circle of friends, who now mourn her untimely end. She had a kindly smile and a cheery word for all, and among the young people was very popular, sharing with them their joys and sympathizing with them in their sorrows.

The mortal remains were carried to Mobile Sunday evening, Dr. Johnson and Miss Alice Strock taking the last sad journey with the departed, nearly every lady in Clanton being at the depot paying a last tribute to the sweet young woman they had learned to love.

In the beautiful Magnolia cemetery at Mobile, the fair young body was laid to rest to await the judgment morn, and many friends of her girlhood days strewed the casket and grave with flowers.

To the widowed husband and the bereaved family all hearts turn in deepest sympathy, commending them in their sorrow to the God of love, who in His wisdom has seen fit to remove this bright young life from earthly scenes to heavenly bliss.

Billingsley.

Mr. Editor—Please allow a small space in your valuable paper this week for a few dottings from our little village.

Rev. H. M. Andrews is conducting a protracted meeting this week at the M. E. Church.

Mr. J. C. Pattillo of Verbena visited friends at this place last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. George Bruce of Clanton attended the picnic here last Saturday.

Mr. Coal Felton of Montgomery spent Sunday with home folks here.

Last Saturday a good crowd of people from Billingsley and surrounding country assembled at the ball ground half a mile south of town to witness three games of ball to be played between the Billingsley team and Blue Darters; Billingsley and B's and G's and the Blue Darters and Evergreen. But the Evergreen and the B. G. teams failed to show up. Consently they didn't have any game in the morning, but in the evening Billingsley and the Blue Darters started in for a game in a drizzle of rain which lasted only a few minutes. The batteries were Ive and John Burkhalter for the Blue Darters, and Adams and Dickenson for the home boys. The game was very closely contested. For the first four innings the Blue Darters shut Billingsley out, while they made three scores. In the fifth inning the Blue Darters put Newt Burkhalter in the box saying "look out little ones, you will never see first base any more, for he never fails to fan all who face him." Askins was the first man to face this great ball twirler and lifted a two bagger over centerfield, he was followed by Byrum, who put another over first base, so Billingsley run in three scores on the fifth inning, which tied the game. The Blue Darters, seeing things were not going their way, began to claim unfair decisions by the umpire and quit. Billingsley tried to get them to furnish an umpire to finish the game, but they declined the idea.

The Billingsley team are expecting to go to Prattville next week and play three games with the Prattville boys. A SUBSCRIBER.

New Salem.

Prof. Durham of Jemison has just closed a 20 days singing school at this place, which was a grand success in every particular. His class was largely made up of children who did not know their notes at the beginning of the school. But his skill was demonstrated as a music teacher at the close of the school by a concert Friday night, 26 ult., which received the highest praise from all present. The patrons of the school has made an arrangement to have another school taught next year, commencing Aug. 19th 1905, by Prof. Durham.

After an absence of of two months, Rev. W. J. Armstrong filled his appointment here, sickness in his family demanded his services at home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Collins and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Marcus of Clanton visited relatives here Sunday.

Now for the ball game. Saturday evening teams No. 1 and 2 played, the score being 21 to 11 in favor of No. 1. Batteries, for No. 1; Giles and Foshee; for No. 2; Downs, Henley and Hayes. ROSCO.

America Wins.

The Olympic Marathon race, the third foot race of the kind ever held and the first ever held on American soil, participated in by thirty-one men, classed among the fleetest runners of the world, was won by Thomas J. Hicks, of Cambridge, Mass., who is the first American to win this event, celebrated in the revival of Olympic games.

Albert J. Corey, of Chicago, a native born Frenchman, crossed the goal line second, and A. L. Newton, of New York city, passed third. The distance of the race was forty kilometers, equal to twenty-four miles and 1,500 yards. This distance was run by Hicks in the official announced time of 3 hours, 28 minutes and 53 seconds.

Truly a "School Boy."

Dr. Bert E. Young, Professor of modern languages in Millsaps college, Jackson, Miss., has returned from Grenoble, France, where he has been taking a two years' post-graduate course.

Dr. Young married Miss Ethel Smith, just before he went to Europe, and they return with a little son, now several months of age. The youngster enjoys the proud distinction of being the only child born within the precincts of the Grenoble school, though it was established somewhere back in the fourteenth century.

Railroad Work.

The air shaft of the grading of the big tunnel on the Louisville and Nashville extension near Gadsden has been completed and now the work is being rushed forward with more rapidity. The laying of the steel rails, which was stopped several weeks by the strike, has been resumed. It is stated that trains will be running not later than the first of next June and just as soon as completed a double daily passenger service from Birmingham via Gadsden to Atlanta and all eastern cities will be put on, thus placing Gadsden on a trunk line.

Pell City City Hall.

The contract for the new city hall for Pell City has been signed. The building is to be of brick and to contain a city prison in connection with it. The contract for a new $6,000 brick school building is to be let September 2d.

Find of Ore.

A big find of iron ore on the Greasy cove property of Capt. J. M. Elliott, Jr., and associates, near Gadsden, is reported by Obal Christopher, the mining expert, who has been busy the past six months making examinations and openings on the property.

Seaboard Air Line stock, both common and preferred, has advanced steadily since the Ryan-Blair syndicate purchased the Williams-Middendorf interest. Common was 15 1-2 Monday and preferred reached 31. About a week ago the common was quoted at 12 1-2 and the preferred at 22 1-2.

Mississippi Banks.

According to a report from the secretary of state's office there have been fifty new banks chartered in Mississippi since the 1st day of January, 1904, with a total capital stock of $2,296,030. Six of these banks have increased their capital to a total of $210,000.

It is now possible to stretch a man several inches by a machine, but the old way of pulling his leg is still popular, says the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

BATTLE OF LIAO YANG

Is Now Raging with 40,000 Men Engaged. Russian Guns Captured.

ARMIES ARE EVENLY BALANCED

Russians are Well Intrenched and Japanese Assaults Have Been Repeatedly Repulsed.

The great battle of Liao Yang, which began early Tuesday, which was the birthday of the mikado, raged throughout the day with increasing intensity, but no official details beyond two brief telegrams given out in the afternoon, have been received.

Every confidence is expressed in General Kuropatkin's ability to meet the Japanese assault on ground of his own choosing, but St. Petersburg is hungrily awaiting further news of the progress of the fight. The Japanese forces engaged in this battle can only be estimated, but they are believed to number about 20,000.

General Kuropatkin is known to have six army corps, besides 147 squadrons of cavalry in which great confidence is reposed, bringing up the Russian total to about the same number that the Japanese have. How the armies compare with regard to artillery is not definitely known; though throughout the war the Japanese have shown great preference for this arm and skill in its use.

Reports from the front credit the Japanese with having about 1,200 guns and many mountain batteries, and it is known that they have recently shipped 24 heavy guns to Yinkow. Four of the guns already have been mentioned in the dispatches as being in action.

General Kuropatkin, in addition to his field batteries, has a number of very heavy guns emplaced at important positions at Liao Yang, where the Russians have been strongly fortifying for some time.

The Japanese claim to have captured two field batteries during the past two days. Russian official accounts admit the loss of only six guns.

It is stated that a Japanese battery was captured south of Anshanshan during the preliminary fighting and that several Japanese guns have been captured since then.

A dispatch says:

The Japanese artillery fire only ceased at 8 o'clock this evening. The casualties have not yet been ascertained.

The Russian corps repulsed a hot Japanese assault, the Japanese being hurled back by bayonet charges no less than six times.

Two Japanese companies which succeeded in occupying a position were mistaken for Russians and annihilated by Japanese artillery fire.

There has been an immense quantity of ammunition used throughout the day, especially on the southern front against the Russian third corps.

It is believed that the Russian loss so far has been not shrdlu un nnnn so far has not been very heavy, except to the regiments which sustained bayonet charges. All the men serving one Russian gun, except one, were killed by shrapnal. The survivor, who was badly wounded, heroically brought his gun to headquarters and then refused to quit his place until the general peremptorily ordered him.

A dispatch from Mukden says that in the stubbornly fought battle which has been in progress near Liao Yang all attempts of the Japanese to turn the Russian flank have been repulsed. It is said at Mukden that the Japanese lost over ten guns, but details have not been received.

The news from Port Arthur up to August 26th was reassuring. The account of the battleship Sevastopol having gone out on August 23d to bombard the Japanese in Tahe bay does not mention that vessel as striking a mine.

The finance ministry has practically arranged with German bankers for a new loan of 500,000,000 roubles (approximately $250,000,000) at a higher rate of interest than that on the last loan. Only minor details remain to be settled, and the date of issue is not stated, but it is not likely that the loan will be floated until after the fall of Port Arthur.

River Gauges.

Weather Observer, L. A. Denson, announced that the government has approved and accepted the bids of contractors, for installing river gauges at points on the Pearl and Pascagoula rivers, and their tributaries. The guages are to be put in at once at Columbia, Hattiesburg, Merrill, Shubuta, Enterprise and Jackson and will vary in construction.

RATTLER IN HIS BED.

Henry Hall, a little Elba boy, was bitten on the finger by a rattle snake as he retired. He promptly cut the finger off. He lost much blood by the crude amputation, but it saved his life.

The North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, broke her own best westward passage by two hours and twenty-six minutes, making the time of passage five days, twelve hours and forty-four minutes.

7,000 PERSONS.

Will Be Thrown Out of Employment at Pullman.

The great shops of the Pullman company are to shut down on September 1, and thousands of men employed in the various departments of the car-building corporation will be without work.

Thirty thousand people at Pullman and in the surrounding towns will be affected. When the Pullman company is working on full time, 7,000 persons are employed. During the last few months, owing to a lack of new orders, men have been laid off 300 and 400 at a time, until now the force does not aggregate more than 2,000.

These men are engaged in finishing the construction of cars already under way, and when these are ready for the rails the shops will be closed and the plant rendered idle.

The plant may remain closed for more than a month.

GRIFFIN COMES HOME.

Not Known Whether He Will be Selected Panama Secretary.

Letters received from Secretary Virgil Griffin, of the Alabama railroad commission, announces that he will be back from the canal zone, Panama.

It is not yet known whether Mr. Griffin will be selected as the clerk of the Panama judiciary or whether he will continue as secretary of the railroad commission. Secretary Griffin left Montgomery six weeks ago with Judge Osceola Kyle, who was appointed a member of the judiciary for the canal zone by the president. The intervening time Secretary Griffin has spent with Judge Kyle in his new home in Panama.

WITH AN AX

Prisoner Cuts His Way Out of Jail, Father Remained.

Ben White, who with his father, Frank White, was arrested at Jacksonville, Saturday for an assault with a knife upon Ollie Williams, succeeded in making his escape from the local prison.

White effected his escape by means of an axe which was slipped into his cell during the night by some unknown person and the local authorities are unable to discover a clue as to his whereabouts. Insisting on his innocence and having a firm faith in his acquittal by the court the elder White refused to go with his son. If young White is caught he will be removed to Anniston.

SULTAN'S BROTHER DEAD.

Declared Insane and Was in Solitary Confinement for 28 Years.

It was reported in May that Murad V, the thirty-third sovereign of the house of Osman, was dying, and that his adherents all over Turkey, known as the young Turks, were secretly arming and awaited the signal to rise in insurrection.

Murad V was born in 1840, and ascended the throne after the murder of the Sultan Abdul Aziz, in 1876. In July of that year Murad was placed under the regency of his brother, the present Sultan Abdul Hammid V, and in August was dethroned. Outwardly this act was performed legally by the council of ministers, on the ground that he was insane. The real facts of the case, however, will probably never be known, but it has been claimed that Murad was a good deal more sane than his brother.

The confinement of Murad has been one of the cruelest character. Only his jailers were allowed to see him, and every precaution was taken to prevent any intelligence of what was going on in the outside world from reaching him.

DR. FARLEY ACQUITTED

Grand Jury Indicted Him After an Exoneration.

Dr. John R. Farley was acquitted of the charge of murder in the first degree after a trial of two days in the circuit court. The jury was out twenty-seven minutes. The verdict was received with applause.

Dr. Farley killed Davis Johnson, a well known young man last Christmas. He was exonerated after a preliminary hearing. The probate court and the grand jury made a notable case of it by returning an indictment against the defendant charging first degree murder. Dr. Farley was in jail a week. He proved self defense.

It Was Brilliant.

A large meteor fell not very far east of Ellisville on Sunday night. It appeared very suddenly, like a huge ball of fire, and when seemingly close to the earth burst with a report similar to, though not quite so loud, as a cannon-cracker.

After Oil.

Near Hazel Green the New York-Alabama Oil company has a well which has been plugged, having a pressure of natural gas of 118 pounds to the inch, and a second well at a depth of 950 feet, has a strong pressure of gas and flattering prospects of oil. The purpose of the company is to strike oil if possible and if not the natural gas from several wells will be piped to Huntsville, a franchise having been secured several months ago.

IN WORLD'S FAIR CITY

Grade Crossing Accident Deals Out Death and Injuries to Street Car Occupants

SEVEN KILLED; 19 INJURED

Electric Car Stopped Across the Wabash Track and Was Cut in Two.

Seven persons were killed and nineteen were injured, two probably fatally, by the collision of a Wabash world's fair shuttle train with a suburban electric car at St. Louis Saturday. There were twenty five passengers in the car and none escaped injury.

The shuttle train was returning from the world's fair grounds at twenty miles an hour, it is said. The street car, which was on its way to the suburbs with a load of people returning home, stopped directly in front of the locomotive and was cut in two. The trucks of the car were knocked 100 feet away, while part of its roof was carried 200 feet further by the train. Bodies of the dead and injured with wreckage of the dismantled car were scattered along the track for one hundred yards.

A. W. Burbank, engineer of the shuttle train, who blames the motorman of the electric car for the accident, said:

"I was within 100 yards of the suburban crossing when I saw the suburban car start across the track. It looked to me as if it had ample time to get across."

The watchman and the flagman at the crossing and some of the passengers confirm the statement that the car stopped, started across the track, and then stopped on the track.

No satisfactory explanation has been given why the car stopped in the middle of the track after it started across.

The Korean government shall previously consult the Japanese government in conducting treaties and conventions with foreign powers, and in dealing with other important diplomatic affairs, such as the granting of concessions or the making of contracts with foreigners.

Attendance at World's Fair.

The division of admissions of the world's fair announced that the attendance for the last seven days amounted to 759,307. The total attendance since the fair opened is given at 9,117,556.

Railroad Commission.

The Alabama railroad commission at its last meeting ordered the Southern railway to rebuild its depot at Coleanor by January 1, 1905, in compliance with a general order issued August 1 last, and allowed a general raise in the cotton seed hull tariffs on the Western of Alabama railroad.

Sunday School Convention.

The Calhoun county Sunday school convention will meet at Piedmont Thursday the 8th and be in session for two days. From all indications it will be one of the largest attended and most profitable conventions yet held in the county. A fine program has been arranged.

Joseph Carthel, state organizer, who recently attended the international Sunday school convention in Jerusalem, and other workers of note, are expected to be in attendance.

One-Sixth of the Whole.

The assessment of Jefferson county shows valuations of $51,000,000, nearly one-sixth of the entire state.

May Use Electricity.

The Mexican railway, known as "the Queen's Own," the oldest railroad of the republic, proposes if consent can be given by the London officials to electricise the line from Mexico to Vera Cruz. It's estimated the company would save $500,000 annually in coal. The railway was commenced in 1857 and completed in 1873, and has never resulted in the loss of life among passengers.

WITH A HATCHET

Boy's Skull is Fractured by Negro Assailant Captured.

Jim Gilbert, colored, struck 13-year-old Eugene Milam, the son of a respectable Decatur white family, in the forehead with a hatchet, cutting out a portion of his skull. The boy may die.

The boy's parents moved from a house at Austinville, a suburb, but left their chickens there. The boys went after the chickens, but found Gilbert there, who had nailed up the gate by request of the owner, and he stood and forbid the boys to enter. They attempted to enter and were thereupon attacked.

USED AN AXE.

Priest Wanted to Preach; Congregation Nailed Him Out.

After hewing his way into the church with an axe the Rev. Father Bekavac, of Allegheny City, held early mass, while a large number of his former congregation awaited him outside and made frantic efforts to assault him at the conclusion of the ceremony. He was saved from violence only by the protection of fifty policemen.

When Father Bekavac reached the church he found the doors locked and nailed fast. He secured an axe an applied it to one of the doors, while the police rided him to force it down.

St. Nicholas church has been the scene of factional disturbances for several months and the dissenters demanded the removal of Father Bekavac, charging misappropriation of funds. Bishop Phelan upheld the priest and ordered him to hold services in spite of the protests.

WON'T GIVE UP.

Sir Thomas Lipton Wants Watson to Design a Challenger.

In an interview Sir Thomas Lipton appeared still to entertain some hope of inducing George T. Watson to change his mind and begin a new challenger for the America's cup, which the designer had decided not to do, giving ill health as the reason.

Sir Thomas said that difficulty had arisen owing to the fact that Mr. Watson was unable to take the journey to the United States. He said he told the designer he would be satisfied with any deputy he would nominate to accompany the boat, but Mr. Watson said he could design no boat unless he was able to accompany it himself.

A HANGING IN EFFIGY

Results in a Fight With Possibly Fatal Results.

W. A. Whitner, a white miner, 35 years old, was probably fatally shot at Coalburg by a white man whose name is unknown. He was carried to the hospital, where he is in a critical condition and not expected to recover from the operations which were performed on him to remove the bullet from his abdomen.

According to the best information obtainable a figure of one of the mine bosses at Coalburg was hung in effigy to aid in celebrating Labor day, and a fight grew out of this in which Whitner was shot.

ELEVATED TRAINS MEET

And Several Persons are Injured—The Switch was Turned.

Eight persons were injured and six cars of the Chicago and Oak Park Elevated railroad were derailed in a head-on collision. The turning of a switch is said to have been the cause of the wreck, and the police are searching for the switchman to explain the accident.

Machine Shop Burned.

At Columbia the machine shop of the A. A. Jones manufacturing plant sustained damage by fire which will amount to $5,000. The fire was caused by the careless throwing down of a match near the gasoline tank.

BURGLAR TRAPS

Set in the Decatur Shoot the Wrong Men.

In New Decatur a burglar trap shot Lonnie Sherman and probably fatally injured him. At Decatur a negro who was assisting in the setting of a trap was killed by the accidental discharge.

Many of the injured were taken to hospitals and it is thought several of these will die.

Among the injured were five men who were on a fourth floor balcony when it fell with them.

The small number of men among the killed and injured was due to the fact that most of the men who lived in the building were asleep on the roof, while but few of the women and children were there. Those on the roof were unable to escape by descending through the burning building and made their way to safety over the neighboring roofs.

Meanwhile the members and the families who had remained in their rooms found escape cut off and perished.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp that had been left to light the hall on the second floor, and the sleeping tenants were not aroused until the hallway was ablaze and escape through the building was cut off.

Big Building for Montgomery.

There is talk that several capitalists are anxious to erect a modern [illegible] frame office building in Montgomery costing about $400,000, but can not secure a site. The people are holding on to their property; $100,000 was offered for the old Winter building, corner Dexter avenue and Court square, but this was refused. The people are getting interested now and may soon find a site that will be acceptable to the capitalists. The capitalists, it is understood, want to build a 14-story office building.

Norfolk, Va., capitalists have formed a $200,000 company for the purpose of cultivating a 15,000 acre tract of land in eastern Virginia and Carolina to grow grapes for wine manufacturing.

Makaroff's Culture.

Admiral Makaroff was something more than the typical cultured Russian, says the Westminster Gazette. One might talk with him almost without suspecting that he was a foreigner, so easy was his command of English. His longest stay of late years in England was during the building of the ice-breaker Yermak, which he designed and which he saw constructed at Newcastle-on-Tyne, giving personal superintendence to every detail. Admiral Makaroff was an enthusiast in regard to that vessel. He believed that she was the forerunner of a type by means of which the secrets of the Frozen North will ultimately be given to the world, and he talked with light dancing in his eyes of what the ice-breaker might ultimately be expected to achieve.

The Spice of Life.

A white Russian priest must be married, but he cannot marry a second time. If his wife died he must enter a monastery. Hence, says a writer in the World's Work, the Russians tell many stories of the extraordinary means to which the priests resort in guarding the health of their wives. If the priest's consort sneezes, a mild panic ensues in the household.

Drove Away Hungry Lynx.

As Roland Scribner of Stafford, Vt., was out fishing the other day in a stream within sight of the house, he happened to glance behind him and saw a lynx coming toward him from the woods, growling and snarling, his mouth open. The boy waited until the animal got within a few feet of him, and as it crouched to spring, dealt it several blows with his fishing rod, whereupon the lynx turned and ran back into the woods.

(HOW DO ANIMALS AVOID POISON?)

IN a recent article in the London Spectator this subject is very fully discussed and the Literary Digest has selected some paragraphs from the article which may interest our readers.

The writer of the article believes that the sense by which animals detect poison is that of smell, that of taste being usually deficient. Carnivorous animals, however, have a kind of half-way sense "between taste and stomach ache" which tells them when they have taken anything likely to disagree with them and nature enables them to get rid of it by the throat with ease. The writer goes on to say:

Wolves, tigers, leopards and other carnivora are difficult to poison because of the power which they have of rapidly getting rid of the drug. Lions on the other hand, are very frequently poisoned, as they eat voraciously and quickly, more like a dog than the other large felidae. It is said that a good many lion skins, especially those brought back by foreign counts and others from Somaliland before the regrettable misunderstandings between whites and blacks had begun in that region famous for large game, were obtained by the unsportsmanlike method of poisoning carcasses and leaving them for the lions to devour. Cattle, which have no less than four stomachs, are hopelessly poisoned if once they have swallowed a dose, whether in a toxic plant or otherwise. It is this curious arrangement of their interior which makes it such a difficult matter to give cattle medicine at all.

In common with human beings, animals seem to be affected by poison in certain forms when in particular condition of health. At other times they can eat the same plant or shrub with impunity. In certain states of health a man can eat pork, lobsters, cockles, scallops and other somewhat risky foods without bad effects. At other times the same edibles would produce on him the effect of ptomain poisoning. Two persons may eat the same food at the same time, and while one is perfectly well afterwards, the other may become violently ill. The curious cases of yew poisoning among horses or cattle seem to be somewhat analogous. They will sometimes browse on shoots of yew and take no harm what ever. At other times they are obviously made very ill or die from eating the leaves. They have even been found dead with the yew fresh and undigested in their stomachs. Where poisonous plants are present in any great numbers in herbage it seems impossible to prevent cattle from eating them.

Birds seem to have no discrimination whatever in regard to poisons, probably because they have no sense of smell, and swallow their food without masticating it. Such intelligent birds as rooks will pick up and eat poisoned grain, and crows and ravens readily eat poisoned eggs or meat.

Chickens will eat poisonous seeds of the laburnum and die from the effects. Whether birds such as tits and bullfinches ever do so does not seem to be known.

Wild birds are frequently found dying in gardens, though apparently they have been in good health a few hours before and their death may probably be due to the consumption of poisonous seeds. Animals will occasionally fail to recognize the poisonous plants of a strange region. The writer cites an instance where camals from India and Somaliland were sent out together in the latter country. The native camels thrived, but the Indian camels were all poisoned. It is possible, of course, that both varieties of camels ate of the poisonous herbs of the region, but that the native beasts had been rendered immune in some way as cats that have eaten snake poison are believed to become protected from cobra bites. The writer, however, favors the theory that they purposely avoided what they instinctively knew to be poisonous. He goes on: "What ever reason for the fact, 'warning notices' of various kinds are frequently affixed by nature to poisonous plants, almost as legibly as the label which the law insists that chemists shall place upon poisonous drugs. Many of the poisonous fungi have an odious smell, so much so that no mammal or bird ever thinks of touching them. On the other hand, the scent of the mushroom is distinctively appetizing and pleasant. Henbane, an exceptionally poisonous and quite beautiful wild plant, has a most unpleasant scent which is instantly detected by cattle when the plant is green. They most carefully avoid touching it when growing, but it seems to lose its warning odor when dried for hay. Instances have been quoted in which it has been injurious to cattle when consumed in this form. The common 'fool's parsley,' which has poisonous seeds, is not, we believe, eaten by any bird, neither do cattle touch it when growing in meadows. But they seem to have no such suspicion about the water hemlock which is so peculiarly deadly to both cows and horses."

One of our most poisonous native plants is the ordinary fox glove from which digitalis is made. Every part of it is toxic in a high degree, flowers, stem, leaves and roots. It has no unpleasant odor of any kind, but for some reason cattle never touch it. In the hemlocks, several of which are poisonous to man or beast, the dangerous ingredient varies. Spotted hemlock kills or injures human beings by causing paralysis, which progresses through the nervous centres till it attacks the lungs. In the water hemlock the poison acts in a different way. Like another and more deadly vegetable poison, strychnine, it causes tetanic spasms. The difference in the nature of the poison contained in plants so closely alike as these two hemlocks, may perhaps account for the failure of cattle to know the danger to which they are exposed in eating them. It may well be that one variety, though injurious to man, may not affect cattle. Consequently they might naturally eat without any misgiving the other variety which is deadly to them.

Memories of Early Married Life—The Story of a Benedict.

Young Caterby, who had been married only two months, leaned back in his chair and gazed pensively out into the distance.

"It's simply remarkable about my wife," he said.

Von Blumer, who had been married ten years, gazed at his young friend with some show of interest.

"What is?" he asked.

"Why," said Caterby, [...] to the manner in which she has caught on. When I think of the luxury she had, it's remarkable. That girl——"

Von Blumer stopped him with an authoritative gesture.

"Yes," he said, "I know all about it. That girl, as you say, was brought up to have everything in the world. Why, she didn't know what it was to raise a finger. It was the one thing that troubled you, wasn't it? When you married her you couldn't give her as much, you know, as she had had, and it worried you. But now, just look at her. She has taken right hold. She gives the nicest little dinners. She superintends them all herself. She is developing into a superb cook. And better than all, she is oh, so economical! From what you were half afraid was a spoiled child she has grown into a thrifty, wise, efficient housekeeper. Isn't that right?"

Caterby turned in amazement.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed, "that was just what I was going to say. How did you know so much about it?"

"Because I've got such a good memory."

"What has that to do with it?"

Von Blumer smiled.

"Simply this," he replied. "At present my wife is spending all her spare time handing me a line of bills that would stagger a gas president, and she's so busy with the neighbors that I'm thinking of hiring a housekeeper. But, my dear boy, I can well remember when I, too, had only been married two months."—Life.

Welsh Boy's Strange Funeral.

The burial of the lad, Griffith Morgan, of Aberdare, who wandered from home and for whom thousands of miners went in search before his body was recovered, gave rise to remarkable scenes yesterday. Ten thousand people lined the route to the cemetery and another 3000 took part in the funeral procession.

First came the local ministers, then his schoolmates, numbering several hundreds, followed by hundreds of miners. Behind these came a choir of 500 men, women and children, who sang all the way to the cemetery those doleful but sweet melodies peculiar to Welsh funerals. These included the tunes "Alexander," "Aberystwyth" and "Lausanne."

Immediately behind the flower covered coffin were the male relatives, followed by a large number of vehicles of all kinds carrying the women mourners.—London Daily Chronicle.

The Ideal Servitor.

Dickens used to tell a story that had been related to him by his biographer, John Forster. Forster had a very devoted and skilful servant, Henry, who was always most correct in everything he did. It was therefore surprising one night, when Forster was entertaining several persons at dinner, to see the scrupulous Henry make error after error. He upset a plate of soup, and Forster uttered a cry of alarm. He forgot to serve the sauce for the fish, and his master said, "Why, Henry!" Altogether he made an excellent dinner seem a slovenly and poor repast. When at the end he had set the coffee and walnuts on the table, Henry leaned over Forster's chair and said, in a tremulous voice: "Please, sir, can you spare me now? My home has been on fire for the last two hours."

It Was His.

A small boy in a town not far from New York was telling his mother of a mishap which had occurred to a playmate of his. The youngster, it appeared, had been regaling himself with one of those large, marble-like candies which are a particular delight of childhood, and in a moment of excitement it slipped down and stuck in his throat. But, said the narrator, they succeeded in relieveing him.

"Oh," said his mother, "you got it out, did you?"

"Naw," was the impatient answer, "we shoved it down; it was his, wasn't it?"—Harper's Weekly.

Plows in Algeria.

The Governor-General of Algeria has recently issued a circular, advising the natives to discard the antiquated plows, now generally in use, in favor of modern improvements. Of the 2,800,000 rectares in Algeria devoted to the growing of grain, more than 2,300,000 are cultivated by natives.

WOMAN KEEPS CIRCUS SCHOOL.

MRS. LINDA JULIAN TRAINS RIDERS AND ATHLETES.

At Her Winter Quarters in Havana, Ill., Contortionists, Tumblers and Bareback Riders of the Big Shows Practice.

HAVANA, Ill., boasts of one of the strangest schools in the world. It is nothing more nor less than a training place for people who furnish the thrills in circuses. In this unique institution contortionists are kept in training and taught new tricks to make the public hold its breath. Daring bareback riders are put through their paces and taught to do hair-raising turns, and slack wire and trapeze performers, as well as clowns and tumblers, are kept in practice.

And the strangest part of the whole thing is that the school is conducted by a woman. This woman is Mrs. Linda Jeal Julian, a bareback rider and a woman who has been in the circus business for the past thirty three years. She has ridden around circus rings in every country on the globe.

When she began her riding, nearly a half century ago, the circus business was not at its present height. It was then a sort of strolling business, and the people who followed it were for the most part shiftless, and were looked upon as people of very little account. But as other things began to develop and change for the better, the circus also became more important and in many respects more respectable.

Linda Jeal, as she is billed on the flaming circus posters, has taught many people how to ride in her time and has amused thousands by her feats of riding. And she still amuses the people with her feats, for she has gone out with Campbell Brothers' show this year and began riding recently in Fairbury, Neb.

This school, which is presided over by this quick-witted and businesslike woman, is unique. The average circus performer is improvident. He is all right when the sun shines, the birds sing and the sound of the calliope is in the land.

He is well fed, housed and happy when the parades are winding through the streets of the cities and towns and the sound of the brass bands is heard in the land, but when the cold blasts blow, when the snow impedes the progress of the glittering wagons and the animals are in winter quarters, then the poor circus man is chilly, cold, comfortless and hungry.

It is this time of the year that he turns a longing eye in the direction of the Julian winter circus in Havana, and if he is able to get transportation he comes and spends the winter. Mrs. Julian, who, by the way, is a widow, runs a big boarding house. Here, about the long table in her dining room, the contortionists, tumblers, bareback riders, clowns and trapeze performers gather at meal times to discuss what they have planned for the future, talk over their new turns and tell tales of circus life.

Near the centre of the town Mrs. Julian has what is called the winter circus. It is a big, red, barnlike structure. The inside of this corrugated iron building presents a sight to gladden the heart of the average boy and stir the blood of the jaded amusement lover. There in the middle of the place is a padded circus ring. Above are all sorts of trapeze bars, slack-wires and all the paraphernalia used in the most approved circus.

To one side there is a fine, comfortable stable, in which live the seven handsome horses belonging to Mrs. Julian. Three nights each week during the winter months this place is filled with people from the town, traveling men and visitors, who go to look on while the circus people try their new tricks. The practice thus given them before the public keeps them in good shape, and Mrs. Julian is enabled to pay expenses and keep her big family from want and the cold.

The big family disbands when spring comes. The different teams go to take up their summer work. This year some went away with Ringling Brothers' show, some with Barnum, others with Sells-Forepaugh, some with the Gollmar Brothers' circus and still others with the Robinson and the Campbell aggregations. Next fall when the circus days are over many of them will flock back to Havana to find a comfortable home.

With Mrs. Julian this year will be three children known as the Julian children on the bill boards. Daley, Chuckie and Fritz are the three, and they are aged ten, nine and seven, respectively. Fritz, the diminutive acrobat, is a clown. He will make fun and promises to become famous in this line. Daley and Chuckie are acrobats. They have been in the business for four years, and are proficient. They do some very clever and daring tricks and are great favorites.

One of Mrs. Julian's most famous pupils is Dallie Julian, now Mrs. Dallie Ledgett, who was the idol of New York circus lovers in Madison Square Garden a year or so ago, where she did the daring back somersault on horseback, there being but one other woman in the world who ever dared do this feat. Mrs. Ledgett practiced her famous trick here in Havana under the direction of her aunt, Mrs. Julian.

Speaking of her work, Mrs. Julian says: "I think the work fascinating. I have been in it so long that it seems second nature to me. I have ridden for thirty-three years and have become wedded to the work. Of course there is an element of danger about it, but that is one of the reasons I like it, I suppose. I have been injured many times, but so far escaped with my life. Once my horse stepped on me and cut my leg open. I had to have twenty-two stitches taken in it, but I was idle only a short time.

"I have always been fond of horses and have liked to be around them. When I was a girl my father had many horses, and I was never afraid of them. I loved to be around them and was never happier than when I was riding a fast one. I was apprenticed to a circus rider early in life, and have been in the business ever since.

"My husband, who was an acrobat, was killed while he was with the Campbell circus. He was passing from one car to the other one night while a train was in motion and fell between them and was crushed to death. It seems very strange that a man should be in the circus business so long, when it is so dangerous and then be killed on a railroad train, but such is life."—Chicago Chronicle.

Satisfaction in Work.

President Charles W. Eliot in the World's Work says that any occupation that combines avoidable risks with uncertain productiveness has in it two large elements of interest, and, therefore, of possible satisfaction. Thus the miner's occupation in which it is uncertain how much coal or ore a given expenditure of labor in drilling and blasting will produce has these two elements of satisfaction. Every trading operation has in it the interest of adventure. Finally, those occupations which, like the building trades, present from day to day, or from year to year, new materials, processes, designs and products, and, in these days, what occupation does not offer many elements of novelty—give to the life of the workman the interest of variety, with new things always to learn. The higher employments all offer a large variety from year to year, and even from week to week, but the lower employments too offer to ambitious and alert workmen a large variety of mental and bodily occupation. A middle aged printer lately said to a friend of mine, "I have been thirty-five years in a printing office, and still I learn something new about printing every day." Indeed, it has been a characteristic of the last thirty years that all the main industries have been made over, root and branch.

An Early Numeral System.

In a paper read before the Philological Society of the University of Michigan, recently, Professor George Hempl commented upon the forerunners of our present system of enumeration. Some two years ago, in seeking the origin of the Runic letters (the first letters used by the Germanic races), Professor Hempl discovered the primitive Germanic numeral notations. This threw new light upon the early Germanic numerical system, as well as upon the primitive Indo-European numerical system, and upon the development of the Greek alphabet, and the Greek numerical notation.

The primitive Indo-European numerical system was a mixture of the decimal and the sexagesimal. The first large number was the "hund," or "hundred," that is 120. Between sixty and 120 there were no numbers like our seventy, etc., seventy being "a shock and ten," and eighty being "a shock and twenty." The introduction of our present numbers between sixty and 120 arose out of the introduction of the decimal hund or hundred, that is, 100, in distinction from which the old 100 (120) was called the duodecimal hundred, or the "great hundred," which is still used in Iceland and parts of England.—New York Tribune.

St. Paul's Island Park.

Dr. Justus Ohage became, a few years ago, health officer of St. Paul. He noticed a bit of shoal in the Mississippi, visible only when the river was low, but accessible within ten minutes' ride from the City Hall. Securing possession, by gift, of as much as he could, and by purchase of what he could not beg, he had the city's clean waste dumped upon this little island, thus rapidly bringing it above high-water mark. On the four and a half acres thus ingeniously wrested from the "Father of the Waters," the city of St. Paul now maintains, within easy reach of a majority of its population, a children's playground, a small "Zoo," a vegetable garden (to support the forty uniformed attendants), public baths, with modern sterilizing plants for the bathing suits, a day nursery, a boy's gymnasium and a girl's gymnasium—and all united by a small but satisfactory park.—The World's Work.

Easy Lesson in Politics.

"Good evening, Mr. Buttin," said Gladys, rising to greet the caller. "Mr. Honey and I were just discussing politics when you arrived. We have been arguing about the difference between a majority and a plurality."

"Well," said Mr. Buttin, with a patronizing glance at Mr. Honey, "it is easily understood. A majority is a preponderance of favor between two parties, while a plurality is an excess over all."

"Ah, yes," sighed Miss Gladys. "It is just like the old saying that 'two is company and three is a crowd,' isn't it?"

And the meaning look that passed between Gladys and Mr. Honey convinced Mr. Buttin that he had been counted out.—Judge.

EDITOR Frank Crichton is improving.

COMMISSIONS have been received and bonds duly filed, and E. B. Deason is now Judge of Probate, and W. H. Foshee Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county—for the next six years and three months we hope and believe.

COMMISSIONERS Court was in session Monday and Tuesday to hear applications from Back Tax Commissioner W. M. Adams for raising the assessment of several taxpayers. Almost 80 citations were issued and the court sustained between 60 and 70 of them.

DEMOCRATS of Chilton county, who of late years have been discouraged at the political outlook, have discovered that the future is bright as the dawn, and that large numbers of former Populists will vote the Democratic ticket in November, swelling the majority to goodly proportions.

IN some respects the battle of Laio-Yang last week was the greatest battle in the history of the world. Nearly half a million men in mortal conflict at one time is a fearful commentary upon the civilization of the twentieth century, and history records nothing like such numbers in former battles. There seems to have been considerably over 200,000 Japs pitted against fully 200,000 Russians, and for a full week, day after day, and night after night, the battle waged with frightful loss on both sides. The modern and ancient warfare each had its place in this tremendous battle, the modern long range gun decimating its hundreds from a distance, while the days of chivalry were reproduced in desperate hand-to-hand encounters. The barb wire fence of today entangled the Japs in their terrific onslaughts, and at one part of the bloody field, the Russians, whose communication was exhausted, repelled their adversaries with rocks picked up from the ground. And with it all, the victorious Japs forced the Russians to retreat, and harassed them as they retired. The Russian loss is reported at 16,000, and the Japanese, who were the assailants, at about double that number, but when full reports are in it is quite probable these figures will have to be increased.

The Country Press.

One of the finest tributes to the country newspaper that has ever been rendered was contained in a recent address by Senator Chauncey M. Depew before the New York Press Association at Manhattan Beach. Mr. Depew said: "I pay my respects to and express my admiration for the country newspaper and the country editor. His lines are not cast in places of the great and profitable organs of the metropolis, whose profits are reckoned often by the hundreds of thousand of dollars every year. But the country editor lives in and is part of his community. His virtue is not so much in what he prints as in what he refuses to print. He could easily destroy the peace of the community by admitting to his paper the scandals and gossip of the neighbors. But he stands as a censor and a guardian of public morals, and I know of no conditions under which the public is appealed to in a certain measure where the utterance is free from criticism as the general tone of the country press."

This is the Gospel truth. The country editor has more local power and less profit than those who follow other pursuits and he abuses that power less than any others vested with even half so much. The country newspaper is the most complete exponent of a community of any other civilizing influence connected with it. In those communities where a good patronage is extended, both in advertizing and paid subscriptions, it means that the communities are progressive and prosperous, and where there are no newspapers enterprise languishes and the people become listless and dormant.—Knoxville Sentinel.

Government Forestry Exhibit.

In speaking of the Government Forestry Exhibit at the St. Louis World's Fair, one of the Government officials connected with the Forestry Bureau of the Agricultural Department said:

"One of the special features of the exhibit is a relief map of the United States cast upon a section of a sphere 16 feet in diameter. By using this type of map the geographel distortion inevitable in flat maps is avoided, and the real relationship of the various parts of the country and their actual position on the globe are correctly shown. The distribution and character of the forests of the country are shown in different colors, as are the location and extent of national and State forest reserves. The forests managed according to working plans prepared by the Bureau and lands upon which plantations have been instituted under Bureau planting plans are also indicated by special symbols. The situation of forest schools and other institutions which afford training in forestry is shown on the map. On another relief map are shown the location of the proposed Appalachain Forest Reserve, the extent and character of forest and other lands included, and the relation of the reserve to the surrounding country.

"The outdoor exhibit of the Bureau is on a tract of 2½ acres situated about 300 yards southwest of the Forestry, Fish and Game building. Here are displayed, on and about a model farm, forest plantations suited to every part of the United States, practical forest nurseries, and the best forms of windbreaks which are so important for protection of the western farmers' crops and buildings. The co-operative work of the Bureau in this direction has been very successful, and this exhibit is certain to attract much interest among visitors from the regions in which forest planting has proved its usefulness both for protection and as a means of providing local supplies of fuel and timber."

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For many years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug co.

Queens' Names on Oaks.

Many English queens have chosen oak trees in Windsor forest whereon their respective names, with the dates of their choice, have been commemorated by means of brass plates. In different parts of the forest, with seats round them, are oaks bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Caroline, Queen Charlotte and Queen Victoria. "Herne's Oak," mentioned in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" as being in Windsor park, was destroyed by a gale on Aug. 31, 1863.

"But do you think you can support a wife?"

"Of course. Why, we've been engaged two years."

"Well?"

"Well, if I can buy flowers and candy for a fiancee for two years and not go broke I can surely support a wife!"—Illustrated Bits.

Consumption

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Sept. 5, 1904

The principal issue before the people of this country continues still to be, Theodore Roosevelt, and I can do no better work for the people and, incidently, the Democratic party, than to continue to give a history of the things Theodore Roosevelt has said that thoroughly unfit him for the Presidency of this nation.

I am quoting from Mr. Roosevelt's books and not from heresay testimony.

Last winter, in the House of Representatives, the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Gillett), in a speech complained that lawlessness and lynchings in the South stimulated lawlessness and lynchings in the North. In passing, he will permit me to express regret that the good people of Massachusetts are so quick to imitate Southern vices and so slow to emulate Southern virtues. Now, I want to ask him if it is not a fact that the three books which Roosevelt wrote, "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail" "Oliver Crowmell" and "The Winning of the West" are not in almost every private and public library and in every school library throughout the North?

I trust it will not shock the law loving and law abiding people of our country too greatly when I tell them that Theodore Roosevelt in those books deliberately justifies and advocates lynch law for the stealing of a $10 rat tailed Texas pony. I wish to suggest to my friend from Massachusetts that these books of this distinguished author, so widely read in the North, teaching the right to lynch human beings for stealing horses, might possibly have some influence in stimulating to lawlessness the great and good people of the North. Let me quote from "Ranch Life and Hunting Trail;" pages 14 and 93:

"During the last two or three years the stockmen have united to put down all of these dangerous characters, often by the most summary exercise of lynch law. Bands of horse and cattle thieves have been regularly hunted down and destroyed in pitched fights by parties of armed cowboys, and as a consequence most of our Territory is perfectly law abiding. A little over two years ago one committee of vigilantes in eastern Montana shot and hung nearly sixty—not, however, with the best judgment in all cases.

"It is the fashion to laugh at the severity with which horse stealing is punished on the border, but the reasons are evident. Horses are the most valuable property of the frontiersman, whether cowboy, hunter or settler. They are always marketable and are very easily stolen. Horse stealing is a most tempting business, etc.

Now let me quote from the work on "Oliver Cromwell," page 52:

"In many crises it may be necessary to overturn constitutions, to disregard statutes, just as it may be neccessary to establish a vigilance committee or take refuge in lynch laws."

In "Winning of the West" we find the following:

"The good men in such a case band themselves together as regulaters and put down with ruthless severity, by the exercise of lynch law, shooting and hanging the worst offhand.

"In many of the cases of lynch law which have come to my knowledge the effect has been healthy for the community, but sometimes great injustice is done. Generally the vigilantes, by a series of summary executions, do really good work, but I have rarely known them to fail, among the men whom they kill for good reasons, to also kill one or two either by mistake or to gratify private malice."

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." Bold Court Jesters.

"You are ready enough to point your satire at other people's faults," Queen Bess once said to Clod, one of the court jesters, "but you never say a word about mine." "Ah," exclaimed Clod, "why should I waste time in reminding your majesty of your faults, seeing that they are in everybody's mouth?"

Patch, one of Henry VIII.'s fools, once sought permission to demand an egg from every husband who was dissatisfied with his wife. No sooner had the king granted his request than Patch proceeded to demand the first egg from him, saying, "Your grace belongs to the class of husbands on whom I am entitled to make levy."

Emergency Medicines

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflamation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

The Japanese are Pursuing the Russians. Kuropatkin is Almost Surrounded

GENERAL STAKELBERG ESCAPES

Japanese Had Cut Him off from Kuropatkin, but a Junction of Their Troops Has Been Effected.

General Stakelberg's First Siberian army corps, which was reported by General Kuropatkin as having been cut off to the westward of Liao Yang, has been safely extricated.

General Kuropatkin telegraphed at 7 o'clock Saturday evening that the remaining portion of his army was then south of Yental, about ten miles northeast of Liao Yang, and that the other portion of it was crossing the Taitse river and taking up a position on the right bank.

Correspondents say that several of the bayonet attacks made by the Japanese during the battle forced by the depletion of ammunition, of which modern arms entail such extravagant expenditure.

The Japanese came on with empty guns and with hopes of finishing the attack with cold steel, but it was proved at their own cost that such attacks can not be driven home in the face of the fire of breech-loading guns.

The Russian artillerymen suffered horribly in the prolonged fighting south of the Taitse river. One battery lost forty men killed, and the remainder of it were wounded, and when a fresh battery was brought up into position the survivors of the original battery protested with the others at being removed, begging to be allowed to die beside their own guns.

This message, which was received by the emperor early Sunday morning threw a more hopeful light on the position of the Russian army.

There is no attempt to conceal the gravity of the situation in view of the absence of news regarding what has happened.

General Kuropatkin sent word that his serious losses were confined to General Ortoff's detachment.

This department consisted of mixed European detachments and was suddenly attacked by Japanese infantry and artillery concealed in the tall Chinese corn and grass. The Russians seem to have lost their heads and to have retreated precipitately.

The Japanese inflicted great slaughter, one of General Ortoff's regiments losing 1,000 men.

No details are given of the escape of General Stakelberg's corps from the clutches of the enemy, but it is believed that it owes its safety to the neglect or the inability of the Japanese to follow up their advantage. General Stakelberg was allowed to cross the river and came up with the main army in time to enable the shattered remnants of Major General Ortoff's detachment to retreat. This exploit is likely to condone General Stakelberg's disobedience, but unless the emperor forgives him he will have to appear before a courtmartial and probably will lose his command.

Although full details are lacking, the duration of the fighting, the numbers engaged and the losses so far reported, indicate that Liao Yang will prove to be one of the greatest battles of history.

Five are dead and an equal number seriously injured as the result of a premature explosion of a quantity of nitroglycerine near Upper Sandusky.

The accident occurred while McKay, an oil well shooter, was engaged in lowering nitroglycerine. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

MURDERER ESCAPES.

Bogus Order Presented by His Friends and He is Released to Them.

A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that by a daringly conceived coup on the part of his friends, Sassoneff, the murderer of M. von Plehve, succeeded in escaping from prison.

Early Saturday morning two men, apparently officers of high rank, accompanied by an army surgeon and two gendarmes, presented themselves at the prison with a note alleged to be from Minister of Justice Muravieff.

The forged note sanctioned the removal of Sassoneff, who assassinated Minister of the Interior von Plehve with an infernal machine a few weeks ago.

The prison officials were completely taken in and handed over the assassin, who was driven away in the most deliberate manner. Nothing has been heard since either of the assassin or the bogus officers. The letter presented to the prison was a clever forgery, written on official paper of the ministry of justice.

KILLED BY A GUEST.

Manager of Shelby Springs Shot by Calera Salesman.

Manager McMahon, of Shelby Springs, was shot and killed at that place by George Porter, a well-known salesman of Calera.

It seems the men were disputing over a settlement at which time they became engaged in a difficulty in which McMahon was shot, dying in a very few minutes.

Mr. McMahon has for some time been connected with this famous summer resort, while Mr. Porter is also well known in the county and has many friends. Soon after the shooting Mr. Porter went to Calera and wired Sheriff Cox, of this county, what he had done and for him to come at once to Calera, where he would find him in waiting.

Venezuela's Debts.

Venezuela is doing better than was expected in the settlement of the judgments rendered against her by the mixed commissions and instead of taking ten years to dispose of the claims, the allied powers—Great Britain and Italy—it appears that these will now be settled in full in about two years, and if the same amount of revenues continue to be received at Laguiasa and Puerto Cabello as at present, even the claims of the nonallied powers will be discharged within four and one-half years after the allies are paid.

Under the Wheels.

John Davidson, a switchman for the Atlantic Coast Line, fell under a train at Montgomery and was so badly mangled that he will die. His right leg was cut off and his right side and shoulder badly mashed. His foot caught in a frog and he was unable to get it out before the car was upon him. His wife and two children are visiting at Beatrice, in Wilcox county.

Electric Hoist.

Selma has granted the privilege to Messrs. Charles DeBardeleben and Robert Sturdivant to erect an electric hoist at the city wharf.

Quarry Purchased.

C. A. Ware and W. E. Jukes, of Florence, have purchased a valuable marble quarry at Friendsville, Tenn., fully equipped for operation. Mr. Jukes will operate the quarry.

Cotton Pest.

M. V. Culpepper, who lives near Phoenix City, shows a stalk of cotton which had been ruined by a pest which is playing havoc in a good many cotton fields in this vicinity. Nearly all the bolls were stung by a black fly, and a black spot followed the sting.

Exhibit Gone to Indiana.

A large collection of products from the farms and gardens of Madison county was shipped to Indiana for exhibition at a number of county fairs. The exhibit was accompanied by F. C. Thompson and C. C. Green, and it will be well advertised among the farmers of the state. It consists of fine cotton and corn on the stalk, wheat, pears, apples, peas, beans, alfalfa and grasses, and is regarded as a better advertisement than descriptive literature.

Second Mule Market.

Montgomery is the second horse and mule market in the south, with sales for the year just closed of 8,000 mules, and third in the south as a wholesale center.

Will Build Church.

Plans have been made for the erection of a church at Siluria. Heretofore there has been no church here, and those who would attend service on Sunday had to walk about two miles.

May Hold Special Session.

Possibly the supreme court may hold a special session to consider the constitutionality of the Lusk bill.

OPINION ON LUSK ACT

Chancellor Carmichael Says Act was Never Passed and Does not Stand

CONSTITUTIONALITY NO ISSUE

Conference Report Did Not Recommend Passage of Bill and House Did Not Pass Bill Reported.

It required but one or two minutes for Chancellor Carmichael to render an opinion on the Lusk circuit court act after he arrived at a conclusion, and that opinion orally delivered is that the Lusk bill was never passed; therefore the question of its constitutionality is not an issue.

Investigation or examination of the journals of the house and senate of the Alabama legislature show, according to the opinion rendered by the chancellor, that the conference report did not recommend the passage of the bill, and the house, in adopting that report, merely agreed that two amendments should be receded from by the senate and the journal fails to show that the house passed the bill after the adoption of the conference report.

The case will now go to the supreme court.

FELL FOUR STORIES.

And Was So Severely Injured That He Died.

Albert Scott, a white employe of the Avondale cotton mills, met almost instant death by falling from an elevator through the shaft, a distance of nearly four stories. His head was badly crushed and he was injured internally.

Scott was riding a freight elevator at the time of the accident. He was on top of a box which was in the elevator. The box is said to have struck the fourth floor on the ascension and with such force as to cause the elevator to drop a small distance, which allowed Scott to tilt over and fall through the shaft. He struck at the bottom of the shaf and died before a physician could be summoned.

The deceased is survived by a widow and three children.

ONE KILLED AND TWO WOUNDED

In a Street Fight at Florala—Marshal's Life Endangered.

Bud Tucker was instantly killed, his brother, Jim Tucker, fatally injured, and a bystander Oscar Jacobs, perhaps fatally injured by Abe Hammonds, night marshal of Florala, Ala.

Immediately after the shooting friends of the dead man gathered, and Hammond's life was saved only by rushing him out of town on a special train. From what can be learned it had been the practice of the two Tuckers to come into town and bulldoze the officers. They came into Florala looking for trouble. Hammond had a double-barreled shotgun loaded with buckshot and turned loose on the pair. The first shot snuffed out Bud Tucker's life at once. Most of the second charge buried itself in Jim Tucker's stomach and side, producing a gaping wound. Two or three stray shot struck Jacobs, wounding him terribly in the lungs.

The day marshal immediately put Hammond under arrest, and seeing that the friends of Tucker were determined to take his life, pressed a train into service and got the prisoner out of town barely in time to save him from the fury of those who were seeking his life. He was placed in jail at Andalusia.

Public Debt.

The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business August 31, 1904, the total debt, less the cash in the treasury, amounted to $987,393,382, an increase for the month of $6,711,916. This increase is accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of cash on hand.

Two Monuments.

Professor Edmond S. Meany, of the University of Washington, Seattle, is conferring with the British Columbia Natural History society with a view of securing their co-operation in the erection of two monuments on San Juan Island in the gulf of Georgia, one at the American and one at the British camp. These are to commemorate the historical events which took place there early in the last century. According to Professor Meany's plan the unveiling of the monuments will take place on October 31, the date on which Emperor William, of Germany, the arbitrator, gave his decision in favor of the United States.

Pistol Duel.

A desperate shooting affray occurred at Hazel Green. Walter Graham and Fenton Towney engaged in a duel with pistols, both emptying their guns. This done, Graham stubbed his pistol and started for Towney, who backed away and succeeded in reloading, bringing his opponent to the ground, fatally injured. Graham was not injured. Both are well connected.

COLBERT SHOALS

Improvements to be Asked for by Tennessee River Association.

The Tennessee River Improvement association will meet in Decatur sometime next month for the purpose of asking a grant of $500,000 from congress for the completion of the work on Colbert Shoals. Judge Roulhac, the president of the association, has not set the exact date, although he states that it would probably be some time about the middle of October.

The members of the association, who include prominent men in four states served by the Tennessee, estimate that half a million dollars will enable them to complete the work at the shoals and open them for traffic to the largest river steamers. The government has already appropriated $600,000 for the work and the improvements already finished have shown themselves of immense value. With the completion of the work at Colbert, which consists of the deepening of the channel in places and the building of several locks and short stretches of canal, and the expenditure of small sums at several places on the river, it is thought that the whole sweep of water will be open for navigation.

MUST MARRY AGAIN.

That is a Condition Imposed in a Parole.

A novel condition, one perhaps without precedent in the state executive department, is attached to the parole which was granted Warren Long, convicted in Lee county of bigamy.

Long is paroled conditional upon his remarrying the young lady, who was his second wife, provided he can legally do so and provided she is willing. Long, it is understood, is only too anxious to accept the conditions. Long was married when a mere youth, and after a short time spent together he and his wife separated. He filed a bill for divorce, but before the divorce was granted he married a second time. Within two or three days he was arrested and convicted of bigamy.

WORK STOPPED

And China Says the Sailors Must Go Home.

Repair work on the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo destroyer Grozovoi has been stopped by the order of the British minister, the dock at which the repairs are being made being owned by British citizens.

China has ordered that the paroled of the Askold and Grozovoi return to Russia.

Cotton at Selma.

The commercial year of 1903-4, which has just closed, showed a considerable increase in the cotton receipts of Selma. The total number of bales of cotton received in Selma during the year just closed was 87,687, an increase of nearly 20,000 bales over the receipts of the preceding year. Of the 87,687 bales that were received here last year there is now on hand in the various warehouses of the city 736 bales. During the year 1902-3 the total cotton receipts of Selma were 68,282 bales and of this amount the stock on hand at the close of the season was only 24 bales.

Wright Will Resign.

Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of the bureau of labor, states that he would resign from office at the end of the present year. He will devote his attention to his duties in connection with the presidency of Clarke college.

Fell Three Stories.

Joseph Neill and William Wilkinson registered from Mobile, at the German House, New York City. They were assigned to a room on the third floor. Next morning Neill's body was found in the yard. He probably fell out of the window while trying to get some air. Neill has relatives in Mobile.

Mail Route Wanted.

Postmaster Regan, of Anniston, is contemplating a change in the rural routes from the main postoffice and hopes by the rearrangement to secure room for another route. At present there are five rural routes from the Anniston postoffice, two of the number being from Oxford station.

WHOLESALE GROCERY BURNED.

Loss About $200,000. One Fireman Fatally Injured.

Fire broke out in the six-story brick building occupied by the wholesale grocery firm of the Oliver-Finnie company, Saturday morning and entailed a loss roughly estimated at $200,000. Insured.

The Oliver-Finnie firm is one of the largest wholesale groceries in the south and is located at Memphis.

Frank Buffenbaugh, a fireman, fell from a ladder and was fatally injured. Six fire fighters were overcome by heat and smoke and were removed to hospitals.

Montgomery's Increase.

The increase in assessments for Montgomery county for the year 1904 over 1903 is $1,172,313. The total assessed value for 1904 is $22,754,378, and for 1903 was $21,582,213. Probate Judge Gaston will file the report with the state auditor some time next week. This is a remarkable showing and is in line with the raises in the other counties so far reported.

HALF A MILLION MEN

In a Death Struggle at Liao Yang. Russians Are Holding Their Own

BATTLE LINE OF SEVEN MILES.

The battle of Liao Yang will probably rank as one of the greatest sanguinary battles of history. It is estimated by the general staff that the Japanese armies engaged number seventeen divisions of 15,000 men each, or, allowing for inefficients, about 240,000 men. Each division has 36 guns, and there are two independent artillery brigades of 100 guns each, making a total of about 800 guns. The estimates of Russian correspondents range at from 600 to 1,000 guns per side.

In the preliminary fighting of Monday the Russians captured 200 prisoners, who have already arrived at Harbin.

General Kuropatkin's effective forces are variously estimated at from 170,000 to 200,000 men.

Fighting with the extreme left flank of General Herschelmann's corps commenced at 10 o'clock on the night of August 25th with an attack at the village of Tsegow. The Japanese attack was persisted in throughout the night, and by 4 o'clock the next morning it involved the whole line. The Japanese stood stubbornly to the bayonet attack, but finally were borne back in the whirl of the hand-to-hand fighting, leaving heaps of dead behind them.

Later a false report that the Japanese had carried the position brought up another battalion of reserves at double quick. The battalion caught a Japanese infantry column standing with its flank exposed and fired, killing many and forcing the others to retire.

The Russian batteries opened with the daylight, forcing the Japanese from several positions in the hills. They lost hundreds by shrapnel fire.

Success crowned the Russian arms the first day of the great battle of Liao Yang, and the utmost confidence prevails that the issue of the fight will be a complete victory for General Kuropatkin. From dawn until dark the battle raged, first in the center and left, and then on the right of the Russian line. The Japanese charged gallantly and desperately in an effort to break the center and then in the afternoon came a movement against the opposite flank. This attack was delivered from the west, but General Kuropatkin had evidently anticipated just what happened, for he not only met and repulsed it, but actually was able, by superior force, to overlap and envelope the Japanese. Last night both armies bivouacked in their positions.

No attempt was made by Lieutenant-General Sakharoff in his report to estimate the Japanese losses except to say they were extremely heavy and the Russian losses were only approximated at 3,000. No Russian general officers fell.

General Kuropatkin's forces occupied positions forming a semi-circle about Liao Yang, the flanks resting on the Taitse river, east and west of the city.

The battle divided itself into two periods. After a preliminary bombardment of the Russian lines on the right and center the Japanese infantry advanced to the attack, charging the Russian center. Although repeatedly checked, they came on with bulldog tenacity, hurling themselves against the Russian positions with the bayonet. There were many bloody hand to hand encounters. By noon the Japanese actually succeeded in occupying a portion of the Russian trenches. Then General Kuropatkin sent forward some reserves, delivering a series of counter attacks, recaptured the lost positions and drove back the Japanese all along the line.

The second half of the fight began at 4 in the afternoon, when the Japanese tried to turn and roll up the Russian right. Here also they failed, but only after a desperate struggle, which was continued until 9 o'clock at night. Reserves dispatched in time by General Kuropatkin at last succeeded not only in checking the Japanese but in enveloping and driving them back in confusion.

One of the striking features of the battle was the work of the Russian artillery, in which arm the Japanese heretofore have excelled. A report was current at Liao Yang that forty-six Japanese guns were captured during the day.

Selma's Cotton Exchange

The annual meeting of the exchange was held on Saturday afternoon, and managers appointed for the election. The following were chosen, there being no opposition:

R. H. Agee, president.

J. W. Marshall, vice-president.

C. A. McKinnon, secretary and treasurer.

D. W. Hooper, L. Lamar, V. B. Atkins, W. L. Thompson and George L. Waller, board of directors.

PUBLIC SCHOOL FUNDS

Their Distribution Entirely Changed By Late Legislature.

In the opinion of Attorney General Massey Wilson, the new constitution and the redistricting act of the legislature changes the entire system of apportioning the public school funds.

The attorney general in an opinion which he rendered at the request of State Superintendent of Education W. Hill, holds that the state superintendent shall apportion the funds to the counties, but the direct apportionment to the school districts shall be made by the county board of education which was created by the redistricting act. This interpretation will revolutionize the distribution of the school funds of the state.

Heretofore the entire work of the apportionment of the public school funds has been done by the state superintendent of education, from the census of all the children of school age was taken and reported to him. He then apportioned the school funds direct among the townships.

But the new constitution and educational acts of the last legislature altered materially the educational conditions of Alabama.

It is supposed that if was the intention of the constitution makers that county school authorities should have the distribution of the school funds in order that they might equalize the length of the school terms in the various districts. The section of the constitution treating of educational matters was prepared by the committee of which the late J. H. Grubb was chairman.

In his opinion the attorney general pointed out that the constitution was silent as to how the school funds should be divided, but that the redistricting act places all the school affairs of the county in the hands of the county board of education and that in his opinion the county board should have charge of the apportionment.

BETTER RURAL SCHOOLS

Is the Object of the Superintendent of Education.

Superintendent of Education, W. F. Hill has received about one thousand blue prints from the committee appointed by the Alabama Educational association to get designs for rural schools. The idea was to have neat and substantial school buildings in the rural districts. At the meeting of the Alabama Educational association Superintendent Hill carried a motion to have this committee appointed.

The state superintendent will forward these to the county superintendents of education. The county superintendents when they get through with them will send them back to the state superintendent. Each print sent out contains two designs. The state superintendent will also forward to the county school boards contemplating building school houses these blue prints upon request and postage. This will be the means of having good rural school houses. Under the new districting school law, which creates many of the school districts, many new school houses will have to be built.

NEW RIVER BOAT.

The Alabama Launched and Christened at Gadsden.

The new steamboat which has been in course of construction at Gadsden for the past month, was successfully launched Tuesday. The boat is built of Gadsden-grown timber and has been by home capital. As the boat slid over the stays and into the river, Miss Hattie Lafollette broke a bottle of champagne over the bow and christened the boat "Alabama." The owners expect to have the boat completed in four or five weeks and ready for the fall trade. The boat is the largest ever run on this part of the Coosa.

Meat Famine Possible.

President Donnelly has ordered the butcher workmen employed in the independent packing house plants to cease work. He said if these men continued slaughtering cattle they would be handling stock that was looked after by the men who take the places of the stock handlers who refuse to quit work today.

Famine in meat is declared by the strikers to be the probable result of their move in the new strike ordered by the packers. Orders have been issued for a general strike of all butcher workmen throughout the country.

Cotton Pickers in Demand.

There is the greatest demand for cotton pickers in the cotton region of Texas known in twenty years and many cities and towns drayage, livery boys, cooks and even hotel clerks have been induced by the high prices for picking to go to the fields. The hot weather of the past month has caused all cotton not destroyed by insects to open, thus creating an extraordinary demand for pickers. The crop in Central Texas promises better than last year.

Newspaper Man Drowned.

E. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, Tenn., vice-president of the Banner Publishing company, news editor of the Evening Banner, and day correspondent of the Associated Press, was drowned in the Cumberland river. Mr. Stahlman was cruising up the river on a launch when the propeller ceased to work. He dived under the boat to remedy the trouble and failed to reappear. Mr. Stahlman was 51 years of age.

The number of divorced men, still unmarried, was 84,000, and the number of divorced women was 114,000. Either the average man is surer he was in the right or the average woman is surer she was wrong in marrying.

It is not surprising that density of population in the East is becoming one of the notable features of American life. Rhode Island has 407 persons to every square mile, and Massachusetts follows closely with 348. New York has but 152, but her per cent. of increase in population is rapidly rising, being three per cent. in 1890-1900 above that of the previous decade and five per cent above that of 1870 to 1880. At the present time there are living in the so-called rural districts of New York State barely 27 per cent. of her population. This is far greater than the record in Rhode Island, of five per cent., or of Massachusetts with 8.5 toward which the trend is very rapid.

DECREASE IN TUBERCULOSIS.

Some rather remarkable facts are developed in the mortality statistics. It is demonstrated by exact figures from a so-called "registration area," comprising those sections of the United States which have accurate reports, that the increase in pneumonia deaths from 1880 to 1900 was five per cent., of heart disease, 12 per cent., of kidney disease, 44 per cent.; of apoplexy, 17 per cent., and of cancer, 12 per cent. On the other hand the figures show a decrease in deaths from consumption of nearly 35 per cent. and of bronchitis 26 per cent. A marked illustration of the effect of better knowledge of infantile diseases and the growing use of antitoxin is the large decrease in deaths from those causes. Thus the decrease in deaths from cholera infantum from 1890 to 1900 was 31 per cent.; of diphtheria, 34 per cent., and of convulsions 23 per cent.

Some rather common ideas as to the prevalence of diseases in certain sections are dispelled by these figures. Consumption, supposed to be a cold climate disease, had in 1900 an average number of deaths in New York State of 194 to 100,000 population. In the same year this disease had in Vermont, a much colder State, 152 deaths to 100,000 population, and in the District of Columbia, a much warmer place, 305 deaths to 100,000 population.

A trifle more than 50 per cent. of the population of the United States is engaged in gainful occupation. New York's per cent. runs up to 51.6 and Massachusetts' to 53.3, but these figures are very largely exceeded in the South, notably in the cotton districts, where it is evidently more profitable to go to work than to go to school.

The total number of persons engaged in gainful occupations has risen almost 24 per cent. since 1880. As the total population gained less than 21 per cent. in the period, it is evident that industrial competition is forcing more and more of the youth into labor.

INDUSTRIAL FIGURES AMAZING.

The great manufacturing development of the country is shown forth in some amazing figures. The total capital invested in 1900 was almost $10,000,000,000, a gain of fifty per cent. over the total of 1890 and of 280 per cent. over the total of 1880. The value of products from the factories of the United States showed an increase of 38 per cent. over the total of 1890.

How much of this capitalization is due to the trusts can only be figured in a general way. The total capitalization of the industrial combinations was reported as $3,600,000,000. Of this amount the iron and steel industries furnish almost $1,000,000,000, food and kindred products $348,000,000, and chemicals and allied products $354,000,000.

A notable fact in industrial revolution is shown in the figures of the power used in American manufactures. Thus, of the total of 11,320,000 horse power, which is a gain of almost 100 per cent. from 1890, 8,760,000 horse power is steam, but the increase in steam horse power is less marked than the increase in other methods of power generation. The increase in horse power of gasolene engines was more than 1000 per cent., that of horse power by water wheels was 33 per cent., and that of electric motors 2000 per cent. The tendency of the times is thus plainly indicated.

A rather significant showing in a comparison of the States is that Massachusetts in 1900 produced but $393 worth of manufactures per capita, against $397 worth per capita in 1890. This is entirely contrary to the general trend of the industrial States. Connecticut reported a per capita value of products in 1900 of $388, against $333 in 1890. New York also showed an increase in those periods, the amounts being $290 and $285, respectively. Possibly in the relative decrease which the manufacturers of the Bay State may have felt, even if they had not realized it in figures, is to be found the reason for the growth of reciprocity sentiment in that section. A decrease in their markets, compelling a shutting down of mills, would account for the fall in the per capita value of their products.

FROM MISERY TO HEALTH.

A Prominent Club Woman of Kansas City Writes to Tell How Doan's Kidney Pills Cured Her Quick Cure.

Miss Nellie Davis, of 1216 Michigan avenue, Kansas City, Mo., society leader and club woman, writes: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they effected a complete cure in a very short time when I was suffering from kidney troubles brought on by a cold. I had severe pains in the back and sick headaches, and felt miserable all over. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made me a well woman, without an ache or pain, and I feel compelled to recommend this reliable remedy."

IN THE PRESS BOX.

Where Professional Scorers and Reporters Keep Track of Our National Game.

At the grounds where the professional clubs play baseball, you may have noticed a small boxlike structure perched on the roof of the grand stand. Its position directly back of home plate and on a line with the pitcher is the best possible for a view of the game, and if you are lucky enough to be invited up by some of those who have a right there, you will be surprised to find how much better you can watch what is going on than from a seat nearer the ground.

This little house with the wire netting over the front to guard against foul flies is called the press or scorers' box. The young men who sit there have need of every facility for observing the game, because afterward they must present an absolutely accurate record of it. If the contesting nines belong to an important league and play in a large city there will be an official scorer for each club, besides reporters from each of the daily newspapers. The scorers have to record every move of the game and, when it is over, present to the managers of their clubs a complete set of figures, from which everybody who understands the sport can tell exactly what each player has done—how well or how poorly he has played.

Watch a scorer at work. Before him is an open book with the names of one club written down the left-hand side of one page and those of the opposing team inscribed on the page opposite. After each name is a line of checker board squares, curiously marked off, and at the end of these on the right of each page are several perpendicular columns headed A B, R, 1 B, S B, S H, P O, A and E for the summary. These stand for, respectively times at bat, runs, the times a player has reached first base, stolen bases, sacrifice hits, put-out, assists and errors. The symbols used by professional scorers are comparatively few and easy to remember, and any one familiar with the game ought to be able to use them after half an hour's study followed by a little practice.—From Allan P. Ames's "How to Keep a Baseball Score" in St. Nicholas.

Black Snakes Guard Southern Homes.

It is true that the rattle snake and the black snake are mortal enemies, and the black snake is the victor in their battles, breaking the neck of his adversary before the rattler has time to strike. The black snakes of this country are as harmless as frogs. On many of the large plantations in the south they are tamed and kept as a protection from their enemy, as the warm climate prevents keeping the houses closed so as to keep them out.

Miss M. Cartledge gives some helpful advice to young girls. Her letter is but one of thousands which prove that nothing is so helpful to young girls who are just arriving at the period of womanhood as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly, for it is the only medicine I ever tried which cured me. I suffered much from my first menstrual period, I felt so weak and dizzy at times I could not pursue my studies with the usual interest. My thoughts became sluggish, I had headaches, backaches and sinking spells, also pains in the back and lower limbs. In fact, I was sick all over.

"Finally, after many other remedies had been tried, we were advised to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am pleased to say that after taking it only two weeks, a wonderful change for the better took place, and in a short time I was in perfect health. I felt buoyant, full of life, and found all work a pastime. I am indeed glad to tell my experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it made a different girl of me. Yours very truly, MISS M. CARTLEDGE, 533 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga."

At such a time, the grandest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the necessary changes, and is the surest and most reliable cure for woman's ills of every nature. Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Estes, of New York City, says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to you because I believe all young girls ought to know how much good your medicine will do them. I did dressmaking for years before I was married, and if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I do not believe I could have stood the strain. There is no other work that is such a strain on the system. Oh, how my back used to ache from the bending over! I would feel as though I would have to scream out from the pain, and the sitting still made me so terribly tired and weak, and my head throbbed like an engine. I never could eat after work, I was so worn out. Then I was irregular, and had such frightful cramps every month they would simply double me up with pain, and I would have to give up working and lie down. But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed me into a strong, well woman. Yours very truly, MRS. MARTHA ESTES, 513 West 125th St., N. Y. City."

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It Is a Serious Art, or a Mistake May Mean an Insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the brocade bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

COMPLETE AND THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were subordinated and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of an arbitrary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to bring organized combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the assumption of dominion by the colonization of the American flag in any country in which [illegible] dependence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these ends [illegible] pledges all its energies.

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street, ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

One of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

A few days ago a gentleman who had previously written to the Banner to stop from Montgomery desiring to buy out The Banner. He came, thought The Banner was a good newspaper property, and Clanton a good business town, and he was willing and anxious to purchase The Banner and settle down to business here. I thanked him for the good opinion of The Banner and cordially agreed with his estimate of Clanton, but told him I had been here nearly a dozen years, editing, printing and publishing The Banner and if the Good Lord spared me for another dozen I would still be found in the same business as I had not the remotest intention of selling out, and if I did not last so long there was a quiet, repose ful cemetery here where I could peacefully await the resurrection morn. The Banner and Frank Crichton are fixtures in Clanton so long as the latter lives. I have met with too many kind words from the people of Chilton county to have any desire to leave.

Choof, choof, choof, choof! was the unfamiliar sound that broke the stillness of Sunday night soon after 12. Then arose a blood-curdling yell, and a man might have been seen running away at breakneck speed, and may be running yet for all I know. Investigation developed the fact that an automobile had just come into town from Montgomery, and it is presumed that the man on seeing the headlight approaching and a monster coming along with "No pulles, no hoss, but going like helles all to nuthin," as the Chinaman said of the first electric car, thought that Old Nick had broken loose, and taking advantage of its being Sunday night, when all good people were at church, was prowling around Clanton seeking a politician to take home with him. Finding no politician here, however, he left and went on to Jemison—to get one there. The auto-ist made a tour of the principal streets, and put up at the Central Hotel for the night, resuming the journey to Birmingham next morning.

Some changes in the business circles are taking place this week. The store house next to B. H. Jones' has been rented by H. Kan of Ensley who opens up with a new stock next Saturday. J. E. Evans has moved into the new storehouse recently occupied by Judson Strock, and Joe Foshee (bless and all) has gone into the house vacated by J. E. Evans. Mr. Woodyard's new brick store will soon be completed and ready for occupation. A new livery stable is to be erected on the vacant lot close to the depot for the experienced stableman from Montgomery. Always something doing in Clanton.

Farmers are appreciating the advantages of having a warehouse in town and a good business is being done there. The cotton is hauled to the warehouse, where the correct weight is given, the farmer takes his sample and goes to his lawyer to see what he can get for it. If the price is satisfactory to him, and the warehouseman can sell the cotton to the depot. If the price don't suit the seller he can store his cotton in the warehouse for 30 days, the one charge for weighing paying for the weighing and storage for 30 days; this, I am told, is just one-half of the charge elsewhere.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Avondale Ala., Sept. 5, 1904

Editor Banner: Will give you a few lines from our part. This is Labor Day, streets are crowded, some good music; all seem happy on this occasion. But generally speaking, everything has been very quiet for sometime here.

We are very sorry to announce the death of Mr. Joseph Scott, who was killed on the elevator, at work; had been with the company a long time. He was a noble man, a devout Christian, one that we all loved and were sorry to part with. He leaves three children.

We are glad Mr. Charlie Hearn is able to be up again from a severe attack of fever.

Well, well! Mr. Editor seeing so much said about politics, and reading Young Dem's piece, and seeing the truth and the whole truth, and thinking of home, I want to say something. Seeing the likeness of my old school teacher, E. B. Deason, in Banner, a teacher who would always say to us, "boys come on," and never say go on. A boy that was reared by a widowed mother, a boy that has labored in heat and in cold and knows what the trials of life are, is it possible that he, today fills the office of Judge of Probate of Chilton county? Why not? He is a man that has ever been true to his fellowman from his boyhood. This we know. Now to see him come out on a platform as pure and clean as the Democratic platform, a white man's platform, carrying the banner he is not ashamed of, and no white man should be. Just go to the black belt and live awhile; just keep posted on all sides, stand on the streets of our cities, listen to what your hear, look at what you can see, then think what will be the future of our beloved country. The negro will hold office and sit on the jury with us. He demands this. Shall we give it to him or shall we contend this is America and let the American people rule? It is time to think this question seriously, the only way is to keep posted and see for ourseves, then we will know how to cast our ballot in November.

MOULDER BOY.

Long Branch.

Master David Mooney is attending school in Stanton.

The many friends of Messrs. Cornelian and Lewis Hayes regret very much to hear of their sickness, but wish them a speedy recovery.

Miss Ida Ingram spent a very pleasant week with her sister, Mrs. W. Burke.

Mr. Jno. Bowden of Sardis was a visitor of Mrs. George Mooney Saturday and Sunday.

Several of our young people attended the meeting at Pleasant Grove which was conducted by Messrs. Freeman and Langston. Many interesting sermons were delivered and much good was accomplished.

Mrs. Ben Mooney and Miss Annie Mooney spent a very pleasant day in Maplesville last Saturday.

Mrs. Head and son, Miss Annie Jones and Mrs. C. Binebart spent last Wednesday in Selma. The day will long be remembered by the party.

Miss Annie Jones of Talladega has just closed a very successful school at the Ingram school house. Miss Jones stands high as a teacher in her county and has been re-elected as a teacher for the Ingram school by the trustees; Messrs. Pardue, Hall and Burke.

Miss Bessie Hall, proving herself to be the best pupil in her studies and conduct, was awarded the prize which was given by Miss Jones.

IN MEMORIAN.

Died Sunday, Sept. 11 at 12-30 noon, at the home of his son, Mr. G. F. M. Wyatt after twelve months illness of paralysis. He bore his affliction patiently and hoped for better times, while kind and gentle hands did all they could to care for him in his last days. He leaves a widow and 8 children to mourn his last days, and many friends to grieve. He lived a noble, moral life, always ready to help those in trouble and need. Weeo not mother, children and friends, God knows best. He was buried at Providence cemetery on Monday at his own request. We leave all to Him in heaven that doeth all things well, and sympathize with them who mourn.

ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

Billingsley.

Times are a little dull since people have quit talking politics.

We are sorry to say that we have some on the sick list this week, but hope for their speedy recovery.

God bless the gentleman who visited the infirmery and brought back with him an infant only a week old. God will be ever ready to aid and assist the husband and wife in the raising of this dear child. Yes, train it up in the way you would have it go.

But listen, the most attractive thing in our town is the new millinery store in by Mrs. J. H. Williams and her sister, Miss Etta Roper. They opened up Tuesday with a nice line of millinery goods.

We all extend to them a hearty welcome. Now come girls, let's show them how much we appreciate their work by giving them our custom. We trust they will be pleased with their new home.

Now, by thanking the dear Editor for past favors, and kindly asking him to please save this piece from the flames. God bless the Banner.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

Battelle's new stack was lighted Sunday afternoon. It is one of the largest iron makers in the south.

The Hamps and Manifold Light railway, recently opened, has no stations, except those at the two termini, states the London Daily Mail. Elsewhere on the route which traverses northeast Staffordshire, a district rich in archaeological interest, picnic parties will be taken up and set down at any place. One of the main objects of the line is to enable farmers to transmit their goods cheaper to the market, and the treasury made a grant of £15,000 to the scheme.

American Medicine states that in New York Dr Biggs finds that during 20 years there has been a great increase in the acute respiratory diseases, cancer and diseases of the circulatory apparatus and the kidneys. The increase in cancer amounts to about 15 percent, and the increase in the acute respiratory diseases amounts to about 15 percent, while the increase in the diseases of the circulatory apparatus and kidneys combined equals about 40 percent. The profoundly important question still remains unsolved as to the causes of these increases and then of the methods of obviating them.

The country's losses by fire have at times reached $100,000,000 a year, and come near that figure on a general average. In tables for a given year, showing their origin incendiarism leads with 1927 cases; defective flues were responsible for 1300. Sparks, matches, explosion of lamps, lightning, forest fires and spontaneous combustion are enumerated as principal causes, but no one of them reaches a third of the number which the firebugs score. The fir cracker comes in at the tail of the list with 105, about half the number lit by pipes and cigar stubs. Taken year by year the several causes show pretty steady averages, as if there was an element of destiny in it beyond precautionary measures to vary or modify.

The new 1000-ton barge canal which New York state is to build at an estimated cost of $101,000,000, to take the place of the old Erie canal, will differ almost as widely from the old canal in its character as a present-day railway locomotive differs from Stephenson's Rocket, says the Chicago Record Herald. An idea that it will be merely wider and deeper Erie canal is totally wrong. It will, to start with, be adapted to steam instead of mule power, and hence will have no need of a towpath; but beyond this it will utilize for the greater part of its course the beds of the rivers, which the old canal carefully avoided. The old way was to follow the hillsides, keeping well out of the river valleys, where freshets would be sure to destroy the towpaths from time to time. The new way involves a control by engineering works of the torrents of the rivers themselves. Old-time engineering ability was not equal to this.

Launching the Matrimonial Bark.

"Miss Sophie," beloved benefactress of half the poor of New Orleans, sat at her desk writing when an elderly woman who had made many previous demands upon her was ushered in.

"Oh, Miss Sophie," she said, breathlessly, "I want to borrow a dollar, please, right away."

"What do you need the money for, Ermagarde?"

"Well, now, you see, I'm going to get married, and I need it for the license."

"But if the man you are to marry cannot pay for the license, how is he going to support you?"

"That's just what I want to explain to you, Miss Sophie. You see, tomorrow is Thanksgiving, and we are coming to your free dinner. Then you always give us something to take home, and in the evening the King's Daughters are going to have a distribution and we shall each get one. That will keep us a week easily, and by that time we'll be on our feet."—Youth's Companion.

Dishonest Croupiers.

Each roulette table in Monte Carlo has a chief, an underchief and seven croupiers. The roulette croupiers are ordered to keep their hands spread out open upon the table between the turns. This is designed not only to give confidence to the players, but to protect the bank against its own employes. Once it was found that a croupier who seemed inordinately fond of snuff had a spring bottom snuffbox. Every now and then he would set it down on a gold piece, and when he took it up the gold piece was inside. Another croupier was discovered to have a sort of funnel under his collar, which ran down to a money belt. Every now and then he would scratch his neck, and every time he did so the bank lost 20 francs.—Argonaut.

SUBSTITUTES FOR MEAT.

NUTRITIVE DISHES OF FISH, EGGS AND CHEESE.

Nuts, If Eaten at the Proper Time, Are a Good Substitute for Animal Food—Mushrooms Are Wholesome. Meat Very Much Overvalued.

The threatened famine of meat spurred the wise housewife to look about for something to take its place. The substitute must, of course, be equal to meat in nutritive value, and cost no more than it did before prices began to soar. This is fortunately an easier matter to face in summer than in winter, though in some families it will be difficult to find anything that will really be as acceptable as meat.

Although meat is strengthening and stimulating, its nutritive properties are exaggerated in the mind of the average person. Too much meat clogs up the system, making an unnecessary amount of blood. It is said on good authority that only laboring men who work outdoors need the blood making qualities of meat three times a day. Among the peasants of Europe, however—and they are a hardy people—meat is not much used, eggs, cheese and milk taking its place.

Attractive dishes of fish, cheese and eggs dressed in new ways are good substitutes for meat. Nuts are very nutritious, and if eaten at proper times there is no better substitute for animal food. Some physiologists go so far as to assert that nuts contain more elements of nourishment than butter and meat combined. When there is a scarcity of meat it is a good plan to serve nuts quite freely, with plenty of salt or in cooked dishes. They are, of course, not good in quality at present, and not an especially cheap substitute. Mushrooms are also wholesome. Peas and beans are rich in proteids. An appetizing way of serving baked beans is to place a small onion in the bottom of the pipkin and bits of butter on top of the beans to give them a very rich, brown crust.

Rich fish, like salmon, bluefish, mackerel and others, in which the oil is about evenly distributed through the flesh, are more nutritious than codfish, halibut and the dried fish. When most of the oil centres in the liver, as in the cod, cusk and others, the flesh of the fish deteriorates rapidly. When it is evenly divided through the body, it gives the fish a rich, fine flavor, and tends to preserve it.

Among the many rich, cheap fish, bluefish must be considered as one of the best. Cod, halibut, haddock, Kennebec salmon, Restigouche salmon, common mackerel and Spanish mackerel are also abundant and in their best condition. There are numberless other good fish from the lakes and streams, as well as from the ocean. In selecting a fish the flesh must be firm and bright, never limp or dull looking. It should be washed in clear, cold water, but not be allowed to stand in it. If fish is not washed whole before the flesh is cut into, it loses its flavor in the washing.

Cheese is rich in nutritive elements. There has been a popular belief that it is not easily digested. This objection, however, applies only to poor and new cheese. Cheeses that are old and rich are not only easily digested, but promote the digestion of other foods. Cook books usually contain an abundant supply of recipes for rich and wholesome cheese dishes—roasted or toasted cheese, souffles, Welsh rabbits, omelets, etc. Therefore there should be no lack of variety.

In the height of summer fancy and wholesome dishes of eggs, which are rich in proteids, may take the place of meat very satisfactorily for a while at least. A novel way of serving eggs is the following: Poach them until tender and firm throughout. Just before sending to the table place them on delicate slices of toast and cover each egg with rich grated cheese. Serve with a little spicy sauce or ketchup. Sometimes the eggs and cheese are placed in the oven for a few minutes before serving, until the cheese is softened.

Another way of serving eggs is in the form of a Spanish omelet. Make a large omelet, using six fresh eggs. Beat them thoroughly together, adding about half a cup of milk and plenty of salt and pepper. Just before folding the omelet spread on it some tomato sauce. Then fold and place on a platter with a little parsley, and if desired, serve a tomato sauce with it.

An excellent tomato sauce for this purpose is the following, which does not demand meat stock in its make-up: Put one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan. When melted add a tiny white onion and three slices of carrot, minced fine; half a sprig of thyme, half a bay leaf, half a spray of bleached celery, cut in small pieces, two sprigs of minced parsley, and, if convenient, a tablespoonful of boiled ham, also finely minced. Let the herbs and vegetables cooks for five minutes, then stir in a large heaping tablespoonful of flour, and when this browns add a quart of canned or ripe tomatoes. Select tomatoes which possess a large proportion of pulp to the seeds. Cook this sauce 45 minutes, season with a scant teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of pepper and a tablespoonful of sugar. When cooked strain through a sieve (a Scotch cap sieve is the best). This sauce, if place is a covered earthen jar near the ice in the refrigerator, will keep for several weeks. It is delicious served with eggs, macaroni and many other dishes.

The following recipe is recommended by a New England housewife: Take a pint of stewed tomatoes which have been cooked for half an hour and season with salt, pepper and butter. Having broken six eggs into a dish slide them carefully upon the tomatoes, and as the whites stiffen slightly pull up the edges. When they have become opaque prick the yolks, allowing them to run out over the whites and the tomatoes. When they have become the consistency of cream turn the mixture out upon a platter on which are arranged slices of buttered toast.—New York Tribune.

THE ORIGIN OF "KICKERS."

Supposed to Come from an Occupation in Cornish Mines.

"I believe that the origin of the expressive bit of slang 'kickers' may be found in the very lowest form of occupation any member of the human race follows," Mr W. M. Robinson states. "Between Wormsley's and St. Helen's, in Cornwall, is an underground canal connecting the lower levels of the coal mines at Wormsley's with the surface station at St. Helen's, which saves a great deal of money for the mine owners in handling the coal, which is simply loaded on the barges in the mines and transported by the canal under the mountains to the harbor at St Helen's. When the canal was devised, however, how to provide for locomotion for these barges was a problem.

"Mules couldn't be used, and there were circumstances which made steam impossible, but an inventive genius finally solved the riddle by suggesting that loss pieces of timber be placed along the roof of the canal, which was very low, and men could lie on their backs on top of the loaded barges and 'kick' the vessel along. After the barge was once started this was found to be feasible.

The men could easily keep the load in motion by the means suggested, and it has ever since been in use. There is no question about the low grade of this sort of work, and even the men who follow it are constantly 'kicking' around the villages where they live. They were known at the mines officially as 'kickers' because of their work, and their vocal complaints, continually indulged in, caused every one at Wormsley's or St. Helen's, no matter what their station or employment, who indulged in complaints to be called 'kickers.' I presume that the origin of the word, as we use it, is just what I have suggested."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BALTIC FLEET SAILS

Route the Vessels Will Take Kept a Secret. Twelve Fighting Ships.

MORE SOLDIERS WILL GO, TOO.

Russia Determined to Push the War to a Finish—Japanese Control Manchurian Coal Mines.

The Russian Baltic sea fleet sailed Sunday for the far east. It consisted of twelve battleships and cruisers and several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers. Vice Admiral Rojestvensky is in command.

The fleet will merely touch Libau, where it will be joined by twelve transports, colliers and supply ships already waiting there and will proceed direct to the orient.

The scene at the departure of the fleet was an imposing one. At dawn the first anchor was hoisted on the swift cruiser Aurora, which accompanied by two torpedo boats, slipped out of the harbor. Admirals Rojestvensky, Voelkersam and Enquist went on board the imperial yacht and personally said farewell to the emperor.

Then with destroyers ahead and abeam, the Souvaroff led the squadron down the Finnish gulf. The waterfront and the piers and forts were crowded with spectators. The ensigns on the forts and yachts were dipped, and the guns of each chain of forts across the bay joined in an admiral's salute, while from the signal masts above the forts fluttered a string of color flags reading:

"Good luck to the Baltic fleet on its long voyage."

The plan of the cruise has not been divulged, but it has been carefully mapped out. Colliers accompany the fleet for the purpose of supplying the torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers whose steaming radius is small. Other colliers have already sailed or are awaiting orders at foreign ports to meet the squadron on the way. All the vessels are equipped with apparatus for coaling at sea.

It was said that there was considerable divergence of expert opinion on the question of delaying the sailing of the fleet until the spring, but the emperor turned the scale in favor of immediate departure.

In this connection there are other war moves. Mobilization in southern Russia was announced and in addition practically all the reserve officers of the navy have been called out.

The emperor will leave about September 15th for Kishinef and Odessa to bid farewell to the Eighth army corps. The first corps has arrived at Mukden.

At a meeting of the emperor's military advisers on Saturday War Minister Sakaroff recommended the sending of an additional 350,000 men to the far east.

The very brief report from General Kuropatkin which was given out Sunday constitutes the latest news from the front; the place at which the dispatch was filed was not indicated, but the report seems to show an almost entire suspension of active operations on both sides.

A dispatch from Tokio places the total casualties on the Japanese side at the battle of Liao Yang at 17,539 officers and men killed and wounded.

Telegrams declare the Japanese to be in full possession of the Yental coal mines, and estimate the Russian losses up to the fall of Liao Yang at over 25,000 men. The estimate of losses does not include those suffered by the Russians in the rear guard actions fought after the evacuation of Liao Yang.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says it is understood that Viceroy Alexieff, in view of the paramount military exigencies in the far east, has placed his resignation in the hands of the emperor, but that no decision with regard to it has yet been made.

The case was called, but it was proved that the warrants charging the defendants with murder were taken out before Graham's death, whereupon the warrants were withdrawn and others issued.

MEXICAN TOWN BURNED.

Progresso, Yucatan, Suffers a Loss of $1,000,000.

A fire raged all day Friday in Progresso, Yucatan, and wiped out an entire block of business houses which for the most part were two-story structures, occupied by firms engaged in the general merchandise business. The loss is estimated at over $1,000,000.

Fire fighting apparatus was sent by special train from Merida, the capital of Yucatan, to aid in fighting the flames. There was little insurance.

During the progress of the fire a great tank filled with alcohol, located in the part of the building occupied by the drug store, exploded, causing the flames to spread to various sections of the block.

The ware houses in which henequin was stored were burned to the ground, and the loss on the fibre alone will aggregate $300,000.

In another building corn was stored and the loss on the cereal will reach $50,000. A large quantity of asphalt destined for paving the streets of Merida, the capital, was destroyed, and a considerable loss entailed.

The loss of the dry goods and grocery, drugs and coffee importing concerns will approximate $400,000.

TRAIN HELD UP.

About $6,000 Stolen—The Robbers Make their Escape.

A special from Winnipeg, Manitoba says:

Saturday night the Canadian Pacific trans-continental express was held up by four masked men and the engine, express and mail cars taken from the train.

Express Messenger Herbert Mitchell at first refused to open the car door, but on being informed that the car would be blown up with dynamite, of which they had a quantity, he complied. From the safe the robbers secured four or five thousand dollars in gold dust, and about $1,000 in currency.

The mail clerks were similarly compelled to open the mail car which was rifled of the contents of registered mail sacks. The engine, express and mail car were then run to a point east of Wainoch, where the robbers took to the woods.

None of the passengers was molested.

Alabama at Manassas.

Alabama boys played a prominent part in battle maneuvers. The Alabama regiment, which is under the command of General Brandon, were on the line established near Stone Hill.

General Brandon realizing he was surrounded by the enemy gave orders that his troops retreat to the rear at midnight, as his position was not a good one. Promptly at midnight the entire regiment, without any commands being given, withdrew quietly, orderly and quickly to Stone Bridge, where Stonewall Jackson made his famous stand during the civil war.

The Alabama boys occupied trenches that were occupied by the Fourth Alabama during the first battle of Manassas during the civil war. They captured during the early hours of the morning two regiments from Maine and New Jersey, and they also captured two rapid firing guns. The Second Georgia made the counter flank with the Ninth infantry and surrounded the Alabama troops, but to do so they were forced to ford Bull Run as the Alabama boys had blown up Stone Bridge.

Engineer Was Crushed, His Fireman Killed and Others Injured.

Two were killed and two seriously injured in a freight wreck on the Southern railway near Dogwood. The dead are Engineer W. H. The injured are Fireman Snow, who lives at Selma, and whose foot was cut off, and Flagman Eli Holly, of Selma, whose injuries are unknown. It is thought that neither will die.

The accident was caused by a wheel breaking, which threw the engine over on one side, mashing the engineer to death under it and derailing fourteen cars, many of which were smashed up.

During Mr. Warriner's presentation of the operators' position, Judge Gray interrogated several times with interrogatories. The judge desired to know whether the operators collected from the miners' wages the pay of any one else connected with the mines. Judge Gray cited as an example the physician and blacksmiths. Mr. Warriner conceded that the pay of the doctor was collected by the operators on an assignment made by the miners and that it also collected when requested by the miners assignment payments for clergymen. The miners initiated their pay and collected without an assignment whether the miners had made use of the blacksmith or not.

COTTON REPORT

Shows Slight Decrease in Total Bales. Higher Prices Received.

Secretary Hester's annual report has been issued in full. He puts the cotton crop of 1903-04 at [illegible],011,276 bales, a decrease of 716,138 under that of 1902-03.

He says that compared with last year, in round figures, Texas, including Indian Territory, has increased 43,000 bales. The group known as other gulf states, consisting of Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Utah and Kansas, has lost 420,000 and the group of Atlantic states, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky and Virginia, has fallen off 322,000.

Mr. Hester's report on the cotton crop of the different states is given as follows in thousands of bales:

Georgia 1,225, against 1,470.
Florida 55, against 55.
Louisiana 824, against 884.
Mississippi 1,267, against 1,404.
Tennessee, etc., 451, against 509.
Total crop 10,011, against 10,728.

He puts the spindles in the south at 8,615,369, an increase of 367,094. These include 685,268 in new mills not yet completed. The net gain in the number of southern mills over last year has been twenty-two, making the total now 762. Of these 671 have been in operation during the year, fifty-seven are idle and thirty-four in course of erection.

The use of foreign cotton in American mills, Mr. Hester says, has again materially decreased, the total mostly of Egyptian, amounting to the equivalent in American weights of 94,729 against 144,242 last year and 180,802 the year before. Of this year's total northern mills consumed 85,390 and southern mills 9,339. The value of the foreign cotton consumed in this country amounts to over eight millions of dollars.

Referring to the progress of the cotton manufacturing industry of the south, Mr. Hester says the growth of the spindle continues, but not to the extent of the few years immediately preceding. A number of mills in the not completed list last year have been put in operation, and these, with materfal additions to many of the old concerns, have increased the total spindles in active mills 762,044, while there are in course of erection 34 new mills, which when completed will contain 685,682 spindles.

The Methodist Episcopal church of Statesboro, Ga., has passed a resolution calling upon every participant in the lynching of Reed and Cato last month to resign membership in the church unless "a public confession of wrong be made with expression of penitence and contrition."

The resolutions denounce the burning of the negroes in very strong language, and state that the church wishes to be put on record as opposed to mob violence, calling it a "shameless violation of law."

Rev. Whitley Langston, who, at the court of inquiry gave names of several participants in the mobbing, and who has been strongly concerned in the affair generally, is upheld and commended for his "Christian conduct."

MURDERED FOR MONEY.

Pedler Attacked Near Huntsville on Site of Former Assault.

With his head smashed almost beyond recognition, the body of an old pedler named Waldrop was found on the public highway near Belle factory, ten miles from Huntsville.

The body was found during the night in a dark place in the road and the team driven by the murdered man was found a short distance beyond. The old man sold a wagon load of country produce Tuesday and started for his home with the money realized from the sale. It is believed that Waldrop was held up and was offering resistance and a fight ensued. Waldrop was held up and robbed at the identical spot about a year ago.

A suspect was later jailed and Wednesday night a mob attacked the jail, and in attempting to smoke out the prisoners fired the building. The fire department was driven off by shots, the negro was captured, confessed, implicating two other negroes and a white man and was then hanged in the court house yard.

Married Again.

Ex-Governor Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee, and Miss Mamie St. John, a beautiful young lady of Chilhowie, Va., were married Wednesday at the home of the bride. Miss St. John is distantly related to ex-Governor Taylor. Mr. Taylor was only a few months ago divorced from his second wife.

Asiatic Torpedo Squadron.

The proposition to send to the Asiatic station a torpedo boat flotilla as an adjunct to the flotilla of destroyers sent out in the spring is under consideration at the navy department. Lieutenant Commander Lloyd H. Chandler, who was sent to Japan to study torpedo boat development, has advised the department of his arrival in this country.

TO CONTROL PORTS

At the Terminals of the Canal is the Wish of Panama. Settlement Pending.

ARTICLE MISUNDERSTOOD.

Objection Made by New Republic to What it Terms Autocratic Methods of Canal Commission.

A crisis is at hand in the affairs of Panama. Public feeling has been aroused to fever pitch. It has now cooled down partially, but it is eagerly awaiting the outcome of the negotiations between John Barrett, minister of the United States, and Don Tomas Arias, the Panama secretary of government.

The issue under discussion is the vital one of control of the ports or harbors at the two ends of the canal. Panama claims that, according to article 2 of the treaty, they are hers and must be under her jurisdiction and sovereignty in order to protect her revenues and foreign trade. The commission insists that article 2 has no such meaning and that it will be impossible for the United States to construct and control the canal unless it has absolute authority over the two entrances.

FEES ARE HIGH.

Railroad Must Pay $14,250 to Have Mortgage Recorded.

There is a law in Alabama providing that when a mortgage is filed there must be paid to the state a special tax of 15 cents for each $100 in the mortgage, this being in addition to the regular recording fee of 15 cents per 100 words paid the clerk.

The Birmingham, Columbus and St. Andrews Railway Company has recently sent out for recording in the various counties in Alabama through which the road is to pass a mortgage of $9,600,000 to the West End Trust company of Philadelphia, as trustee. The road will pass through eight and possibly nine counties in the state. If mortgages of this character are subject to the tax, the special tax in each county would be $14,250, and for eight counties would be $114,000. This would be a very heavy tax, and it is understood that the company will make an effort to secure exemption, or at least secure a reduction of the tax.

MAY INTERFERS

Inter-Parliamentary Union Discusses the Eastern War.

The powers of the world signatory to The Hague convention will be asked by the inter-parliamentary union at its twelfth conference to intervene in the Russian-Japanese war. President Roosevelt will be requested to call a second session of The Hague convention; compulsory arbitration will be advocated; the use of submarine mines in times of war will be deplored and many kindred resolutions will be presented during the deliberations of next week.

The decision to undertake to bring about intervention in the war in the far east was not reached until after heated discussion—at times bitter. When the proposition was brought forward, M. Cochery, a French deputy, objected vigorously to any attempt whatever to inject this matter into the conference. He was supported by Marquis Di S.t Guelanio, president of the Italian group.

ALABAMA BOYS

Made a Good Impression at Manassas Maneuvers.

The Alabama regiment participated in the general review and parade Saturday afternoon, General Corbin being the reviewing officer. As they passed the reviewing stand they were cheered loudly by the observors and visitors on the reviewing stand. One of the observers stated that General Brandon, commander of the Alabama brigade, was the only officer that saluted properly as he passed the reviewing stand. The parade and review occurred near Wellington, about two miles west of the Alabama quarters.

Colonel Price, commander of the Third brigade, of which the Alabama boys form a part, paid General Brandon a personal visit and complimented him upon the excellent behavior of his men during the encampment, saying that he desired through General Brandon to express to the officers and men his compliments and to express his satisfaction of the manner in which they had conducted themselves.

Soil Surveys.

A soil survey of Blount county is being made under the direction of the department of agriculture. The work is being done by William G. Smith, of the bureau of soils of the department of agriculture at Washington assisted by Mr. Meeker, of New York.

It will require about four months to complete the work. Mr. Smith and Mr. Meeker will then go to Dallas county to make a survey of the soils there.

DESPONDENCY

Supposed to be the Cause of This Young Man's Act.

Percy J. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, blew out his brains while sitting in the parlor of the Pulaski house, Savannah.

It is supposed the act was caused through despondency. Whitehurst had been in this city and vicinity for several weeks visiting relatives. Half an hour before he shot himself he entered the bar of the hotel and bought two glasses of beer and a package of cigarettes. He then went to the office of the hotel and tried to reach a young lady by telephone. It is supposed he intended to tell her of his rash purpose.

He failed to receive an answer. Then he walked into the parlor of the hotel, lighted a cigarette and after smoking less than a quarter of it sent a bullet crashing through his left temple and died by the time the attaches of the hotel could reach him.

REPUBLIC COMPANY WINS

And Operatives Must Abide by Reduction in Wages.

Victory for the employers was the outcome of the conciliation plan of adjusting wage differences between the Republic Iron and Steel company and its 20,000 skilled, union employes at Ashtabula, Ohio.

The members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers employed by the Republic company were forced to submit to a reduction in wages. A decrease in pay will be made from 2 to 20 per cent. The skilled workmen will suffer the greatest reduction.

May Postpone Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Tennessee River Improvement Association in Decatur may be postponed from the middle of October to November because of the fact that many of the congressmen who have been invited to attend will be unable to accept unless the meeting is held after the national election. The approaching meeting will be one of the most important ever held by the association. Congress will be asked to appropriate the sum of $800,000 for the completion of the work at Colbert Shoals and that money expended the river will be navigable at all stages as high up as Decatur.

MARCH 2D SET

As the Wedding Day of the German Crown Prince.

It is reported that March 2d next has been selected for the date of the marriage of the Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin to Crown Prince Frederick William. The nuptials will be celebrated with unprecedented splendor, as he will be the first Hohenzollern to marry as crown prince of the German empire.

Milwaukee Launched.

The protected cruiser Milwaukee was launched Saturday in the presence of thousands of spectators, including a distinguished delegation from the city in whose honor the vessel was named and a large number of Knights Templar from Wisconsin and other states who have been in San Francisco for their triennial conclave.

Bank Robbed.

The Bank of Murphy, N. C., was robbed of $4500. The large vault and safe within it were both blown open and completely demolished.

The robbers secured tools from a blacksmith shop a short distance from the bank. With these they made breaches within the safe and vault large enough to enable them to insert dynamite. The robbery was not discovered until next morning. The bank was fully insured against robbery. So far as can be learned no suspicious characters have been lurking about the town.

Army Maneuvers.

The army maneuvers just closed have been in the opinion of those who witnessed them the most successful and profitable operations ever held in the United States in time of peace. They have been instructive without any incident of disagreeable, or particularly unfortunate character, and though expensive, have not cost the United States nearly as much as such practice annually costs the armies of Europe.

Almon Reappointed.

H. G. Almon has been reappointed superintendent of education of Lawrence county, that being one of the few counties where this officer is appointed instead of elected. W. J. Dunaby has been appointed superintendent of Choctaw county, succeeding O. L. Gray, who has resigned because of his nomination for socilitor of the district.

Having His Picnic.

"They have got me, but I am going to have a picnic of a time," declared Goub Beard, a Girard merchant, when placed in jail on a writ of lunacy. He set fire to a lot of rags in the Girard jail, exciting the population, who thought the jail was burning down. He said he built the fire just to clear out the mosquitoes.

Battelle's new stack was lighted Sunday afternoon. It is one of the largest iron makers in the south.

DISCONNECTED RAILS

Cause Fatal Railroad Wreck on Seaboard Air Line in North Carolina.

SEVEN KILLED: 35 INJURED.

Train Went Through a Trestle and An Engine Following Crashed Into the Wrecked Cars.

Seven persons were killed and many injured in a wreck on the Seaboard Air Line at Catawba Junction, S. C. A passenger train, five cars and a sleeper, went through a high trestle over a small stream. An extra freight train following the passenger piled on top of the wreckage a few minutes later. The dead so far as known are Engineer Barksdale and Trainman Ferguson, of the freight; Ed Robertson, colored fireman, and four women who were in the passenger train.

The train had crossed a bridge over the Catawba river and was on a trestle when it fell in. The train with the exception of the Pullman car fell 25 feet to the ground.

The locomotive had crossed the place in the track where it was subsequently discovered, according to a report from an officer of the road that some person had disconnected the rail connections at the trestle. The train broke in two. The engine toppled over the embankment south of the trestle, while the rest of the train appears to have gone through the trestle to the ground about 25 feet below. This was followed by the light engine, which fell through the broken trestle, presumably falling on the Pullman, which was the rear car of the train.

50,000 LOSS

Said to be Conservative Estimate of Liao Yang Mortality.

A correspondent who has returned to Mukden with the Russian rear guard, after having accompanied the army the whole time since the battle of Liao Yang, says the losses on both sides were enormous. As a moderate estimate he places them at 50,000.

When the Russians left Liao Yang the town was strewn with corpses of the slain. The Japanese shell fire continued until September 4th, when the bridges over the Taitse were destroyed.

The greater portion of the Russian forces crossed the Taitse during the night of September 2d and engaged General Kuroki with two corps. The sideration at the navy tederaptnm m fighting on the first day was favorable to the Russians, but the conditions changed at night. The Russian infantry suffered heavily from shrapnel and rifle fire.

The condition of the road rendered the retreat slow and troops and horses were tired out. The Japanese seemed to lack enterprise and failed to recognize the serious situation of the Russians, the morale of their troops having been severely tried.

A Japanese army of 40,000 men is reported to be west of Mukden and it is considered likely in view of the conditions of the two armies that hostilities may be indefinitely prolonged until the Japanese are able to push on and force the Russians to give battle.

New Cars.

In Mississippi the Mobile and Ohio railroad has added 1,900 new freight cars to its equipment this year and will have a large amount of new passenger rolling stock in a short time.

New Sights for Guns.

While the battleships of the North Atlantic fleet are in dock this month it is hoped the work of re-sighting their guns may be begun. The bureau of ordnance has asked for bids for from three to four hundred 3-inch sights. The sights for the larger guns have not yet been made.

Geographers' Congress.

The first session of the eighth International Geographical congress was called to order Thursday in the auditorium of the George Washington university by Commander R. E. Peary, United States army, president of the congress. Dr. Charles D. Walcott, director of the geological survey, welcomed the congress to America on behalf of the president.

The Jury Prays.

Opening with prayer, the grand jury called together to investigate the lynching of Horace Maples, the Huntsville negro murderer, began taking evidence.

Americans Win in Swimming.

The closing events of the Olympic swimming tournament were held Wednesday. Fancy diving, one-fourth mile, breast stroke half mile championship, 440 yards championship and the team relay race made up the programme.

American swimmers have won a majority of the points, due partly to the fact that there are more American entries than foreigners.

MONEY RECEIVED

And Payment of Mississippi Warrants Resumed.

Temporary financial relief has been received at the treasury, and the state will be able to keep the wolf from the door for a few days, at least, and meanwhile the officials are still hoping, hoping, but almost defiant hope, that the Chicago syndicate will yet open its purse strings to take up the half million dollar bond issue.

The depleted vaults were relieved by Insurance Commissioner Cole, who paid over $10,000 derived from fees and collected in his department. Several county tax collectors have also made settlements for privilege taxes collected. And Treasurer Miller is once more able to meet outstanding warrants.

The officials are not yet able to figure out how they are going to pay the school fund and pension appropriations, amounting to nearly a million dollars, unless the half million dollar bond issue is sold. County superintendents of education are becoming anxious over the school fund distribution, which has been delayed more than three months, and report that many of the districts are badly in need of money, for the school terms will open within the next few days.

RESIDENCE BURNED.

Fire Believed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin.

Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, totally destroyed the residence of Attorney R. L. Leatherwood. The loss is about $6,000, which includes the building and contents. The house was unoccupied, as Mr. Leatherwood is away from Birmingham and his wife was stopping at the home of a neighbor. The loss included the home and office library of Mr. Leatherwood, which he valued at $2,000.

Mrs. Leatherwood does not consider the destruction of the home as the result of threats on their property. She says that no threats have been made to burn the property, but that she had received four anonymous threats over her telephone at the home upon the life of her husband.

PRIZE MONEY

Divided Among the Men Who Whipped Montojo at Manila.

The treasury department has begun sending checks to the officers and men of Admiral Dewey's fleet in payment of the awards of prize money made for the victory of the American fleet at Manila bay. It is expected that all the 2,000 officers and men who were in the battle of Manila bay will get their checks within six or seven weeks.

The check to Admiral Dewey is for $18,511. The next largest sum was to Mrs. Gridley, whose husband commanded the largest ship in the battle—the Olympia. This is for $9,413. The pay is proportioned to the size and armament of the ships that took part in the engagement.

The total amount to be divided is $370,336. The smallest amount to any member of the crews is $69.

Bite Communicates Insanity.

Apparent proof that insanity may be communicated like hydrophobia is shown in a case which is attracting attention among physicians at Bellevue hospital, New York city. A trained nurse was bitten by an insane patient nearly a year ago. Since then the wound frequently has given great pain and never completely healed. About two months ago she began to show signs of mental disturbance. These grew longer, and finally her friends had the young woman removed from her home in the hospital. She now suffers severe convulsions resembling the manifestations of rabies, while the mental delusions are almost continuous.

Diplomatic Relations.

Mexico will shortly establish a legation at Pekin. Don Carlos Lera, now Mexican minister to Japan, will also be minister to China. The establishment of the legation is not connected with any special object, but is for general purposes, mainly to promote mercantile agencies.

At Bull Run.

The final day of maneuvers begun at midnight, when the forces under General Bell, the aggressor in the movement against Washington, were pushed forward toward the line of defense.

General Corbin brought the maneuvers to a close at 9 o'clock Friday morning. At that time General Bell, with his brown army, had advanced across Stone bridge, pushing General Grant back, and also had swung a large part of his force from the left wing to the entire right flank of General Grant, and put them across Bull Run at Sudley Springs.

Navy Additions.

The board of construction has approved the plans and specifications for the armored cruisers North Carolina and Montana, and the battleship New Hampshire, which were authorized by the last congress, and as soon as they have been approved by Secretary Morton they will be published. The armored cruisers, save in their interior arrangements, follow closely the lines of the Tennessee class and the New Hampshire the Louisiana

THERE is a lull this week in the Russo-Jap war.

WHAT a pity that Tom Watson could not withstand temptation, but should allow himself to become a by-blow of the Republicans.

BARELY two months to election. Are you reasoning with your neighbor that it is his duty to vote the Democratic ticket? Or are you an idler in the field? Democrats, work, and unbounded success awaits you!

THE Democratic ticket—National, State and County, presents to the voters an opportunity to elect men who can be relied upon to work for the greatest good to the greatest number.

EXPENSES of candidates on the opposition ticket came higher than ever before—the carpet-bagger gouged its victims for the last cent it coud extract from them, but that is the true spirit of carpet baggers. Poor victims!

WHAT does the opposition ticket in Chilton county offer to the voters? Nothing, absolutely nothing! A mixed up ticket of some good men, some not so good, and some of whom it is hard to find anything good that can be said.

WHAT does the Democratic ticket offer to the voters of Chilton county?

A national ticket beyond reproach that will carry the country in November.

A State ticket pledged to the carrying out of true democracy—honest elections, increased school funds, and all that which redounds to the credit of the State and the benefit of the people, a ticket that will be unanimously elected in November.

A County ticket, comprising the best men of the county—honest men, capable men; men of integrity whose lives are an open book; men who will faithfully discharge the duties of the office in the best interests of all; men who are not swayed by prejudice and passion; men whose political affiliations are with the dominant party in the State; men who will reflect credit upon Chilton county when elected by the good and conservative voters in November.

SOMETHING is wrong somewhere when a man is heard to express himself as follows: "I would vote for a thief before I would vote for a Democrat." And this expression was uttered by a man whom we know to be as good, honest, upright a citizen as can be found in Chilton county. Why this implacable hatred of the Democratic party? Is there any cause for it? The only apparent reason is that good men will sometimes shut their eyes, and looking back in the dark past, refuse to open them in the light of day and see what is now going on around them. They close their ears to all who would reason with them, and listen only to the rehashing of old stories told by interested men, who in their mad chase for office, having no convincing arguments to bring to bear against the Democratic party of to-day, resort to things of the past when better men than they were forced to political tricks of which their conscience disapproved. There are none so blind as those who won't see, and this old saw is particularly true of some good men who persistently refuse to see anything different in the Democratic party of to day and that of, say, ten or twelve years ago, when the great bulk of our Populist friends left the Democratic party, thereby hastening the return of honest elections and a clean and pure advocacy of true Democratic principles.

A DISCLAIMER.

Montgomery, Sept. 9, 1904.
Editor Banner, Clanton Ala.

Dear Sir:—I had not deemed it neccessary thus far to notice the misquotations of my speech, which have been circulated by persons opposing the Democratic nominees in Chilton county, but as those parties persist in these misquotations and misrepresentations of my speech, I simply desire to assure those voters who were not present upon that occasion that I made no such statements as are imputed to me in the different issues of the Union, with which I am familiar.

I hope to have the pleasure of being in Chilton county before this campaign is over and I shall repeat what I said before and you will find that I have been either intentionally misquoted or my speech was misquoted for other less honorable purposes. I sincerely hope that those gentleman who have misquoted me, if unintentionally, will not hereafter do me the injustice that their imputations, perhaps from misunderstanding have done. To those who maliciously and willfully misquote my speech, I have nothing to say for the devil alone can take care of them.

With kindest regards to you and to the party for success, I am, with high esteem, yours sincerely.

TERRY RICHARDSON.

CHANCERY COURT.

The fall term of Chancery Court convened at Clanton Monday, Chancellor Richard B. Kelly, presiding, this being his last term here, and the first occasion in which a jury trial has been heard in the chancery court of this county.

The case was that of the heirs of Samuel Adams, deceased, vs. the heirs of Alfred Baker, deceased, and involved the title to Block No. 30 in the town of Clanton. A jury of fifteen was drawn by Sheriff Morgan, by order of the Chancellor made in vacation, and from this number each side had a right to strike four. The Sheriff had to summon extra talesmen from the town before the jury was complete, and the case occupied all day Monday and part of Tuesday.

The court, at request of plaintiffs, gave an affirmative charge to the jury, the jury retired and in a few minutes returned a verdict for the plaintiffs.

The case was brought by W. M. Adams, for the purpose of testing the legality of any title the heirs of Alfred Baker might have to this particular property.

Col. Sam Will John of Birmingham and W. M. Adams represented the plaintiffs, and Smith & Middleton the defendants.

The remaining cases on the docket were of no public interest, and Court adjourned Wednesday.

The following gentlemen composed the jury: E. C. Jones, J. C. Jones, F. D. Jones, P. W. Peterson, T. J. Traywick, A. D. Robinson, J. B. Marlar, A. H. Hunt, J. P. Crumpton, J. Watts Moore, E. H. Lowe, John H. Winslow.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Oxford Training.

The average citizen, if asked what was taught at Oxford, would probably reply, "Useless learning." And in many ways it is a true answer, for its aim is not to turn out doctors, lawyers and merchants, ready made, but men with carefully trained minds, fitted not for this or that profession, but for the whole conduct of life. It is contended that such a man will insensibly take a wider view of his subject than the specialist, for he approaches it from a different standpoint.—London Outlook.

Good Living In China.

An English surgeon at Hongkong writes that "all Chinamen eat fish and pork at morning and evening meals. Fowls and ducks are always on the table of all but the most humble of the cooly class, and they do not have them because they cannot afford them. I hope this will be a sufficient answer to those who maintain that Chinamen live on rice. It is not nearly so true as that the Scotch live on porridge."

A Simple Question.

"May a man marry his widow's sister?" was a question I heard put to a prominent lawyer.

"Certainly he may," was the reply without a moment's hesitation. Then the lawyer had another think coming.—Albany Journal.

Seer.

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are," said the seer.

The man told him what he ate.

"You're a blanked fool!" said the seer.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed the man.—Puck.

At First Sight.

"Did he fall in love at first sight?"

"Yes. First sight of her bank account."—Princeton Tiger.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." Talleyrand's Sharp Tongue.

Japanese Myths.

Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears and fishes with ten heads attached to one body. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has lived for 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Emergency Medicines

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflamation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

How Sea Birds Get a Drink.

"When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seein' birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty.

"One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glitterin' day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came dartin' from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circlin' round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill.

"In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off; they travel a hundred miles, maybe, to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'."—Portland Oregonian.

FARM AND GARDEN

WATER AND SHADE.

Shade is as essential to the health and comfort of the hog, cow or sheep as it is for humanity. Hogs should have a pool of water in the shade in which to cool their systems. Hundreds of hogs die for the want of water and shade.

A GOOD HARNESS DRESSING.

The Government harness dressing is made as follows: One gallon neatsfoot oil, two pounds Bayberry tallow, two pounds beeswax, two pounds beef tallow. Put the above in a pan over a moderate fire. When thoroughly dissolved add two quarts of castor oil, then, while on the fire, stir in one ounce lampblack. Mix well and strain through a fine cloth to remove sediment. Let cool and you will have as fine a dressing for harness or leather of any kind as can be had.

WHAT MILK CONTAINS.

The great majority of the people do not try to know what are the component parts of the foods they eat or drink. Here is something for the boy and girl readers of the Agriculturist to fix in their minds. One hundred pounds of good milk contain about the following amounts of the different constituents: 87 pounds of water, 4 pounds of fat, 5 pounds of milk sugar, 3.3 pounds of casein and albumen and 7 pounds of mineral matter of salts.

LANGSHANS AND BLACK COCHINS.

A Black Cochin hen, like any other Cochin, requires plenty of time for maturity, often not laying until fully grown, while the Langshan hen often begins to lay when but little over five months old. The Cochin is the more persistent sitter, while the Langshan does not show a strong propensity for so doing, but does her work well when she begins, the same as the Cochin. A Langshan can fly high for a large fowl, while the Cochin is no flyer at all. The Langshan always has dark legs, with pink between the toes, while the legs of the Cochin may be either dark or yellow. The skin of the Langshan is white and the flesh fine in grain, but the Cochin has yellow skin and rather coarser-grained flesh. The carriage of the Langshan is majestic, and its beauty of plumage is increased by the long sickle feathers, while the Cochin is more compact in body and should have no sickle feathers, except such as are short and abruptly turned over.

DEHORNING.

The editor of Farm and Home says: The views arising in consequence of the dehorning of dairy cattle at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station are well worthy of being given the fullest publicity. They should be known to all who own such cattle.

Quite a number of cattle of this class had the horns removed at the institution named.

At different times opportunity was in this way given to study and compare all the influences of the operation. Thus it came to be held by those participating that "the pain of the operation of dehorning has been overestimated. The mortality is practically nothing."

The almost unanimous opinion of those who have practiced it in their herds is in its favor. "The worry, pain and cruelty of animals to their mates is eliminated when these instruments of torture are removed, and the lack of fear and quite contentment of the individuals of the herd are at once noticeable."

SELECTING SEED CORN.

The true selection of a better breed of corn is not confined to the selection of the best ears by any means, although this is the popular idea of corn improvement. As every corn raiser knows, certain seed will raise corn that is almost ideal, so far as the ear goes, but there are but few ears on a plant.

This being the case, it is evident that the true selection of corn is the selection of the plants which show the desired characteristics all through their growth up to the time of harvest, so that the plants should be closely watched from the time they break ground and thus securing the habit of growth as well as the perfection of ear so desirable.

Many of the plants will make a stronger growth than others and ripen the full crop earlier; if such a plant is what is desired it can only be found by watching its growth through the season. Then if the yield is all that is desired one comes pretty near having the ideal plant and one which is, probably, capable of even greater improvement.

WASHING IRISH POTATOES.

A Michigan farmer who handles over 2,000 bushels of potatoes each year washes every bushel. He says: "For five years I have washed all potatoes and have never lost a bushel by rot after I put them away in the cellar. I dig with a digger and pick up the potatoes as fast as they are dug. They are then hauled to a suitable rack for washing, where a mill hose is turned on them with forty pounds of pressure. In this way 100 bushels are washed clean enough in ten minutes to bake or boil. I let them lie for a few minutes only, then pick them up and put in one bushel crate, after which they stand in the sun or wind for from two to three hours, long enough to dry nicely. The potatoes are then packed away in a cool, dry cellar, where they remain until wanted for use or to sell.

"I have found this to be the most practical way to care for potatoes or other roots. The potatoes being in bushel crates are ready to sell by the load or bushel and can be handled very quickly and cheaply. No measuring is necessary, no weighing required—already to sell, use or plant."

WATCH THE LITTLE PIGS.

The systematic man on the farm is the one who generally makes the money. At a Farmers' Institute in Illinois, one of the hog growers made a statement which showed wonderful results. He said:

"If you take a litter of pigs the morning after they are born and put them in a basket and on the scales, you will find they weigh all the way from six teen to eighteen pounds, according to the age and size of the mother; then if you weigh them the next morning, and every twenty-four hours in succession, you will find that they have made a live-weight gain of all the way from two pounds three, three and one-half, four, and as high as five pounds, and in order to gain this weight the sow must have given at least consideration twenty-five or thirty pounds of milk during the twenty-four hours. This is the way I have milked her. It takes eleven pounds of milk to make one pound of live-weight in a fifty-pound pig, and so I can easily calculate. I don't know how many litters of pigs I have weighed on my place. Now, then, gentlemen, if you have a mother that is a good milker, a good mother of a kind disposition, and of good bearing, keep her on the farm, and do not discard her and breed from immature hogs. They should not farrow until they are twelve months old."

POULTRY NOTES.

The time of hatch, more than the breed, regulates laying.

In-breeding should not be tolerated for more than two years.

Keep all buildings for poultry well covered with whitewash, put on thick.

The best stock is the cheapest, therefore, never sell the best and never buy anything but the best.

Fowls in confinement need a variety of food, and one of the most important of them is green food of some kind.

Put a good flock of hens in the plum orchard and the trees will be less subject to curculio and will produce good crops of fruit.

In no case can we make good, mature fowls of poorly-fed and badly-managed chickens. It is economy first and last to feed well.

So far as can be done, green food should form a part of the daily rations through the year, as it seems necessary to insure health, productiveness and fertility.

A stale egg which remains in one position for a number of days has the yolk adhering to the membrane of the shell. The position of the germ often causes the embryo chicken to hatch either weakly or deformed.

The poultry business is one of many details, and they need close following. Unless a person is willing to give attention to little things, and not only to them once, but many times, as occasion may require, it is not advisable to go into the business very extensively.

Chinese Fond of Birds.

The Chinese are extravagantly fond of birds and carry their caged favorites out to walk with them as commonly as we take our dogs. As pets, the lark and the thrush are rivals. The former is a sweet, untiring singer, the latter has greater aptitude for learning tricks, although the "spectacle thrush," with its black-circled eyes, looks so grave and wise that one feels surprised to see it perform all sorts of antics. One of its cousins, no less clever, and far prettier, has eyes only partially framed by a somber velvet line, and is known as "hwamei," or "painted eyebrows." Also popular as a household bird, more particularly in the southern provinces, is the magpie, or "joyous one."—Our Ani Friends.

Study Your Mother-in-Law.

"Study your prospective mother-in-law before marriage, for it might save you a disagreeable life time at closer quarters," was the Rev. H. N. Quisenberry's advice to young men at the College Avenue Baptist Church, Indianapolis, in his sermon on "Whom to Marry, When to Marry and the Wedding." The Rev. Quisenberry said that the young woman who is usually responsible for the "swell" weddings. His remarks were sarcastic regarding such weddings, of which he disapproves. "Marry in one of three places" said the preacher, "the church, the home of the bride or the home of the pastor." He concluded, says the Indianapolis News, by telling every young man in the congregation that he ought to be married.—Philadelphia Record.

WOMAN'S WORLD

LOVE IN THE HOUSE.

Love does not linger in the home where rudeness shows its unlovely qualities. It chooses to dwell in the home where the spirit of unselfishness, of self-control, of thoughtfulness and of charitableness makes the atmosphere sweet. Happy homes depend on happy hearts. Home is distinctively a woman's sphere, and she who sweetens it most makes earth nearer heaven.

WOMEN WHO GRACE COINS.

For the new issue of florins Miss Susan Hicks-Beach, daughter of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, has stood as a model for the figure of Britannia. This is by no means the first time that a subject has been chosen for this purpose. Pepys records that the beautiful Miss Frances Stuart was chosen to represent Britannia on "the King's new medal," and Charles also perpetuated the prettiness of the notorious Duchess of Portsmouth, "but only on copper coins only. The benevolent countenance of Mrs. Martha Washington has adorned our treasury notes, and the silver dollar shows the features of a pretty American. The Rothschilds used, 100 years ago, the head of Baroness de Rothschild on their notes, and in 1897 the State Bank of Budapest engraved the face of Mme. Louise Blaha, a prima donna, on its 1000-gulden notes.

THE WOMAN BEAUTIFUL.

Let every woman strive for a beauty which all will recognize as being genuine, through and through. That which is superficial will fade and pass away, leaving a flood of disappointments and unhappy memories, while the true beauty will prove a "joy forever." She who possesses this gift will be blessed. And yet it is not a gift, for beauty represents the ultimate result of sincere striving for the best in life, for the noblest in character, sweetness of grace and purity of soul. Every woman may possess these divine attributes if she will. The way is open and mankind will smile approval if she chooses to become the woman beautiful. The woman who thinks" will shape her life to this course and will call to her aid the supreme source of strength and wisdom.—Madame.

SHE IS A CLEVER WOMAN.

Who can fill the hostess' part to perfection.

Opinions differ as to what constitutes an ideal hostess, but according to a number of women who went over the question over the teacups at a tea there are some of the indispensable qualities she must possess.

She must make you feel individually that you are the favored guest.

She must make you feel perfectly at home.

She must see everything and yet possess the art of seeming to see nothing.

She must never look bored.

She must always be able to keep the conversational ball rolling.

She must never let any one be slighted or overlooked.

She must know just when to ask the amateur musician to display his or her talents.

She must be perfectly unselfish about her own pleasure.

She must not neglect her guests and at the same time must not give them too much of her own society.

WOMEN EXPERTS AT SKETCHING.

It has been at last discovered that women in general are very much more clever at sketching and drawing than men, and in art schools three-quarters of those who succeed are women. Young girls, who have only the smallest amount of talent, generally make a success of it, and it is not wholly done by their teachers, but by their untiring perseverance and steadfastness.

A woman artist is decidely more clever and artistic than men, although a majority of the world-famed artists of today are men. Women have not succeeded in the heavier lines of art work, but they are far ahead in the lighter one. There are many young girls who have not yet made their debut, but the public will be surprised when they do. The men have heretofore had all the opportunity, but that will soon end when these women are graduated from the different art schools.

A good line of art is the fashion sketches, which pay very well. If one is at all expert, business well be rushing and more orders than can be filled will be the outcome of the difficult studies. It is undoubtedly a woman's business, the fashion sketching—but nevertheless men have entered that field time and time again. Women will some day take their rightful places, and will undoubtedly do the work justice.—New Haven Register.

CARE OF BABY'S EYES.

If more attention were paid to the baby's eyes and less to its dresses or perambulator, future diseases of the eye would be avoided. The treatment, or lack of it, that is accorded the eyes of babies is one of the worst. It is not surprising to see many babies lie blinking in the bright glare of the sunlight in a tenement section. Mothers who have never been taught the care of children are responsible for these. When, however, one sees in the residential part of the city a babe lying on its nurse's lap in a handsome equipage, and sees that its big blue eyes are staring up at the midday sky, utterly unprotected from the brightness, one is not only shocked, but the feeling grows that in the state of baby wisdom possessed by women at large there is something lacking. Carelessness like this very often leads to blindness.

The bright light should never be allowed to fall on a baby's eyes, for it weakens the sight. When taken out of doors baby's eyes should be shaded by a parasol. Indoors the light should be subdued, but not made dim. Let the child lie with its head away from the window, for facing the light is always bad. Do not have the crib stand just beneath or in front of a window.

Always keep the eyes clean. The usual washing of the lids that goes with the ordinary face washing is all that is needed. If there is a discharge of the eye the lid should be lifted and the eye treated with a borax solution. This can be dropped in the eye with an eye syringe. Five cents' worth of boracic acid in powder form, dissolved in as small an amount of water as possible, makes the solution.—New Haven Register.

GOOD HEALTH IS REQUIRED

Getting into one of the women's colleges these days is a serious undertaking. The most popular of them are so crowded that only part of those who are prepared to enter can be admitted. This makes a situation exactly the reverse of that which prevails in men's colleges, where every student who can pass the examinations and meet the perfunctory requirement as to moral character is welcomed.

Several of the women's colleges require that those who intend to matriculate in a particular year shall give notice to that effect three or four years beforehand. Thus it is pretty well known for several years in advance what are the prospects for students, and the colleges are able to maintain their standards of scholarship.

Physical health also is more strictly insisted upon in the women's colleges than in the men's. Nearly all schools, at least of the higher grade, are now insisting as never before upon the health of pupils.

A physician is often attached to the gymnasium, sometimes a general superintendent of physical culture, and upon his advice the pupils often cut down their school work or for a time altogether give it up. At the women's colleges the relation of physical health to general education is felt to be so important that a very close watch is kept upon those who enter college and upon all students throughout their whole course.

AUTUMN FASHIONS.

The Lyons silk manufacturers who hitherto have manufactured silk only are now bringing out silk warp materials with worsted fillings. These are not only very lustrous, but very light, will wear better than pure silk, are better adapted to all sorts of wear, and will be a factor in the coming autumn.

In broadcloths manufacturers are putting on the market lighter weights and better wearing goods, as they are now using a worsted warp in many varieties, and this adds to the wearing qualities of the goods.

In zibelines, which are also to be fashionable in the coming fall and winter, the closely sheared goods are to lead and the fur effects will be in the background.

The manufacturers of dress goods turn out the materials for autumn wear in the spring, and in the late summer and autumn are busy making the gown materials of the coming spring and summer seasons. At present writing the indications are that sheer fabrics will be quite as popular next spring and summer as now, and that flowered effects in organdies will be as much or more worn.

In colorings the pompadour shades, such as rose, raspberry, ciel blue and tender greens, in pastel tints, also faint mauves, will appear in quantities. Plumetis or embroidered effects are to be largely used, and monotones of all colors with dots and figures in the same coloring are to be brought out.

Mohair suitings will be manufactured in quantities, and white and cream colored mohairs of southern wear on golf links and beaches will be a feature.

Soft taffetas will be offered in large numbers, and the glace effects so much worn in France at the races will be distinctly fashionable. These are especially good as foundations for filmy materials, giving more of a changeable effect than the others.

In Paris long coats of white taffeta, surah lined, are worn over delicate costumes, and there also the chiffon taffeta has reigned as a favorite material for out-door costumes, pale green leading other colors. Most of these frocks have had puffed sleeves, the puffs above the elbows, and wide girdles.

BLUE EYED GRASS

Blue-eyed grass in the meadow
And yarrow blooms on the hill,
Cattails that rustle and whisper,
And winds that are never still.

Blue-eyed grass in the meadow,
A linnet's nest near by,
Blackbirds caroling clearly
Somewhere between earth and sky.

Blue-eyed grass in the meadow,
And the laden bee's low hum,
Milkweeds all by the roadside
To tell us summer is come.

—Mary Austin, in St. Nicholas.

THE ROBIN AND THE RAT

A Bodmin correspondent writes: The other day, while a gentleman of Porthglow, St. Keverne, was walking past a farm in the neighborhood, he was attracted by a robin, which flew about him, flapped its wings in his face some two or three times and appeared greatly excited and distressed. He watched the robin for some time and followed it towards a hedge a short distance away.

There he found a rat which had got into the bird's nest and was devouring one of the young birds. At the sight of the gentleman the rat jumped out and was promptly knocked senseless. When the robin saw the rat lying on the road she flew at him and pecked him viciously. There were four young birds in the nest; one was killed, but the other three were unhurt.—St. James' Gazette.

A RAINY-DAY PICNIC

"Now we can't go to the picnic!" wailed Bobby, watching the raindrops that were racing down the window pane.

"And we were going to have such a good time, too!" added little Ruth, the raindrops gathering in her own bright eyes.

"The luncheon was so nice. Isn't it a shame, Mamma!" added twelve-year-old Esther.

Mrs. Merriam smiled. "Look," she said, "see how glad the dusty leaves and flowers are for this beautiful shower."

"Don't you suppose they'd be just as glad if it had rained in the night?" asked Bobby.

"Perhaps," replied Mamma. "But you couldn't have seen them getting their faces washed if it had. But suppose we have our picnic anyway."

"Oh, Mamma! Where? How?" cried three eager voices.

Mamma smiled back at the bright faces from which the frown clouds had disappeared, and said: "You may all go into the parlor and look at books and pictures while Mary and I get the picnic grounds ready."

It was always a treat for the little folks to play in the parlor, so they spent quite a little time looking at the portraits and other pictures on the wall and at the pictures in some of the books in the bookcase. Then Esther climbed into father's big leather arm chair in the bay window and said she would read a story to the other children. Ruth and Bobby dragged two hassocks near their sister and sat at her feet. But it is hard work to be attentive when you know there is something delightful going on just across the hallway. So by and by all three fell to wondering what the picnic would be like, and to imagining the most impossible things.

Presently Mary came and asked them to "come out to the picnic."

Around the room were the potted plants that generally sat on the piazza—ferns, plams and rubber plants. The dining room table had been pushed against the wall, and was heaped with branches of asparagus and honeysuckle.

The table cloth was spread in the middle of the room on the floor. Upon it were the fancy sandwiches and cakes that had been prepared for the out-door picnic. And what do you think? Right in the center of the table cloth, in a little tub filled with earth, was a tall branch from the cherry tree, just loaded down with bright red cherries all sparkling with rain drops. "Tweet, tweet," said something in the little cherry tree. Esther clapped her hands with delight as she caught sight of the bright yellow breast of Dick, her pet canary bird, among the leaves.

How "picknicky" everything looked! The dollies were already there, sitting primly side by side. Bobby's rocking horse, too, and Fido, the dog, were allowed to come to the feast. Fido was a well behaved dog, of course, or he wouldn't have been invited. At one end of the cloth was an alcohol lamp over which the little teakettle was singing merrily all ready to make the cocoa.

When Mamma had pinned a little bouquet on each visitor they all sat down.

Such fun they had! Ruth declared it was better than a "truly picnic," when Mamma had gone to the kitchen and brought in a dish of delicious ice cream. Then Bobby declared that he wished it would rain every day, and Esther said that she thought it was the nicest picnic she ever had.

Possibilities of Iron.

Seventy-five cents' worth of iron when turned into bar iron is worth $10 or if into table knives $3,500. Seventy-five cents' worth of iron manufactured into needles is worth $6,800, and when converted into all kinds of fancy buttons it is worth about $20,000. If the iron is made into watch springs, the product is worth ten times more than that, tons, and when formed into watch springs it will sell for the enormous sum of $400,000.

Coal Found Under Lake.

The most remarkable deposit of coal in Colorado has just been discovered in the Durango district. It is beneath a thin crust of lava, and is of the finest coal and coke, and in an area of over 625 square miles. The quality is unapproached by any other similar product in the world.

Despite the number of "near beers" who figure in the daily list of drowning accidents, the authorities would be a good deal better off if fewer persons knew how to swim.

SERMON FOR SUNDAY

ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. A. B. SIMPSON.

Subject: The Manifestation of the Kingdom—Lord of the Temple the Children's King—Curse of the Fig Tree—The Empire of the Kingdom.

NEW YORK CITY.—The following ser...
...was published Sunday by the world-...
...known leader of the Christian and Mission-...
...movement, the Rev. A. B. Simpson. His ...
...was "The Manifestation of the ...
...and its text was "Tell ye the ...
...Behold thy King cometh ...
...meek and, sitting upon an ass, ...
...the foal of an ass."—Matthew ...

...time will now come when the Lord ...
...was to be publicly manifested as the ...
...and the King of Israel. He ...
...refused the demands of the ...
...a while after His Galilean mira...
...to take Him by force and ...
...Him a king, but now as the end ...
...near it is proper that He should fi...
...fulfill the announcements of ancient ...
...story as for a brief moment at least, ...
...as the heir to David's throne and ...
...answer to all the Messianic hopes of ...

I. The Recognition of the King. It was ...
...fit that the first to recognize Him as ...
...King should be two blind beggars, ...
...which the rulers of Israel, with all ...
...wisdom trained to comprehend, was ...
...denied by poor old Bartimeus and his ...
...companion. Calling Him by His Mes...
...name, they cried, as the pro...
...by Jesus, Thou Son of David, ...
...mercy on us." When Jesus heard ...
...name He instantly ordered the pro...
...to halt, and, calling them to Him, ...
...their petition like a king, bidding ...
...receive their sight and follow Him ...
...glory.

...child it is ever true, "Thou hast hid ...
...things from the wise and prudent and ...
...revealed them unto babes." The wisdom ...
...of the world and even the culture of theo...
...have blinded men to the ...
...and it is the lowly and little to ...
...whom the Holy Ghost reveals ...
...mysteries of the kingdom of heaven" ...
...the closed hopes of the coming of the ...
...glorious King.

...did these blind men know that ...
...was the Son of David? With their ...
...senses they felt after Him until they ...
...found Him. It is so still that the hungry ...
...finds the Saviour. Reaching out in ...
...darkness and sense of need, groping ...
...One who we feel can meet and satisfy ...
...soul, we press our way toward the ...
...ever as the blind man, who, when he ...
...began to see the objects before him, can ...
...at least the glare of the light ...
...to it. Even so we can ...
...to God, and He will meet the ...
...reveal Himself in the vis...
...of sight and love even as He did to ...
...blind man.

...Seek for Christ, follow the light you ...
...and He will give more as you follow ...
...and you, too, will hear Him say, "Be ...
...of good cheer, thy faith hath made thee ...
...whole."

II. The Manifestation of the King. An...
...prophet had foretold the coming of ...
...King in meekness, truth and love, and ...
...triumphal entry into Jerusalem was a ...
...striking fulfillment. Zechariah especially ...
...literally described the scenes por...
...trayed in this chapter. "Rejoice greatly, ...
...daughter of Zion, shout, O daughter of ...
...Jerusalem: behold thy King cometh unto ...
...thee: He is just and having salvation, low...
...and riding upon an ass and upon a colt ...
...the foal of an ass." (Zechariah 9:9).

...For the first time in His earthly minis...
...our Lord permits Himself to be borne ...
...the beast of burden, which had always ...
...been recognized as the bearer of kings. ...
...Rising upon a little colt never ridden be...
...draped with the garments of His dis...
...ciples as they walked beside, and accom...
...panied by the mighty multitude surging ...
...from the city at this, the Passover time, ...
...the population of Jerusalem was ...
...trebled tenfold, He slowly descended ...
...Bethany toward the city. At every ...
...the enthusiasm of the crowd grew ...
...greater. Cutting down branches from the ...
...trees they strewed them in the way, ...
...even their garments they flung in hom...
...at His feet, while their voices rose to a ...
...wild shout as they cried in the language ...
...of old prophetic Psalm, "Hosannah to ...
...the Son of David, Hosannah in the high...
...est!"

...In His own demeanor was in strange ...
...contrast to all these scenes of tumultuous ...
...excitement. Truly, He came as the King ...
...of meekness, lowliness and love. This be...
...came still more apparent when the city ...
...slowly burst upon their view, and the ...
...sight drew from Him an outburst of ...
...grief and compassion, and amid all that ...
...shout of popular acclamation He gave ...
...vent to bitter tears and lamentations over ...
...the doom which He saw impending ...
...the scenes that lay spread before Him ...
...in all their glorious beauty. But the pro...
...cession went on, and in a little while He ...
...entered the city and the Temple.

...The triumphal entry into Jerusalem was ...
...but the following of that glorious time ...
...when He shall come again as Israel's long ...
...looked Messiah and take His place upon ...
...the throne of David, never again to leave ...
...it.

...It is also typical of His entrance upon ...
...the throne of the individual heart when ...
...we receive Him as our Lord and King. ...
...He shall on whom no man had sat ...
...before, the exquisite type of the heart ...
...that gives Him its exclusive affection. He ...
...comes to reign, not as tyrant, but as a ...
...result of gentleness and love in all the at...
...tributes so finely set forth in ...
...ancient picture that we are consider...
...ing. He does not come to repress, but to ...
...bless. He does not dominate us as a des...
...pot, but He meets all the needs and long...
...ings of our being, and so blends with our ...
...will and our will that we become His ...
...subjects and the very partners of ...
...His kingdom and His throne. Have we ...
...received Him and known Him as our ...
...King?

III. The King of Zion and the Lord of ...
...the Temple. Immediately upon entering ...
...the city He passed through the gates of ...
...the Temple and repeated the miracle of ...
...cleansing which had formed the first ...
...act of His early Judean ministry. The ...
...interval between this miracle and the ...
...one that then He called it His Father's ...
...house. Now "My house." He was now ...
...in the position of being Himself the ...
...Head of the Temple and the true theocra...
...cy of the kingdom. A little later ...
...the phrase was changed again. As He left ...
...the Temple after His solemn warnings ...
...and judgments pronounced against the ...
...priests and leaders of Israel, He de...
...clared, "Your house," Mine no longer, ...
..."your house is left unto you desolate and ...
...ye shall not see Me again until he shall say ...
...Blessed is He that cometh in the name of ...
...the Lord."

...The cleansing of the Temple was occa...
...sioned by the abuse which was made of its ...
...courts by a class of money brokers and ...
...changers who took advantage of the ...
...universal desire for silver change in order to ...
...pay the half shekel offering which was re...
...quired of every one entering the Temple, ...
...and out of this there grew up a regular ...
...system and a large class of men who, at ...
...exorbitant rates of usury, supplied the sil...
...ver exchange to the worshipers as they ...
...came into the courts without having ...
...provided themselves with the requisite ...
...coin.

...Another class of tradesmen in like man...
...ner had set up another part of the court with ...
...their stalls for the supply of doves ...
...and other animals for the sin offerings and ...
...other offerings of the daily sacrifices. ...
...These also were sold at exorbitant prices ...
...for the convenience of the worshipers, but ...
...for the gain of the dealers.

...In the same high place He still claims in ...
...the Church of God and the individual ...
...heart. The abuse of the Temple courts of ...
...old have, alas, been more than paralleled ...
...in the history of Christendom. It was the ...
...sale of indulgences in the time of Luther ...
...for the enrichment of the ecclesiastical par...
...ties that brought about the Reformation.

...The kind of sin here described is not sec...
...ular business, in its own place, but the ...
...doing of things in the name of religion ...
...which are prompted by mercenary motives. ...
...The preaching of the gospel for the sake of ...
...gain, wrong financial methods in support...
...ing the church, the desecrating of the ...
...house of God by social and secular enter...
...tainments and methods of raising money ...
...which appeal to the selfishness and frivol...
...ity of man, and the using of Christianity ...
...in any way as a cloak of covetousness, as ...
...an advertisement of business, as a means ...
...of social preferment or secular gain—these ...
...are things which are so common on every ...
...side of us that the hearts of many of God's ...
...children have been filled with humiliation ...
...and sorrow, and moved to earnest prayer ...
...for the coming of the King once more to ...
...cleanse His Temple and purge from His ...
...church these shameful profanations.

...The second cleansing of the Temple ...
...would seem to suggest that before the ...
...Lord's coming there is to be a profound ...
...work of sanctification among the people ...
...of God answering to that first cleansing ...
...of which we read so fully in the early ...
...chapters of the Acts of the Apostles.

...Still more fully does it apply to the in...
...dividual experience of the Christian. ...
...Here, too, there is a second cleansing ...
...which the Lord comes to bring when He ...
...Himself enters the consecrated heart, not ...
...only saving but sanctifying and separating ...
...us unto Himself in a deeper sense than ...
...we can possibly know, even in the early ...
...joy of conversion. Have we received this ...
...second cleansing?

IV. The Children's King. This was not ...
...an ordinary crowd, where the children ...
...always love to be in front, but it was a ...
...genuine outburst of heaven inspired love ...
...and loyalty that made them cry, "Hosan...
...nah in the highest." For the Lord Jesus ...
...Himself bore testimony to the genuineness ...
...of their praise and indeed gave it the high...
...est place over all others as He noted the ...
...ancient Scripture, "Out of the mouths of ...
...babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected ...
...praise." Others might join in the acla...
...mations because of the contagious influ...
...ence of an excited multitude, but theirs ...
...was "perfect praise." As usual the Phari...
...sees were ready to scorn their juvenile en...
...thusiasm, but the Lord Jesus was also ...
...ready to vindicate them as He had once ...

...Let us never forget that Jesus is the ...
...children's King. By and by, when we wel...
...come Him to His heavenly throne, we shall ...
...find that a vast proportion of that ran...
...somed crowd will consist of little chil...
...dren. Let us train our little ones to know ...
...Him and own Him as their King. The ...
...word used here in their children praise is ...
...the Hebrew word "Hosannah." It is not ...
...quite the same as Hallelujah, the usual ex...
...pression for worship and praise. Literally ...
...it means "Lord save us." Our Hallelu...
...jahs must begin in Hosannahs. Even the ...
...children, too, must learn that they are ...
...sinful children, and that they also require ...
...His cleansing blood, and only as they ac...
...cept it and honor it will their Hosannahs ...
...become Hallelujahs, and the Lord pro...
...nounce their homage "perfect praise."

V. The Blessing of the King. Immedi...
...ately after Christ's triumphal entry into ...
...Jerusalem and His cleansing of the Tem...
...ple, we read these significant words, "and ...
...the blind and the lame came to Him in the ...
...Temple and He healed them." Purifica...
...tion always leads on to power. The cleans...
...ing of the Temple was followed by the ...
...healing of the sick and the revelation of ...
...the great and good Physician. So, still, it ...
...will be found in our personal experience. ...
...This was not a momentary gleam of divine ...
...beneficence over a dark and suffering ...
...world, but Jesus Christ is the same yes...
...terday, to-day and forever.

"And warm, sweet, tender even yet
A present help is He
And love has still its Olivet
And faith its Galilee.
The healing of His seamless robe
Is ov'r our beds of pain,
We touch Him 'mid life's pain and strife
And we are whole again."

But, of course, all this awaits its perfect fulfilment in that happier time when the King shall come to His own again "and the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

Then, when this earth is purged of all iniquity, will it be also true the inhabitant shall no more say, "I am sick, and the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity."

VI. The Curse of the King. But the King has not only blessing, but also judgment in His mighty hand. The only miracle of judgment recorded in all the life of Jesus Christ immediately followed these incidents. It was the cursing of the barren fig tree, to which He came seeking fruit and encouraged to expect it by the luxuriant leaves that covered its branches; but lo! there was "nothing but leaves," and He pronounced upon it the withering words that left it leafless and dead.

This was, of course, a type of the fruitless nation that He had already referred to under the parable of the Barren Fig Tree, and it forecasts the solemn judgment that awaits every professed follower of Christ who shall meet Him at last with empty hands and fruitless life.

But there is a beneficent aspect, even in the curse of the King. It tells us of One that has the power to consume and destroy the things which we are unable to cast out of our lives. There are fig trees of sinful habit and physical disease which our human strength cannot throw off alone. Oh, how glad we are sometimes to have a God who is "a consuming fire," and from whose presence Satan, sin and sickness flee away. He tells us we may enter into His destructive power against these things and hand over to His flaming sword adversaries and obstacles too great for us to overcome.

"I am so glad," said a little child once, "that I have a God that can shake the world." Our Christ is not all soft and easy benevolence. Back of His gentleness is an arm of might and a holiness as inexorable as the lightnings of the sky. Oh! sinner, whatever else you dare, beware of "the wrath of the Lamb."

VII. The Sceptre of the Kingdom. In the closing verses of our lesson, chapter 21, verses 20 to 22, the Lord reveals the secret of His own power and tells the disciples how they may share it also. The secret of it is faith. "If ye have faith and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but, also, if ye shall say unto this mountain, be thou removed and be thou cast into the sea, it shall be done; and all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." And so He passes over to us His sceptre, and tells us that we may exercise the same omnipotence of faith through which He wrought His mighty works. It was by faith that He overcame and became for us "the Author and Finisher of our faith." But we may exercise the same faith, too. Some time in that coming kingdom we shall be like Him and exercise a power over the universe of God, of which, could we fully realize it now, we would be amazed and appalled. But He is training us now in the use of this mystic sceptre, and teaching us the lessons of that faith of which He once said, "All things are possible with God, all things are possible unto him that believeth."

We have but touched its borderland, beloved. There are great continents of faith and power and prayer for us yet to explore. "Lord, teach us to pray," help our unbelief and give us "the faith of God."

Suffered Agonies From Kidney Disorders Until Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

George W. Benoff, of 1953 North Eleventh street, Philadelphia, Pa., a man of good reputation and standing, writes: "Five years ago I was suffering so with my back and kidneys that I often had to lay off. The kidney secretions were unnatural, my legs and stomach were swollen, and I had no appetite. When doctors failed to help me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and improved until my back was strong and my appetite returned. During the four years since I stopped using them I have enjoyed excellent health. The cure was permanent."

It is said that the word "tip" goes back a couple of centuries to the coffee houses of England for its origin. At the doors of eating rooms there hung brass-bound boxes engraved with the phrase "To Insure Promptness," and into the slit in the top customers were expected to drop coins for the waiter. The initial letters of that phrase came in time to be used as a word.

Between the mountains of Persia and India is a tribe among whom an extraordinary custom prevails. All a single woman has to do when she wishes to change her state is to send a servant to pin a handkerchief to the hat of a man on whom her fancy lights, and he is obliged to marry her unless he can show that he is too poor to purchase her at the price her father requires.

It is said that General Kuroki's father was a Polish nobleman named Kurowski, who, after the revolution of 1831, fled from Russia, and after being in the Dutch service in Borneo, settled down in Japan, where he married a Japanese woman. On his deathbed, Oshima adds, the father of General Kuroki charged his son to avenge the wrongs of Poland upon Russia.

In a curious collection of ancient Welsh laws, dated 943 A. D., appears the following sentence, from which it would appear that cats were rather scarce at that time. "The worth of a kitten until it shall open its eyes is one legal penny; from that time till it shall kill mice, two legal pennies; after it shall kill mice, four legal pennies, and so it shall always remain."

The Japanese generals who are directing the campaign against the Russians are by no means youthful. Marquis Yamagata (field marshal) is 66 years old, Marquis Oyama (field marshal) is 64, Count Nodzu is 63, Count Katsura (premier) is 57, Viscount Sakuma is 59, Baron Kuroki (first army) is 60, Baron Oku (second army) is 58.

Barrett Wendel, professor at Harvard university, has been engaged to give a series of lectures on American literature, manners, customs and institutions, during the first semester of the next scholastic year, beginning probably in November, at the University of Paris. The Egyptians wrapped their dead in garments coated with asphaltum of a fine and pure quality. This asphaltum as the centuries passed impregnated the tissues of the dead. It turned them into the best of paint material. Being exceedingly expensive, it is used only by portrait painters in depicting brown hair.

The coming dinner in London to the memory of Cervantes promises to be a literary event of unusual interest. The tercentenary of the publication of "Don Quixote"—to be celebrated in Madrid with so much eclat—takes place in January, 1905, and the London gathering will be held during that month.

THE BARBER'S SHEARS.

Chat With an Expert on One of the Important Tools of His Trade.

Mr. Glimmerton took notice of the fact that in the course of trimming his hair and beard the barber used three different sized pairs of shears.

"And why so many?" he asked.

"Why," said the barber, "simply for greater convenience in the work. I could do it all with the same pair of shears, but I can do it easier and better with three pairs of shears, each best suited for the particular part of the work to be done with it.

"Now, these heavy shears," he continued, as he held up the largest pair, "I use for the rough work, that is, the heavy work on the top of the head where the hair is thickest, and where the shape of the head makes the work all plain sailing.

"There such shears can be used to advantage, but for the back of the head, and around the neck and the ears, where there are more and shorter curves to cover, smaller shears are better and also handier to use. And then in trimming the beard I use smaller shears still.

"These shears with which I am now trimming your beard, I have had for fourteen years, using them continuously all the time, and for some years now on beards alone. They were an inch longer in the blades when I first got them, but they have lost that in repeated grindings. But they are perfect shears for my use, and I would not part with them, half worn out as they are, for twice what they originally cost.

"How much do barbers' shears cost? Two dollars a pair, and they are not very large, either. So you see barbers' shears are rather costly. They must be of the finest material and perfectly made and adjusted in order to make them serviceable and adapted to their work. But, expensive as they are, and supposed to be all good and fine, they may really differ greatly in quality or character. They vary as much, in fact, as razors do.

"Of two pairs of shears of the same make and grade and same shape and size bought at the same time, one pair might turn out perfect shears and the other not nearly so good. One pair might need to be ground every two weeks, and the other might cut perfectly for a month or more before needing grinding.

"So on the score of economy, as well as because of their greater comfort and convenience in use, a good pair of shears over the shears that get dull and must often be put out of commission for repairs, is something highly to be prized. The good shears, less often ground, last longer to begin with, and then it costs less to keep them in order.

"The barber keeps his own razors in order himself, but when his shears need grinding he must send them to a grinder, and, to put it in figures, it costs twenty cents for the grinding of a pair of shears. So the difference in the cost of upkeep between two pairs of shears, one good and the other poor, may amount to dollars in the course of a year; certainly a consideration of importance.

"And so, taking everything together, the barber—who becomes attached to the tools of his trade, just as the men of any other craft or calling become attached to theirs—may easily come to have for a good pair of shears, that he has long been accustomed to, a feeling of decided attachment, as I have, for instance, for this pair that I have had since I began in the business, the pair with which I am now trimming your beard."—New York Sun.

The letter of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, proves beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared, and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me."—Sincerely yours, MISS MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

EXERCISES FOR HEALTH.

A Little Shaking Up Before Breakfast Is a Good Thing.

For almost every person under fifty, and for a great many people over fifty, exercise is the nearest approach to a panacea for bodily ills that has yet been devised. Causing the body to move and stretch and push and pull makes the blood circulate, the liver do its work and the nerves pick up their dropped stitches. An excellent time to exercise is before breakfast. Neither man nor beast, as a rule, goes to sleep hungry. During sleep there is little waste of energy. On waking there is no immediate demand for replenishment of lost tissues. Furthermore, the long sleep has left the nerves and the digestive apparatus dull and leadened. To sit down to a heavy breakfast within fifteen or twenty minutes after getting out of bed means that the stomach receives food which it does not need and will not readily digest.

A little shaking up before breakfast arouses the vitality and consequently makes the appetite and digestion better. That means better work done during the day. If a man can get away from work in time to take additional exercise during the afternoon he will have a better appetite for the evening meal and more power to digest it. That will mean better sleep at night. Many a man has succeeded in the world without paying any attention to his body—Joseph Chamberlain, for instance. But such men would probably have succeeded more easily and certainly with more pleasure to themselves if they had taken care of their bodies. A strong mind is certainly stronger and more enduring in a healthy body than in a sickly one. The best way to keep the body healthy is to use it.—Chicago Tribune.

KEROSENE OIL.

It Is Paraffin In Great Britain and Refined Petroleum Elsewhere.

Paraffin (parum, little; affins, akin), discovered by Reichenbach in 1830, in investigating the tar produced in the distillation of wood, is a colorless waxlike solid, which he named from its extraordinary chemical indifference, its "little affinity" with anything. He afterward isolated from the same material a liquid oil, which he called eupion, "very fat." For years both were regarded merely as chemical curiosities until it was realized that eupion forms the body of petroleum.

Pure paraffin resembles spermaceti and is inodorous and tasteless. Paraffin oil is chiefly a mixture of fluid hydrocarbons, and as it approaches gas more closely than any other illuminating agent and is cheap it has come into general use. Illuminating oils manufactured from petroleum are sold in Great Britain as "paraffin oil," in the United States as "kerosene" and on the continent as "refined petroleum."—London Globe.

BOTH SIDES OF THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of an arbitrary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to bring corporate combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the permanent acclimatization of the American flag in any country in which the Declaration of Independence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these ends The World pledges all its energies.

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served in the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'oeuvres," appetizers eaten with butter—the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'oeuvres" would fill a volume—sardines, shrimps, olives, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the accessory for the meat then some vegetable comes after it as a single course preceding the cheese—never omitted—and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert. Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremet," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur.—What to Eat.

As the Alabama girl

She's an Alabama girl.
And her heart's as pure as gold
She's as graceful as a fairy
All her charms can not be told
She's the loveliest, the [illegible] the rosiest
And this challenge forth I hurl
The best this world has ever seen
Is the Alabama girl.

A love of the beautiful is implanted in the human heart, and that which gratifies the eye is grateful to the mind. The beauties of nature appeal to one and all, and happy is he who can appreciate the wonders of creation. The culture and refinement of a people are told by their surroundings, and the home which is embellished with beautiful objects is the abode of love and happiness. The wealthy adorn their homes with works of art, paintings and pictures, statuary and bric-a-brac, pleasing to the eyes and affording a never ending source of delight. The great many, however, are content with less, and among the most valued possessions of the poor, the picture of some loved one that hangs upon the cottage wall takes first place. It may be only a photograph of some dear one who has crossed the dark river, or who perchance may be wandering in some distant part of the world, in any case it recalls the fondest one to those who remain at home, and the heart swells with emotion as we gaze on the picture of those we love.

These reflections came to me on receiving from Mr. C. O. Daniel, the manager of the Chicago Cray-Co., that he had made and delivered no less than 200 pictures in and around Clanton this year. These pictures are enlarged from photographs, and the work being carefully executed, it will be seen that 200 homes are made happy by the possession. There have been others of the same business here so that it appears our people are appreciating these works of art and thus beautifying their homes. It also tells of the prosperous condition of the people when they can afford such luxuries, and, by the way, another evidence is given by Mr. J. W. Mitchell, representing the E. E. Forbes Piano & Organ Co. of Montgomery, who has sold and delivered quite a number of pianos and organs in the county recently. Chilton county people are hard workers and it is a pleasure to know they are also able to have some of the luxuries of life. Pianos and music add to the sum of human happiness.

When in Clanton take a look at [illegible]—The stream of wagons making their way from the ginneries to the warehouse.——The fine display of lamps, etc., in the show windows of the Hardware Store.——The pretty millinery in the show at P. D. Wilson's. (You can look at the pretty milliner, don't tell that I said so.)——The new stock of Fall goods at [illegible] Bonds, its a good one worth seeing.——The Studebaker wagon, big stock at W. I. Mullins.——A broth of bhoy!——The [illegible] arrangement in the window [illegible] of W. H. Sartor, whose motto is "Live and let live."——The line of goods kept by Jim [illegible] is a dandy and has got a good stock.——The eatables and good things at Broadhead & [illegible] make your mouth water.——The general appearance of the Post Office is a credit to Clanton.——

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Clanton, Sept. 19, 1904

Editor Banner: I trust that a short article from me this week will not be an imposition, as my interest in the campaign that is now on will not let me refrain from speaking about it occasionally through the dear old Banner.

The election in November means so much to the nation and especially to Chilton county, and the result of the election depends so largely upon our work in the campaign between now and that time. If we rally to the situation, success is ours, and once ours, always ours. And we can't afford anything else.

Now, I am not a Democrat because my father is, or because of some trival thing, but from principle only. When I read the history of our state from the administration of Gov. Patton even to the close of the administration of Gov. Houston, taking in consideration the convention held at Montgomery, Nov. 5, 1867, for the purpose of framing a constitution for Alabama, and all but four of its members were members of the black man's or Radical (Republican) party, and seventeen of them negroes, and comparing it with the convention in Sept. 1875, eighty of whose members were Democrats, and camparing the two constitutions, me thinks me can never be anything but a Democrat.

This is only one of the hundreds of reasons why every Southern man should be a Democrat, and elect Parker for President, and Deason for Probate Judge of Chilton county. We must elect the national ticket, but above all means, don't forget our county ticket. The reason we say so little about our other worthy nominees is because we are going to have Deason for Judge and then they will naturally come in. Why not elect him? A man who has a character purely spotless in private or public life, and who acts only upon honest convictions. It will be a shame on the county not to elect him. Let us be up and about our business in the campaign.

Very truly,
J. N. GOSS.

Chilton County Farmers' Alliance

RECOMMENDATION TO PLANTERS.

Chilton County Farmers Alliance, in called session assembled, recommend to the farmers of this and other counties of the State, the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions, "being the full report of the Special Committee on Warehouse and

Whereas: From all reports from the Planters and Public press, we believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the estimate of 60 days ago, caused by excessive rains and rust, and

Whereas: Arrangements have been perfected with the Planters' Warehouse of Clanton for storage of cotton, including storage, weighing, sampling and shipping at 25cts. for first month or part thereof, and 5 cts. per week for each succeeding week, and

Whereas: Arrangements have been perfected with the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton to advance cash to three-fourths market value of each bale so stored, at rate of interest at 8 per cent. per annum and

Whereas: Arrangements have been made for the insurance of cotton at three-fourths to full value at 15 to 20 cents per bale per month and

Whereas: We believe it to be to the interest of all who grow cotton to avail themselves of these opportunities and withhold sale of their cotton until 1st of February or March, 1905, and

Whereas: The merchant has promised to aid in the above arrangements.

Therefore be it Resolved: That we request the Farmers and Cotton Growers to store their cotton until after Christmas and, if needed, draw three-fourths value in cash on same, and not sell until satisfactory prices are reached, and not rush their cotton on the market and depress the price, as is now being done, marketing a crop in 90 days that requires twelve months to produce.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of all cotton growers and newspapers friendly to the view that cotton will bring a higher price later on.

Unanimously adopted and Secretary ordered to have 1000 copies printed for distribution among Alliancemen and farmers.

President Chilton County Farmers' Alliance.

THREE HIGH OFFICERS

Should be Impeached, Says the Grand Jury in the Huntsville Case.

SHERIFF, MAYOR AND CHIEF

Should be Made to Answer for Their Conduct and the Police Force be Reorganized.

The grand jury found its final report, recommending that Sheriff Rogers, Mayor Smith and Chief of Police Overton be impeached in connection with the lynching of Horace Maples and the burning of Madison county jail on the night of September 7. Seven additional indictments were returned. The report of the grand jury is caustic and is a severe arraignment of the three officials.

An apparently well founded report is in circulation to the effect that six secret service men in the employ of the United States government have been directed to make an extensive investigation of the lynching of Horace Maples and the attack on the jail in which government prisoners are confined and report at length to the grand jury at the October term of United States court. There is more genuine terror inspired by this report than anything that has been done by the grand jury of the circuit court, even though its indictments charged murder in the first degree and arson.

Six well known citizens of Huntsville and Madison county are known to have disappeared since investigation of the lynching began. Three have not been heard from, two are in Mexico by this time and one was last heard from in Salt Lake City.

Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, states that there are no secret service men investigating the recent lynching affair at Huntsville, as rumored there.

SOLDIERS WILL STAY

"Just as long as the court wants the military, the Birmingham company under Captain Lucien Brown will remain in Huntsville. The government has not advised me of any desire to send troops to Huntsville nor have I asked for any troops to be sent by the government and I do not propose to ask for any."

Captain Loses Arm.

Captain Pat J. Quill, chief engineer for the Alabama steamer Nettie Quill, one of the best known steamboatmen in the state, had his left arm torn off by the machinery of his boat while running between Mount Pleasant and Dixie landing. At the time he was standing on the wheel guard giving some orders when he fell and his arm was caught between the crank pin and the pitman. The bone was crushed and the flesh was ground to a pulp.

Dr. May Acquitted.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in the case of Dr. John May, charged with embezzlement. The verdict was returned Saturday night, the jury being out less than five minutes.

The arrest of Dr. May took place December 27, 1905, and he has been confined in the Jefferson county jail since that date. He was charged with embezzlement of $500 from General C. M. Shelley, the charge growing out of the organization of the Thermol Medicine company. The company was formed by Dr. May, General Shelley being a stockholder.

CREW ON PAROLE

Lena's Men Have Freedom of Frisco, but Must Stay There.

Admiral Goodrich, commanding the Pacific station, had telegraphed the navy department that he has forwarded by mail a full report of the agreement he entered into with Captain Berlinsky, of the Russian ship Lena, and the officers and crew of that ship. This provides for their freedom in the city of San Francisco, but they are not to go beyond the city during the war, and under no conditions can they be permitted to go to Russia except on the conclusion of an agreement on that point between the governments of Russia and Japan which would relieve the United States of any responsibility.

Placing Boilers.

The boilers for the new steamboat "Alabama" are being placed, and in a few days the engine will be placed. The carpenters are at work on the upper deck and they will soon be ready to turn the big boat over to the painters. It will be painted white. The boat will be ready for the trial trip in about thirty days, and as soon as it is made the Alabama will be ready for regular business trips.

MISSISSIPPI COTTON

Has Suffered Greatly—Expected to Fall Short of 1,000,000 Bales.

There is no question that the Mississippi cotton crop has suffered heavy damage since the latter part of August, and much speculation is being indulged in as to the percentage of shortage that will be shown when the crop is harvested.

The damage to the crop is in spots, but these spots cover wide areas. For instance, in Claiborne county the reports state that the crop is almost a total failure, and similar reports come from portions of Holmes and several points in the delta, especially Bolivar Washington, Sunflower and Tallahatchie counties.

The farmers in Leake county are firmly convinced that the insect which has wrought such havoc in that section is the much-dreaded Mexican boll weevil, notwithstanding the fact that they have received no confirmation to this effect from the state entomologist. The insect, regardless of its species, has almost totally destroyed the crop.

CHARTER ASKED

For New Railroad from Florence, Ala., to Clifton, Tenn.

An application has been filed for a charter for the Florence and Clifton Railroad company.

The road is to be built from Florence, Ala., to Clifton, Wayne county, Tenn., a distance of seventy-six miles. It is expected that the actual work of construction will be commenced within the next thirty days and the work will be pushed rapidly to completion.

The line is to start at Florence, Ala., and go northward through Wayne county, Tennessee, to the northwestern edge, on which is situated the town of Clifton. This town had in 1900 a population of 629 people, but it is stated that there are many more than that living there now.

BAXTER TROUBLES

Said to be Ended—Prisoners to be Tried in Georgia.

All the prisoners who were taken to Jacksonville by the military last week from Baker county are still in jail, but attorneys will institute habeas corpus proceedings. The authorities of Charlton county, Georgia, where the killing of Duncan and the negro Riley occurred a week ago, the authorities of Baker county, Florida, and the sheriff of this county are in consultation with the state attorney regarding the disposition of the prisoners. There is direct testimony against Charles and Hillary Altman for killing Jackson Duncan and the negro and wounding Marshal Duncan and throwing him off the train. As this occurred in Georgia, the sheriff of Charlton county demands these prisoners, and it is said the Florida authorities will not object.

A Chameleon Snake.

While gathering flowers from a bed of mixed nasturtiums, Mrs. James Armstrong, of Scottsboro, discovered a peculiar snake. It was something on the order of a chameleon. The bed of flowers in which the snake was found has a variety of colors. As the snake glided among the flowers its body would undergo a transformation, changing instantly to the same color as the flower that came in contact with it. When finally killed it measured over three feet in length. After death and while lying on the ground the body was of a dark gray color. Several who saw the snake pronounced it different from anything ever seen in this section before.

Body Cut; House Burning.

A special from Montgomery says the body of Willie Boyd, a prominent young white man of Shorters, was found under a bed in the burning house of a negress at that place. The body was mutilated by knife and gunshot wounds.

A Call to Chicago.

Rev. Charles A. Stakely, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church of Montgomery has under consideration the call from the congregation of one of the most prominent churches of that denomination in Chicago.

Another Russian Army.

Acting upon the advice of his military advisers, Emperor Nicholas has decided to form a second Manchurian army. It will be formed of the corps which is being sent to the far east and Lieutenant General Linevitch probably will be given the command of the second army. General Kuropatkin will become chief of both armies, but probably without the title of commander in chief.

Resignation Received.

Governor Vardaman has received the resignation of Captain J. H. Stoltzfus, of Battery L, Second regiment, located at Meridian, and a special election will be ordered to fill the vacancy, the resignation having been accepted.

Halifax Fire Breaks Out Again.

The dock fire which started after midnight and was under control at 3 o'clock broke out again early and destroyed several ware houses and other buildings. The ware houses burned were fine new buildings and the loss is now placed at $2,000,000.

At 10 o'clock the fire was still burning, but under control.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. C. CAMPBELL MORGAN, D. D.

Subject: The Attractiveness and Exclusiveness of Jesus—Listen to the Call of Christ—He Will Brook No Division of Your Loyalty.

LONDON, ENGLAND. — The following sermon, entitled "The Attractiveness and Exclusiveness of Jesus," was preached here on a recent Sunday by the Rev. T. Campbell Morgan, D. D. He took for his text: Then said Jesus unto His disciples, if any man will come after Me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me.—St. Matthew 16:24.

There were two facts about Jesus Christ which no one can read the Gospel records without recognizing; facts which appear to be contradictory, but which, as a matter of fact, are complementary, and the understanding of which reveals for all time the method of the Master in dealing with men. I refer to facts of the attractiveness and exclusiveness of Jesus.

There can be no question about the former, there can equally be no question about the latter to those who have carefully read the records and have seen the methods of Jesus while He was here among men. He was constantly drawing people to Him, and He was perpetually holding them aloof. By the very winsomeness of His person, He was drawing men and women of all sorts and conditions, at all times and in all places to Himself, and yet by the uttering of words so severe, so searching, so drastic, making us tremble even to-day, He held men back from Him.

I venture to say that the words I read to you this morning from the Gospel of Luke come to those who are most familiar with them bringing a sense of surprise. We never read them without feeling more or less startled by them—"Unless you hate father and mother, husband and wife, parent and child, you cannot be My disciple." We have attempted to account for these words, but I do not hesitate to say that in some senses they have staggered the faith of many, and yet there they stand.

And not there only, but through all His teaching there is evident the same method of Christ, that of holding men back just as they were approaching Him; drawing them to Himself by multitudes and then holding the crowd as they pressed upon Him, and sifting them with such surprising words as these. Now there must be a reason for this, and it is for that reason that I want to look, with you, a little this morning.

But first allow me to say a few words on this fact of the attractiveness of Jesus, because the more clearly we recognize and understand that, the more clearly shall we understand, as I think, the other truth of His perpetual method of holding men back and excluding certain persons from close companionship with Himself.

Take first, then, this great fact of His attractiveness, the most fascinating subject on which to speak. Remember, I pray you, that if the Gospel records reveal one thing more clearly than another they reveal that Jesus was, somehow or other, a Person that drew men to Him irresistibly.

I go back to those silent years at Nazareth concerning which we know so very little. You will remember that on those days Luke opens for us just a little window through which we look when he says, "He was subject to His parents, and grew in favor with God and with man." I do not stop one moment to dwell on the statement that He grew in favor with God, although it is a very interesting statement, but just for a moment, for the sake of our argument, listen to the other part of it: "He grew in favor with man." Take that as it is simply stated, and you at once see a picture of the boy growing up to be a youth, and passing from youth into young manhood until He became the Carpenter of Nazereth, known to all the little town that nestled among the hills, just removed from the highways of life. This is all the truth that is revealed. If I may reverently put it, Jesus was a favorite in Nazareth. I am not sure that that doesn't almost startle you, because somehow or other we have come to think that holiness is almost always accompanied by angularity, and there is a popular idea that if a man is good he never can be a favorite. It is a great mistake. It is by the measure in which a man lacks holiness that a man is not in favor.

Here is a man living in Nazereth, and He is a favorite. I do not want to lift that into a super-spiritual realm, but if you have no imagination you can just go to sleep for two minutes while I imagine I look into that window and I see the Carpenter at His work, and I tell you what I see. He is a favorite. I see children taking their toys to Him to be mended, and I am quite sure He mended them. I see young men going at eventide to take their problems with them because they know He is sane, honest and pure. I think I see old men, upon whose brow already "sat light that never was on land or sea," talking to Him because He has such a wonderful way of talking about "My Father's house" and "the many mansions;" a favorite, sane and strong, and pure, and attractive as to personality.

I know full well that a little later on these same men took Him to a hill and tried to murder Him, but that was the result of something else to be discovered later. The pure, human, simple life of Jesus was, in itself, attractive, and Luke says, "He grew in favor."

Leave those hidden years and look at Him just for one rapid moment as He treads the pathway upon which a fiercer light falls than ever fell upon a throne—the pathway of the public teacher, and if you read these Gospel stories the one thing that strikes you is the fact of the multitudes around about Jesus Christ. Wherever He went they followed Him. If He went out into the city the country people crowded the streets to be near Him; if He went out into the country place the city men and women flocked after Him, following Him so far that at times there was no chance for them to provide themselves with food, and He had to feed them; for in their eagerness to follow they had forgotten food and had forgotten distance. And wherever He went they came after Him.

I am not saying that these multitudes crowned Him; that is not my point, but He drew the people after Him. The one thing they could not do with Jesus was to let Him alone; they came, whether to criticise Him or crown Him is not now the question; the point is, that He drew men and women after Him in all those days of His earthly life. They came after Him, all sorts and conditions of men, the scholars and the illiterate, the learned and the ignorant, the debased, the depraved, they all came. Of course, there were more poor people came than rich because there always were more poor people than there are rich, and, of course, there were more of the illiterate than of the learned for the self-same reason, but I protest against this idea that Christ only attracted a class. There is something about Him that attracts all kinds of men, and it is true in those old days.

Come, if you will, outside the Bible, and from the day that this Man walked among men in Judea until now there has never been so attractive a personality in human history as Jesus. And I want to say this superlative thing about Christ. No century, whatever its peculiarity, or quality, or quantity, has produced any person who was so popular as Jesus Christ. He has always towered above His fellows, above those historical personages that the centuries look back to, or to those imaginative personages that the centuries give to us in literature. Jesus has been the most attractive personage always.

I come to this very hour. Who is the most attractive personality in the world at this hour? Let me take a suppose circle. Who is the most attractive personality in England at this hour? I answer without fear of contradiction—Jesus Christ.

I am not saying that the majority of people hate yet crowned Him. Let me take my illustration in the lowest level. Can you think of any person in history, dead or alive, or any person in imaginative literature, that will be talked of, and thought of, and sung of, and discussed, and criticised, and abused and crowned as Jesus Christ? There is not a single theatre in Manchester or London that can run Shakespeare's plays continually. I am glad you look ignorant, and can assure you I don't speak from any inside knowledge, but every one knows it to be true. There is not a single theatre that can exist without variety. There must be change; some other genius than Shakespeare must be forthcoming. And yet, with all our wail about the decadence of the church and the failure of Christianity, every Sunday in Manchester more people are gathered together to sing the old hymns and hear the old sermons—I beg your pardon, to hear sermons on the old texts—and listen to the old, old story of the cross than for any other purpose.

Let us begin with the last. When Christ was so fond of a phrase as He evidently was of that phrase "Follow Me" there must be some deep significance in it. I have been going through my New Testament during the last few months, tracing that phrase. It has been a very interesting study to see how constantly Christ used it. It was the almost perpetual formula of His call to individual soul—"Follow Me!"

Now what is it to follow? Two things are involved. Neither of them covers all the ground, taken alone. Both are required.

First, to follow, I must trust. I shall never follow any one I haven't confidence in. I may trust and yet not follow.

Secondly, not only is trust necessary, but obedience is necessary. Christ confronts the individual soul, bringing that soul out from the crowd, as He is calling some man here this morning. He says, "Would you trust Me? Then obey Me."

How am I going to do it? What does it mean, this trusting and obeying? "Deny yourself, take up the cross——" It seems to me that is the point which must be observed first, that to deny self is the only way in which you can follow Christ. How shall I follow Him? Deny thyself! The two things are intimately related, and it seems to me that everything is said when "Follow Me" is said, and yet it is necessary to say the other in order to understand what He means by following Him.

What is it Christ calls me to? To deny myself? Not to practice self-denial; that is a very cheap business, but to deny self—a very costly matter. He says, "Deny yourself. Listen no longer to the call of your self, but listen to My call. Don't consider any more whether this thing will minister to your pleasure or to your aggrandizement, or answer the cry of your ambition. But Me first." Christ says, "Deny yourself and follow Me. Put Me on the throne and dethrone yourself. Don't let the question of the morning be, What shall I like to do, but What will Christ have me do; not Will this pay me, but will it hasten the coming of the kingdom of God. Don't let the underlying, mastering passion of your life be your own selfish desire; crown Me, follow Me."

It is a superlative call, and the call of Jesus is always imperial. He will brook no division of your loyalty, and that is what He means. "You must hate father, mother, wife, child. That means that when the soul comes into contact with Me I must be absolutely first." Let me stop here to say that whenever a soul does that he gets back a hundredfold lands and fields and mother and father and children. Jesus Christ said He must be first, and He has never lowered that standard, and the religion that is simply an addendum is worth nothing to Him.

Jesus Christ comes and says, "Deny yourself," but there is the other word, "Take up the cross." Well, what is it? Christ's cross? No. No man can carry Christ's cross. What then? Your own.

What is this cross? I don't think that it is ever the same in two persons. The cross is that in your life which immediately costs you something if you crown Christ. There is a business man here this morning who is saying in his heart, "Well, if that is Christianity, I will have to go home and change my method of business." That is your cross. There is a young man here says that, "If that is Christianity, if it means putting Christ first, then I will have to go home and give up that companionship." That is your cross. Some one here says, "If that is what Christ means, that I am not to listen to the call of my own life, I shall have to go home and say I was wrong and confess my wrong to those to whom it is so hard to confess it." That is your cross. And somebody else says, "If that is Christianity I shall have to go back on my history, throw up everything I am doing and go into the ministry." That is your cross.

You know what your cross is. Don't let any one come and ask me. You know that thing which right in front of you this morning challenges your allegiance to Jesus Christ. You cannot play tricks with God. You cannot deceive your own conscience when you stand in the clear light of the call of Christ. He says, "Deny yourself; take up that cross (and you know what it is) and follow Me."

But why are Christ's terms so drastic? For two reasons. First, no man ever gets to Christ but by the way of the enthronement of Jesus Christ. It is possible to admire and cheer Him, possible to patronize Him and never to know Him. It is not the crowd that gets to Him, but the cross-bearing soul. And if you read on you will say, "Whosoever would save his life shall lost it; whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it."

Christ confronts the soul and says virtually this: "You don't understand your own life, dear heart. You cannot realize your own kingdom. You cannot build your own character and carve out your own destiny, but I can do it, though I can only do it when you have put Me absolutely on the throne for your own life's life. For its founding and ennobling and developing you must come to Me, and by the way of a whole-hearted surrender."

But there is another reason why Christ makes His terms drastic. He wants men and women upon whom He can depend in the day of battle. I am quite sure there is nothing Jesus Christ wants at this moment so much as men and women who will go through darkness and death for Him. You remember that picture of Jairus beseeching Jesus to save his child who was dying, and how, with the people thronging about Him, the Master suddenly exclaimed, "Who touched Me?"

Now don't let us be angry with the disciples. We should have said the same thing. "A hundred people have touched you in the last five minutes. The multitude throng Thee and press Thee, and sayest Thou, who touched Me?"

But Jesus Christ always knows the difference between the crush of a curious mob and the touch of a needy soul that has come near Him. And this morning as this service closes I hear His voice speaking once again—the attractive Christ that has drawn this crowd — this exclusive Christ—and He says: "Who touched Me?" We have all jostled Him this morning. We have all looked into His face again. We have all had a new consciousness of the infinite music of His voice. Have you got anything out of Him? Has any virtue healed you this morning? If not, even now stretch out your hand and touch Him. And to do that you must deny yourself, crucify your pride. Having done that, listen to the cry of your own life, and listen to His imperial call and crown Him Lord of all.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 23.

Review of the Twelve Lessons of the Third Quarter—Read Psalm xxiii, 1-12—Golden Text, Psalm 103, Revised Version—Summary and Topics.

Lesson I—Topic: Rehoboam's answer to the ten tribes and their revolt. The assembly was held at Shechem. Solomon's death. The people came to Shechem to choose a new king. Rehoboam's son, Rehoboam was here to the throne; he was young and inexperienced, but vain and wished to be considered so. Rehoboam consulted with the people as to what answer he should give to the request of the ten tribes. He rejected the counsel of the old men and listened to the counsel of the young men. He turned a stern reply. Rehoboam would be more severe than his father Solomon had been. The ten tribes then rebelled against Rehoboam as King.

II. Topic: [illegible] Judah himself [illegible] northern part of Jerusalem was [illegible] tribes, he [illegible] as in his kingdom [illegible] prophets to worship [illegible] forbidden [illegible] going to Jerusalem. This became a sin for the people soon fell into idolatry.

III. Topic: Judah's prosperity and victory. Place: Judah. Asa's kingdom after the death of Rehoboam. Abijah, his son, reigned in his stead, his reign was short, and at his death, Asa his son reigned in Judah forty-one years. Asa was a good King and did that which was right in the sight of the Lord; he removed the altars of the strange gods which had been set up in the kingdom, and broke down the images which had been erected to idols; he commanded his people to seek the Lord and to obey the law; he fortified the cities in Judah; the land had rest from war many years; Asa raised an army to meet the Ethiopians who came against him; the battle was set in array; Asa cried unto the Lord; the Lord caused the Ethiopians to flee.

IV. Topic: Jehoshaphat established a judiciary. Place: Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah. At the death of Asa, Jehoshaphat, his son, reigned in his stead for twenty-five years. Jehoshaphat was a good King and trusted God. He thoroughly cleansed the land of idolatry, but committed a great error in joining himself to Ahab; he went with Ahab to battle against Ben-hahad, King of Syria, the prophet of the Lord warned him not to go, but he did and Ahab was slain. Then Jehu, the prophet, reproved Jehoshaphat for helping the ungodly.

V. Topic: The idolatry of Israel's kings. Place: Omri and Ahab reigned over the ten tribes. Omri and Ahab were very wicked kings; they led the people into the worship of idols and fully established Baal worship in the land; the prophets of God were slain and His worship forbidden; Omri founded the city of Samaria and made it his capital; at his death Ahab, his son, reigned in his stead. Ahab was worse than any of the kings that had preceded, for he married Jezebel, a heathen woman; he built a house in honor of Baal in Samaria and set up images to the heathen god; the judgments of the Lord fell upon Ahab, and he was slain in battle.

VI. Topic: Elijah's obedience and faith. Places: Samaria, Brook Cherith, and Zarephath. Elijah the prophet appeared to Ahab and told him that there would be a great drought and famine in the land which would continue three years; the Lord sent Elijah to the brook Cherith, the ravens fed him there; the brook dried up; Elijah was sent to Zarephath; a widow woman was commanded to feed Elijah; he asked her for a little water; told her to bring him a morsel of bread; she told him she had but little; Elijah encouraged her and asked her to bring him a cake first; he said they would all be supplied.

VII. Topic: Elijah meets Obadiah and Ahab. Place: Somewhere in Ahab's kingdom. The famine had lasted three years and six months; the supplies were exhausted; the Lord told Elijah to show himself to Ahab; Obadiah and Ahab were seeking grass; suddenly Elijah appeared to Obadiah and asked him to tell Ahab that Elijah was there; Obadiah feared and said that if he should tell Ahab that Elijah was here, and then the prophet should not appear to Ahab, he would be slain; but Elijah said that he would certainly appear.

VIII. Topic: Elijah convinces Israel that Jehovah is the true God. Place: Mount Carmel and Jezreel. A test was proposed by Elijah in order to prove that he was the true God; Baal's prophets prepared their sacrifice and called upon their god to send fire; no answer; Elijah prepared his offering; dug a trench; placed the offering and the altar and filled the trench with water; Elijah then called upon God and fire fell from heaven; the sacrifice and the wood and the stone were consumed, and the water in the trench was licked up; the people said, "Jehovah is God." The 450 prophets of Baal were slain.

IX. Topic: Elijah's flight. Places: Jezreel, Beer-sheba and Horeb. Ahab told Jezebel all Elijah had done; Jezebel sent a messenger warning Elijah that he would be killed; Elijah fled for his life; left his servant; went a day's journey into the wilderness; sent angels to care for him.

X. Topic: God's manner of dealing with Elijah. Place: Horeb the mount of God. Elijah was at Horeb or Sinai in a cave. God asked Elijah why he was there; Elijah told the Lord how zealous he had been, and how they had sought his life. God caused a great wind to rend the mountain and break the rocks, and after the wind an earthquake, and after the earthquake a fire, but the Lord was not revealing Himself in these; following these manifestations the Lord spoke in a still small voice.

XI. Topic: The parting of Elijah and Elisha. Places: Gilgal, Bethel, Jericho and the place where Elijah was translated; Elijah made a farewell visit to the schools of the prophets; Elijah asked Elisha what he should do for him; Elisha said, "Let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me." Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

XII. Topic: Israel reproved and exhorted to seek God. Places: Amos was a native of Tekoa, but prophesied at Bethel. Jeroboam II. was King of Israel; the kingdom was prosperous and rich; the people were very wicked and were worshiping idols; because of their sins Amos tells them that they would be carried into captivity.

World's Fair Jottings.

A nouveau art bedstead, in gilt, exhibited by a firm from Tours, is ornamented with panels on which are cocks treated conventionally, if anything in the art nouveau style can be said to be conventional.

A reproduction of the Liberty bell carved out of golden creamery butter is displayed in the dairy section of New York's exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture. Exact measurements of the bell was made by Charles Ross, the famous butter sculptor, and the butter bell was carved in accordance with them.

THE CASE A MYSTE

[illegible] BODY FOUND UNDER HOUSE

[illegible] Bottle Found Near by.

Suicide is not Suspected—Was Horribly Beaten.

Miss Rosalie Roberts a young woman who was found bruised and [illegible] beneath a vacant house [illegible] street in Anniston died [illegible] for she had been identified by [illegible] brother and sister.

Miss Roberts never regained consciousness and a deep mystery surrounds the whole affair. She had been horribly beaten and bruised and [illegible] under the house in a semi-[illegible] state for three days and nights. It is believed that she was beaten and robbed while passing near home Monday and was then dragged beneath the house. This theory is supported somewhat by the bruises which almost covered her body. [illegible] absence of three rings which she was known to have worn and the loss of the purse she carried. She left her brother's home Monday afternoon to go to her aunt's and has not been seen since.

Miss Roberts was a member of one of the oldest and most respected families and was a greatly beloved young woman. She was a sister of T. Gaines Roberts, naval constructor who is in charge of the government works at New Orleans, and of Conductor Chas. Roberts, of the Louisville and Nashville railway.

The suicide theory has been advanced, but little faith is placed in it, as she was of a very happy disposition and had no known cause for worry of any kind. A post mortem will be held.

The discovery was made by some children playing near. Bruises on her body indicated that she was assaulted and struck with a club or other blunt instrument, that the body was thrown over the fence into the back yard and that in a dazed condition she crawled under the house for protection.

Miss Roberts had been away from home since Monday evening. It is known that she was standing at the interurban station waiting for a car on that evening. It is supposed that the assault was made at that time and that she remained under the house Monday and Wednesday.

When the body was found the mat[illegible] was at once reported to the police who took her in charge. It was several hours before she was identified. After she was discovered under the house an examination of the premises revealed a small bottle which had contained laudanum lying on the rafters under where she was lying. Physicians have investigated the case, however, say there are no indications of her having taken laudanum, the bruises on the body indicating it was a blow which rendered her unconscious.

Cotton Ginned in Two States.

The census bureau has issued a report of the quantity of cotton ginned from the growth of 1904 prior to September 1, 1904. During that period Alabama ginned 1,456 commercial bales, 24,900 square bales and 1,546 round bales.

In the same period last year 1314 commercial bales were ginned. The number of active ginneries in the state this year is 1018 as compared with 1017 last year prior to September. This year Mississippi ginned 2,703 square bales and 102 round bales.

Counties Show Increase.

Forty-two of the seventy-six counties in Mississippi show an aggregate increase on their personal assessment for this years of $11,000,000, and the increase for the state will be in excess of $15,000,000. Adams is the only county that has shown a decrease.

New Mines.

It is understood that Brewer and others have secured the contract from the Seaboard Air Line railroad to build the necessary spur tracks into the Coal Creek and Cahaba coal fields. It is now being mined at Colonel [illegible] Debardeleben's new mines near the forks of the Cahaba river and Coal creek. It is also understood that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company will soon open up coal fields on Snake branch and that the Southern Railway company and the Central of Georgia railroad, as well as the Seaboard Air Line railroad will build spur tracks to these new open[illegible]

Teacher Resigns.

[illegible] talking of a sensation followed the announcement that Professor L. P. [illegible] principal of the Pratt City high school, had resigned, and that, too, on the very eve of the opening of the [illegible]. Superintendent McNeill, who [illegible] city for the announcement, has [illegible] no word with reference to this unusual action of the high school [illegible], other than that the school board would meet at once, formally accept the resignation and take steps to [illegible] a successor.

THE CASE A MYSTERY

Miss Bessie Roberts Dies from Her Injuries. Murder and Robbery Suspected.

BODY FOUND UNDER HOUSE

Bottle Found Near by, but Suicide is not Suspected—Was Horribly Beaten.

Miss Bessie Roberts, a young woman ...was found bruised and unconscious beneath a vacant house on ...th street in Anniston, died after ...she had been identified by her ...ther and sister.

Miss Roberts never regained consciousness and a deep mystery surrounds the whole affair. She had been ...horribly beaten and bruised and had ...been under the house in a semi-conscious state for three days and nights. ...It is believed that she was beaten ...and robbed while passing near the ...depot Monday and was then dragged ...beneath the house. This theory is ...modified somewhat by the bruises, ...which almost covered her body, by ...the absence of three rings which she ...is known to have worn and the absence of the purse she carried. She ...had left her brother's home Monday ...afternoon to go to her aunt's and had ...not been seen since.

Miss Roberts was a member of one ...of the oldest and most respected families and was a greatly beloved young ...woman. She was a sister of T. Gaines ...Roberts, naval constructor who is in ...charge of the government works at ...New Orleans, and of Conductor Oscar ...Roberts, of the Louisville and Nashville railway.

The suicide theory has been advanced, but little faith is placed in it, as ...she was of a very happy disposition ...and had no known cause for worry of ...any kind. A post mortem will be held. ...The discovery was made by some ...children playing near. Bruises on her ...body indicated that she was assaulted ...and struck with a club or other blunt ...instrument, that the body was thrown ...over the fence into the back yard and ...that in a dazed condition she crawled ...under the house for protection.

Miss Roberts had been away from ...home since Monday evening. It is ...known that she was standing at the ...transfer station waiting for a car on ...that evening. It is supposed that the ...assault was made at that time and ...that she remained under the house ...Monday and Wednesday.

When the body was found the matter was at once reported to the police, ...who took her in charge. It was several hours before she was identified. ...After she was discovered under the ...house an examination of the premises ...revealed a small bottle which had contained laudanum lying on the rafters ...under where she was lying. Physicians ...who have investigated the case, however, say there are no indications of ...her having taken laudanum, the ...bruises on the body indicating it was ...a blow which rendered her unconscious.

Cotton Ginned in Two States.

The census bureau has issued a report of the quantity of cotton ginned ...from the growth of 1904 prior to September 1, 1904. During that period ...Alabama ginned 1,456 commercial ...bales, 24,900 square bales and 1,556 ...round bales.

...For the same period last year 1314 ...commercial bales were ginned. The ...number of active ginneries in the state ...this year is 1018 as compared with ...1,021 last year prior to September. This ...year Mississippi ginned 2,703 square ...bales and 102 round bales.

Counties Show Increase.

...Sixty-two of the seventy-six counties ...in Mississippi show an aggregate increase on their personal assessment ...for this years of $11,000,000, and the ...total increase for the state will be in ...excess of $15,000,000. Adams is the ...only county that has shown a de...crease.

New Mines.

It is understood that Brewer and ...others have secured the contract from ...the Seaboard Air Line railroad to build ...the necessary spur tracks into the ...Big Creek and Cahaba coal fields. ...Coal is now being mined at Colonel ...J. Debardeleben's new mines near ...the forks of the Cahaba river and ...Big creek. It is also understood ...that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company will soon open up coal ...mines on Snake branch and that the ...Southern Railway company and the ...state of Georgia railroad, as well ...as the Seaboard Air Line railroad will ...put spur tracks to these new open...ings.

Teacher Resigns.

...Something of a sensation followed ...the announcement that Professor L. P. ...Lyles, principal of the Pratt City high ...school, had resigned, and that, too, on ...the very eve of the opening of the ...schools. Superintendent McNeill, who ...is responsible for the announcement, had ...nothing to say with reference to this unusual action of the high school ...board, other than that the school ...board would meet at once, formally accept the resignation and take steps to ...secure a successor.

WORKING UNDERGROUND.

Japanese Said to be Tunneling at Port Arthur.

A telegram from Harbin says the following report has been received from Port Arthur: "Our garrison is in good spirits and there is no prospect of provisions failing. Port Arthur is prepared to make a long, obstinate defense.

"The Japanese are strongly fortifying their positions near the Kinchou isthmus and are entrenching before Port Arthur."

Rations at Port Arthur are said to be down to five weeks' store.

The Japanese troops between September 8 and September 10 captured a fort situated on a high hill two miles east of Golden Hill by assault. The fighting was not severe. The Japanese were able to remain in force because the quality of the powder used at Golden Hill was so poor that many shells fell short and others failed to explode. It is reported that the Japanese are tunnelling under the Russian forts with the intention of blowing them up.

The house formerly occupied by Viceroy Alexieff was hit by a shell recently and partially wrecked.

Ammunition is growing scarcer, but there is plenty of bread. The price of flour is now nine roubles.

Another shell struck a destroyer which was lying in dock undergoing repairs, knocking it into kindling wood and killing seven sailors. This shell came from the Japanese fleet, which comes in much closer than formerly, daily throwing a few shells.

WILL RAISE THEIR OWN COTTON

European Nations Realize Value of Crop of United States.

The recent great cotton corner in America apparently has caused a permanent fright in Europe where all of the cotton using and manufacturing nations have set themselves to the task of producing their own cotton and relying no further than absolutely necessary on the American product.

Consul General Skinner at Marseilles is the last of several officers in Europe to call attention to this important movement which he does in the shape of a separate report to the department of commerce and labor.

He says that an association has been formed in France for the purpose of arousing and securing support for the projected development of the French colonial fields. This association has visited all the commercial cities and has pointed to the danger that the American cotton supply will be cut off by consumption by the United States of its entire cotton crop. This country now produces 75 per cent of the world's cotton. The association is seeking particularly to development cotton growth in the French colonies, in the Soudan and Madagascar.

Report on Troy School.

Assistant State Examiner W. F. Wilkinson has filed a report on the books and accounts and the general conduct of the State Normal college at Troy. He finds everything in excellent condition, finances in correct shape and outlook for the school bright. The time embraced in the examination is from May, 1901, to September 12, 1904. Among other things the examiner says that "This is the first year since 1901 that the college has been out of debt. There is a balance in bank of $1,449.31 to its credit. The affairs of the college are now in excellent shape and reflect great credit upon the administration."

Rowland to Report.

General Stephen D. Lee, president of the board of trustees of the Mississippi department of archives and history, has called a meeting of the board to assemble in Jackson on the 8th of October to receive the annual report of Director Rowland and to map out the work of the department for the coming year.

Zuber & McLarkey, of Ensley, have been awarded the contract for the construction of the new waterworks for Bessemer. The work is to be finished by December 24. The company will lay pipes from Hawkins Springs and will build a reservoir on Red Mountain. The reservoir will be of concrete and will have a capacity of five million gallons of water.

Mayo Disqualified.

Sheriff W. D. Mayo, of Clay county, has disqualified himself for the duties of his office and Governor Cunningham will appoint his successor within a few days.

Probate Judge S. J. Gay, of Clay county, certified to Governor Cunningham that Sheriff Mayo had failed to qualify by making bond for the extended term, thereby vacating his office. All bonds of sheriffs for extended terms, under the law, must be filed by September 10, and Sheriff Mayo is the first officer, as far as is known, who has lost his office by reason of his failure to comply with the law.

Fatally Hurt.

E. H. Hosey, night watchman for the Bessemer Foundry and Machine company, was found in the foundry near some scaffolding with his skull fractured and unconscious. He was carried to his home, where he was given medical attention, but died in a short while. It is not known just how he was hurt, as no one saw him when it happened, but it is thought he fell on the scaffold and struck his head. Mr. Hosey was 65 years old and leaves a widow and children.

A CEMENT PRODUCER

Alabama Ranks High. Field Covers Much of the State and is Rich in Its Deposits.

GEOLOGIST SMITH'S REPORT

He Says That Raw Material All Over the State Will be Utilized.

Although until 1902 Alabama did not figure among the cement producing states of the union, it boasts an extensive series of limestones capable of furnishing excellent raw material for the manufacture of Portland cement, while the shales and clays necessary to complete the mixture are found in every county in the state. The cement resources of this state are discussed by Dr. Eugene A. Smith, state geologist, in a paper that is included in Bulletin 225 of the United States geological survey, entitled "Contributions to Economic Geology, 1903." The bulletin is published for gratuitous distribution.

Between northern Alabama and central and southern Alabama there is a marked geologic as well as geographic distinction, and Dr. Smith accordingly discusses the two portions of the state separately.

The raw materials for the manufacture of Portland cement are found in northern Alabama. These materials have not yet been utilized for this purpose in Alabama, but similar ones have been so employed in other states, and there is no reason to doubt that the future will witness their utilization in Alabama.

Dr. Smith gives a detailed account of outcrops of limestone of suitable quality for cement manufacture that occur at various points in the northern part of the state. A similar minute description is given of suitable clay beds found in the coal measures in the same parts.

In central and southern Alabama the raw materials suitable for the manufacture of Portland cement are purer limestones and clays. The limestones that are suitable for use as cement materials occur mainly at two horizons—the Selma chalk, or rotten limestone, and the St. Stephens formation. The clays available are residual clays derived from the decomposition of these two limestone formations, the stratified clays of the grand gulf formation and the alluvial clays that are found in the river and creek bottoms. It is further possible that later investigation may show that some of the other stratified clays are suitable for cement making.

Inasmuch as material that is well adapted to the manufacture of cement can be had in practically unlimited quantity all along the outcrop of the purer limestones, the location of plants for the manufacture of this product will be determined by other considerations than the quality of the rock. Chief among these will be facilities for transportation, cheapness of fuel and the price of labor. Examinations have heretofore been confined to those localities which appear to be most favorable in these respects, and especially to such as are on navigable streams or on north-south railroad lines or on both. Mr. Smith enumerates available sites and discusses their respective merits.

IT WAS NOT ROBBERY.

Some Other Motive Must be Found for Murder of Miss Roberts.

The death of Miss Bessie Roberts, of Anniston, is involved in deeper mystery than ever.

All along it has been thought that the young woman was murdered for robbery, but with the finding of her purse and rings it seems that robbery was not the intent of the murderer. The purse was found in the alley in the rear of the dwelling under which the wounded young lady was found, and this came in possession of the police along with the rings she wore.

The rings had been in the possession of a negress who assisted in bathing Miss Roberts when she was taken to the city hall.

It has developed that a negress saw the young woman and an apparently drunken man three blocks from the place of the finding of the body. This was on Monday evening and the police followed the course over which she was thought to have passed and found many who saw the couple about the same time.

It is thought that the young lady quarreled with some former sweetheart from her home in Texas and he beat her while in a drunken condition.

The strikes in the mines of Colorado have been the means of dropping nearly $30,000,000 of that state's and other people's money.

Ends Rush Case.

The last of the case of the state of Mississippi vs. Phil A. Rush has been heard. When the circuit court was called to order the above styled case was brought up, and District Attorney Greaves asked that a cessat processus be entered, which disposes of the case for all time to come. This is the case wherein Rush and others were charged with the embezzlement of $100,000 of the state funds.

DEEPER WATER

For Mobile Bay Desired by Commercial Bodies.

There will be a meeting in the early part of October of the committees appointed by the commercial bodies of the state to work for deeper water on the bar of Mobile harbor.

Judge H. Austell, chairman of the committee appointed by the Mobile chamber of commerce suggests the selection of a Birmingham man as chairman of this central committee, but says the chairman must be willing to go to Washington and work with Judge Austell and others.

EIGHT DROWNED.

Vessel Sunk in Delaware River—Were in Life Boat.

Eight men were drowned by the sinking of the tug Israel W. Durham in the Delaware river, opposite Wilmington during a heavy storm.

The rescued clung to the pilot house of the tug which became detached and floated away. They were rescued by the crew of a sand schooner.

The eight men who were lost clambered into the life boat, which, after being cast off from the tug filled and sank with all its occupants. The other two men went down with the tug, but came to the surface again and clung to the wreckage.

COURT OF INQUIRY

Ordered for Huntsville's Military Company.

Acting Governor Cunningham has ordered a military court of inquiry to investigate the conduct of the Huntsville militia in connection with the recent lynching of the negro Horace Maples at that place.

The acting governor received a report from Captain R. L. Hay of the Huntsville company, in response to the demand from the chief executive and commander-in-chief of the national guard, for a complete statement of the conduct of the militia on the occasion of the lynching of the Maples negro. This report of Captain Hay was not made public, but it is understood that it does not conform to the statements made in the report of Sheriff A. D. Rogers, of Madison county. It is said that both reports contain the names of nearly every person who participated in the lynching.

It is believed at the capitol that the determination of Governor Cunningham to order a court of inquiry to investigate the conduct of Captain Hay and his company was based on the two reports received by the governor, the one from Captain Hay and the other from Sheriff Rogers.

Is It the Genuine Weevil?

The farmers of Cahaba valley are exercised over the appearance of a black weevil in their cotton fields, which are cutting up the cotton blooms and boring into the young bolls of cotton. Mr. L. O. Collins, of Leeds, an old Black Belt cotton planter, has made an examination of the cotton plants in this locality and is of the opinion that this pest is none other than the regular Texas boll weevil, which has played havoc with the cotton crop of the west in the last years.

Railroad Progress.

The Seaboard Air Line railroad is now running a work train from Irondale east as far as the Cahaba river. The big iron and steel bridge is now being built across the river near the old Revis mill place.

Two other iron bridges will soon be put in, one over Big Black and the other over East Black creeks. The two tunnels, one at the Roper Gap and the other at the Hardwick Gap, are being rushed to completion, and by the first of the new year will witness the running of trains over the route from Atlanta to Birmingham.

Ginneries in Operation.

The census bureau report shows 7567 ginneries operated this season prior to September 1, while the number operated to the corresponding date in 1903 was 2176. The report points out that in comparing the statistics of the two years due allowance must be made for the different conditions of the two seasons. The total commercial bales which would number but 374,821 if the round bales were counted as half bales, comprise 358,796 square bales, 31,187 round bales and 431 sea island crop bales.

Reappointed.

Governor Cunningham reappointed all the constables and justices of the peace in Talladega county to serve until November. They had vacated their offices by failure to file new bonds.

Extra Session.

It is announced that the supreme court will convene in extra session for the consideration of the Lusk judiciary act on September 29th. It was found impossible to get the court together sooner because of the absence of members on their vacations.

Synod Meeting.

The Presbyterian synod of Mississippi will hold its annual session at Holly Springs on the 15th of November. The important subjects to be discussed are the endowment for the Mississippi Synodical Female college and the proposed ratification of the removal of the Southwestern Presbyterian university from Clarksville, Tenn., to Atlanta.

NO QUARTER SHOWN

Neither Army Has Any Respect for Either the Red Cross or White Flag.

MESSAGES FROM PORT ARTHUR

Tell Something of Conditions There. Items from the Northern Campaign.

According to Lieutenant Prince Radzivil, of the Russian army from Port Arthur bearing dispatches from General Stoessel, commander of the fort, to General Kuropatkin, the temper of the belligerents at Port Arthur has reached an absolutely merciless attack.

It was set forth in these dispatches some weeks ago that serious suspicions were entertained by both belligerents that the other was misusing the Red Cross flag. These suspicions have been increased by the commissions of various acts by the soldiers of both armies, until now even flags of truce or surrender are not respected by either side.

General Stoessel is making no objection to civilians leaving Port Arthur. When the 300 women who are in Port Arthur engaged in hospital work were advised to leave they replied they would rather face the possibility of massacre than desert their posts.

The prince said:

"Stories in circulation concerning the shortage of ammunition and provisions at Port Arthur are not true. There is an abundance of ammunition for both large and small arms, and plenty of preserved food. The use of Chinese shells was merely a saving measure.

"The Japanese shells have done great damage to the hospital and other buildings in Port Arthur, but the losses of life from these bombardments has been very slight.

"Madame Stoessel, wife of the general, is at the head of the Red Cross work in Port Arthur."

Probably electricity has never played so great a part in warfare before as it does with the Japanese. Every general of brigade in the field is like a modern ambassador "at the end of a wire," which has divisional commander controls, and the generals of divisions are in touch by telegraph or telephone with the corps commander. The engineers run wires after the column ahead with marvelous rapidity.

General Sakharoff has reported to the general staff under date of September 17th:

"The Manchurian army was nowhere engaged on September 16 or 17. The arrival of considerable reinforcements is noticeable at the advanced posts along the whole of the enemy's front."

It is announced from Mukden that both the Russian and the Japanese generals have promised to respect the tombs and palace there.

A Russian paper, commenting on the Lena case, criticises the authorities for dissipating the energies of the volunteer fleet and scattering vessels aimlessly over the face of the globe, and says:

"The volunteer fleet would be effective were it concentrated near Japan, where it would have a chance of picking up contraband and taking it to Russian ports."

The paper also calls attention to the alleged presence of many Japanese spies in Denmark and Sweden, who are said to keep their government advised of every move of Russian ships and warns the admiralty that the Baltic fleet may meet with some surprises in the shape of whitehead torpedoes before it gets well away from Limau.

ONE DOZEN INJURED

In a Wreck on an Elevated Railroad in Chicago.

A through passenger train on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad from Toledo to Chicago was wrecked at Chicago.

Some of the railroad people claim the train ran into an open switch and others say the locomotive jumped the track because of a broken flange. Twelve persons were injured.

The train was a little behind time on entering the city and was going at a high rate of speed. The tracks are elevated and the accident happened just before the train reached the viaduct crossing over Root street.

An overturned stove in the rear coach set fire to the wreckage, but it was extinguished before it had gained much headway. The engineer and fireman stayed at their posts until the last and both men were pulled from the debris unconscious.

Odd Fellows.

The sovereign grand lodge of the I. O. O. F. is in session in San Francisco.

Attending National Meetings.

Secretary of State E. R. McInvid has gone to Indianapolis to attend the meeting of insurance commissioners of the United States. He will go to St. Louis and attend on the 28th a meeting of secretaries of states, at which an organization is to be formed.

UNITED STATES PORTS

Should Be Nearer Railroads, Says Gen. Sumner.

Major General S. S. Sumner, commanding the southwestern division, comprising the departments of Texas and Colorado, in his annual report, makes some radical recommendations looking to the abandonment of military posts in that division, regarded as of the greatest importance in the old days of Indian warfare.

Some posts he wishes to be brought up to date in the matter of water supply, and other conveniences. He suggests the abandonment of Fort Grant, which is too far from the railroad. General Sumner says for strategic reasons it would be reasonable to abandon the site of Fort Clarke, and transfer it to Eagle Pass.

If his suggestions are adopted there will be a line of posts on the Mexican border covering all rail communication between the United States and Mexico.

ACTIONS MAY BE VOID.

Judge Hubbard Dead and Successor's Qualification Expired.

Anything that may have been done by the Pike county circuit court Saturday is, lawyers say, null and void. Special Judge H. A. Pearce, who has been holding the court, was appointed to the work of Judge John P. Hubbard. The special judge held court by reason of the fact that Judge Hubbard was ill. He has held two weeks, including Saturday. What he did that day, however, is regarded as void, because the man for whom he was serving died Friday night. The governor did not make an appointment out of respect to Judge Hubbard's memory.

Bismarck Dead.

Prince Herbert Bismarck died Sunday morning at 10:15 o'clock. Since he ceased to be foreign minister on the retirement of his father, in 1890, Prince Herbert Bismarck had taken part in public affairs only as a member of the reichstag.

Prince Bismarck's father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German empire, and advanced him rapidly in the diplomatic service until at the age of forty he was minister of foreign affairs. The estate, valued at $4,000,000, goes to Prince Otto.

Saved by the Wind.

A shift of wind saved Halifax, N. S., from destruction by fire. Nevertheless the city suffered a loss of $500,000 in the business part of the water front, and the progress of the flames was only stayed by the dynamiting of a dozen buildings.

When the fire was at its height and a southerly gale was pushing it straight toward the heart of the business center, the wind shifted suddenly and turned the flames along the wharves and warehouse district.

The fire consumed several wharves, two coal piers, two hotels, a dozen warehouses and a number of retail shops. During the fire a large tree fell, killing one and wounding two others.

Woodlawn Schools.

The total enrollment of the Woodlawn public schools during the first week was 591 students—481 in the white school and 110 in the colofed school. This is the highest number ever recorded in the history of the schools.

The two new, handsome school buildings, costing $6,000 each, one in East Woodlawn and one in West Woodlawn, just completed, are now being used.

Bank Changes Hands.

Dr. C. B. Forman, of Attalla, and L. M. Dyke, of Columbiana, have purchased the Bank of Attalla, and will in future conduct that institution under the official direction of Dr. Forman as president and Mr. Dyke as cashier.

C. H. Moody, of the Dwight cotton mills, will also be interested in the bank. The bank will operate with a capital stock of $50,000, of which $25,000 is paid in.

Wolf Will Teach.

The Rev. W. W. Wolf, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, has been offered the principalship of the Pratt City high school in place of Professor L. P. Liles, who recently tendered his resignation. Mr. Wolf has agreed to accept the place temporarily.

Died of a Headache.

Earl Anderson, the 10-year-old son of J. H. Anderson, who lives at Mars Hill, died under most peculiar circumstances. The boy, who has been in perfect health, complained a little of headache. He told his parents his head ached so badly that he would have to see a physician, but before the latter arrived he died.

Killed by Bomb.

At Cleveland, Ohio, during a band concert a lead pipe loaded with powder or dynamite was exploded with malicious intent, the police believe, and Pasquales Ferrito and Walter Cox, 15 years old, were probably fatally injured.

Ferrito's back was torn away and Cox had a leg blown off. Rivalry between two bands of the district is said to be the cause for much ill feeling of the boatmen toward each other.

To the New Decatur Advertiser—Thanks!

FARM and stock raising column will be commenced next week; we have some interesting matter on hand, but it arrived too late for this issue. All communications should reach us not later than Tuesday morning.

THE recommendation of the County Alliance to farmers, which will be found on the first page of this paper, is well worth the careful consideration of all cotton growers. Not a bale should be sold this season for less than ten cents per pound, and with the faculties now at his command there is no reason why the planter should take a fraction less, it appearing very probable that later on he will be offered a better price still for the staple.

THE quiet political condition of the county is gratifying to the best citizen, but it must not be assumed that no work is being done. Some part of the opposition is ever working, but we believe without success. In a large measure the greater part of the voters have already determined upon the ticket they will vote for, and reports from nearly all over the county are to the effect that Democratic gains are large and influential. There is a considerable number of voters who are at present undecided, but the indications are that the great majority of them will finally decide upon voting the Democratic ticket. It is the plain duty of every Democrat to use all their influence in this direction, every vote gained will help swell the majority, and it is greatly to be hoped that this election will put an end to future fractious opposition.

A COPY of the procedings of the Alabama Press Association is to hand, and we congratulate Secretary Jacob Pepperman upon having accomplished a big task in short time. But Secretary Pepperman is a hustler. He hustled everybody until all the arrangements were complete for the Association's annual outing; he hustled the crowd to St. Louis, and hustled them through all the sights of the big show, and then hustled them home again. Since then he has hustled the work on the minutes with the result they are out in the quickest time on record.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Massey Wilson, giving an opinion recently upon the publication of Registrar's notices of appointments said "The aim and purpose of the statute are to give the greatest publicity." etc., and this opinion we commend to the consideration of the Tax Assessor and Tax Collector of Chilton county. It is good law, good reason and sound common sense. The aim and purpose of all statutes authorizing public notices in newspapers are of course to use the best means at the command of the officials in getting their appointments before the people, and was never intended to advance their private interests in fostering publications printed in a distant part of the State.

In authorizing their appointments published at the expense of the county in a paper of small circulation and not even printed in the county, Assessor Mims and Collector Hubbard are stretching their authority to the limit, and are neglectful of their duty to the taxpayers. It is certainly not spending the money of the taxpayers to the best advantage.

The Banner issues 1250 papers every week, and this is more than double the number of copies issued by all the other "newspapers" published in Clanton combined, viz.: The Clanton Courrier, the Clanton Drug Reporter and the Clanton Union. If those three publications will submit their lists of subscribers to a committee of three, two to be named by them and one by The Banner, we will substantiag our claim of 1250, and if it is not as we state, we will continue to publish the list of appointments of Assessor Mims and Collector Hubbard free of all charge to the taxpayers.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, Sept. 19, 1904

As a proof that the negro question is something more than a southern problem from a social standpoint and affects Northern business men as well as Southern planters and business men, I submit to the readers of this correspondence the following interview with a thoroughly reliable and responsible gentleman:

Mr. Robert M. Mearman, who for a number of years has been Washington correspondent of some of the leading Southern newspapers, has just returned to this city after an absence of six months in the South. In an interview he points out a result of Rooseveltism in that section that has not been generally commented upon.

"The negro problem, which has been so aggrivated by President Roosevelt's actions, presents an industrial as well as a social phase. The industrial side of the question seems to have been overshadowed by President Roosevelt's startling social equality ideas and well nigh lost to view. There is in the South a labor question that in time, if Rooseveltism continues, will become a vital problem. Indeed, it is now rapidly approaching a crisis. Negroes are refusing to work even at good wages. Why? To be exact, there are two general reasons:

First, Rooseveltism.

Second, the temporary prosperity of the country.

"President Roosevelt's negro policy has made the negro believe that he is so exalted that work is beneath him. I speak of the negro in general. Many of our Northern friends do not know the real thing in the negro line. He says: 'we are better than white folks now and we won't work no more. That man in the White House is our friend; the great United States government is behind us. We are safe.'

"It is very difficult to get field hands in the South. Cotton choppers and cotton pickers are in demand and the crops suffer much for lack of labor. House servants are procured with the greatest difficulty even at good wages. The good house wives and flat wives of Washington also doubtless experience this trouble. This, too, when negroes loaf about in large numbers without any visible means of support and refuse to work with scorn.

"A few weeks ago coming into Washington I shared a seat on the train with a prosperous old gentleman from Mobile. He had moved there from the North—Massachusetts, I think. He was on his way to the G. A. R. encampment. The conversation turning to politics, I was surprised when he remarked with vehemence: 'Roosevelt has played hell (pretty good United States language) in the South. I am in the shipping business, but it is with the greatest difficulty that I can get negroes to work on my boats, although there are gangs of them lying around idle. A few weeks ago one of my boats full of passengers was delayed 24 hours because I could not get labor. They say they don't have to work now since Roosevelt is in the White House.'

"The general prosperous condition of the country has given the negro a little money and the negro, as a rule, when he gets a little ahead quits work until that is exhausted. Many negroes, too, have moved North. This has in part accounted for the scarcity of labor. But Rooseveltism is the root of a great portion of the evil.

The social aspect of the case is bad enough, but the South can cope with that. The Southerner, if need be, can drive a tramp away from his house, but he can not force him into a cotton field behind a mule. It is the industrial question that is going to give as much, if not more trouble than the social problem.

The result: The South right now is dependent solely, you might say on negro labor. If the negroes refuse to work the production of crops will fall off; if crops fall off, there is less cash money; if there is less cash money there will be less purchase of goods—an ultimate and logical final reaction on Northern and Eastern merchants.

CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Cradle Song.

Sweet and low, sweet and low,
Winds of the western sea,
Low, low, breathe and blow,
Winds of the western sea!
Over the rolling waters go,
Come from the dying moon, and blow,
Blow him again to me;
While my little one, while my pretty one sleeps.

Sleep and rest, sleep and rest,
Father will come to thee soon;
Rest, rest, on mother's breast,
Father will come to thee soon;
Father will come to his babe in the nest.
Silver sails all out of the west
Under the silver moon;
Sleep, my little one, sleep, my pretty one, sleep.

WHEN THE BEES SWARMED

BY CHARLES CRAWFORD

A good many things had happened before the bees swarmed back of the house on that June day.

Dick Scott, son of the hard-headed and hard-hearted old Farmer Scott, had fallen in love with the widow Lapham months before. He was barely 21 years of age, and working for his father as a hired hand, while she was 32 and owned the next farm on the east.

It was easy to get up an argument on their respective ages, showing that the disparity was too great and on the wrong side, and the father used it for all it was worth.

Farmer Scott had called upon the widow and charged her with seeking to trap his guileless son, and had been promptly turned out doors. The neighbors had mixed in after that, and the affair was the leading subject of conversation for five miles around.

Dick Scott was no talker, but he was a good hand to think. He was very much in love, and he was as determined to marry that widow as he was to live, but he couldn't stand up against the arguments of his father nor witness the tears of his mother, so he kept quiet and waited for an earthquake, cyclone or some other dispensation of Providence to help him out.

Whenever they were working in the fields together the father would look at the sky with a squint, take a farewell glance around the farm, and then solemnly remark:

"Dick, it seems awful that I've got to die in my prime and leave all this, especially before them young pear trees begin to bear, but I'll have to do it—I'll have to do it."

"What's the use oo' dyin'?" Dick would ask, knowing that he must say something.

"I don't want to, but I've got to. Can't live a week after you've went and married to the widder Lapham. The idea that my only son has gone and married his grandmother, and a women with feet like an elephant at that, would break my heart and send me to my grave."

"Didn't you marry who you wanted to when you married ma?"

"That was different. In them days women didn't set traps for young men, and widders wasn't schemin' day and night. Dick, gol durn ye, what d'ye want to make a hyena of yourself fur and send my gray hairs down to the grave in sorrer?"

Dick would change the subject or refuse to talk back any further, and, after muttering to himself for half an hour longer, the father would get tired out.

On this June day, however, when the two were repairing the rail fence between the corn and the potato field, and all nature was reveling in the balmy sunshine, the usual discussion opened with a different preliminary and became red hot at once.

A peddler came down into the field to see if he couldn't make a sale of a pocket knife or a pair of suspenders, and he had a little joke to get off about the widow Lapham wearing the trousers after marriage.

He was still grinning when Dick knocked him into the thistle patch and seemed sorry that there was not more of him.

"By thunder, Dick Scott!" ex-

"What's the use o' dyin'?"

claimed the father as the peddler picked himself up and started off, "but you appear to bring eternal disgrace on this family. It wasn't 'nuff that you must go and git all tangled up with a widder as old as the hills, but you haul off and hit a peddler who'll have you in the county jail before Saturday night!

"Jeminy, no wonder that me and your mother have bin havin' cold feet fur the last three days and huntin' up verses for our tombstones! I'll have one more talk with you when we go up to dinner, and if you can't be made to listen to reason then I'll be through with you."

Dick had nothing to say in reply. He was as much astonished as his father at his sudden outbreak, but it had given him confidence.

The pair worked along for the next two hours without a word, and when the dinner horn blew they started for the house. The father led by a good fifteen rods.

His head was down, and he was thinking up new arguments to advance, when a strange, buzzing noise suddenly reached his ears and made him halt.

He was passing close to one of the beehives, and the bees were swarm-

ing. They put out by the thousand, flying around and around, like a corkscrew, and as farmer Scott hesitated which way to run, the whole cloud began settling down on him.

His straw hat was covered in an instant, and then the little workers roosted on his shoulders, clung to his shirtsleeves and covered him down to the knees. He reached out his right hand and grasped a young peach tree to support himself, but that was all he could do.

Dick came swinging along about the time the last bee had settled down, and he stopped short with a look of amazement. Then the look changed to a grin, and he sat down on the frame of the grindstone, crossed his legs and said:

"Dad, I wouldn't be in your place for three of the best cows in Hillsdale county!"

"Dick, I'm a dead man!" replied the father in a hoarse whisper.

"You surely are. You ain't goin' to die of a broken heart because I marry the widder Lapham, but because about 1,000,000 bees are goin' to jab their stingers into you at the same time. You'll feel wuss'n that peddler did—fur wuss."

"Dick," continued the father, "you must git one o' them new hives and put some fresh honey around it and try to coax them bees off. They may begin to sting me any minit."

"Yes, dad, they may, and they'll hear your yells clear down to Schemerhorn's as the first fifty stingers go in. I'll see about the hive bimeby. I want to talk with you first. How old do you think the widder Lapham is?"

"For heaven's sake, but what has the widder Lapham got to do with them bees? Get that hive!"

"After we've had our talk. How old did you say she was?"

"A leetle over 30, I guess, but I'm nigh dead of fright."

"You keep still and you'll be all right. How big are the widder's feet?"

"Durn you, Dick, will you see your own father perish this way?"

"You're not perishin'. How big are her feet?"

"Same as your father's, or smaller. Now git the hive."

"Purty soon, dad. How about the widder settin' mantraps?"

"Dick Scott!" exclaimed the father in as loud tones as he dared use, "them confounded bees are crawlin' down my back and into my ears!"

"Yes, they are naturally cur'us to know who you are. Do you reckon the widder set mantrap for me, dad?"

"Now, dad, look here, I suffer!"

"The case is just like this, dad: The widder is at least ten years older than me, but we love each other, and want to git married. You married to please yourself, and I shall do the same thing. You and ma have had a heap to say about it, and you've said some purty hard things, but I guess you're willin' to take them all back now and keep shet. Do I understand it that way, dad?"

"Never, Dick—never!"

"Then you stand quiet and I'll go in to dinner. If I hear you yell I shan't come, as it will be too late. Do you want a big funeral, dad?"

"Dick, have I got to chaw my words?" pleadingly queried the father.

"Or else let the bees chaw you."

"Then, Dick—then git that hive up here in less'n a minit and begin to gently scrape them infernal insecks off, fur I'm right on the 'pint of faintin' away."

"And the widder, dad—the widder?"

"Marry the widder, and be durned to you!"—Charles Crawford in Boston Globe.

"TONNAGE" AT INLAND PORT.

Deputy Collector Evidently Had Never Been Seafaring Man.

Appraiser Whitehead in discussing the other day some of the peculiarities of the tariff law, told the following story of a newly appointed deputy collector at a sub-port on the Canadian border. The port was in the woods, and hundreds of miles from the coast.

The customs officials are furnished with blanks on which to make their reports, and in cases like the one in point there are many items on the blanks which it is never necessary to fill. The new deputy collector's report contained the information that he had collected $4 for "tonnage," dues on vessels.

The treasury department had visions of a tidal wave which had changed the face of the map on the northern frontier and made the little "port" in the woods a veritable seaport. An agent was dispatched to the scene to investigate. He found no change in the physical characteristics of the region, and the first question which he asked the new official was how he had managed to collect $4 for tonnage.

"I collected duty on two tons of hay at $2 a ton," he replied, "and if that isn't what you mean by tonnage on your old blank I'll be d—d if I know what it is."—New York Times.

GAVE HIS FLOCK WARNING.

Zealous Old Minister Certainly Made Lesson Impressive.

The little town of Bethlehem, Pa., once contained a half-crazy minister known as "Ranting" Ranker, who had been educated beyond his intelligence, and was at times hysterically fanatic. His strange doings were as numerous as they were well known, but probably the wildest freak was during the last year of his eventful life.

The quiet little village was deep in slumber one night when it was aroused by peal after peal from the bell in the Moravian church. Men and women rushed from every side to put out the supposed fire and the local fire brigade sallied forth with all its paraphernalia. The crowd assembled about the church, but the bell never ceased its frantic summons. At last a delegation was sent up to see who the ringer was. "Ranting" Ranker stood there, half naked, pulling the bell rope with all his strength.

"What is it? Where's the fire?" was their excited query.

"Fire in hell! Fire in hell!" shouted the zealous old preacher, "and if you don't look out you'll all be burned up in it."

How many souls were converted that night has never been known.

A Social Tragedy.

Then changed it for a purple one;
Then changed again, in her distress,
To one 'twixt chestnut-bay and dun;
And yet once more she made a change
And put a pale pink rigging on;
Her husband growled things strong and strange—
His patience was completely gone.

They went to call upon some friends
That she was anxious to impress—
'Tis ever thus when woman spends
A lot of time upon her dress.
This time her plan succeeded not
In stunning folks, for O, alas!
Her hostess said: "It's quite too hot
To think of turning up the gas."
—S. W. Gillilan in Baltimore American.

Made Name as Astronomer.

One of the most noted of Russian astronomers died in the person of Theodore Bredikhine. He had been director of the observatories in Moscow and St. Petersburg. It was his unpleasant duty in the latter place to oust the Germans and Swedes who had made it famous. His own specialty was comets' tails, regarding the formation of which he had an electric theory, which occupied his attention to the time of his death.

Memorial to Great Scientist.

An appropriate memorial to the great geologist and scientist, Joseph Le Conte, has been erected in Yosemite valley by the Sierra club of California. It is a lodge, built strongly and simply, containing one large room, 25x36 feet, with a large stone fireplace at one end, and a small room on either side the entrance on the opposite end. It is at the upper end of the valley.

Princess Has Many Godfathers.

Probably no person in the world had as many godfathers as did Princess Irene of Prussia, wife of Prince Henry. When she was born her father requested the members of the Hessian regiments forming a portion of his cavalry brigade to be sponsors for the baby. When she was christened about 4,000 soldiers stood for her as sponsors.

TWO GIRLS' INDIAN ANCESTRY.

Deeds of Claims that Secured Them Valuable Tracts of Land.

A romance that has come down through several centuries has recently developed as the result of the Dawes commission awarding allotments of valuable land to two St. Louis young women, the Misses Jessie Mae and Blanche Hall.

It was necessary in the cases of the Misses Hall to trace their ancestry unmistakably to an Indian parent. The romance that has developed began when their great-great-grandfather came to America as a French voyageur.

Thomas Condray was a member of a wealthy, aristocratic French family. His health failed early in life, and the trip to America was advised by physicians and finally agreed to by alarmed parents.

He came with the view of returning to France after a few months, but a beautiful Cherokee maiden interrupted his plans; he paid court to her, married and ever afterward lived in America with his Indian wife and children.

Through Florida he had drifted into Georgia, and there met the Cherokee girl, whose blood still courses sufficiently in the veins of these two St. Louis young women to entitle them to equal rights with the full-blood tribesmen of today.

The ancestry was traced directly by the Dawes commission, and upon their investigation of the alleged rights of the Misses Hall was established their title to the land. They have 600 acres of as valuable land as is included in the domain of the five tribes. The young women are but 1-16th Indian blood.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ROSCOE CONKLING'S BIG FEE.

Advocate Lays His Complaint Before Charles O'Conor and Gets Answer.

It is said that one day when Roscoe Conkling was beginning to attain some measure of success he dropped into the office of Charles O'Conor of New York, then one of the leaders of the bar.

"What's the trouble?" asked the latter, as Conkling excitedly paced the floor.

"I've just been subjected to the worst insult I have ever received. This is the first time a client ever objected to my fee."

"You know I defended Gibbons for arson and put in some tremendous work for him. He was convicted at the trial, but we couldn't help it, and I took the case to the superior court and we lost there, then on to the supreme court and that affirmed the conviction and he has been given ten years. Now, my fee only amounted to $3,000 and the scoundrel actually has the audacity to grumble about it, saying it's too high. What do you think of that for impudence?"

"Well," said O'Connor slowly, "of course, you did a lot of work and $3,000 is not a big fee, but to be frank with you, Mr. Conkling, my opinion, founded on mature consideration, is that he might have been convicted for less money."

BABY BORN TO FORTUNE.

John Nicholas Brown, 4 Years Old, Worth $10,000,000.

John Nicholas Brown of Rhode Island is only 4 years old, but he is rated worth $10,000,000. His fortune came from his father and an uncle, in equal amounts, before he was 3 months old. Young Brown has three palatial residences, a yacht, is always attended by a physician and has a retinue of ten servants. He lives on sterilized milk chiefly and has more care bestowed upon him than a royal prince. He is weighed morning and night on special scales and is groomed in the most luxurious manner. The youngster's fortune consists in stock in great cotton mills in New England. His mother was a Miss Dresser, sister of Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

Go, Lovely Bird.

(The "bullfinch hat" is in evidence * * * and a leading ladies' newspaper tells its readers that this is to be a bird season.—Daily Paper.)

Go, lovely bird,
Speed from my lady warily,
For she hath heard
That finches dainty decking be;
And her sweet charms mean death to thee!

Cares she that's young,
And seeks to have her graces spied,
That thou hast sung
In woodlands where the violets hide?
She loves thee better stuffed and dyed!

For at the sight
Of ruffled breast and stiffened limb
Her eyes grow bright.
A wreath of death will bravely trim
The circlet of my lady's rim!

So fly! For she
Would claim in service all things rare,
Including thee.
And thy short life she will not spare
When Fashion says that thou art fair.
—Punch.

Wanted to See the World.

John Guild, 11 years old, son of a wealthy ship builder of Hilo, Hawaii, ran away from home several months ago and has just arrived in Philadelphia on board a merchant vessel with which he shipped as a stow away. The elder Guild is immensely rich, but the boy was tired of staying home amid splendid surroundings. He wanted to see the world, but his father would not let him leave home, so he hid on board the merchant vessel. The captain, who knows the elder Guild intimately, will take him back on the return voyage.

Ambitious Social Leader.

Mrs. George Westinghouse gives the society people of Lenox much to talk about, owing to the splendors, not to say eccentricities, of her entertainments. She has had designs upon the social leadership of that exclusive spot and has had at her dinners the British ambassador and wife.

Rule of the Incas

The government of the Incas is said to have been the most enlightened despotism that ever existed and about the nearest approach to a Utopia which has yet been reached by any people, says the Scientific American. There was allotted to each man free of charge a dwelling site and an extended area of land for him to till and cultivate for the maintenance of his family. The surplus of products from this tract, left over from the immediate needs of the owner, was given as a tribute to the Inca government and used for religious, charitable and other purposes at their sovereign city of Cuzco. Under their wise and just civic administration crime and public corruption and theft were not known. In Cuzco it is stated that a resident with 100 bars of silver and gold piled up in his house left it wide open, only placing a small stick across the door as a sign that the master was out, and nobody went in. Agriculture was a chief pursuit followed. Cotton, beans, maize and cocoa were raised by the coast people. On the plateau the domestication of the llama and alpaca was the favorite occupation.

The whole tribe was divided into numerous clans. The powers of administration centered in the elective dignitaries, a military leader and the head of the religious system. There was also a council of chiefs. None of these offices was hereditary and could not be occupied by sons unless they were especially chosen for the position. Monument to a Lie

A correspondent of the Straits Budget of the Straits Settlement says:

"While other nations build monuments to the memory of men who have done great and noble deeds the Dyaks heap up a pile of the branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that future generations may know of his wickedness and take warning from it.

"The persons deceived start the tugong bula by heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous spot by the side of the main road. Every passerby contributes to it and at the same time curses the man in memory of whom it is.

"The Dyaks consider the adding to any tugong bula they may pass a sacred duty, the omission of which will meet with supernatural punishment, and so, however pressed for time a Dyak may be, he stops to throw on the pile some branches or twigs.

"This custom dates from very ancient times. It is interesting to notice that though the ethics of the Dyaks, even at the present day, do not agree in many points with the moral code of other and more advanced races, still from the earliest days the Dyaks seem to have agreed in considering a lie a most disgraceful crime, and a liar a man who deserves the curses not only of his own generation, but also of people yet unborn.

"A few small branches, a few twigs and leaves—that is what a tugong bula is at first. But day by day it increases in size. Every passer-by adds something to it, and in a few years' time it becomes a large and imposing monument raised to the memory of one who was a liar.

"It has often been remarked by Dyaks that any other punishment would, if a man had his choice, be much preferred to having a tugong bula put up in his memory. Other punishments are soon forgotten, but a tugong remains as a testimony to a man's untruthfulness for successive generations to witness, and as a standing disgrace to his children and children.

"Believing, as the Dyaks do, in the efficacy of curses—a curse against them being a finable offense—it is easy to understand how a Dyak would dread the accumulation of curses which would necessarily accompany the formation of a tugong bula."

In a Russian Village

A traveler in Russia writes: "The outward aspect of a Russian village is not attractive, and there is little choice in the surrounding country between a wide gray plain with a distance of scrubby pine forest, or the scrubby pine forest with distant gray plains. The peasants' houses are scattered up and down without any order or arrangement, and with no roads between, built of trunks of trees, unsquared and mortised into each other at the corners, the interstices filled with moss and mud, a mode of building warmer than it sounds. In the interior there is always an enormous brick stove, five or six feet high, on which and on the floor the whole family sleep in their rags. The heat and the stench are frightful. No one undresses, washing is unknown and sheepskin pelisses with the wool inside are not conducive to cleanliness.

"Russian stoves are, in fact, thick, hollow party walls, built of brick, and sometimes separating or connecting as many as three or four rooms, and heating them all from one common center. The outer sides of these lofty intramural furnaces are usually faced with a kind of white porcelain, [illegible] in some houses they are papered [illegible] the rest of the wall, so that the [illegible] ence of the stove is known [illegible] only by two or three apertures [illegible] port holes, which have been made [illegible] ing purpose of admitting the [illegible] Sometimes, especially in [illegible] houses, the stove, or peichka as it [illegible] called, is not only a wall, but a [illegible] which, toward the bottom, projects [illegible] as to form a kind of dresser or [illegible] and which the lazier of the [illegible] use not infrequently in the [illegible] capacity.

"When a stove is being heated [illegible] portholes are kept carefully shut, [illegible] prevent the egress of carbonic [illegible] gas. But after the wood has been [illegible] thoroughly charred and every vestige [illegible] of flame has disappeared the chimney [illegible] is closed on a level with the [illegible] floor, the covers are removed from [illegible] the apertures in the side of the stove [illegible] and the hot air is allowed to pass [illegible] freely into the room; which, if [illegible] wood has been put into the stove [illegible] and the lid of the chimney closed hermetically, will, by this one fire, be kept warm for twelve or four hours."

The Czar's Daily Life

Some interesting [illegible] of the Czar's daily life are furnished by a St. Petersburg correspondent of the Grodnosetzer. Rising at [illegible] the majesty partakes of an English breakfast, consisting of tea, bacon and eggs, bread and butter and marmalade, prepared by an English cook. His wife and the Czarina favor everything English, including the British style of dressing and bringing up children. After the Czar smokes a cigar—a long Havana cigar and indulges in one incessantly for the rest of the day, although his doctors have warned him that it is most injurious to his health. At 7 o'clock he commences audience for the day and examines a coverage of 500 documents. At 9 o'clock lunch it served at midday, at which only is spoken at this meal. If the conversation is not understood by the servants. Dinner follows and is succeeded by cards, the Czar's favorite game being the Russian whist. Every night His Majesty is said to stake [illegible] rouble sums. Bedtime comes about [illegible] o'clock. The Czarina frequently reads an English novel or the Times aloud to her husband.—London Mail.

Jasper Gomers, while waiting for the [illegible] at midnight, sat down on a barrel of [illegible] tar and fell asleep. When he awoke he found the tar had softened so that he had slowly sunk down in the sticky stuff until his feet, arms and head only were outside. He was rescued out with an ax.

CONSTIPATION
For nine long years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an enema every other night every 24 hours before I could get relief. I have no action on my bowels. Happily I am now entirely cured, and I owe my cure to Cascarets. For nine years before I used Cascarets I was called, is not only a wall, but a [illegible] which, toward the bottom, projects [illegible] as to form a kind of dresser or [illegible] and which the lazier of the [illegible] use not infrequently in the [illegible] capacity.

THE CUT-OF-DOOR INSTINCT.

Habits of the Animals as Exemplified in the Wild

A cat turns around before it lies down because its jungle ancestors had to crush the grass to make a bed, and the instinct still persists. Perhaps mankind takes to the woods in summer for the same reason. The groves were man's original abode as well as God's first temples. But while the longing to get back to nature at this season is nearly universal, the instinct for enjoying the wilderness is much less widely distributed.

While some persons are exuberantly happy at getting away from civilization, others who fancy that they want to leave the town behind are made perfectly miserable by the lack of their accustomed conveniences. The splash of the water on the boat's sides or the hum of the reel to such persons is no compensation for the lack of ice, of comfortable beds and of rocking chairs. At the first sign of a mosquito they are overcome with annoyance, and sunburn to them is an evil quite without recompense.

Your true sons of the woods, city bred though he may be, counts all the suffering that belongs to life out of doors as not grievous, but joyous. The discomforts are not to be compared, in his opinion, to the delights of camping and fishing and hunting. His enthusiasm is, indeed, inexplicable to the man who has not fallen under the same spell.

There is no trailing the lover of the woods from the town dweller by his appearance. The rough looking fellow may be a bright fisherman, while the athlete may be miserable out of reach of a car line. Perhaps the difference in temperament may be traced back to childhood. A person may be made almost anything if he is caught young enough. The physiologists have a theory that all kinds of instinct manifest themselves for a time in the growing child and then disappear unless special attention is given to their development.

This may account in part for the diversity of feeling toward nature that exists so unaccountably among men and women of otherwise congenial tastes. Unless a person fished with a bent pin as a child he isn't likely to become enthusiastic over the sport as a man. The woods may lure, but they aren't likely to captivate unless the devotee early learned their ways. The taste for out of door life may be cultivated to some degree, if unless it was developed in youth it is not apt to prove robust.—Kansas City Star.

The Rarest Plant in the World.

In speaking of remarkable shrubs, we must not forget gordonia, which at one time was probably the rarest wild plant in the world, there being but one specimen in existence. Last autumn, while visiting the Bartram Gardens, near Philadelphia, I inquired about this shrub, which had been planted there after its discovery in Georgia in 1730. I learned that this original gordonia had died not long ago, but it is pleasing to know that it now has hundreds of descendants scattered over the country. Unless this specimen was a hybrid it must have been the last of its race, and in either case it was discovered only just in time to prevent its total extinction. The foliage of this plant is bright shining green, turning crimson in the fall, and the large blossoms are pure white and very fragrant. The fact that it blooms during September and October, after most of the other shrubs have flowered, gives it a special value.—Woman's Home Companion.

Economy of Hearing.

The venerable John H. Ketcham, of Dover Plains, N. Y., for many years a member of Congress, is noted for his generosity and kindheartedness. The General is quite deaf, and many a yarn is related anent that defect. One morning he was standing in the lobby of the House looking over his mail, when an impecunious employe of Congress, one of that sort who is always borrowing but never repays, stepped up and accosted him:

"General, can you let me have $5 till pay day?"

"Eh, how's that?" said the General.

The employe, remembering the General's reputation for being easy, concluded to take advantage of it.

"I say can you let me have $10 till pay day?"

"No," said the General; "I'll let you have $5; that's what you asked me for at first."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Horse Sense.

Circus horses are not the only members of the equine family which do smart things. For proof of this one has only to watch the antics of some of the local laundry horses when they are backed up against the curb, the horse being half way across the track. With all the wisdom of a human being the horse moved his head and side stepped out of the car's way as the motor whizzed by without loss of time.

"That is the wisest thing I ever saw a horse do," said a man as he watched the horse's action. "I have seen lots of clever things done by circus horses, but the turning of that horse is the smartest act of all. No man could have a sharper sense of danger than that animal. I doubt if a better exhibition of horses sense was ever given."—Albany Journal.

Russian Holidays.

A movement is on foot in Russia to diminish the excessive number of holidays for students. During a four years' course at a Russian university the work done covers only one year and 295 days. In France the time covered is two years, seventy-four days; in England, two years, 158 days; in the United States, two years, 210 days; in Germany, two years, 230 days. Denmark stands at the head of the list, with two years, 364 days.

Japanese Man Power.

The present war in the East is probably the only instance of a great campaign between civilized nations in which one of the combatants has relied almost entirely on man power, instead of horse power, for transport, the whole of the supplies of each Japanese division of infantry being carried by as many coolies, or porters, as there are fighting men. The Japanese porters are mainly men whose physique is not judged to be good enough to entitle them to fight in the line of battle, though according to modern European notions theirs would be considered rather the more arduous task of the two. But the Japanese have shown up till now that their choice of means has generally been correct, and it is not likely that they have made a mistake in this case.

They know their own people, and for centuries human transport has been the occupation of a large class of their unskilled labor. The litter, or rickshaw, has been adopted, in imitation of their method, even in Simla, the governing city of India. By a simple mechanical contrivance they have also greatly facilitated the work of bearing burdens. A bamboo is carried on a kind of pad over the shoulder, and the load, carefully balanced, is suspended to each end. The carrier thus avoids one of the greatest sources of fatigue, namely, the effect of picking up the burden when it has been laid down to rest, for by merely raising the bamboo and putting his whole body under it, he lifts it with the least possible effort.—London Spectator.

There were 591 homicides the past year in Japan. The total population is 54,000,000 and the average number of homicides for the past ten years has been but 600. During one year's time in the city of Chicago alone 567 assaults were made with intent to kill, 50 people were arrested for murder and 7 for manslaughter.

TONS OF BRIGHT GEMS

It is estimated that the total world production of diamonds up to date approximates 85,000,000 carats. As we are not in the habit of weighing our diamonds by the ton, we are in some doubt concerning the proper system of computation, whether troy of avoirdupois, long ton or short ton. According to the system used by those who do weigh their diamonds in ton quantities, the result would be in the neighborhood of twenty or twenty-five tons of sparklers now appearing as factors in the joys and the miseries of a world which has substituted diamonds for the beads and the wampum of its ancestors.

The regions contributing to this supply and the percentage of their contribution appear as follows: South Africa, 81.5 per cent; Brazil, 18 per cent., and the remaining five per cent. divided among Borneo, India, New South Wales and British Guiana, with North America and Russia supplying specimens. The last two of these countries have furnished just enough to equip an opera box for a single evening. The deep obligation of society to South Africa is apparent. The price of diamonds have been heavily advanced during the last year or two, but it is simply appalling to think what the price would have been without the South African supply. Society, American, English and Continental, should daily thank heaven for Kimberley and Jagersfontein.

We are unable to give the cubic measurement of the total collection, but so far as weight is concerned it would make a load for a medium sized freight car.—Baltimore American.

Walter Schumann, consul at Mainz, Germany, writes: Osmon, a new fuel, is made from peat. The peat contains 90 per cent of water, of which 20 to 25 per cent is removed by an electric current. The peat is then further dried and passed through a machine which breaks it up and forms it into nut-shaped pieces. Osmon is free from sulphur and burns without slag or smoke.

An endurance swimming match from the Brooklyn bridge to Coney Island, under the supervision of the United States volunteer lifesaving corps, has resulted in victory for a man with one leg. A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is fading away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—Mrs. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.

A medicine that has restored so many women to health and can produce proof of the fact must be regarded with respect. This is the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which cannot be equalled by any other medicine the world has ever produced. Here is another case—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I was troubled with falling of the womb, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, backache, headache, dizzy and fainting spells, and stomach trouble.

"I doctored for about five years but did not seem to improve. I began the use of your medicine, and have taken seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, three of Blood Purifier, and also used the Sanative Wash and Liver Pills, and am now enjoying good health, and have gained in flesh. I thank you very much for what you have done for me, and heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering women."—Miss EMMA SNYDER, 218 East Center St., Marion, Ohio.

Women would save time and much sickness if they would write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice as soon as any distressing symptoms appear. It is free, and has put thousands of women on the right road to recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

A BOOK FIELD WANTED.

She Poet Had a Long Search, but It Finally Turned Up.

Eugene Field was a book collector, and one of his favorite jokes, according to the Philadelphia Post, was to enter a bookshop where he was not known and ask in the solemnest manner for an expurgated edition of Mrs. Hemans' poems. One day in Milwaukee he was walking along the street with his friend George Ygnowine, when the latter halted in front of a bookshop and said: "Gene, the proprietor of this place is the most serious man I ever knew. He never saw a joke in his life. Wouldn't it be a good chance to try again for that expurgated Mrs. Hemans?" Without a word Field entered, asked for the proprietor, and then made the usual request. "That is a rather scarce book," came the reply. "Are you prepared to pay a fair price for it?" For just a second Field was taken aback. Then he said, "Certainly, certainly. I—I know it's rare." The man stepped to a case, took out a cheaply bound volume and handed it to Field, saying, "The price is $5." Field took it nervously, opened to the title page and read in correct print, "The Poems of Mrs. Felicia Hemans. Selected and Arranged With All Objectional Passages Excised by George Yenowine, Editor of 'Isaac Watts For the Home,' 'The Fireside Hannah More,' etc.," with the usual publisher's name and date at the bottom. Field glanced up at the bookseller. He stood there the very picture of sad solemnity. "I'll take it," said Field faintly, producing the money. Outside Yenowine was missing. At his office the boy said that he had just left, saying that he was going to Standing Rock, Dakota, to keep an appointment with Sitting Bull.

Copperhead and Rattler.

The copperhead isn't a bad looking snake, as snakes go, but it has a mighty bad reputation. In fact, it is generally regarded as a mean sort of snake and is apparently without a friend or even an apologist. Although it won't chase you nor go out of its way to get a crack at you, it probably does more business per snake than does the rattler, the moccasin or any other of the venomous kind. It is said that where there is one there are always two copperheads, so when you smell green cucumbers look out, for that seems to be the only warning you will get of the presence of this reptile. The rattler is a little more polite, also more vicious, for after giving you timely warning it will stand its ground and fight like a good fellow, while the copperhead will run and hide.

A Good Doctor.

One day in Shanghai, says a writer in the Chicago Record-Herald, when I was feeling sick, I called a Chinaman to me and said, "John, do you have good doctors in China?"

"Good doctors!" he exclaimed. "China have best doctors in world."

"Eudon, over there," I said, pointing to a house covered with a doctor's signs, "do you call him a good doctor?"

"Eudon good doctor!" he exclaimed. "He great! He best doctor in China. He save my life once!"

"You don't say so!" I said. "How was it?"

"Me velly sick," he said confidentially. "Me callee Dr. Han Kou. Givee some medicine. Get velly, velly sick! Me call Dr. Sam Sing. Givee more medicine. Me grow worse. Going to die! Blimeby call Dr. Eudon. He no got time, no come. He savee my life!"

Siwash Fishing.

The Siwash Indians on Puget sound make their living principally by fishing, but the Siwash buck does not condescend to go out for his evening meal of smelt or sardines with a hook and line as the white man does; he takes a long pole and for two feet from each end he makes a sort of comb of it by driving through it long, tin French nails; then he launches his canoe and goes out for a pleasant sail. He paddles easily with the pole, and every few minutes he pulls up a fish impaled on the nails. With a shake he drops it aboard and then calmly continues his paddling.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of a military ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to [illegible] combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the [illegible] colonization of the American flag in any country in which [illegible] dependence is a seditious document. BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thedford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-Draught.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

[illegible] of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Talk of the early bird catching the worm, why, some of our people are in their efforts to get their coal out of the pin firs, in the morning [illegible] the night before and then [illegible] early birds have got ahead of them. The other morning before 6 o'clock I heard five wagons going to the Clanton ginnery, each hoping he was first on the scales to be the first man who got his cotton ginned. I counted a dozen wagons already ahead of me. By the way, the Clanton ginnery has put in another press and now has a capacity of 60 bales per day, or as they tell me, [illegible] working into the night, they can turn out 75 bales.

Mr. Moses Robinson was in Birmingham last week and the Age-Herald publishes the following: "We Chilton county farmers are going to protect ourselves against the speculators as far as possible this season," remarked Moses Robinson, President of the Chilton County Farmer's Alliance. "We believe the cotton crop will be short in comparison with the crop of 60 days ago, caused by excessive rain and rust; and have arranged to carry our crop ourselves by holding sale until Februrary or March next. Alabama bankers and merchants are now in position to aid us in this and for self preservation and they will do it. We are bound to get value for our cotton, if we only exercise economy and be patient."

A CRANK ON TEA.

How W. Field's Encounter With an Expert Tea Taster.

It may be that the millionaire is more eccentric than humbler mortals, but yet in the fierce white light of publicity it often seems so. Cyrus W. Field was never given to any of the expensive hobbies of other rich men. He did not dote on horses or yachts or [illegible]. But Mr. Field did like tea. He used to say there was only one man of his acquaintance who knew how to brew it, and that man was "Old [illegible]." The father of the submarine cable used to travel a great deal by rail, but he never went anywhere without his favorite brand of tea and his special utensils for brewing it. Mr. Field seldom traveled in his private car, and none of his retinue of cooks ever made tea for him. From Chicago in the Pullman he rose early, [illegible] at home, and it was not an uncommon sight to see the gray old philanthropist half dressed and stirring about his buffet car at daylight, seeking hot water with which to brew his choice of Hyson, a canister of which was probably a part of his baggage.

One day when Mr. Field was going through Front street he was attracted by a tea taster who was sipping the infusions of a number of small cups. Mr. Field watched the man carefully, observed his method of using boiling water. Finally he entered the store and said to the expert: "How long have you been in this business?"

"Forty-one years," said the tea taster, who was enjoying an annual income of about $20,000.

"Then you had better give it up," said Mr. Field frankly. "You don't know how to make tea and you are old to learn. Let me brew some of my stuff for you."

The famed philanthropist poured water [illegible] tea leaves which he took from a flask in his pocket, let it draw for a few seconds and invited the tea taster to taste it. But the expert spat the stuff out. "Worst ever!" was his comment. "Even properly brewed." Then Mr. Field, who was a sensitive man, turned on his heel and walked away, muttering: "If you are an expert, the good Lord help some of our tea drinkers."

It is said that when the millionaire was out of hearing the tea taster roared with laughter and said to one of the clerks: "That man Field. He's a crank on tea. I'll give a pound for it, and I told him it was like dishwater."

Necessity For Drainage.

The improvement of earth roads is a very important essential often overlooked in the necessity for draining off the surplus water before it can sink into the surfaces, says Leslie's Magazine. Good roads cannot be constructed even in a prairie country and by the adoption of improved methods immediate recovery after storms of heavy rains may be had. The draining is very effective even a shallow dressing of stone or gravel on the surface of earth road would result in much [illegible] can be secured.

Sherman Heights, Tenn.

To the Banner and its readers: How glad I am to receive the paper. I could not do without the Banner.

As I have been a subscriber so long I thought I would say something about this country. Sherman Heights, Tenn. is a healty community; and tanneries and park and the electric lines are all busy.

A revival meeting has been going on two weeks in succession, 40 professed religion, 31 baptized, 15 in the pool, 16 in Chickamauga creek last Sunday. Our pastor, brother Bryden, is a whole souled, good minister; it looked like he never felt tired nor sleepy. It seems that brother Bryden is ready to meet the bridegroom when He comes. Thank the Lord there are six churches in Sherman Heights, those church bells cheer the Sabbath mornings. When coming to Chattanooga, go to East Chattanooga to Sherman Heights and see the government works on Missionary Ridge, you won't regret it. Go to Olympia park and enjoy yourself; take a ride on the roller coaster, ride on the line figure 8, see the automobile races, foot races, base ball playing the shooting gallery and have your photo taken for 5 cents; cars running every 15 minutes.

Mrs. T. A. Clark is having some improvements done on her lot; fine sulphur water at Sherman Heights and free stone and lime water fine springs.

Mrs. L. A. Attoway is staying with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Clark at Sherman Heights, waiting on the sick; we gladly welcome her in our town, hope she will remain for a long time. The fall birds are singing, the leaves are turning, the cold winter is near by, rain is needed now to make the garden stuff grow. So I will close and write more next time if this don't find its way to the waste basket. Bless the Banner and its readers, subscribe for the Banner and hear from home.

A LOVER OF THE BANNER.

Beat Nine.

As it has been a long time since I have seen anything in the dear old Banner from these diggings I will endeavor to send in a few items, trusting to have the good luck to miss that dreaded basket that sits so convenient to editors.

We had a grand time at our Sunday School convention. We had many prominent speakers present from different parts of the county and State and, Mr. Editor, we would have been proud to have had you present to have enjoyed some of the good things.

I believe we can beat the Lily boys for cotton pickers as Mr. Filmore Childress picked 208 pounds the other day by noon and his little sister, Alma, 202.

Messrs Johnie and A. F. Mims made a business trip to Clanton Friday.

We were glad to see Master Josie and Miss Kittie Price at church Sunday. They have had a severe case of ty hoid fever.

From the looks of the pile of lumber at Mr Riley Pates we judge you will see a new dwelling going up soon. Success t the Banner.

To all whom this may concern:

Take notice, that on or about the 10th day of September, 1904, a certain light bay mare mule, found estray, was taken up by C. L. Ingram; the value of which animal has been duly appraised according to law by two disinterested householders, summoned by E. F. Fuller, a Justice of the Peace for said county, and duly sworn by him; and that said appraisers have duly certified to said Justice the value of said animal to be Twenty dollars, together with the following description: A light bay mare mule, about nine years old, fourteen hands high, weight about 800 pounds, with collar marks on breast and big knot on pastern and joint of left hind leg.

Superstition That Is Ancient.

In many parts of Great Britain the superstition still survives that it is folly or madness to save a drowning man, as he will sooner or later do an injury to the rescuer. The superstition comes down from our ancestors, yet traces of it exist among the Sioux and other Indians, who seem to have inherited it from aboriginal sources. The belief is most prevalent in Cornwall and various parts of Scotland.

DAY WELL SPENT

was that of the 15th inst, at Macedonia at the close of Prof. and Mrs. J. L. Gore's music school. A large and attentive audience assembled to witness the closing exercises and claimed that they were proud of the advancement. The occasion was honored with the presence of Prof. Rasco and Mr. A. Mims of Thorsby and Judge E. B. Deason of Clanton and other prominent visitors from various other parts.

At 10 a.m. the class rendered with much power and force a very appropriate song, after which Prof. Rasco offered a most feeling prayer. Then the song service continued until 11 a.m., when Prof. Rasco came on the floor and delivered one of his straight, common sense and illustrative speeches, calling special attention to those factors of life that tend to inspire, moralize and elevate the minds of the human famiiy. followed by Judge Deason, who demonstrated clearly the possibilities of life through a close attatchment to those things that are elevating to both man and womankind. Mr. Aikin Mims said a lot of good things that our people enjoyed.

Now to the point. At noon the noble hearted mothers, from their own hands, while the soft breezes among the branches of the pleasant oaks, clad in a shrowd of green verdure and echoing the melody of nature's own chimes, "spread" the good things to eat that we all enjoyed so much with our friends. After an hour in the hopeful shade we returned to the house to complete the program. As our much honored guests, Prof. Rasco and Judge Deason, complimented the decoration so nicely, "I too" think it was splendid. The golden rod of these mountains so artistically arranged, and the aquatic flowers that the young men were so nice to secure for us from the crystal waters of the old Coosa, added much to the appearance of the church.

At 3 p.m., Mr. Lyon, our much honored photographer, made a strike on both sexes, and we desire that he secure enough orders to justify his patient worry.

To Prof. and Mrs. Gore we feel that language is powerless to express the boundless esteem in which we have placed them for their untiring efforts to advance us along musical lines. It was a pleasure to learn that another school for one month had been made for next summer. I can voice the class by saying that none know Prof. and Mrs. Gore but to love them.

Cross Roads.

As it has been some time since I have seen anything from this place I will endeavor to write a few words.

Rev. M. J. Parrish filled his regular appointment here Saturday, and on Saturday eve. the church was called to order and commenced and washed feet. Rev. Parrish preached an ordination sermon from Heb. 5 4, and at the close of his sermon the church called a Presbytery and ordained Rev. L. W. Thomas to preach the gospel. The Presbytery consisted of Rev. M. J. Parrish, Rev. A. Baker and Rev. W. W. Robinson.

On Sunday Rev. A. Baker preached an excellent sermon on the resurrection of Christ, to a large congregation. We are always glad to have those brethren with us.

Our regular stated meeting is changed from the third unto the first Sunday and Saturday before.

Sabbath school at this place is still progressing nicely.

Mr. J. M. Huckebee and wife of Falkto were visitors here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. J. J. Grant of Verbena was a visitor here Sunday.

ODD FELLOW'S RESOLUTIONS.

To the Noble Grand and members of the Clanton Lodge No. 304, I. O. O. F.:

We, your Committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in memory of Mrs. Lilian Estell Johnson, wife of our respected Brother, N. S. Johnson, whom the Lord of the Universe has seen fit to remove from amongst us, beg to submit the following.

That, whereas, in His wisdom, the Lord of hosts has gathered into His kingdom, the beloved wife of Brother N. S. Johnson, who for two short years had enriched and blessed his life, and whose bright and Christian life shed sunshine on all around her, whose faith and piety sets a conspicious example to all.

Therefore be it Resolved, We extend the deepest sympathy to our bereaved Brother and his family, and commend them to the care of Him who doeth all things well, resting assured that our departed sister is now one of the bright stars around the throne of glory. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away.

Resolved further, That these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of the Lodge, and that the Secretary is hereby instructed to forward a copy to the family of the deceased, and also furnish a copy to The Banner for publication.

GROUND TO DEATH

Between Ore Car and Mine Wall.

An accident occurred at the ore mines of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company at Gadsden which resulted in the death of John Eunis, a miner. Mr. Eunis was at work and started out and was walking in 200 yards of the entry he met a mule pulling an empty train of cars and driven by a boy.

Eunis stepped to one side to allow the mule and car to pass, but the space was too small between the cars and wall for a man to pass. Consequently the side planking of the car struck Eunis and ground him between the wall and car. Eunis called to the mule to stop, which frightened and the mule began to run and Eunis was dragged for some distance, breaking several ribs and his right arm and bruising him up in a horrible manner and producing internal injury which resulted in his death in a few hours after the accident. He was a married man.

ROBBED OF $500.

Tuscaloosa Woman Has Her Chatelaine Bag Snatched in Cincinnati.

Mrs. F. B. Kay of the University of Alabama was robbed in a Pullman coach in the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton yards at Cincinnati by an unidentified young man. Mrs. Kay was seated in the coach looking casually out of the window when the man deliberately brushed her elbow from the window ledge and reaching into the car snatched her chatelaine bag from where it lay on the seat opposite her.

The train started at that moment and the man escaped. In the bag were $500, two railroad tickets from Waynesboneta, O., to Tuscaloosa, Ala., and all of Mrs. Kay's trunk checks, keys and other small valuables.

Foreign Get-Rich-Quick Schemes.

In the course of their routine reports some of the American consuls have recently had occasion to withhold from their people at home gratuitous investment in alluring enterprises projected in the countries in which the consuls are located until they have made thorough personal investigation of all the alleged facts contained in the prospectuses. The result has been to bring on the department a flood of indignant remonstrances from a number of promoters of various grades, mostly located in the tropics, whereon fortunes are guaranteed in return for small investments.

Unwilling to damp the ardor of any enterprise of real merit the department has cited inquiry as to trade in most of these projected undertakings that the evidence secured by the consuls is invariably fatal to the scheme.

New Colored School.

Negroes have purchased the two-story house known as the Smith place at Greensboro for the purpose of establishing an industrial school. The house and lot are both admirably suited for that purpose, there being eight acres included in the purchase and the house contains ten good rooms. The school is to be known as the West Alabama Industrial Institute and will open October 1st.

May Change Practice Grounds.

It has been suggested to the navy department that Pensacola would be an advantageous place for holding the regular annual target practice of the North Atlantic squadron, and the proposition is under consideration. If it is expected the ships will be brought to Pensacola for target practice again at Pensacola, where it was held last March.

Justice Convicted.

At Sycamore J. M. Pitts, whose trial on the charge of murder was taken up the past three days, was adjudged guilty and fixed the penalty of 5 and costs. Price was a justice of the peace in the district in which the fatal shooting occurred, and the grand jury at the last session of the court charged him with criminally assaulting little Lila Skelton, a 13-year-old girl of Trenton, that had been placed under his care.

Mississippi Coal.

It is reported that a good vein of coal has been discovered on the lands of the Messrs. Hopper, near DeKalb, in Kemper county. T. F. Hopper has been using the coal in his blacksmith forge and has had it analyzed by the state chemist, who has pronounced it coal of the finest quality.

College Opens.

At Jacksonville the beginning of the twenty-second session of the State Normal school Tuesday morning was auspicious.

Over 400 students were enrolled last year and the prospects are that the attendance this year will exceed that of any previous year in the history of the institution. At the present writing 380 students have matriculated.

It is believed that the sign of the three golden balls was adopted by Lombard merchants from the armorial bearings of the Medici family, some representatives of whom were money-lenders.

THE EIGHTH ARREST

In the Huntsville Lynching Case—Witness Joins Army.

At Huntsville the eighth arrest in the lynching case has been made, the prisoner being James Armstrong, a well known young farmer. The charge against him is murder in the first degree.

Armstrong returned from New Orleans, where he had gone during the investigations of the special grand jury.

Judge Speake stated that he does not know when the militia guard at the Madison county jail will be withdrawn and the provisional company be allowed to return to Birmingham. Judge Speake decided several days ago to take no risk and the militia may not be sent home until every one of the eight men charged with taking part in the lynching has been tried.

The men are beginning to tire of their duties. The camp is like a regular army post, and there are many arduous duties to be performed, the day beginning at 5:30 in the morning. The guard lines on the streets leading to the jail are opened in the day time and closed at night, but the guard around the building is maintained at all hours.

John H. Jones, one of the important witnesses for the state in the case of Silas Worley, charged with arson, has joined the United States army and has been sent to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. Jones had been sworn. When his name was called he could not be found and deputies were sent out to find him. They searched the whole city and reported that he had joined the army. Judge Speake fined the missing witness $100 and announced that a full investigation of the matter will be made with a view of determining if there was any outside influence exerted over Jones to have him disappear in this manner. If there is, and the blame can be fixed, Judge Speake will deal severely with the culprit.

Worley was acquitted Saturday night.

HEAVY DAMAGE

By Storm in and Around Meridian, Miss.

Many thousands of dollars damage was caused by the fierce rain and electrical storm which swept over Meridian Friday night. The heaviest damage was to cotton, corn and field crops, and to railroad property. The total amount of rainfall was 4.19 inches, the heaviest on record during the cotton picking season. Stores and ware houses were flooded and the cotton fields, which were white with the well opened bolls, are almost denuded of the staple.

A dangerous washout occurred on the Mobile and Ohio road at Sumrall's switch, and a passenger train escaped in a miraculous manner from a serious wreck. The train had passed over a small stream but a few minutes when a whirlpool of water struck the track, washing out a place thirty feet long and fifteen feet deep.

LIVERY STABLE BURNED.

Twenty-One Hogs Roasted Alive and Harness and Buggies Destroyed.

But for a fortunate east wind and heroic work of the Selma fire department, a volunteer organization, one of the city's most important business blocks would have been consumed. The watchman in Marshall's livery stable discovered fire issuing from the hay loft.

A quantity of fodder had been put in the loft and it was from beneath this that the flames first came. Before the alarm could be sounded the entire stable was in flames. Fifty head of stock were taken out in safety as were also the heavy carriages, but the entire harness and light buggies which were on the second floor were destroyed.

The row of brick buildings in the rear of the stables and separated by an alley were threatened several times, but the department kept the flames in check.

Marshall's loss is $3,000; on buildings, $10,000.

GRAND SIRE OF ODD FELLOWS.

Robert E. Wright, Installed at Home Owing to Illness.

Grand Sire-elect Robert E. Wright, of the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows, who was prevented by illness from attending the meeting in San Francisco, was installed at his home at Allentown, Pa., by Past Grand Sire Clement T. Campbell, of Ontario in the presence of a score of officials of the grand lodge of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Wright announced appointments and they were telegraphed to San Francisco in order that the new incumbents could be installed before the sovereign grand lodge adjourned.

A company has been formed in Selma for the purpose of bringing a large colony of desirable immigrants from the west and northwest.

The residence of A. M. McGehee, one mile from Seale, burned Thursday. Practically all the furniture was lost.

300,000 SOLDIERS

Will be Sent to the Theatre of War to Reinforce the Russian Army.

GEN. GRIPPENBERG TO COMMAND.

Czar Believes Russia's Military and Political Prestige at Stake—Will Fight it Out.

The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liao Yang, is officially announced in an imperial rescript appointing General Grippenberg commander of the Third army corps, in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving General Kuropatkin in command of the first army.

The emperor is personally convinced that the political, as well as the military prestige of the empire, is at stake, and that every other consideration must give way before the exigencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained if necessary in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia.

The reorganization amounts to formal notice to the world, as the emperor frankly explains in his rescript that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theater of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possible time.

Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander in chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that General Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as General Grippenberg. In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander in chief, will exercise the actual functions of commander of the 600,000 men that Russia has resolved to put in the field.

It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspector general of cavalry, will attain the high command, occupying in the war with Japan the position held by his father in the war with Turkey. There was various reports regarding Viceroy Alexieff's ultimate destiny. It is declared in some quarters that he will be recalled and Grand Duke Nicholas become viceroy, as well as commander in chief. It is also said upon apparently equal authority that Alexieff will return as chancellor of the empire, succeding Count Lamsdorff. None of these reports are definitely confirmable.

General Grippenberg, commander of the second army, was born January 1, 1838. He is ten years older than General Kuropatkin, but ranks three numbers lower on the list of generals. He is a Lutheran in religion. He is married and has three children. One son, a captain of artillery, was wounded in the battle of Liao Yang.

POLITICIANS QUARREL.

One of Georgia's Representatives Is Stabbed.

A special from Waycross, Ga., says that Dr. J. M. Spence, representative from Ware county, was probably fatally stabbed near Waresboro by J. R. McDonald, who is opposing him as an independent.

It is said that Spence went to McDonald's home for the purpose of forcing him to sign affidavits withdrawing certain charges and the cutting affray followed. Owing to the prominence of the parties concerned, there is considerable excitement over the affair.

New City Hall.

Florence's new city hall has just been completed at a cost of $7,000, and the city officials will move in at once. It is in the heart of the city, opposite the court house, and it is one of the prettiest and most substantial buildings in Florence.

The basement is fitted up with cells for the prisoners, the first floor contains the city court room and the offices of the city officials, and the second floor will be devoted to the Wheeler Rifles, with armory, lockers and office for the captain. On the same lot is the new fire house.

Vesuvius Busy.

Vesuvius is gradually growing more active and is continuously throwing up ashes and sparks of fire, which rise occasionally in immense volumes to a height of 700 feet, accompanied by loud detonations and slight earthquakes.

Nearing Completion.

Selma's Carnegie library building upon which work was commenced about ten months ago will be ready for occupancy on October 1st according to Contractor Purvis. The tiling for the floor of the rotunda of the building has just arrived and will be put down at once. The building has cost something over $10,000 and is located on a lot that cost $4,000.

WATER SUPPLY

At Port Arthur Cut Off by the Japanese Soldiers.

As a result of the battle before Port Arthur, which began on September 19th, the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions, and today the Russian tenure of the big forts guarding the north, northeast and northwest sides of the town is seriously threatened.

Chinese information places the Japanese losses under 3,000 for the three days' fighting, and this comparatively small casualty list is due to the excessive care used by the Japanese in making their preparations for the advance. Russian sources, however, claim to have information that the Japanese losses were unusually severe, amounting to fully three times the number mentioned above.

Possibly the most important capture during the three days' fighting was that of Fort Kuropatkin, which, while of minor value with regard to preventing the entrance into the town of the Japanese, had been constructed for the purpose of protecting the source of the garrison's water supply. The control of this water supply is now in the hands of the Japanese.

At noon on September 20th the Japanese right and center, the former being to the west and the latter to the east of the railroad, commenced the advance.

The troops made use of the trees and infrequent natural cover that lay in their way. The small forts to the south of the Shushiyen resisted this advance, but briefly, their garrisons not being strong numerically. Since the beginning of the bombardment the artillery from Port Kuropatkin had been growing steadily weaker, and it having become apparent that it had been practically silenced, the Japanese assaulted the fort. Fort Kuropatkin is situated to the south of Palichuang, and to the northeast of the parade ground on a low hill.

It derives its name from the time when General Kuropatkin inspected it, pointed out the weakness of the position, and ordered that it be strengthened as far as possible because of the necessity of protecting the water supply.

Military experts are of the opinion that if the Japanese capture either Rihlung or Kikwan forts, or the Itz and Anshu forts, the doom of Port Arthur is sealed, and for this reason the importance of the results obtained by the Japanese in their latest assaults upon the Russian position is obvious.

TRAIN EXPLODES DYNAMITE.

Two Killed and Nine Injured—Engine Wrecked.

A fast freight on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad struck a wagon loaded with 750 pounds of dynamite at the crossing at North Branch, West Virginia. Two persons were killed and nine were injured, three of them seriously.

James Laing, who drove the wagon escaped with only trivial injury, as did the two horses, although the latter were blown fifty yards into a field.

According to eye witnesses Laing, hearing the train, became terrified and stopped on the track. The engine was overturned and stripped and seven cars following, loaded with high-grade merchandise, were broken open, several being demolished, the tracks were thrown out of bed, while rails were snapped like pipestems. The wires were torn down.

Engineer Pike was held under iron scraps on top of the boiler while being slowly cooked to death. It required four men to extricate him. The explosion knocked nearly every person in the neighborhood down, hurled Hunter Bowen through a roof, but did not hurt him, and threw parts of the engine 200 yards.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

New Engineer Didn't Understand It. Four Killed.

The boiler in the gin department of the Mammoth cotton mill at Dukes, N. C., exploded, partially wrecking the engine room, instantly killing three workmen, one of whom was the superintendent of the mill, and one negro. Another negro was scalded so badly that he will die.

From the best information obtainable it seems that the old fireman of the mill having just been discharged, the new man not thoroughly understanding the engine, had gotten up too much steam. The engine refused to work and the fireman went after the superintendent. As they entered the engine room together, there was a rending roar, and the men were blown to pieces.

Electric Light Explodes.

Engineer W. L. Rea, of a Seaboard Air Line work train, was fatally injured.

The electric headlight on the engine exploded and a piece of flying iron struck the engineer on the head.

Will Call Conference.

President Roosevelt announces that at an early date he will ask the nations of the world to join in a second congress at The Hague for the promotion of arbitration.

The occasion of the announcement was the reception by the president of the delegation of the interparliamentary union which recently held a session at St. Louis, at which resolutions were adopted.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Wrecks Street Car in Boston Suburb Dealing Out Death to Nine Persons.

BOX FELL FROM EXPRESS WAGON

And Despite Frantic Efforts at Recovery Was Struck by the Car. Many Injured.

A Boston electric car was blown to pieces at Melrose, Mass. Nine persons were killed outright, several fatally injured and at least fifteen severely hurt.

The unidentified dead are three women and a 3 year-old girl.

It is thought the car struck a charge of dynamite left on the track. The front dashboard of the car was hurled more than fifty feet.

So great was the force of the explosion that two men standing in the door of a store fifty feet away were severely injured by flying pieces, while every window within a radius of a quarter of a mile was broken.

The car contained mostly working men on their way to their homes.

When rescuers reached the scene of the accident the sight was appalling. The ground was covered with torn and mangled bodies of the dead and writhing forms of the injured.

The police announce that the cause of the wreck was the striking of a 50-pound box of dynamite which had fallen from an express wagon just ahead of the car. The express wagon was driven by Roy Fenton, who discovered that the box had dropped off and rushed back to take it off the track, but before he got within a hundred yards of the box the car came along and was blown up.

Fenton was taken into custody by the police.

ON TO MUKDEN.

Japanese Predict the Fall of Port Arthur in Two Weeks.

An impression is growing that an engagement will soon take place at Mukden. General Kuropatkin is evidently preparing to make a determined resistance to any attempt to dispossess him and is entrenching and constructing defenses. He has an immense force available, but the opinion is expressed that Tie Pass would be a more favorable location for defense. The Russians, however, are unwilling to suffer the loss of prestige which would be involved by the abandonment of Mukden.

Both armies are now rested and have recovered from the effects of the fight at Liao Yang. They are in condition to fight and the weather is favorable for military operations. The roads are drying and the Japanese are restoring the railway.

A renewal of the attack upon Port Arthur on newer and more aggressive lines is expected this week, and it is predicted in well informed quarters that the reduction of that fortress will be accomplished within ten days or a fortnight.

The authorities continue silent concerning operations there.

General Kuroki reports the capture of four miles of railway rails and two hundred tons of coal.

Business is active with coal, oil and stores for Russian account. It is claimed that urgent measures are being taken to secure supplies for Siberia and Manchuria before the winter. Underwriters are skeptical as to the weather permitting steamers which have still to sail from Europe to reach Vladivostok.

City Is Dark.

Some of the machinery in the power house of the Huntsville Railway, Light and Power company has broken down and the streets of the city are without light and will probably be in that condition for a week or more. The breakdown has also affected the operation of electric cars which are running very irregularly.

To Another Charge.

The Rev. J. L. Yandle, who has been assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Columbus, Ga., for a year, has been chosen pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Holly Springs, Miss., and goes to Mississippi October 1st.

Auburn Opens.

The present enrollment of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute is 449, which number is considerably in advance of any previous record.

An analysis discloses the following: Old students returned, 251; new students, 198, this being the largest percentage of old students to return in the history of the college.

Track Extension.

Officers of the Merrimac Coal company at Corona signed contracts with the Southern railway officials for an extension of railroad tracks about one and a half miles to the new mines. This company is pushing the work of opening up these mines and expect to be shipping coal at an early date.

New finds of gold are reported from near Gadsden, Ala.

TAX COLLECTOR SHORT.

Former Officer of Mobile Owes State About $11,000.

According to a report made to the governor on Tax Collector John Cann, of Mobile, is short with the state, though he went out of office in 1900, $8,000.97, with interest for four years at 6 per cent, making a total of over eleven thousand dollars. The shortage is accounted for, says the examiner, in a double credit for arrears. The arrears credited in the settlement made with the auditor in 1899 had already been taken off by the board of equalization.

The matter was called to the attention of the governor several days ago and he directed the books to be checked up. It is said one of the men who at one time worked with Mr. Cann drew attention to the matter in Mobile.

The papers have been referred to the auditor with instructions to proceed to the collection of the money. In case this is not to be done the attorney general will be instructed to bring suit against Mr. Cann's bondsmen.

CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE.

Houston County Farmers Have Fatal Shooting Affray.

John Cannon was shot and killed near Dothan Monday afternoon by A. F. Peel. They fell out some time over some trivial matter, though they had been enemies for several years. Mr. Peel came into town and secured a lawyer and then returned home with his wife who had accompanied him.

He sent the sheriff word to come out and he would give up. Both men are well to do in the community and have many friends. Peel said Cannon followed him to the field and attempted to fire on him with a pistol. He says he tried to defend himself without shooting, which he found he could not do, and fired on Cannon with a shotgun loaded with buckshot and almost cut off his head.

HUNTSVILLE'S COMPANY

May Be Mustered Out—Court Martial Concluded.

Members of the military court of inquiry have finished their labors in Huntsville and gone to Montgomery, where they will compile their findings and report to Acting Governor Cunningham on the conduct of the officers and men of company F, Third regiment, while guarding the jail in which the negro murderer, Horace Maples, was confined. The report of the court will not be published until it has passed through the hands of the governor, but alleged facts regarding it have leaked out and no one will be surprised if Colonel Frazer and his associates recommend the muster out of the company.

Seven alleged lynchers are in custody.

Cuban Imports.

The state department has received from Minister Squires at Havana a table showing Cuba's import trade for the first quarter of 1904 and for the same quarter of 1903. These figures are of special interest in that they cover the first quarter after December when the reciprocity treaty took effect.

There was an increase of $2,038,200 in the imports of Cuba for the first quarter of 1904 over the same period of 1903. The minister says that the imports of Cuba from the United States increased only 3 per cent, while those from England, Germany, Spain and France increased 20, 21, 16 and 8 per cent, respectively.

Schools Open.

Over 3,100 pupils returned to their books in Birmingham Tuesday.

Howard college opened Tuesday with an enrollment of about 200.

May Be Transferred.

The Brandon Light Artillery, first squadron of the Alabama national guard, may be transferred to the infantry service shortly. The battery will be assigned if the transfer is made to fill a vacancy now existing in the Second regiment.

Car Service.

The Alabama Car Service Association for August shows a falling off in the number of cars handled in the Gadsden district, which was due to the strike and the shutting down of the furnace for three weeks to undergo repairs. Only 986 cars were handled in Gadsden. Alabama City handled 1400 cars.

Chairman Hale Dead.

James M. Jones, chairman of the democratic executive committee of Hale county, member of the district executive committee and a member from Hale of the constitutional convention, is dead.

No Secretary.

The board of lady managers of the Louisiana Purchase exposition has abolished the office of secretary. It is stated that the action was taken as the result of friction that is said to have existed between the incumbent and persons connected with the board of lady managers.

Monday, October 10th, will be Alabama day at the world's fair.

STATE Superintendent of Education, I. W. Hill, made an excellent address on education at the court house last Thursday night to a large and appreciative audience. Considering the trouble that exists among our citizens in regard to the public school here it is to be hoped the Superintendent's words of wisdom will be heeded.

REAL estate business has been quite active in Clanton this week. Warren Spigener purchased a lot from R. L. Marcus on Fourth avenue, the price being $815, upon which he will build himself a handsome residence, and Dr. D. A. Campbelle has sold the Julia Campbell lot on Sixth street to J. W. Headley for $800.

ANY irresponsible vagabond, possessing not a cent in the world, who can cajole a few dollars from credulous persons, can get a ready print paper at small expense, in which he can malign and slander almost with impunity, the libel law not comtemplating a man of straw as the ostensible owner and publisher of a newspaper.

THE Birmingham Times says "Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Republican nominee for Judge of Probate of Chilton county" will make a number of speeches in Elmore county. We believe Mr. Reynold's nomination was certified to by the Populist Executive Committee, which hardly makes him the Republican nominee. In the last campaign Mr. Reynolds was down in the same district making speeches on behalf of the late Charles W. Thompson, Democratic nominee for Congress, so that between the three parties it is hard to say where Mr. Reynolds is at, and as the Times does not say he is to make Republican speeches, one cannot tell whether to expect Populist, Republican or Democratic speeches from him this time.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For many years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug co.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

For nearly twelve years, or to be strictly accurate, and I want to make no error of any kind in this statement, for the eleven years and nine months that I have been publishing The Banner, no more unpleasant duty has fallen upon me than that which devolves upon me now. In the course of that time several newspapers have been started in Chilton, run their course and disappeared. Without exception they all had some claim for support from the people of Chilton—they paid taxes and spent their money in the county. They differed with The Banner in their editorial opinions, but always those differences were expressed in courteous terms and decent language.

It was not until the appearance of the Union, with no standing in the county, that a volume of personal abuse was lavished upon me, the sole stock in trade of the paper. The reason is obvious—the editors and publishers of all those several newspapers were newspaper men and gentlemen and conducted their papers in a gentlemanly way—the individual, W. C. Edler, who controls the Union, is not a gentleman and is a man totally devoid of truth and honor.

The tirade of falsehood and abuse in the last issue of the Union, aimed at me, I will not condescend to reply to—there's a score of men, or more, who are now politically opposed to me, who know that not one word of his abuse has an atom of truth in it—Mr. L. H. Reynolds knows it and Judge Honeycutt knows it, and I cannot doubt but that both gentlemen, as well as well as many others, will bear me out. Now, mark this, and I want to emphasize it, Edler himself knows it is not true—if I was to use his common expression I should say that he lied, but content myself with the more polite, but none the less forcible, expression, he knows it is not true, and that he deliberately tells an untruth.

Can anyone tell me how or in what manner I have ever attempted to injure Edler? From the first time that I met him in Thorsby some six or seven years ago until about two years since I befriended him in every way, gave him of all that I had, shared my room and bed with him in his dire necessity, defended him against what at the time I thought was persecution, let him have the run of my office so that he might learn all that he would of my business, in short, treated him with every kindness and consideration, and amongst the most cherished of his possessions is several copies of The Banner, the paper he now tries to decry in every way. I do not ask anyone to accept my statement, there is a goodly number of Clanton and Thorsby citizens who know the facts—ask them, but I protest against your asking Edler for the truth (like Pilate he knows not truth) as in the Circuit Court of Chilton county those of his neighbors who knew him best swore that they would not believe him (Edler) on his oath. He is discredited by those who know him; for a long time was debarred from the privileges of Masonry on account of his misconduct, and is generally considered a disgrace to the community that shelters him. He is obnoxious to 99 and 9-10ths of the people of Clanton, and on several occasions indignant citizens have talked of running him out of Clanton as he was run out of Thorsby.

I want to be perfectly plain—Edler is a bully and a coward who hopes that his six feet and more of stature will intimidate my five feet odd. To a man of his own size he will cringe like a cur—ask Jim Thompson.

Until about two years ago Edler could not say anything too good of The Banner or of myself; voluntarily he solicited subscribers for The Banner, telling them it was above the average of country newspapers—the subscribers will vouch for this. Two years ago he concluded that if he could ingratiate himself with the Republican party he might be able to get an appointment as postmaster, and failing to get the Clanton postoffice, working upon the credulity of others, he succeeded in getting enough money from them to start the Union as a ready-print paper, printed at Birmingham, and by extortionate prices exacted from the candidates of the opposition he has managed so far to keep afloat, although he has stated that if the opposition is not elected in November he and the Union will have to go. I stand in the way of his desires, hence his vindictive animosity.

Edler forced himself upon me for a long time, and I, knowing his unfriendless condition, submitted to it, and becoming intimately acquainted with him, found him to be a man without principle and one who will violate any confidence reposed in him. Time and again I have told him a printing office was not the place for him to loaf in day after day, and if he has done one day's honest work since he came to Clanton I do not know of it.

With sincere apologies to the readers of The Banner and to all the people of Chilton county for this waste of space upon a worthless character, in order that there shall be no mistake as to the author of this, and following my unvarying custom when I am compelled to say anything of a personal nature, I subscribe myself,

Very respectfully,
FRANK CRICHTON.

DEATH OF Mr. WALTER KEMP.

On Saturday afternoon last, at 3 o'clock, Mr. Walter Kemp breathed his last, at the age of 35, at his home at Waugh, Montgomery county, after three weeks sickness with swamp fever. For several days he had been very low, and a number of his relatives had been called from Chilton county to his bedside, hoping that with his fine constitution he would be able to overcome the disease

Mr. Kemp was a splendid specimen of the vigerous young manhood of Chilton county; apparently, destined to live a long and honored life. Honest and conscientious in his dealings, quiet and unassuming in manner, he was very popular among his acquaintances. Some five years ago he was married to Miss Bamma Moore, and shortly after removed to Waugh where he at once made a large circle of friends. He leaves a widow and 2 children, whose grief at the loss of a loving husband and fond father can only be tempered by the grace of God. Miss Nannie Moore had been with her sister nursing the sick man, and amongst the relatives who had made the mournful journey last week was his mother, Mrs. Kemp, Messrs. P. M. Moore, Will, Tom and John Kemp, Wiley Letcher, of Riderville.

The remains were brought to Clanton Sunday evening and interred at the cemetery, Monday. A large number of sorrowing friends attending, W. H. Merritt coming down from Birmingham for the purpose.

The Pride of Profession.

Soldiers, remarks the Kansas City Journal, are the only ones who really have pride in their profession. When a soldier dies, he is hauled to his grave on the trucks of an old cannon, and his memory would be disgraced if any other vehicle were used. But think what a howl would go up against the family if a dead farmer should be hauled to his grave on the trucks of a sulky plow!

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

FARMING AND STOCK RAISING

Editor Banner.—Seeing a few weeks ago you invited farm correspondence, I write in the interest of cheap long feed (roughage) and to this end I would recommend sorghum as a very cheap and easily grown as well as a highly nutritious feed.

In 1903, I raised forty-two large two horse loads on three acres of upland. I first broke land first of June with disc plow 9 to 12 inches deep, then cut it finely with small scooters, then broadcast on the three acres seven and one-half bushels early amber sorghum seed; with this I put 1800 lbs. commercial fertilizer (meal and phosphate) run float over land both ways. In this way I leveled the land perfectly and at same time covered seed, and I never saw so much feed to the amount of land, but later I had a small piece of very missing cotton, the land very rich upland, so I could not afford a half crop on it. Near my house where chickens would destroy corn I had a hand to take a garden hoe and open drill between hills of cotton, leaving 12 to 15 inches at each end of skip so as not to crowd cotton. I sowed sorghum seed in trench real thick at a rate of about 25 seed to the foot. Another hand followed me with back of a heavy iron rake covering seed. As soon as the seed were up I began to cultivate with plow same as I did the cotton never thinning at all, notwithstanding the half stand of cotton made a bale to the acre. I made fully or more than four tons sorghum hay to acre on same ground. I don't, however, endorse mixing crops, especially cotton and any other crop.

Now, to the point. When I began to feed my sorghum hay to cattle and horses last winter I discovered they much preferred the cultivated to the uncultivated hay. So this year I planted in rows 3 to 3½ feet apart, first breaking land with disc, then float or harrow ground to pulverize and level, plant on level ground about one bushel early amber sorghum seed and 250 pounds meal and phosphate to the acre; cover with board when six inches high, run center furrow with scooter and sixteen inch scrape, then bar off closely and let stand ten days. Repeat your fertilizer, throw ont middle with scooter or large scrape, or three scrape cultivator; then after two or three weeks go through it with scrape or cultivator and all is over but the saving; and to do that successfully, Prof. Andrew J. Soule, president of the Tennessee Agricultural college at Knoxville, and by the way, the best authority I have read after, says cut the sorghum ripe as it will bear, tie in bundles as you would wheat, and shock up in the field tieing a string or with near top tightly, another about middle and that in this way you save quite a lot of work and housing space and that in large shocks it is almost fully protected from rain; retains the sacarine matter indefinitely and you haul to your barn in single loads as needed, and in this plan I have great faith. Another thing I have noticed, that when cured very dry stock may refuse it, but as soon as wet they eat it with great relish. I invite comment on the foregoing, or would like to read any suggestions by farmers or others along the line of farming and stock raising.

AND BY THE WAY, I have a lot real good mules for sale; also fifteen well bred pigs and gilts; also lot good cows fresh in milk. We get five to six gallons rich milk every day from only two. Don't need them. One has six weeks old heifer calf by my red Poll bull which was three years old yesterday, his weight 1180 pounds. The other has bull calf four weeks old by my short horn bull two years and ten months old tomorrow, his weight 1310 pounds; rael value of calves today as much as I ask for cows and calves. Come eat and drink with me, I will show you something nice. Suecess to the Banner. F. A. GULLEDGE.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cholic, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlet, of Eagle Pass, Tex. I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." DEATH OF Mr. LEE FOSHEE

The cold icy angel of death visited the home of Mr. C. D. Foshee Thursday night last and called away his loving brother, Lee Foshee. He had been sick for nearly a year; he had the consumption, and last February he had measles and they settled on his lungs and soon taken him away. He was born April 26, 1865 and died Sept. the 22, 1904. He was 39 years of age and unmarried. The remains were carried to the Childress cemetery, 8 miles west of Clanton, and there interred with his farher, three brothers and two sisters who had gone on before him. Rev. W. M. Woods preached his funeral at 12 o'clock Saturday and there were a host of friends and relatives there to mourn their loss. He leaves a mother, five brother and three sisters to mourn their loss, but we sympathize with them and would tell them not to mourn for it, is earth's loss and heaven's gain. He attacched himself to the Baptist church at New Salem about 15 years ago and has lived a sacred life ever since. He always obeyed the commands of the Lord. He paid custom and tribute to whom it was due, and honor to those that should be honored. He was born and raised in old Chilton, and he had many friends both far and near, and was loved by all who knew him, but he has gone home to Jesus, there to dwell. Though he will visit us no more, yet we may go to him at last, he has gone to receive his reward for he was faithful to the end. But we should not weep, for He who gave him life has taken it away, the Lord has called him for some purpose unknown to us, but yet. He does all things well, we should be ready when we should go to meet him. He went away at ease; just like he was going to sleep, but he went to sleep to awake no more, and we believe he is at rest.

Emergency Medicines

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending Sept. 1, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The drouth continues practically unbroken and all crops are suffering for rain over the entire state, except in a few northern counties, where local showers fell during the week. The days have been quite warm, but the nights were rather cool, light frosts being reported from Walker county on the night of the 16th. Cotton continues to rust and shed badly, and boll worms are still damaging in middle counties, with some few reports of caterpillars in middle and southern portions of the state. There is very little top crop forming, and late cotton has stopped fruiting through lack of moisture. It is opening rapidly and picking is being pushed, but labor is scarce. About one-half of the crop has been picked in southern counties, making a light yield. While the present prospect is that the cotton crop in this state will be below the average, but quite as good as that of last year. The gathering of early corn continues with a very good yield, while late corn needs rain. Considerable fodder and hay have been saved in excellent condition. Pastures, gardens and all minor crops need rain.

THOMAS CRAWFORD,
Observer, Temporarily in Charge.

COTTON PICKING.

Is Now General—Shedding is Reported—Dry Weather Hurtful.

The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions says:

While the weather conditions of the week ending September 19th were generally favorable for gathering crops in nearly all districts, low night temperatures in the more northerly portions have delayed the maturity of late crops. Frosts occurred as far south as Oklahoma and Tennessee, but little or no damage resulted.

Late corn is maturing rapidly in the western portion of the belt, but the crop is ripening slowly in the eastern and central sections.

Complaints of shedding are still received from the eastern section and the northern portion of the western section of the cotton belt, but reports of rust are not so general. Except in North Carolina the staple is opening rapidly in all districts, in some localities prematurely, and picking is general, although delayed by rain in portions of Texas, from which state as well as from Georgia scarcity of pickers is reported.

Dry weather is causing injury to late cotton generally in the central and eastern sections, and a light or no top crop is indicated in the central and caterpillars are causing injury in Oklahoma, Louisiana, Alabama and South Carolina. In Texas the boll weevils continue as damaging in southwestern, coast, central, eastern and a number of northern counties as the advancement of the season permits.

Army Marriages.

That no army officer be permitted to marry until he has first secured the permission of the secretary of war and satisfied that official that his income will support himself and his family, and that he is entirely free from debt, is the recommendation made by Henry G. Corbin, adjutant general commanding the Atlantic division and department of the east, which was issued at the war department.

Decatur Library.

The new Carnegie library is almost completed and work is well under way on the new brick Presbyterian church which will cost upward of $10,000.

Payment on Friars' Lands.

The first payment of $2,000,000 on account of the purchase of the friar lands in the Philippines has been authorized by the war department. There has been on deposit in New York since last December the fund of $7,236,000 realized from the sale of bonds authorized to be issued in purchase of the friar lands, and a draft for the first payment will be made on the Bank of England.

CREW RESPONSIBLE

For Slocomb Disaster Says Board of Inspectors. Their Report.

APPARATUS INSUFFICIENT.

Officers' Licenses Revoked—Greatest Blame Laid to Deck Hands' Incompetency.

A lengthy report has just been made public of an investigation by the local board of steamboat inspectors into the General Slocum steamer disaster, which occurred in the East river last June and cost nearly 1,000 lives. The report concludes by announcing the revocation of the licenses of officers aboard the Slocum, as follows: William H. Van Schaick, master and pilot; Edward Vanwart, pilot, and Benjamin F. Conklin, chief engineer.

Briefly summarized, the principal points of the board's report are:

"That the fire was discovered at the upper end of the Sunken Meadows and that North Brother Island was the nearest available point to beach the steamer.

"That the life preserving appliances in the vessel were inadequate, but had the Slocum been supplied with double the number, not another life would have been saved, because of the ignorance and incompetence of the crew.

"That there was an absolute lack of discipline of the crew because of the negligence of the master and of the pilot.

"That fire drills had been neglected, and that had the crew been trained as the law requires, such a disaster would have been almost inconceivable.

"That one of the crew, in his ignorance, added to the incipient flames by throwing thereon an empty bag which had contained charcoal.

"That the chief engineer was grossly negligent when notified of the fire, in that he did not see that the hose had been connected and the water turned on."

Other Reports Coming.

The investigation began July 6th and was delayed by the injuries of Captain Van Schaick, which confined him to the hospital. Under the law the board only took up the conduct of the vessel's licensed officers. The other phases of the disaster were investigated by a special commission appointed on request of President Roosevelt.

This commission has not yet made public its report.

"A few minutes after the master was made aware that the Slocum was on fire he gave orders to the pilot to beach the vessel on the North Brother island. That order was obeyed and the steamer was beached probably within three minutes.

"In the face of the evidence we can not in justice arrive at any conclusion on this point other than the unfavorable criticism passed upon Captain Van Schaick for not having beached his steamer at some other point than where he did was wholly unmerited."

The great mortality, according to their view, was due to the impossibility of equipping 1,500 persons, mostly children, in a few minutes and not to the age of the preservers.

Blames Crew.

"The evidence before us indicates an absolute lack of discipline on the part of the crew," the report continues. "Because of the negligence of the master of the steamer and of the pilot, who under the law is next to the master in charge, to observe the provisions which require them in the discipline and use of the fire pumps and all other apparatus for the safety of life on board such vessel, and to see that all the equipments required by law are in complete working order for immediate use."

The money in actual circulation has been increased $112,000,000 since January 1.

Riggins Acquitted.

The first of the Huntsville alleged lynchers indicted by the grand jury last week was acquitted in the circuit court.

Thomas M. Riggins, the hotel man who has lain in jail a week, is now free, the state having failed to make out a case against him. The jury returned the verdict from the box.

There was a rumor to the effect that two of the jurors on this case had expressed themselves in sympathy with the mob on the night of the lynching and had perjured themselves to get on the jury. Solicitor Pettus had his attention called to the rumor and intended to make a full investigation, but the matter may be dropped since the trial passed as it did.

Bessemer's Postoffice.

Postmaster Johnson, of Bessemer, has received requests from the postal officials for considerable information relative to his office so that the department may be able to make the proper estimates of the new government building to be erected in that city.

The government has already purchased a site on which to erect this new building and $100,000 has been appropriated with which to build the structure.

JEWELS RETURNED.

Had Been Stolen About a Month Ago.

About one month ago the jewelry store of C. H. Sargent, of Cullman, was broken into and robbed of about $200 worth of watches and other jewelry. Officers have been unable to find the guilty parties and the matter was about forgotten, when Mr. Sargent received his jewelry in a cigar box expressed from St. Louis.

It was a great surprise to Mr. Sargent, who, of course, did not expect ever to recover the goods. In the box was an unsigned note stating that two men or boys were in Cullman on the night of the burglary and entered the store, taking the goods. They claimed to have repented of the act, and as they were at work, did not need to steal, had decided to return the stolen property. All the goods stolen were returned except five rings.

One or two arrests have been made on suspicion, but the parties have been released on satisfactory showing.

INFERNAL MACHINE

Laid to Destroy Home of President of Sloss Company.

An improvised infernal machine with a lighted fuse attached was found on the porch of the residence of J. C. Maben, president of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, by a passer-by who succeeded in cutting the fuse and preventing an explosion.

The machine consisted of a pint milk bottle containing powdered dynamite, and the fuse which led to the can was lighted and was burning rapidly when discovered.

The man who discovered the machine waked Mr. Maben and notified him of his narrow escape. He told Mr. Maben a white man, about six feet tall and wearing a heavy moustache, ran past him and disappeared.

There was sufficient dynamite in the jar to have wrecked the entire house, and probably killed every occupant.

TWENTY MULES BURNED.

Standard Oil Company Has Heavy Loss by Fire.

Fire destroyed the Standard Oil company's barn and twenty-odd mules Thursday night at Birmingham. But for the work of the fire department the large oil storage building would have been burned.

The origin of the fire is unknown. A negro discovered the flames in the front part of the barn. He gave the alarm and the firemen responded promptly.

An effort was made to save the mules, but the flames were fierce, and the doors of the barn could not be opened in time to get the poor creatures out.

The local management stated that the loss by the fire would amount to about $10,000.

NEW KNITTING MILL

Has Sold Its Entire Output for a Year.

R. L. Adams is making preparations for the establishment of a $10,000 knitting mill at Gadsden. Mr. Adams has purchased the old ice plant and has had it remodeled, and is now installing the machinery.

He expects to have the plant running in a few months, and for the first year the mill will turn out only one kind of knit undershirt. Mr. Adams says the mill will have a capacity of 200 dozen shirts per day, and the entire output for a year has been sold.

BABY BOY DESERTED.

Twenty-One Dresses Left with Him. Investigation.

A baby boy was left at the door of T. P. Henderson, a farmer, at Brushy Pond. The waif is a male child and apparently of tolerably well-to-do parents, as it was provided with plenty of nice clothing. There were twenty-one nice dresses with the little fellow.

Coal Deposits.

Valuable coal deposits have been discovered near Walter, in the southeast corner of Cullman county, which will be developed at an early date.

POWDER EXPLOSION

Kills One Workman and Fatally Injures Another.

A special from Jellico, Tenn., says: A terrible explosion occurred at the Jellico Powder company's works. Lee Hill was killed and Sam Harvey is thought to be fatally wounded.

The accident occurred in the building known as the "corning department" and the structure with its contents was completely demolished. The clothing was burned from Hill's body and his form was burned almost to a crisp. Harvey was also very severely burned.

The cause of the disaster is unknown.

Are Badly Hurt.

The death list of nine resulting from Wednesday's disaster at Melrose, Mass., in which a well filled electric car was blown to pieces by dynamite, has not increased, although six of the injured are still in a critical condition.

Roy C. Fenton, the driver of the express wagon, from which the fifty pound box of dynamite dropped, was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter, and held in $1,000 bail, in default of which he was taken to jail.

TRIVIAL CAUSES OF WAR.

SHAVE RESULTED IN A THREE CENTURY WAR BETWEEN FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

Removal of His Beard by Louis VII. of France Primary Cause of an International Struggle—Stolen Well Bucket and a Broken Teapot Led to Suffering and Bloodshed.

Nothing is more amazing in the history of nations than the absurdly trivial causes which have been sufficient to kindle the fires of war and deluge continents in blood, says the Chicago Tribune.

Many an American has startled an incipient row in his household by appearing unfamiliar with a clean shave after having worn a hirsute adornment for a number of years. And it is almost incredible at first glance that two great nations could be plunged into an international warfare lasting 200 years from a mere shave. Yet nothing more than this was the primary source of three centuries of war between England and France. In order to please the Archbishop of Rouen, Louis VII. of France, consented to remove his beard, in common with his subjects and present a clean shaven face to the world. It was a disastrous shave, for it led to so much friction with his wife, who resented her husband's changed appearance that at last the king divorced her, to become a few months later the wife of Henry II. of England. From this marriage of Henry to the angry, discarded wife of Louis centuries of bloodshed may be said to have followed.

Inclosed in an iron case in the tower of Modena cathedral may be seen today a bucket which 900 years ago, was the innocent cause of a terrible war. Some soldiers of Modena (in a mood mischief) had stolen the bucket from a public well in Bologna and refused to give it up on demand. Fights between the soldiers of the rival and jealous states ensued, and from this spark was kindled a fire of war which devastated a large part of Europe and led to the lifelong imprisonment of the king of Sardinia, son of the German Emperor.

A war in China two centuries and a half ago which involved the loss of 500,000 lives sprang directly from a broken teapot. The teapot was the treasured possession of a dignitary high in favor and the councils of the emperor, and when he was traveling through the lawless provinces in the northwest of China some of his retinue who had fallen behind the main body were intercepted by a band of robbers, and among the spoils the teapot was found and contemptuously flung to the ground and broken. The matter was reported to the emperor by the indignant mandarin, a punitive force was sent out, and a long and terrible war ensued.

Lord Palmerston used to say that only three men had ever known the nature of the troubles in Schleswig-Holstein which led to two great wars—two of them had died before the war broke out, and he, the third of the trinity, had completely forgotten what it was all about. It is now well known, however, that a slight manipulation by Bismarck of a telegram set France and Germany flying at each other's throats a generation ago, with the results too appalling to contemplate.

The war of the Spanish succession, in which the great Duke of Marlborough played so conspicuous and brilliant a part, was, it is said, the outcome of a spilled glass of water at a Tuileries ball. One of the court ladies had expressed a wish for a glass of water in the hearing of the British and Spanish ambassadors, who forthwith hastened to fetch it.

On returning, each holding a tumbler, they found that the fair bird had flown and was dancing with a French statesman; and to crown their discomfiture the English diplomat cannoned against the Spaniard and upset the water he was carrying—an accident which led to an apology and an exchange of courtesies. A trivial, ridiculous incident enough, but it served to inflame jealousies and cement sympathies and thus to turn the balance in the direction of war.

The seven years' war was largely due, according to his own confession, to the vanity of Frederick the Great, in wanting to see his name figure largely in the gazettes; the Indian mutiny was precipitated by the cartridges served out to the Sepoys, which they believed were greased with the fat of animals unclean alike to Hindu and Mohammedan; and the Turko-Russian war, in the opinion of thousands, was started by the blacksmith's hammer with which a Herzegovinian blacksmith killed a tax collector who had insulted his daughter.

Among other ludicrous causes from which wars have sprung are the stealing of a laced petticoat of a Castile lady by a Moor, which, with the vendetta that followed the theft; led to many years of fierce warfare between the Spaniards and the Moors; and the emptying of a bucket by a Florentine citizen on the head of a man of Milan who was passing underneath the window had a similar effect.

Borrowing a tobacco pipe and failing to return it kindled civil war for years among the rival races in the Pamirs and Afghanistan; a dispute as to the relative attractions of snails and vipers as food gave rise to fifty years of fighting between Milan and Pisa; and it is said two German states fought for years out of rivalry as to their respective powers of beer drinking.

COINS AND COINAGE.

Curious Facts About American Money—Much Completely Valueless.

A reprint article in The Sun a few days ago gave some interesting facts concerning the half-cent coined by the government during the first fifty years of [illegible] of these little coins are still [illegible] by Treasury officials, though very few of them remained. The [illegible] United States Treasury [illegible] lowing statement of the [illegible] coins outstanding [illegible] 181,529.17 [illegible] [illegible] became [illegible] locked [illegible] nickel, five [illegible] Most of the [illegible] as the half-[illegible] The sum of [illegible] has been [illegible] statements [illegible] fifty years [illegible] persons now [illegible] the coins [illegible] hands of [illegible] far the [illegible]

When the first coinage act was passed by Congress April 2, 1792, the [illegible] cents, which were English pennies, half-pennies and farthings. The half-cent was intended to take the place of the farthing. It is worth remarking by the way, that the word penny, commonly used by Americans nowadays, is purely English. The American coin is a cent. The word penny does not occur in any coinage law of the United States.

The fact that the first coinage law provided for issuing cents and half-cents showed that small change was much needed. A month later Congress authorized the director of the mint to purchase "not exceeding [illegible] tons of copper and coin it into cents and half cents." The law further provided that after $50,000 in cents and half-cents had been coined, no more copper coins should be current in the United States or paid or offered by any person under penalty of forfeiture of the coins and a fine of $10. This was done to drive the English copper coins out of circulation.

In 1857 the coinage of the big one per cent and of the half-cent pieces was discontinued and provision was made for coining bronze cents and bronze two-cent pieces. An act of 1851 had already authorized the coinage of three-cent pieces, to consist of three-fourths silver and one-fourth copper. This was a pretty little coin, but inconvenient to handle. Both it and with the cent and two-cent pieces was not needed. It was discontinued in 1873, but not before $1,282,[illegible] of them had been issued. Of the three-cent pieces $912,000 were issued between 1864 and 1873. Both of these coins have practically become obsolete.

Other coins that have ceased to be issued are the one-dollar and the two-dollar gold pieces, the first because it was too small and the other because it was not needed. Of the three-dollar pieces $1,619,376 were coined between 1853 and 1869, and of the one-dollar pieces there were $19,499,[illegible]. The act of 1849, which authorized the coinage of gold dollars also for the first time authorized the coinage of the gold double eagle, or twenty-dollar piece. Up to that time the eagle, or ten-dollar piece, was our largest gold coin. The double eagle is a beautiful coin and has proven useful. From 1850 to 1900 there were issued $1,572,[illegible] of them. At present there are only three times as many twenty-dollar gold pieces, in value, outstanding as there are ten-dollar pieces. The coinage of the one-dollar and the two-dollar gold pieces was discontinued by an act of September 26, 1890.

Quite as curious as the disappearance of any of the coins is that of the so-called fractional paper currency issued during and immediately after the Civil War. The total amount of this issue was $368,724,079. The denominations of 3, 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cents. In the absence of silver coin it was a convenient currency, but it passed so rapidly from hand to hand that it soon became mutilated. Finally the Government redeemed it in large quantities, issuing new notes for the old. More than $15,000,000 of this currency is still outstanding, though one scarcely ever sees a piece of it. The last report of the United States Treasurer showed outstanding [illegible] 219 of the three-cent notes, $1,[illegible] of the five cents, $5,058,789 of the 10 cents, $240,169 of the 15 cents, 274,464 of the 25 cents, and $[illegible] of the 50 cents. For several years past they have been redeemed at the rate of $3,000 to $4,000 a year. It is probable that most of the $[illegible],000 now reported as outstanding has been lost, burned or destroyed.—Indianapolis News.

A DINNER WITH TOLSTOI.

The Countess Does Not Agree in All the Great Russian's Theories.

Edward A. Stilzer describes a visit to Tolstoi in the Woman's Home Companion. He says:

"Countess Tolstoi, as every one knows, does not agree with her husband in all his theories; but she agrees with the world which worships him, and I believe that she is very proud of him, and very devoted, although her devotion has been severely taxed in various ways. She has copied yards of unreadable manuscript while babies of various sizes were pulling at her skirts; she has translated books into three or four languages, and has transformed all sorts of garments to meet the needs of the changing sixteen, her children. For many, many years she has had no new bonnet of gown, and has nevertheless been cheerful and happy, and is it possible that there can be a greater test of a wife's goodness or a woman's greatness?

"As I have said, the countess received me cordially, although I may have been the straw which threatened to break the camel's back, inasmuch as the house already contained a dozen strangers, and it looked as if Mrs. Tolstoi was keeping a boarding-house. At nine o'clock dinner was served, and I was led into the family dining-room, which is a large apartment where signs of luxury are not wanting. There are ancestral portraits upon the walls; a piano stands open and looks well used; there is a table covered by books and magazines, and then in the center the large dining table, around which gathers a host of people of strange faces and forms, with unpronounceable names, and some with undiscovered histories. The countess sat at the head of the table. To the left sat the count, and before him a kettle containing his favorite kasha—the coarsest kind of peasant's food. He helped himself from this freely, and somewhat carelessly, as a man might who eats kasha 365 times in the year. I sat next to the count.

"Two servants waited on the table. The meat was of the Hamburg steak variety. The count never eats meat; kasha and two eggs constituted his dinner. It must be over 20 years since he has eaten meat, and probably longer than that since he has tasted liquor or smoked tobacco.

"There was much animated conversation, jolly laughter and good-natured joking, and the servants seemed to be banished, for we ate, drank and were merry, and I forgot that I was sitting close to a man with whom I had tried to settle the affairs of the universe just a short hour ago."

Officers of the Pueblo and Beulah Valley railway, an electric line 17 miles long, which has just been completed, have adopted a new system whereby passengers over the road will pay according to the weight instead of by the mile, as usual. In Japan the well-to-do have almost always in their houses one room called the "chamber of the inspiring view." Its essential is a beautiful view, but taste is catholic in Japan, and the delightful view may be a blossoming cherry tree, a glimpse of a river, a miniature garden or only the newly fallen snow. In this delightful country they get up parties to visit the maple trees in the glory of autumn color, or the fresh, untrodden snow, as in this country one gives theatre parties and dinners.

A Test of Quick Memory.

Competitors for positions in the German civil service will, according to a Berlin newspaper, have soon to go through a rather novel examination conducted somewhat on the lines of a medical examination for physical fitness. This is a test of quick memory. The examiner will recite to the competitor a speech or poem and ask him to repeat as much of it as the competitor can from memory. If the examiner happens to be gifted with powers of rapid speech it may be difficult for any candidate to qualify, for to do this he must be able to repeat a quarter of what has been recited.

BOY FIEND POMEROY.

He Has Read Steadily For Twenty-One Years in His Prison Cell.

If Jesse Pomeroy, the boy murderer in Charlestown prison, the juvenile fiend incarnate of 1876 be released from custody to-day he would come forth one of the most thoroughly read men of his age in Boston or in the world, so far as English literature is concerned. Since September 17, 1876, the date he entered prison, until now, he has spent almost the whole of his time, when not sleeping or eating, in reading. He has had access to the prison library, and has perused everything from the lightest novel up to the choicest classic.

When condemned to life imprisonment he was extremely illiterate. Although a pervert, he possessed a brain which was otherwise above the average.

His thinking faculties were sharp, shrewd and quick. Over twenty-four years spent in a prison cell has not dimmed them. To-day, at the age of forty-one, he is just as active mentally as he was when as a youth he concocted the crimes which startled the country.

"He does no work whatever except that which is necessary to keep his cell clean," said Warden Bridges. "Most prisoners doing solitary want employment. They make unique canes and curios to keep their minds employed, but Pomeroy is different. All he wants is books, and he devours them with the greatest avidity.

"Life-time prisoners who are not condemned to solitary confinement usually die before they have spent a quarter of a century in prison, and the average convict becomes mentally queer after eight or ten years behind the bars.

"Pomeroy is a phenomenon. He is to-day hale, hearty and of sound mind, barring his homicidal mania. He is quiet and tractable, but we always keep a sharp eye on him, for he is deep and crafty.

"He eats and sleeps well. The majority of people imagine that he is confined in a little four by eight cell, but that is a mistake. His quarters are commodious, well furnished and supplied with two windows."

Pomeroy confidently expects to receive a pardon, and frequently talks to his guards about it when his food is passed in to him.—Boston Post.

One of the street decorations in San Francisco during the Masonic meeting was a bell formed of 7,000 electric lights, strung from a crown of steel to a great ring, the crown and ring also being studded with incandescent bulbs. It was suspended fifty feet in the air over the street. The top was 175 feet from the ground and the ring was 150 feet in circumference. Shining down from the inside of the crown was a plate on which were a crown and cross and the motto, "In Hoc Signo Vinces," done in multicolored lights. The bell, which is said to have been the greatest piece of electrical illuminative work ever constructed, weighed six and one-half tons.

The eight largest diamonds in the world are what are known as crown jewels. Some of them are in an uncut state, and others are carefully cut and finished, so that there is a wide difference in their value. The Kohinoor, the smallest in weight, has been thus reduced by cutting, and is much the most valuable of the lot and has been estimated at less than $500,000. The list is as follows: The Braganza, part of the Portugal jewels, weighs 1880 carats; Kohinoor, belonging to the English crown, 103 carats; Star of Brazil, 125 carats; Austrian Kaiser, 139 carats; Russian Czar, 193 carats; Rajah of Borneo, 367 carats.

The Manu group of islands has been ceded to the United States by the king of Manu and his chiefs. This is the result of the fair rule of Tutuila by the Manu chiefs refused to cede the islands when the group was divided among the three powers. The Manu group are small islands, about seventy-five miles east of Tutuila. The population is less than 1,500.

Many old houses in Holland have a special door, which is never opened save on two occasions—when there is a marriage or a death in the family.

The custom of marrying girls when they are mere children of 9 or 10 years is increasing rather than decreasing in Bengal and other parts of India. The resulting racial degradation is becoming so obvious that laws have been passed in several regions for bidding the marriage of girls under fourteen.

An All-British Pacific Cable.

The new all-British Pacific cable has been definitely decided upon, and a tender of $8,085,000 for furnishing and laying the same accepted. The cable will be 7000 miles in all. The longest link, approximately 3300 miles, will be the longest single section in the world. The route taken by this new cable from Canada to Queensland, will be via Fanning Island, Fiji and Norfolk Islands, but the exact route will be kept secret in order to enhance the difficulty of cable-cutters in war time. As a matter of fact the cable is being laid with the idea of affording greater security to Great Britain and her colonies in times of war by ensuring uninterrupted cable communication by means of a cable touching only at British ports. It will be laid largely in deep water, and is to be completed before the end of 1902.

To Prevent Tuberculosis in Germany.

The German Department of the Interior has issued a set of instructions conveying compulsory precautions to be taken against the spread of tuberculosis in the empire. The instructions consist of seven articles, providing that doctors, under all circumstances where their patients have lung or larynx tuberculosis, must give written notice to the police as soon as the case in question has been diagnosed; that immediately after the death of a person from this form of the disease the room he used and his effects must be thoroughly disinfected; professional women who lay out the dead must report at once in writing to the police authorities whether the disease was of the lungs or larynx; and that keepers of hotels, lodging houses, asylums or other public institutions shall report immediately the appearance of the disease in the establishment under their control. Non-compliance with these regulations is subject to a fine of $35.70 or six weeks' imprisonment.—Medical News.

Thirty or forty years ago what one may call the public supply of toothpicks was unknown. Every gentleman carried one in his pocket of gold or silver if he could afford it, one made of a goose quill if he could not afford the other, but it was not the practice to use it until after one had left the table.

Boston university has issued a circular inviting opinions on a proposal to hold an international conference for the purpose of adopting a "universal alphabet" by which to indicate the pronunciation of words in the leading European languages.

THE WORLD Elected Cleveland.

"It may be said without reservation that if the Democratic party in my first campaign had lacked the forceful and potent advocacy of Democratic principles at that time by the NEW YORK WORLD the result might have been reversed."—Grover Cleveland's Letter to The World, May 10, 1903.

BOTH SIDES OF THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of a reactionary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to control the combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the [illegible] climatization of the American flag in any country in which [illegible] pendence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these [illegible] pledges all its energies.

To encourage the prompt formation of clubs for the campaign a special commission of 20 per cent. will be allowed [illegible] or parties forming clubs of ten or more in any locality.

An active agent wanted in every election district. Write for particulars.

Sample copies supplied free on application.

Every subscription will count for the Presidential campaign [illegible] FOUR months from the [illegible] circulation clerk. Address [illegible] Los Angeles, San Diego.

FAVOR OILED ROADS.

The Use of Petroleum on Highways to Lay the Dust.

The use of oil on highways is steadily increasing in favor. In Moline, Ill., oil has been tried in place of water as a remedy for dust, and the results have been satisfactory. Bourbon, Ind., is considering the idea of sprinkling the streets with oil. The dust problem there is a very serious one during the summer months, for there are no gravel beds from which to construct roads.

The towns of California, which have been doing more in this line than those of any other state, are testifying to the great benefits derived from oil on the highways, by the continued use they are making of this means of laying the dust, says the New York Tribune. The board of supervisors of Sacramento are greatly in favor of oiled roads. Three hundred or 350 barrels of oil a mile are at times necessary for the permanent packing of a sand road, but in many cases only 150 barrels need be used.

The roads of California are in most cases of sand, and the great benefits derived from the consolidating of this sand with the oil is continually testified to by those in charge of the highways. Not only is the oil a better dust layer and a more permanent one, but it is also more economical than water, inasmuch as the roads need to be oiled but once or twice a year, while sprinkling with water must be done every little while.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE

Thedford's Black-Draught comes nearer regulating the entire system and keeping the body in health than any other medicine made. It is always ready in any emergency to treat ailments that are frequent in any family, such as indigestion, biliousness, colds, diarrhœa, and stomach aches.

Thedford's Black-Draught is the standard, never-failing remedy for stomach, bowel, liver and kidney troubles. It is a cure for the domestic ills which so frequently summon the doctor. It is as good for children as it is for grown persons. A dose of this medicine every day will soon cure the most obstinate case of dyspepsia or constipation, and when taken as directed brings quick relief.

DANVILLE, ILL., Dec. 28, 1902.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been our family doctor for five years and we want no other. When any of us feel badly we take a dose and are all right in twelve hours. We have spent lots of money for doctor bills, but get along just as well with Black-Draught. IRA H. BADER.

Ask your dealer for a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and if he does not keep it send 25c. to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed to you.

Clanton, Oct. 3, 1904

Editor Banner: Please excuse me for condescending to reply to "Young Republican" of last week's Union.

In the first place, my friend, you began by throwing some of your low slang at the Banner. Please go to the Banner office, take a look at the building and its contents, note the hurry and hustle, see the immense amount of job print going out all the time, then go around to the Union stand. There you will find the empty shelves and old counters of an old deserted store, occupied by a "carpet-bag Yankee," a pair of glasses, and a strong smelling pipe. That's all. The Union will be found at Birmingham, along with other little "ready made handme-down" sheets.

My friend, you speak of there not being any comparison of our ticket with the Republican ticket. We admit that we do not feel disposed to compare good men like ours with a lot of carpet bag, ticket trade boodlers.

Suppose you look at the head of your ticket, a Populist in the county, a Republican in the State, making Democratic speeches on the side. Absent from roll call and votes 88 times during the last Constitutional Convention (drawing his $4 per day of the people's money.) Defrauding poor, illiterate men of their hard earned dollars. How does that compare with Judge Deason? You say your men are tried and true. We admit that the people of Chilton county have tried some of them pretty thoroughly, for example, L. B. Pounds has been a coal burner or wood chooper, a sawmiller, a farmer, a post master, a photographer, a mesmerizer, a preacher, a teacher, a Populist and a Socialist and made a failure at everything. Don't you think that he would be a fine financier for the conty? You may have some good men but "ye Gods and little fishes" look at the company they are keeping. My friend, you say that Judge Deason will not get used to the name before he is out, six years and three months looks like a "purty good" while to me.

Say friend, are you the father of a fair white girl, or have you a sister? How would you like for her to walk by the side of a burly black negro in a Roosevelt procession, or sit side by side with them in school just as they do in Indiana and other Republican states where they have mixed schools. That is Republicanism in its glory.

Who do you mean when you say "our boys have their eyes open?" Do you mean your trade ticket gang? I guess you do. Well, my friend, the good people of Chilton county (including the Populists) have their eyes open too. They realize that you "run it" over them in the primary but you can't fool them all the time. In November the good people of both the Democratic and Populist parties, who believe in white supremacy are going to elect a ticket that will open your eyes wider than you bargain for. Success to our party and the Banner.

ANOTHER YOUNG DEMOCRAT.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual stiength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digets what you eat and cures. Advantages of the Planters' Warehouse.

To the Farmers of Chilton County:

I would say a few words to the Farmers concerning the Planters' Warehouse and its advantages to the farmers. First, every man who will think for a moment can readily see that we cannot have a cotton market without a cotton warehouse, and this proposition has been fully demonstrated since the opening of the Planter's Warehouse.

And there is one advantage in the Warehouse that only a few seem to consider, and that is in the advantage of selling in bulk, cotton buyers will come to Clanton and pay just as much for cotton as they will in Montgomery, and ship from here on a through bill of lading, thus saving to the farmers local freight which amounts to about one dollar and fifty cents on the bale from Clanton to Montgomery. Then, when the warehouse is known by the cotton buyers, we will have a cotton buyer on the ground all the time, hence the farmer can see that in thus establishing a cotton market at home he is helped. Some few seemed to think at the beginning that 25 cents on the bale for weighing, sampling and storing for 30 days was too much, but I am sure that when all the advantages of the Warehouse are taken into consideration that few will think that; the charges in Montgomery are fifty cents for the first month, and only half as much in Clanton, with just as good selling market.

I hope that the farmers will stand by the Warehouse and let us make the market all that it can be made, for this is a cotton section and the only monied crop for the farmers. I have not missed a bale of cotton since the opening of the Worehouse for which I sincerely thank the farmers, and with their patronage and support I will be able to help them, and in doing this I will take great pleasure. Again thanking the people for their patronage and support in the business that we are mutually interested in, I am

Death of Mrs. Rhoda Smith.

Mr. Editor: It gives me pain to announce the death of Mrs. Rhoda Smith, daughter of Mr. J. A. Culp. The death angel laid his icy hand on her, in obedience to the call of the Master, on Sept. 22. Consequently leaving a dark gloom over our entire neighborhood. Mrs. Smith was 29 years old, and had been a member of the Methodist church since childbood. She was a loving child and her presence always produced a bright light every where she went, driving away darkness and gloom. She had a bright smile and a pleasant word for all who were so fortunate as to fall into her company. God always takes the best to Himself.

While it is a great loss and sadness to me to give her up, I shall remember with fondness, the fact that she died in the Lord, and shall ever have a heart full of affection for those who so faithfully administered to her wants during her last days with us.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

Human vampires are said to be feeding upon the wealthy and socially prominent at Newport. Better than running a skin game for the undoing of the humble, anyhow.

The Chicago Record-Herald states that American soda fountains are being introduced in England. Gradually that country is advancing. The time may even come when they will be eating corn on the cob in England.

A poultry breeder in New York State is reported recently to have sold nineteen pure bred chickens, three cockerels and sixteen hens, for $3400 for export to Berlin, Germany. It is stated that this is the largest price ever received for nineteen chickens.

Something of the development of the automobile as a public interest, says the Massachusetts Ploughman, may be judged from the fact that seventy-five men, who collect and write the automobile news of New England, were entertained the other day by a Springfield automobile company.

Water is often thought to be almost absolutely incompressible, but Prof. Tait has now calculated that the ocean would rise 116 feet higher than at present if it were not compressed by its own weight. We are indebted to this compression, therefore, for 2,000,000 square miles of our dry land, remarks Green's Fruit Grower.

The opinion is gaining ground that alfalfa may yet prove an important hay and forage crop even in the North Atlantic States. More is being learned every year about the crop, and there are now some very good little fields of it growing in various parts of New York and the New England States. If it can be made a permanent success it should, together with corn and ensilage, work quite a revolution in the feeding of Eastern dairy herds.

If I were to pick out the happiest families in the rural districts I should pick out the families of fruit growers, says a writer in Green's Fruit Grower. Fruit growing is an interesting occupation over which many people can become enthusiastic. Enthusiasm does much to make life attractive and happy. If you can be enthusiastic over growing corn, wheat, oats, swine, sheep and cattle, all right; that is your vocation; but there are many who cannot be enthusiastic over such products who are entirely carried away with the attractions of fruit growing.

In buying fertilizers it does not make any particular difference wether Brown, Clark or Jones made the fertilizer, so far as its value for growing crops is concerned, but it does make a difference whether it contains $15 or $25 worth of actual plant food in a ton, declares the Massachusetts Ploughman. Most fertilizer factories derive their fertilizer elements from the same sources and if the fertilizer manufacturer places his name and the analysis on the bag, you can rest assured that the bag contains as much actual food as the analysis calls for; our State laws see to that end of the matter.

A farm boy cannot have proper interest in his father's business unless he is first told all about it and has a part to play in its management, states the Breeder's Gazette. Enjoying an intimate knowledge of its affairs and sharing the profits as well as losses of the farm and treated with the consideration and respect to which as a partner he is entitled, a farmer's son will never have the inclination or an excuse to abandon the land unless his health should require a change. It is an easy matter to keep the boys on the farm where there is not a constant though unconscious effort to drive them away.

Fifty per cent of New Jersey is wooded, but the day has long since passed when the forests of that State have yielded anything to commerce more important than railroad ties, telegraph poles and fence rails. It seems a pity that a few preserves should not be allowed to remain as the world's creator made them. The growth of scientific forestry gives hope that in the future whole sides of our mountains will not be ruthlessly denuded at one cutting as in the past. Economically, the outlook for our forests is promising. There ought, however, to be some special provision made for the preservation of a few choice tracts in their original virgin beauty, which once destroyed, can never be replaced.

NO COMMUNICATION

Can Now Be Had With Port Arthur. It is Completely Blockaded.

CRUISER BAYAN NOT ESCAPED

Japanese Have Tunnelled Into Port Arthur and Are Increasing Their War Strength.

Small outpost fights constitute the sum of the activities reported from the vicinity of Mukden. The Japanese blockade of Port Arthur is so effective that General Stoessel has been unable to inform the war office at St. Petersburg of the situation there.

The report of the arrival of the Russian armored cruiser Bayan, of the Port Arthur squadron at Han Chau bay, near Shanghai, has no official confirmation.

Artillery conflicts are adding to the horrors of the situation at Port Arthur. On September 22 and 23 the Russians made sorties against positions held by the Kanagawa regiment, and desperate fighting ensued. The Japanese force was practically annihilated, only one non-commissioned officer and eleven men remaining alive out of the 4,000 who went into the engagement.

The Japanese tunnel into Port Arthur was completed on September 24 and was immediately used. The result is unknown.

A dispatch from Mukden states merely that all is quiet there. There is intense interest in developments at Mukden, but the public and apparently the authorities also are utterly in the dark as to what is transpiring.

The Japanese are active west of Mukden. The Russian cavalry forces are strong in that direction; their horses are in splendid condition and the roads are good. The Japanese are also active eastward, and have been reinforced.

PARK COMMISSION.

Makes a Report—Monument to be Erected.

The war department made public the report of the Vicksburg National Military Park commission, consisting of William T. Rigby, Stephen D. Lee and James Everett. The report says that foundations have been constructed for the Thirty-ninth Ohio regimental and battery monuments, which will be placed in position within a few months.

The Iowa commission has signed a contract for the construction of its memorial in the park at a cost of $100,000. The Illinois commission has arranged for the construction of a state memorial to cost $200,000.

The commission has approved the request of the Pennsylvania commission to place its monument on a tract of land adjoining the General Grant reservation on the north, the land embracing 2.59 acres, to be purchased by the Pennsylvania commission and deeded to the United States. An estimate of $150,000 is made for the necessary expenses by the commission for the next fiscal year, and it is suggested that the appropriation be made immediately available to meet existing conditions.

Statesman Dead.

Sir William Carmon Harcourt, former chancellor of the exchequer and secretary of the home office, died Saturday. His death means to England the loss of another old school statesman. Sir William, in the time of Gladstone's power, was one of the best known figures in British political life, and was often mentioned as the probable successor of Gladstone.

Cotton Crop Percentage.

The monthly report of the chief of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture will show the average condition of cotton on September 24th to have been 75.8 as compared with 84.1 last month, 65.1 on September 25, 1902, and a ten year average of 66.8.

At Thomas.

Two of the furnaces at Thomas are in full blast, the coke ovens are also in operation and it is understood that preparations will soon be commenced to put No. 1 in condition to have the torch applied. No. 2 furnace has been in operation for several weeks. Two weeks ago preparations were begun to start up No. 3, and now that plant is turning out daily output.

All five of the batteries of coke ovens, comprising over one hundred, are in operation. It is understood that shortly a force of workmen will be put on No. 1 to do considerable repairing and improving on that plant.

Lost an Arm.

David Trotter, a cotton gin machinist, got his hand caught in a gin in the Butler-Kyser plant, Huntsville, and the whole arm was instantly pulled into the machine and torn to shreds. The machine held such a hold upon the mutilated arm that the man had to be pulled out by main force or he would have bled to death. The arm was amputated at the elbow.

SHOT BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Tragedy at Greenville—Family Trouble the Cause.

Radford Buckhaults, one of the best known citizens of Butler county, and a wealthy farmer, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon by Dan T. Stallings. The tragedy occurred just about dusk in front of the Elk hotel in Greenville. Family trouble is thought to have been the cause.

Statements as to how the quarrel began differ. It is certain, however, that there had been previous bad blood between the two. Buckhaults is said to have drawn a pistol and aimed it at Stallings, the cartridge snapping. Mr. Stallings then drew his gun and fired, the bullets striking their mark.

Buckhaults returned the fire, sending one shot through the abdomen of Mr. Stallings. He fell dead almost immediately after firing.

The killing occurred in the most public portion of the town and created intense excitement.

Both the parties are among the best known citizens of the county. Buckhaults had married Stallings' sister about a year ago. He owned a large plantation near here and his estate is valued at about $30,000. Mr. Stallings was also well to do. He is also married. His condition is critical.

Stallings was hit with only one ball. It probably passed through both lungs and is considered very serious.

Both are comparatively young men, and physically powerful athletes. No better specimens of physical manhood are in the county. Both were married.

Each of them were farmers and doing excellently well. Buckhaults had just sold some cotton and had about $1,500 in his pocket when killed.

HUNTSVILLE EXPENSES.

Small Fortune Spent in the Lynching Matter.

The term of circuit court just ended at Huntsville was the most historic and at the same time the longest ever held in Madison county. The court had three grand juries, the one that sat for three wektas shrdlu shrdluhm sat for three weeks at the beginning of the term, the one that sat for two days and indicted Horace Maples and Dennis Smith for murder and the famous grand jury that returned twenty-six indictments against alleged lynchers. Three regular murder cases were tried and one murderer, a negro, was sentenced to hang. This was the first sentence of death passed in Madison county in nineteen years. Three alleged lynchers were tried on the charge of murder and three on charges of arson in the first degree.

The first special grand jury cost $68, the trials of alleged lynchers cost $2,200, the jail damaged to the extent of $500 by the riot, so the county is out $3,056. The state spent $3,000 in round figures in rushing a company of militia here in the hope of preventing the lynching and later in maintaining a military guard around the jail for ten days. This does not include the cost of the military court of inquiry, so it may be safely estimated that the state and county will have to spend at least $6,500 before all expenses have been paid.

LITTLE GIRL CAUSES WRECK.

Detectives arrested Gussie Loving, 10-year-old white girl, at her home near Dunlow, W. Va., charged with wrecking a Norfolk and Western passenger train. The train was wrecked by striking a bolt nut placed on the rail.

The engine, baggage and mail car were derailed and went down an embankment. The engineer, fireman and mail clerk were all more or less injured, but none of the passengers were hurt. When arrested the girl admitted her guilt, and said she put the nut on the track just for fun to see the train mash it."

After Oil.

The people of Clarke county, Mississippi, are rejoicing over the fact that efforts are going to be made in the neighborhood of Enterprise for the purpose of discovering oil. Several experts have made visits there and after making investigations have expressed the belief that oil can be obtained.

Guarding the Connecticut.

To guard against any further attempt from the outside to injure the battleship Connecticut, which has just been launched at the navy yards in Brooklyn, after attempts to damage her had been frustrated, two marines with rifles patrol the land side of the boat, while on the boat itself are stationed guards with instructions to shoot if necessary. Electric lights at night are on the outside and the interior of the boat and there is no relaxation of vigilance.

A navy tug loaded with marines, with instructions to shoot straight at any unauthorized person attempting to approach the new battleship, patrols the river.

Southern Progress.

The record of new industries in the southern states for the third quarter of the present year, ending September 30th, as compiled by the Tradesman, shows a grand total of 1,368. The greatest number of new plants is in the woodworking line, there being 193 of these. Next in importance are compresses and gins, of which there are 122 for the quarter. New mines and quarries to the number of 102 are third in importance.

SENATOR HOAR DEAD.

The End Came Early Friday Morning. Funeral Will Be Held Monday.

UNCONSCIOUS SINCE TUESDAY.

Served in the Senate Many Years. Known as "America's Grand Old Man."

George Frisbie Hoar, senior United States senator from Massachusetts, died at his home in Worcester, Mass., at 1:25 o'clock Friday morning. The end followed a period of unconsciousness that had continued since early Tuesday, and came so gently that only the attending physicians were aware of the exact moment of dissolution.

The physicians despaired of the senator's life six weeks ago, but such was the vitality exhibited by their distinguished patient that even they were surprised and the public was at times led to cherish a faith in an ultimate recovery.

There were present at the bedside when death came the senator's son, General Rockwood Hoar; his daughter, Mary, and Dr. Warren R. Gilman, who for weeks had been in almost constant attendance upon the senator.

The senator had been in ill health since last winter, and even when attending the sessions of the senate he was obliged to take extreme care lest his exertions should overcome him. At that time he was troubled with lumbago, and the death of his wife in Washington proved such a blow that he never recovered entirely from its effects.

Toward the close of the last session of congress he was frequently absent from the sessions, and remained at his hotel.

He came to his home soon after the adjournment and apparently recovered. Late in May he attended the bi-centennial celebration in the town of Sulton and made a speech of more than a half hour's duration in the open air at the dedication of a memorial tablet to General Rufus Putnam on the site of Putnam's birthplace. Mr. Hoar made a historical address, eulogizing General Putnam as one of the country's greatest men.

A few weeks later Senator Hoar made an informal address at the English high school on the occasion of the presentation to the city of some copies of Stuart's portrait of Washington by the Daughters of the Revolution.

This was Senator Hoar's last appearance in public life.

Previous to August 17th the reports of his illness were treated lightly by his family and immediate friends. On one occasion, when a report was circulated that his condition was serious he dictated a semi-humorous account of his illness.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the Church of Unity, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States senate, will be asked to officiate.

Mayo Reinstated.

Ex-Sheriff W. D. Mayo has been reappointed sheriff of Clay county by Acting Governor Cunningham. Mr. Mayo failed to file his new bond for the extended term as required by law. His office was therefore declared vacant. It developed that he had made out his new bond in the required time, but on account of erroneous advice by an attorney he failed to file it in time.

To Establish Creameries.

An effort is being made to establish dairies and creameries along the line of the Gulf and Ship Island railway in Mississippi, and Immigration Agent Bousiog of that railway is in correspondence with a large number of northern people to induce them to locate in the country between Hattiesburg and Gulfport.

School Tax Apportionment.

"Under the educational laws of the state how should the funds raised by a special school tax be apportioned?"

This was the question which the department of education submitted to Attorney General Massey Wilson.

The attorney general holds that the funds from a special school tax shall be apportioned as the general school funds. After a county has voted for a special school tax the tax collector collects it and he turns it over to the county superintendent. It shall then be divided among the school children in the way money from the general school fund is apportioned.

Farmer Stabs Farmer.

On the streets of Maysville, Ala., Speck Edwards stabbed and killed Henry Motes. Both were well known farmers in that section. Motes' jugular vein was severed and he died in a few minutes.

Lost His Home.

The residence of J. V. Fovre at Oxford was destroyed by fire with the contents. The fire originated from a defective flue. The loss is $2,600, about half covered with insurance.

McCONNELL RESIGNS

Command of the Third Regiment of Alabama National Guard.

Lieutenant Colonel F. P. McConnell, commanding the Third infantry Alabama National Guard, has resigned. His resignation was received in the adjutant general's office at noon Tuesday and at 1 o'clock Adjutant General Brandon announced that it had been accepted by the governor, and that an election had been ordered for October 19th for the selection of a new commander.

The resignation, which was sent by Colonel McConnell from his home at Talladega, gave no reason for his retiring from the command of the Third. It is supposed that Colonel McConnell feels that his efforts to restore harmony have been unavailing. It is possible that the report of the court of inquiry on the Huntsville company which declared that company worthless and inefficient, had a bearing upon his action.

It will be recalled that Colonel McConnell at the close of the brigade camp at Birmingham recommended that this company and two others in the regiment be mustered out. This recommendation was not complied with.

OUR BIGGEST FIGHTER.

Battleship Connecticut Successfully Launched Thursday.

Although successfully launched Thursday the battleship Connecticut did not have the bottle of wine broken by Miss Alice B. Wells, who had been selected as sponsor for the ship. She threw the bottle at the bow, but it failed to break. Rear Admiral Rodgers attempted to grasp the bottle as it rebounded, but failed, and the ship was moving off into the water when a workman dashed the glass receptacle of the champagne against the side of the ship, shattering it to pieces, to the relief of the superstitious.

The Connecticut is a sister ship of the Louisiana, and both vessels were authorized by an act of congress in 1902. The Connecticut was built in a government yard and under government supervision, while the Louisiana was built by a private ship building firm at Newport News, Va.

The Connecticut when finished will be the finest and most powerful boat in the American navy and will rank with the most powerful battleships of the navies of other nations.

Document Issued.

The department of archives and history has issued as a bulletin a "History of the First Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, C. S. A." It was written by Edward Young McMorris, Ph. D., "a private of the Perota Guards, Company C, 1861, Company G 1862-1865; and an original member of both the company and regiment." It is dedicated "To the Soldiers, the Sailors and the Women of the Confederate States of America, and to Their Descendants Forever."

In a prefatory note by the director of the department of archives and history Dr. Thomas M. Owen, it is announced that the history was prepared at the request of the department, which is seeking to have provided a series of narrative histories or historical sketches of Alabama commands in the war.

Cigar Stamps Smaller.

The secretary of the treasury has issued a statement in the imported cigar stamped matter, in which he permits the order made by Assistant Armstrong to stand, so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. He reverses the order wherein it required the stamp to be of the same color as the international revenue stamp, and it will be placed on the bottom of the box instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears opposite the internal revenue stamp.

Large Hospital.

The Mississippi sanitarium, which has been conducted in a private residence for several months past, since the burning of the former building has purchased a plot of land in the most elevated portion of Hattiesburg and will construct one of the largest and most modern hospitals in the state.

A Relic.

The old federal transport "Burnside," which was sunk during the operations about Chattanooga in the early sixties, was raised from the bed of the Tennessee river by recent high waters and landed on a shoal, where parts of the hulk and boilers are visible.

The boat was sunk while the men were attempting to transfer to it from a larger boat heavier engines than the Burnside was built to carry. She was never seen again until the high waters disturbed her. River men are getting the iron work out.

Cotton Burned.

Two cars of cotton were burned while standing on the Louisville and Nashville track at Selma. The cars had not been able to get to the warehouse or compresses owing to the congestion.

New Industries in Mississippi.

Bassfield—Shingle mill; cotton gin.

Lexington—$20,000 gin and compress company.

Poplarville—$15,000 water works.

Purvis—$10,000 box factory.

No matter how many sun spots there might be, with an anticyclone that has hung over the British islands for the last three weeks we should have calm, dry, and warm weather any time in summer. In fact these conditions gave a remarkable spell of high temperature in October. The question to be solved, therefore, what causes high and low atmospheric pressure, and have sun spots anything to do with it? There exists simply no evidence. Mere coincidences are of the slightest value. In sub-tropical climates, like Australia, the case may be very different, where the solar spot theory is highly probable.

SERMON FOR SUNDAY

PEACHING DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "SUPPORTING CERTAINTIES."

Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull's Talk on Words Addressed to Nicodemus—The Power That the Veritties of Our Christian Faith Cluster About.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Sunday morning the Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, preached on the subject, "Supporting Certainties." The text was John iii. 11: "We speak that we do know." He said in the course of his discourse:

The words were addressed to Nicodemus. He was an earnest honest, yet timid man, after truth. He had come to Jesus under cover of the darkness. As an influential member of the Jewish Sanhedrim, he did not care to be seen talking with the Nazarene. Yet he is convinced in his heart that Jesus is a prophet and teacher, a prophet sent of God. This he confesses to the Christ. Then before which the text is taken. The interview is evidently only an outline, but the words are marvelously suggestive. Nicodemus was a good man. He was a religious man. He conformed to all the religious rites and ceremonies of his nation. His moral department was blameless and his standing in the community was honorable. But he was not a spiritual man. He did not know what we would call to-day a converted man. To him Jesus thrice used the solemn double "Amen, amen, I say unto thee."

Nicodemus could not understand what was meant by being born again. He was willing to see what that new spiritual life of which he himself was lacking. Then Jesus used the third double amen of Jesus and the words of the text. "Verily, verily I say unto thee, we speak that we do know and testify that we have seen." In this utterance Jesus uses the word "we" not simply as the plural of majesty, but in associating Himself with all His disciples so that it is perfectly proper and right for us to-day to use His words and say, "We speak that we do know." Christians are competent witnesses to the certainties of religion. While in a sense it is true and that "the Bible and the Bible only is the religion of Protestants," yet in a fuller sense our religion is a life. It is Christianity. His life in Himself and His disciples is the spirit and the power of true religion. We have something more than opinion; something better than theory. We have as one of the eternal verities that Jesus Christ as the manifestation of God. It has been well said that "Christ deceived mankind by conscious lies or He was Himself deluded and deceived, or He was divine. There is no getting out of this trilemma. It is inexorable." He stood before the men who knew Him best and said: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," and again declared that "I and My Father are one." This is a tremendous assumption and awful blasphemy if it was not the truth. That is the truth the course of time and the history of Christianity both abundantly declare.

The verities of our precious faith cluster about a person. This person was God, manifest in the flesh, and for all the centuries since Bethlehem the noblest, wisest and best have bowed before Him, reverently exclaiming, "My Lord and my God!" We inquire not from what point we view Him. Jesus stands before the world as more than man. It is said of a safe and substantial arch that it must meet two requirements. Its feet must not slip and its middle must not bend. Jesus Christ is the arch of humanity and divinity. The faith of the centuries of Christianity rest upon this arch and they rest there safely, for Christ is God; there never was a time when He was not;

"Sinless, eternal, merciful, the word,
The Sire begot;
Toward our thoughts through ages stretch, onward through realms of bliss,
For there are two eternities and both alike are His."

Another of the certainties is that the Christian life is a divine life. This was a new thought to Nicodemus. It is a new thought to many to-day. It was not a matter of speech, but a plain statement of fact when Jesus insisted that it was necessary to be born again in order to enter heaven. Those of Nicodemus' time would have said it was necessary to reform, to live honestly, to behave kindly, to live uprightly. So many say to-day, and if by all this they mean uprightness in its perfect form they are right. But no man has ever been or who has been thus upright. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." The history of mankind shows that man must not seek holiness in order to God. He must find God in order to holiness. Christ must come into the soul of man with His divine power, and then, and not till then, are we in harmony with the divine holiness.

When that life comes in then there is what is denominated the "expulsive power of a new affection," better still, the expulsive power of a new life. Nothing less than life can account for the change in men. Nothing else can exert the power which the centuries of Christianity have manifested. In this sense we affirm confidently that every effect must have an adequate cause. This is true in the realm of spirituality. It is true that sinners are changed into preachers, if not once thoroughly depraved have been elevated into recognized saints, if the dregs of society have been transformed into unblemished martyrs for the truth, if common clay can ever have been fashioned into those of whom the world was not worthy—we ask for adequate cause of what power is adequate for such marvelous alterations. We know that changes. It is folly to say we do not know the power.

Every each day our city is washed by a mighty ebb and flow of tides that sweep in and out, despite all the winds that blow. The child recognizes the fact, but he is puzzled to think that the pale, silent moon, and the clouds, is the cause of the ceaseless floods. The child is puzzled, but when your philosopher explains to you that the moon does this by attraction of gravitation, and you ask him to explain this attraction of gravitation, he too, is puzzled. Yet he knows the moon knows it so well he can measure it to use it. So, too, with Christianity, and power. We can recognize its force and feel it, but its secret is the secret of life, all force, in its origin it is a mystery. Emerson says

"We have but faith we cannot know.
For knowledge is of things we see."

This is not quite true. Knowledge is of things we feel as well as of things we see. Many things we know that we cannot see. We never saw a pain, but we should call a fool who should say we never felt or knew a pain. We know the power of the Christ life in the believer, because we have felt, and sometimes when this Christ life has had its perfect freedom we are able to say with Paul: "I can do all things in Christ who strengtheneth me."

This certainty concerning the power of the Christ life can be attained by all who fulfill the conditions. There must be surrender to Christ and a trust in Christ. We cannot have the sunbeam without the sun. You cannot have the power of Christ without the Christ Himself. The apostle says, "Christ is in you the hope of glory." It is certainly true that Christ must be in us the power for glory. Thus the ground of our certitude is Christ Himself. We know Him. We know His power. It has been exercised upon us and in us. Like the once blind beggar, we exclaim: "One thing I know, whereas, I was blind, now I see." There was no note of uncertainty in this; there should be no note of uncertainty about our utterances concerning Christ or concerning our own position.

But in this age of doubt many Christians are so frightened out of sanity that they are afraid to say even of the deepest experiences of the soul, "I know." Not so Paul, facing death: "I know whom I have believed." Not so John, the beloved disciple, declaring, "We know that we have passed from death unto life. We know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him." It is not modesty, but lack of faith which prompts Christians to say, "I hope I am a Christian." When we have life we know it and should not be ashamed to say so. If we have not the life then by all the importance of eternity make sure of obtaining it. It is possible to have a living experience of Jesus Christ. To have such an experience that we may say "I live, yet not I, but Christ, liveth in me." Belief may be glorified into this experience if we yield ourselves completely and unreservedly to Him who is able to "keep that which we have committed to Him against that day."

The effect of this certainty is in every way most precious and helpful. Consider for a moment what this certitude means in the presence of the awful calamity which last summer sent a thrill of horror around the globe. True, indeed, is the Scripture declaration "if in this life only we have hope in Christ we are of all men most miserable." If death were the end of all then we might well believe that cruelty sat in the throne of the universe. But, staggered as all are by the unutterable sorrow, yet God rules and overrules, and though we cannot see it now, yet in eternity we shall know that the carelessness—or worse—of man has been overruled to eternal good. Because we know that God is love, and because we know Jesus still lives and is the same to-day as when He shed tears at the grave of Lazarus, we dare to go into bereaved homes and speak of the tension at the right hand of the throne of God. I went over to the pier where lay hundreds of the unclaimed bodies, and I would not have dared to do it, but that I might comfort some heartbroken one with the assurance that God cared. God loved and in eternity God would make this unspeakable sadness a source of perpetual joy. Can I explain it? No! But I could not preach if I could not hold up my head as a Christian if I did not believe, yea, if I did not know, that somehow, some time, the curse shall be changed into a blessing. That is the privilege of Christians to say even now: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

Why is it that all do not know these things? Partly because of their condition. There are to-day those who "having eyes see not, and having ears hear not." The influence of training is not easily overcome. Trained only to consider as real that which can be analyzed by scientific implements, men refuse to admit the reality of things which they cannot weigh in their scales or measure by their rules. They are honest. So is the blind man honest who says color does not exist. So is the deaf man honest whose soul cannot be moved by the concord of sweet sounds. It is not a question of honesty, but of fact. God is, even though the unbelieving eye may sweep the heavens with the telescope and assert I cannot see God. But trusting hearts will say with ever increasing certitude, "I know whom I believe." This gives welcome comfort in such a time as this. It is the only thing which can give comfort. So, brethren, let us place ourselves in the hands of a loving God. Let us lean on the divine power. Let us trust the divine wisdom. Let us assure ourselves of the divine home in those mansions which divide love has prepared for us, and let us be confident that "Trial works for ends

Too high for some to trace—
That oft in dark attire He sends
Some embassy of grace."

Love as a Cosmetic.

Love is the greatest beautifier. The reason is easy to see. Love itself is beautiful, and if we give unselfish love a lodgment with us it is constantly exerting a molding influence upon us.

Love always appears at its best. When it goes adorning it always chooses the most becoming attire and the most captivating adornment. So love, when it gets possession of a human body, proceeds to mold the face of that body into the most attractive form, for love always seeks to clothe itself in the most attractive garb.

That is the explanation of the transformation that takes place in a woman who is a mother. She may be plain otherwise, but when she bends over her babe in an ecstasy of mother-love she becomes beautiful. And in proportion as we give place to unselfish love do we become attractive.

There is no masseur like love to work miracles in a homely face, says the Christian Endeavor World. There is no facial specialist who can begin to do as much to make a plain young man or woman attractive, to overcome deformity or hide blemishes as the magician love can do.

To hate is to become hateful. To love as Christ loved is to become lovely. It is not a cheap recipe, for such love costs in proportion to its depth and intensity. But any one that is willing to pay the price may be beautiful.

Boastful Building.

"Blow, O winds! Rise, O ocean! Break forth, ye elements and try my work!" Such was the boastful inscription put upon the first Eddystone lighthouse built by the eccentric Winstanley. His challenge was accepted, and one fearful night the sea swallowed up the tower and its builder.

The next one met a similar fate, the structure and its builder, Rudyard, again perishing together.

The third was erected by Smeaton, who built it all of stone, making it a part of its rock foundation, so that the lighthouse penetrates it as a tree penetrates the soil. Upon this lighthouse no vaunting inscriptions were placed, but on the lowest course were chiseled the words: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it," and on the keystone, above the lantern, is the exclamation, "Laus Deo!" That structure still stands, a never-failing beacon light to storm-tossed mariners.

He who would build for eternity must not set about his task in any vainglorious, over-confident spirit. He must be careful as to his foundation, building firmly and deeply upon the rock, Christ Jesus, and relying in trust and humility upon Him who alone can enable one to reach a perfect result.—Wellspring.

Grace to Bear.

When Christ does not take away the thing that is hard for us to bear, He gives us grace to keep it and to get on even better than if He had relieved us of it. To Paul He said: "My grace is sufficient for thee." That is, Paul would receive grace from Christ, Christ's own strength in his life, enough of it to meet all his need, so that the suffering would be overbalanced by the grace, and the hindrance overcome by the divine strength imparted. This promise is for every Christian who has a thorn of any kind which Christ does not remove. While we must keep it we shall be helped to bear it, and it will be as though we did not have it.—Forward.

Idols Transformed.

A missionary in Travancore, India, saw, one morning, a native coming to his house with a heavy burden. On reaching it he laid on the ground a sack. Unfastening it he emptied it of its contents—a number of idols. "What have you brought these here for?" asked the missionary; "I don't want them." "You have taught us that we do not want them, sir," said the native, "but we think they might be put to some good use. Could they not be melted down and formed into a bell to call us to church?" The hint was taken; they were sent to a bell founder and made into a bell, which now summons the native converts to praise and prayer.

MARSHAL OYAMA

The Japanese General a Fighter by Fate and Not From Choice.

FAR from being a hard-eyed, shaggy browed general, as one might imagine, the hero of so many difficult campaigns is the kindest, most amiable old gentleman it would be possible to meet. He himself declares that he has no liking whatever for war, and that it is irony of fate, not personal inclination, which has made him the soldier he is today. Like most of Japan's great men, he is not rich in this world's goods. He is far too liberal to amass a fortune.

FIELD-MARSHAL MARQUIS OYAMA AND HIS FAMILY.

Field-Marshal Oyama is a hero of many wars. He is a native of the Satsuma Province, and was Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial army in the war of restoration. He has been Minister of War a number of times, and in the war with China he acted as Commander-in-Chief of the Second Army Corps. He landed at Takushan and fought his way to Port Arthur in twenty days. He captured Port Arthur by assault the night after his arrival before its walls. He is one of the Japanese Elder Statesmen, and, with Marquis Yamagata, dyserves the credit for the present development and efficiency of the Japanese Army. At the outbreak of the war with Russia, he was appointed Chief of Staff; and, now that the various army corps have taken their allotted positions in Manchuria, he is ordered to the front to take command of all the Mikado's forces in the field. This photograph was taken on the eve of his departure from Tokio. On his right stand his wife, the Marchioness Oyama, who is a graduate of Vassar College. She was one of the first Japanese girls to come to America to be educated. On his left stands his daughter, Lady Hisako Oyama, and in the background are his two sons.

It is told of him that during the Chinese War he bought provisions for his men and horses out of his own pocket rather than pillage the wretched homes along the route.

In fact, charity got to be such a mania with him that his wife, an extremely economical woman, had to act as treasurer and dole him out a small allowance daily.

During his residence in Paris he was often greatly upset by the way dumb animals, particularly horses, were abused. Once he got into a dreadful muss with a cabby, and both had to be marched off to the police station to explain their conduct. Though the marshal could speak but little French he stormed around the terrified commissaire until justice was given him and he saw the jehu condemned to a $20 fine. Japanese merchants in Paris, as well as cabmen, remember this active military attache, though in quite a different way.

One day, sitting in front of a cafe, he noticed a Japanese offering some beautiful fans at exceedingly low prices, lower even than the same article could be purchased in Japan. Beckoning the man to him, he asked him how he could do it. The other told him how, owing to long illness, business had dropped off. He was unable to pay the rent, which would come due on the following day, so he and his wife, rather than lose all their stock, were selling what articles they could smuggle out on the streets of Paris. The attache had several important engagements on hand that afternoon, but he postponed all and hurried off with the merchant. After thoroughly examining into matters, he paid the rent, suggested the man's moving into a better quarter of the capital, and during the rest of his stay there did what he could to work up a clientele among his friends. From that day the merchant's affairs flourished, and two years ago he died worth a nice round sum. By his will he left $20,000 of it to his benefactor.—Chicago Tribune.

RELIC OF JOUSTING DAYS.

Quintain Still Stands Before a House in Kent.

A curious clause, taking one right back to the Middle Ages, appears in the title deeds of a house in the village of Offham, in Kent, England. This is that the owner of the house must keep in good repair the village quintain, which still swings on its stout oaken post before the house.

One end of the swinging crossbar of this quintain (said to be the only surviving specimen in England) is shaped like a square target pierced with a number of holes into which the point of the player's lance would enter.

AN OLD-TIME QUINTAIN.

When struck it would swing around, and unless the player were nimble the sandbag hung on the other end of the crossbar would swing around and unseat him.

The Lawyer and the Potatoes.

Last summer at a dinner at Delmonico's Senator Depew told the following very laughable story: A certain lawyer who was noted for his success on cross-examination found his match several years ago in a long-suffering witness. He had piled the witness with question after question, and finally asked him how long he had work at his business of painting. The witness said, "I've worked at it off and on, but for the last twenty years I've worked at it steady."

"How long off and on have you worked at it?"

"Fifty-five years," was the reply.

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer.

"Fifty-five," answered the witness.

"Then you have been a painter from birth?" asked the lawyer.

"No, sir," responded the witness.

"Then why did you say you have worked at your trade for fifty-five years?" inquired the lawyer.

"I have worked at it off and on fifty-five years," said the witness. "Twenty-five years on, and thirty years off."

The Same Mosquitoes.

Charles Oliver Iselin, the well-known New York yachtsman, last summer at the yacht club very neatly called the turn on an overly fresh young man. "Talking about mosquitoes," said the young man, "I shall never forget the swarm of them that overtook my yacht just off Newport last summer. I tell you gentlemen, those mosquitoes were as big as sparrows. Why, ten minutes after they came down on us they had carried away every inch of sail on the yacht."

"Phew!" exclaimed the yachtsmen.

"It's true," cried the young man; "it's true."

"Yes," interrupted Mr. Iselin; "I can vouch for every word of it."

"How can you do that—you weren't there!" exclaimed the young man.

"I know I wasn't, but I ran into the same bunch of mosquitoes the next day at Bar Harbor," said Mr. Iselin.

"How do you know that they were the same mosquitoes?" inquired the young man.

"Because," said Mr. Iselin, "they all wore canvas overalls."

Surakarta is the paradise of umbrellas. They are carried proudly over the heads of every official and every nobleman, but invariably are shut at the approach of a person of higher rank, and inside the kraton no umbrella may be carried open, except that of the employer himself.

The records of the criminal department in Japan show a striking contrast to those of American and European cities. Last year out of a total of 148,239 convictions in the criminal courts only 3,323 were for what are called "crimes"—that is, penal offenses.

Gold mining is not a conspicuous industry in Great Britain, but a mine in North Wales has lately filed a report showing a total of $165,000 extracted in six months, with a net profit of over $120,000. But there are not many mines of even this moderate richness.

E. C. Cummings, near Norristown, Pa., claims to have the largest number of birds of any pigeon grower in the world. He now has 10,000. The entire plant covers sixteen acres and represents an investment of $25,000. Five hundred squabs are sold weekly.

During the fiscal year closed June 30 last the revenue from 6,707,471,863 cigars was $20,122,415.59, which is a falling off in revenue of $236,756.01 and a decline in cigar production for the last year of 78,918,670 cigars.

Fourteen thousand one hundred dollars is an item the United States pays every year to support its foreign prisons. These are four in number and located at Bangkok, Shanghai, Yokohama and Turkey.

Captain Hamlet states that the destruction wrought by the party of Japanese poachers on Lisianasky island to bird life was something appalling. He estimates that they killed at least 300,000 birds.

THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

Mrs. S. W. Marlow, of Colorado Springs, Began to Fear the Worst — Hunyadi Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marlow, of 428 St. Vrain street, Colorado Springs, Col., President of the Glen Eyrie Club, writes:

"I suffered for three years with severe back ache. The doctors told me my kidneys were affected and prescribed medicines for me, but I found that it was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. I have now enjoyed the best of health for more than four months, and words can but poorly express my gratitude."

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful "Cascarets" for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to "Cascarets" for their wonderful superiority. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies, but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

In another column will be found a notice of proposed changes of school district lines. The school law requires that this notice be printed in a newspaper published in the county. Our County Board of Education, all Democrats except chairman J. W. Moore, with great conscientiousness decided to get bids from THE BANNER and the Union, printed at Birmingham. Why they did not include the Clanton Courier and the Clanton Druggist has not transpired. THE BANNER declined to enter into competition with the Union printed at Birmingham and offered to publish the notice without charge. The Union made a bid of $1.50. Had this notice been authorized by the Board of County Commissioners, judging from what they have done in the past, they would have given it to the Union without bids from anyone and paid out of the county funds $16.80 for it, that being the legal rate. Evidently it pays the people to have Democratic officials.

Some of the districts had paid the Secretary 25 cents each on account of the publication, and to those who are entitled to it, we will refund the amount due them if they will call at THE BANNER office.

Surgery by Hand and Foot.

Surgery in the sixteenth century was not the refined science of the present day. Anaesthetics and antiseptics were unknown, and the battlefield operating theater was often just where the patient fell.

In one of the many battles in which the fighting Duke of Guise engaged he was knocked down by one of the enemy's arrows, which pierced his head between the nose and one of the eyes.

Pare, the famous French surgeon, was on the field, and he immediately put his foot on the duke's face and drew the arrow out by sheer brute force.

The operation inconvenienced the duke somewhat, but he survived it and lived to be assassinated.

Testimony of a Minister.

Rev. Jno. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark. writes: "For 12 years I suffered from Yellow Jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and I tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years." If you want a reliable medicine for Liver and Kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug co.

CONFIRMATION.

The following letters are self-explanatory; they are so plain that "He who runs may read."

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 3, 1904
Mr. Frank Crichton, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir—Please allow me to congratulate you on your article in last week's Banner. I, together with the rest of Thorsby's citizens, take off our hats to you and give three long and loud cheers for the accurate manner in which you speak of W. C. Edler.

Yes, he left Thorsby not of his own will, and I feel certain the people of Clanton would rejoice at his departure any time, any community is better without him.

Again thanking you, I beg to subscribe myself,

Yours in sympathy,
D. N. RIGGINS.

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 3, 1904
Frank Crichton, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir: Your explanation regarding Mr. Edler, in your last issue of the Banner, is sustained by every citizen of Thorsby as far as I know, and at the time that this is written there are several citizens of said town that wish for that gentleman, or whatever you did call him in said last issue, to try this town again. They feel that your good town of Clanton has a dead hog to digest, and are sure that the cheering will start at the November election.

This gentleman (?) has from the very start (as he calls it) used some GOOD man as pilot, and I am satisfied that if this is published he will not again use his methods. Nevertheless, it is time for him to explain himself, first as a man, and then as a politician. I beg to state that this is the verdict of a set of people just as good as that man was brought up with, New York included.

By request, Yours truly,
J. F. PETERSON.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER.

misfits in court suits as well as in clothing, and a misfit suit of clothes would not help you to untangle a misfit suit in court. Come again some other day and ask for a Democratic suit, and we will try and fit you."

The last customer to come in was Our Mose, who was anxious to find a Republican postmaster's suit. In his younger days Mose had worn a good Democratic suit, but he could never fill it out to make a good fit; then he donned a Populist sheriff's suit, but it was such a misfit he soon took it off; now he wants to try a Republican postmaster's suit, and the misfit man says: "S'elp me, Moses, of all der misfits in der world dat would be der worsest. Close de store."

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives instant relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflamation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure, life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetantus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of Lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thursday.

Brand in his "Popular Antiquities" gives the following extract from the Jewish ordain of the custom of making fools on the 1st of April:

"This is said to have begun from the mistake of Noah sending the dove out of the ark before the water had abated on the first day of the month which among the Hebrews answers to our 1st of April, and to perpetuate the memory of his deliverance it was thought proper, however forgot so remarkable a circumstance, to punish them by sending them upon some secretless errand similar to that ineffectual message upon which the bird was sent by the patriarch.—Notes and Queries.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

We, the undersigned neighbors of T. J. Mims, do not wish to involve ourselves in any political wrangle, but we feel it our duty to uphold the good name of an honest man, especially when he is a near neighbor and is so well known to us.

Mr. T. J. Mims, who put an article in the Banner some weeks go and about whom Mr. L. H. Reynolds said so many evil things is an honest, truthful, Christian gentleman. He is an obliging neighbor, honest in his dealings, and truthful in his assertions. His greatest shortcoming is the lack of education, which sometimes has caused him to be wronged by men who were better informed but less honest in their dealings than Mr. Mims. (Signed) R. W. Death of Miss Sallie Florence Foshee

"Brief life is here our portion,
Brief sorrow, short-lived care,
The life that knows no ending,
The tearless life is here."

The above beautiful lines are illustrative of the fair young life that came to a close last Wednesday after a few days sickness with fever. Brief was the earthly sojourn of Miss Sallie Foshee, the 16 year old daughter of Mr. J. Wash Foshee, a beautiful girl just dawning into womanhood. Protected by the care of loving parents, brief was her sorrow, short lived her care, and at the choicest time of a maiden's life she has gone to the life that knows no ending, where tears and sorrow are unknown. We sorrow at the loss of earth's fairest flowers, but rejoice in the thought they are transplanted in heaven.

The funeral took place Thursday evening at the Clanton cemetery, Rev. A. C. Swindall conducting the services at the Baptist church. The young lady has a large number of friends who sorrowfully escorted her to her last resting place. To the bereaved family we can only say, "Thy will be done."

A Deathbed Pun.

Puck relates a story concerning the late Senator Alexander T. Goodwin of Utica, who left behind him the reputation of never having been too tired nor too ill to give or take a joke. During his last illness a relative, knowing the senator's extreme fondness for brandied peaches, sent to his sickroom a small jar of that most delicious preserve. A few days later the relative called and was admitted to the sickroom. Quickly turning on his pillow and without giving his caller time to extend the usual formalities, the sick man exclaimed, "My dear Louise, how can I ever thank you for those delicious brandied peaches?" "I thought you would appreciate them, Alexander," returned the caller modestly. "Ah, yes; ah, yes!" he assented, with a smile which broadened and finally broke into a chuckle that seemed almost noisy in the hush of the sickroom, as he added, "And how much more I appreciated the spirit in which they were sent!"

They Pretend to Marry.

In Russia every woman marries or pretends to marry, be she princess or peasant. If the girl is of the opinion that no one will ask her in wedlock she leaves home. The peasant girl goes to some distant district and soon returns home a widow, saying that she married while away and her husband died during their honeymoon. The girl of more fortunate position goes upon far travels. In a year or two her friends hear that she is wedded to some foreigner, whom, if she does not win by her charms alone, she gets by her affection plus a dot. In a year or two she returns to Russia a broken hearted widow. No embarrassing questions are put to her, for in Russia it is considered bad form to mention a dead man to his living widow. All this goes to show in what high repute Russian women regard the institution of marriage.

Better than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Peculiarities of Iron.

Men who have worked a lifetime in fashioning cast iron under the lathe are greatly surprised on learning that the same material, when employed in the heating pipes of a blast furnace stove, grows from six inches to a foot in length from constant use. And the furnace man is equally unprepared to hear that the core bars used for cast pipes lose as much as three inches in casting twenty or thirty pieces.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlains Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opion or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. H. G. DAVIS' LETTER

Of Formal Acceptance of His Nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE A. B. PARKER

Deals with Taxes, Government Expenses, Tariff, Trusts and Civil Service.

In his formal letter of acceptance Henry G. Davis, democratic candidate for vice president, writes:

In accordance with custom and my promise, I submit the following observations upon some of the questions now before the country.

The times are propitious for the reinstatement of the democratic party in control of the government. The public mind is being disillusioned of the pretension of the republican party, so long and so arrogantly made, that the material prosperity of the country depends upon its own ascendancy. Patriotic and thoughtful people are becoming more and more distrustful of the heady and personal element of the present administration, and are more than willing to see it replaced by one that better recognizes constitutional and other lawful restraints. They demand that the present wasteful extravagance in the expenditure of the money drawn by taxation from the industry of the people shall cease, and that economy and honesty in the public service shall be again regarded as virtues in the high places of the government.

The expenditures per capita of the government are increasing at an alarming rate. When the present administration went into power there was a large surplus, but notwithstanding the enormous taxation, the revenues therefrom are not now adequate to meet the demands made by reckless appropriations. The revenues fell short during the last fiscal year of over $40,000,000. In the first sixty days of this fiscal year the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $[illegible],000,000, and if this rate of excess should continue the deficit for the present fiscal year would be in the neighborhood of $140,000,000. This needless deficit is due to the extravagance of the administration and can only be met by imposing additional taxes or selling bonds, thereby increasing the interest-bearing debt of the government. The cost of government during the fiscal year was $7.14 per capita, which means that the average tax paid in some form or another by every family of five persons toward the support of the national administration of public affairs was over $35, which, in the case of wage earners is a considerable percentage of their entire earnings for the year.

In answer to criticisms upon the size and expense of maintaining the army, the president has said that the number of soldiers now is no greater per capita than in former times. But an army then was necessary to protect settlers from the Indians and to do other police duty in the unsettled portion of the country—conditions which do not now exist. The army, however, has greatly increased in cost much faster relatively than it has in numbers.

The expenses were:

Under Buchanan in 1860 ..$16,500,000
Under Roosevelt in 1904 ..115,000,000

We all hail as the harbinger of the new era in the commerce of the world the inception of the great work of building the canal that is to join the two great oceans; but we deprecate the action of the present administration, which inflicted a wound upon our national honor by its disregard of the rights of a weaker nation in order to gain a doubtful credit for energy in forwarding that great enterprise.

Our federal constitution has appropriated to the exclusive use of the general government the power of indirect taxation, covered by the popular designation of "tariff duties."

That many of the existing tariff rates are excessive and enable powerful combinations to extort unjust and oppressive tribute from the people can not be controverted. The tariff is undoubtedly too high upon such articles as enables the manufacturer to sell his products abroad cheaper than at home. Steel rails are a conspicuous example in this respect. It is admitted that they are being made for $15 a ton. A few years ago they were freely sold in this country at $17 a ton. They are now selling at the mills here for home consumption at $28 a ton, and for the foreign markets at from $18 to $22 a ton.

It is estimated that there are in the United States between two and three hundred combinations of capital and corporate interests known as trusts, which have grown up in the last few years under republican rule. Some of them are so conducted as to be pernicious and harmful to the general interest.

The declaration in the St. Louis platform in favor of arbitration is one that appeals to my sense of fairness. Nations and states have employed to advantage this method of settling disputed questions, states have invoked its aid with good results and individuals frequently have resort to it in adjusting questions of difference.

All lovers of their country must deprecate the rehabilitation by the republican party of a disappearing race issue, at a time when every effort should be made to promote rather than retard the progress which was being made in the states where slavery had existed toward kindlier relations between the two races. The revival of this issue, with all its attendant evils, must of necessity retard the development of the southern states, whose people are struggling manfully with conditions left by the war and seriously interferes with the industrial progress of both races.

Offices are created and filled in pursuance of law to carry on the government, and not to further party ambitions and the selfish purpose of any citizen. Many of the hundred thousand federal office holders, servants of all the people, while under salary, are now vigorously, some covertly and some openly, working and contributing in the present campaign to secure the success of the republican party by defiant violation of the civil service laws, rules and regulations.

The late democratic convention and its candidate for president have given signal exhibition of a mutual respect and confidence almost unprecedented in our political history, and our party has received new inspiration and hope in its appeal to the people, who always appreciate and admire courage, character and discretion in their leaders. Our candidate has these qualities and can be depended upon at all times to observe that self-control in speech and action which is so necessary to safe reasoning and sound judgment.

With unabated trust in the efficiency of the cardinal principles of our great party, when applied to the practical administration of government, to realize the blessings of peace and prosperity for all and believing that the people will correct the present abuses of administration by a change of party in power, I await with confidence the result of their judgment at the polls. Very truly yours,

HENRY G. DAVIS.

WHOLESALE BRIBERY

Outlined in Confession of Former Speaker Kelly, of Missouri.

In a written confession Charles F. Kelly, speaker of the Missouri house of delegates during a period in the life of the boodle combine, relates his story of that combine. He declared that a prominent politician promised himself and others that the next circuit attorney "would be all right," and promises if they would remain firm he would secure for them either continuances until the new circuit attorney took office or pardons afterwards.

In the course of his confession Former Speaker Kelly said:

"I know from my knowledge and from the statements made to me by those on the inside that bribery has been going on in the municipality assembly in St. Louis for the past twenty-five years. Hardly a bill passed that body in the last quarter of a century unless it was paid for. We did not fear exposure and punishment, for the reason we believed no one would dare to do it. In case of attacks we knew most of the politicians and men of the large financiers of St. Louis would be with us. A former prosecutor showed some signs of starting after us, but he was bluffed off.

"When the present prosecutor (Folk is meant here) commenced his war on us we tried to intimidate him by threats of assassination, and when this had no effect we laid all sorts of traps for him without success."

BURNED TO DEATH.

Was Tryng to Save Furniture When Overcome by Flames.

At Centre Mrs. Martha Haney lost her life Saturday night in a fire which consumed the building in which the family resided and practically all the household effects.

The family had retired for the night when the fire broke out, and the flames had already made considerable progress when discovered. On being aroused Mrs. Haney hurried to the upper story of the building and was throwing furniture to the ground below when she was overcome by a draught of fire and smoke which roared up through the stairway.

Accidentally Shot.

A. F. Scheral, a miner, was accidentally shot in the hand and abdomen at Flat Top by Joe Cardell, another miner, and may die from the wounds.

It seems that Cardell had a new pistol and was exhibiting it to several of his friends, or playing with it, when he dropped it from his hands and the hammer struck on the floor, exploding the pistol. The bullet passed through Scheral's hand and into the abdomen.

Truck Growers.

Formal call has been issued for the annual convention of the Southern Truck Growers' Association which will be held at Newton, Miss., on the 25th and 26th of November. It is expected that delegates from every local association in Mississippi and many from adjoining states will be present. The association was organized several months ago, and this is the first formal convention.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Supreme Court's Verdict Concerning the Test Case on the Lusk Bill.

MUDDLE IN MADISON COUNTY

Cases Against Lynchers May be Invalid—Jefferson County Affected.

What is commonly known as the Lusk law, an act which redistricted the judiciary system of the state and which was passed at the last session of the legislature, has been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of Alabama. As a result leading lawyers say the judiciary system of the state is in the worst tangle experienced since the admission of Alabama into the union in the year of 1819.

Citizens have been nominated to offices which do not exist, under this decision, and pressure will be brought to bear upon Acting Governor Cunningham to call an extraordinary session of the legislature at once to remedy the trouble before it sinks hopelessly into the mire of legal complications.

The decision of the court reads:

"Board of Revenue of Jefferson County et al. vs. Edward C. Crow, appeal from Jefferson court; affirmed."

The court holds "that the journal of the house does not show that the house concurred in the amendment adopted by the senate as required by section 64 of the constitution, and that therefore the bill as signed by the speaker of the house and president of the senate and approved by the governor, was not constitutionally passed by the two houses."

The supreme court will hand down an opinion at a future date, but will presumably announce its findings early so that time would be had for the finding of any remedy deemed advisable before the judges are elected in November.

The journals of the senate and house show that the Lusk bill passed the house and was sent to the senate. The senate committee reported back with a substitute for the Lusk bill, and this was adopted by the senate. The senate then added two amendments to the substitute and sent the bill back to the house. The house refused to concur in the amendments, and a conference committee was appointed. The conference finally decided that the senate should recede from the amendments, and this report was adopted by the house. In some manner, however, the house failed to pass the substitute as passed by the senate and consequently the bill that passed the senate did not pass the house. This is the point in detail on which the decision was reached by the supreme court.

The most serious trouble arising from the decision is the peculiar conditions which surround the court now engaged in hearing the cases of alleged lynchers at Huntsville. Under the decision the law by which Judge Paul Speake and Solicitor Erle Pettus were appointed is invalid and they have been conducting a court which is legally not a court.

Under these conditions the indictments found against the alleged lynchers will not hold, and all of the work of that court will have to be done over with Madison in the eighth judicial circuit as it was before the Lusk bill was passed.

The matter now rests with Governor Cunningham. If he calls an extra session and the Lusk bill is regularly passed and made a law all of the present nominations will stand and the acts of the courts which have already met can be validated. Otherwise the circuits will be the same as they were.

One Inch from His Heart.

Ed Carleton, a white man, was stabbed within one inch of his heart at Helena by another white man whose name is said to be Joe Phillips. An operation was performed. He is considered out of danger and will probably recover.

TONGUE BROKE,

Resulting in a Runaway That May Prove Fatal.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hartwig and an adopted son were seriously injured while on their way to town by the horses they were driving becoming frightened and running away. Both of Mrs. Hartwig's jaws were broken and a gash cut on the head. She also sustained serious internal injuries. She is expected to die.

Mr. Hartwig and the adopted son were seriously hurt, but not fatally. The runaway was caused by the carriage tongue breaking while going down a steep grade.

Only One Case.

It was authoritatively announced that no other judicial case except the attack on the Lusk act will be considered at the special term of the supreme court now in session. That other legal fights may be made on other courts and circuits will have to be postponed until the regular November term of the court.

LYNCHING CASES

At Huntsville Disposed of for Some Time.

The seven lynching cases on the docket of the circuit court at Huntsville have all been disposed of for the present. The jury on the murder case of James H. Mitchell was unable to agree, standing eleven for acquittal and one for conviction, and on no ballot was the standing changed. This one juryman was the only one in 72 jurors who favored the conviction of an alleged lyncher.

Mitchell will have to spend several months in jail until the February term of court, application for bail having been refused. It is the opinion of those who heard the evidence that the old man would have been acquitted had he not talked so much.

Tom Winkle, charged with arson, was acquitted, his jury remaining out only a few minutes.

About one hundred and fifty talesmen were examined and a jury formed for the trial of the case of James Armstrong, charged with murder, when it was found that an important witness for the state had disappeared. The state asked for a continuance, and it was granted. Efforts were made to induce the judge to allow Armstrong to make bond, but Judge Speake refused. However, he agreed to give Armstrong a trial at the civil term of court in November. There were six trials of alleged lynchers in ten days, five were acquitted and there was one mistrial. There are eighteen unserved warrants for alleged lynchers in the hands of the sheriff, and it is probable that many of them, seeing the result of these trials, will return home, surrender and stand trial at the next term of court.

WRECKED IN THE GULF.

And Cast Away on an Island for Days.

Captain Frank Lighton, a collector for the Smithsonian institution, Washington, was brought into Biloxi, Miss., from Chandleur island, Mississippi sound, where he had been cast away since Thursday night last.

Captain Lighton was out in his sloop Hero looking for specimens, and was some miles in the open gulf when he encountered a terrific gale, in which his sloop was overturned, and he was thrown into the sea to battle for his life against a gulf stream. He succeeded in reaching a skiff which he was towing and first tried to reach a schooner about a mile out to sea, but the weather getting so thick and the waves running so high, the night coming on, lost sight of the schooner, and he made for Chandleur island.

May Change Course.

From indications it appears that there is a strong probability that the bed of the Rio Grande will be shown when the waters have receded to be occupying the bed of the Arroyo Colorado, which ages ago was its original bed.

Should this be true, the people of Texas, who would be bereft of the river, would suffer greatly. The city of Brownsville would be cut off from the river, the miles of irrigation ditches and canals dug would be rendered worthless and property values dependent upon the Rio Grande's flow would be materially cut down.

Tennessee River Low.

Reports from towns along the Tennessee river are to the effect that unless there is a rise in the water in the next few days there will be great losses sustained by shippers. Many steamboats are tied up and those that are running have to pick their way carefully through the deeper channel.

The Nasnville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway has been compelled to lighten the cargoes of its transfer boats between Hobbs island and Guntersville and even now nearly twice the schedule time between the two points is consumed in the trip.

New Industries in Georgia.

Washington—Ice factory.

Savannah—Cotton compress.

Cartersville—$25,000 cotton mill.

Cordele—Implement works; $75,000 oil mill, gin and fertilizer plant.

Higdon Resigns.

Colonel E. L. Higdon, of the Third regiment, A. N. G., tendered his resignation to Acting Governor Cunningham, for the sake of harmony in the regiment. He says his action was the result of several days' consideration of the situation. He states that he now sees an opportunity to resign and allow the regiment to have a complete set of officers.

The resignation is without condition, Colonel Higdon not even requesting to be placed on the retired list, although he says he considers that his seventeen years in the national guard entitles him to this honor.

Russell Vice President M. and O.

A special from New York says Colonel E. L. Russell, of Mobile, has been elected vice president and local executive officer of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company at Mobile and appointed Richard V. Taylor, general manager to succeed Charles E. Clarke, who was elected first vice president of the Missouri Pacific.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending September 26, 1904.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

While the weather conditions of the past week were generally favorable for gathering crops, dry weather continues in middle and southeastern counties, injuring late cotton, late corn and minor crops, but elsewhere over the state fairly well distributed and beneficial showers fell, being locally heavy with high winds, damaging crops in Calhoun county on the 22d. Complaints of cotton shedding and rusting are still received, but not so general as previously reported. It continues to open rapidly and picking is active, though pickers are scarce in some localities, the top crop will be light, and the indications are if the weather continues favorable, that the staple will be picked earlier than usual, with a yield quite as good as that of last year. Early corn is being gathered slowly, on account of cotton picking taking preference, with a very good yield, but late corn is deteriorated through lack of moisture in middle and southeastern counties. Sorghum and sugar cane is being ground with satisfactory yields. Pastures, gardens and all minor crops have improved, where rains were received. The saving of hay continues with an excellent yield.

Noted Robber and Assassin in St. Augustine, Fla.

After two years and eight months liberty, Frank Duncan, the [illegible] Frank Miller, safe blowers, who escaped from jail at Birmingham, has been captured.

His arrest occurred in Florida ten days ago, following the blowing of a safe and the theft of its contents.

Frank Duncan, according to information, has been in Florida for some time. He is said to have been making his home in a remote section of Florida, living in a little cabin. His wife has been with him in Florida. They are said to have been living as sister and brother.

Recently he is said to have blown a safe in the vicinity of Palatka and securing some money and other valuables.

The fact of the robbery was early discovered and the officers were on the trail while it was yet warm. They followed the fleeing robber until he was brought to bay and finally overpowered and captured him with the booty on his person.

AN AMERICAN YOUTH.

A Famous Son Who Won the Cecil Rhodes Scholarship.

New York has cause for self-congratulation in the representative that the State has chosen for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford in the person of Warren Ellis Schutt, Cornell, 1905. The sturdy Ithacan will be as splendid a type of American manhood as will be sent abroad to the English university by any State in the Union. Schutt's career is thoroughly interesting. He is the son of a prosperous farmer who lives six miles from Ithaca. Young Schutt got his primary education at a country school near his home, and then won a four-year scholarship in the Ithaca High School in a competitive examination. Instead of moving into Ithaca to live, or even driving to and from school with one of his father's teams, as he might easily have done, Schutt walked to and from the high school each morning and night. In this way he prepared for Cornell University. His first year in college he continued to walk to and from his home. His scholarship continued to be of the same high standard as in the high school, and he took all the prizes and scholarships to which he was eligible, ending up with the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford University. In his sophomore year for the first time Schutt entered college athletics. There the trainer took him under his care and developed him into the greatest cross-country runner in the country. It was here his twelve miles of daily walking to and from his home counted in Schutt's favor in the physical condition of the athlete. He ran in Cornell's victorious cross-country teams against Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania. On the track team he captured the two-mile intercollegiate run and lowered the time. Last May he duplicated the feat and was subsequently elected captain of Cornell's 1905 track team. This position he will, of course, resign upon his going to England. He is only twenty years old, stands more than six feet in height and weighs more than 165 pounds.—Illustrated Sporting News.

The Venetian courts have been trying to ascertain whether Prince Carlo Vincenzo Giovanni, who is known to have been alive in 1703, is dead yet. The disposal of a claim to more than $1,000,000 is at issue. So far no death certificate in the case has been producible, but a priest has offered to swear that the prince is no longer alive, and his deposition will be accepted.

In pensions women are in the lead. Mrs. Garfield and Mrs. McKinley receive $5,000 a year each. Mrs. Philip H. Sheridan receives $2,500, while the pensions of Mrs. Logan, Mrs. McClellan and Mrs. Frank Blair are each $2,000. Eighteen widows of generals and admirals receive $1,200 a year.

Waked Up All Kinds of Snakes.

Snakes are unusually plentiful in the Middletown Valley this year, if the report of Farmer George Cramer is reliable, for he tells the champion story of the season. He lives at Catoctin Switch, in the southern part of the valley, and says that while he was mowing clover a few days ago a large blacksnake jumped up from the grass and landed on the machine. He stopped the machine and killed the reptile, which measured five and a half feet.

Later in the day he picked up a bunch of hay to give to one of the horses, when he felt something move in his hand. Investigation revealed the fact that he had picked up a rattlesnake in the hay. He dropped it pretty quick and killed it. But this is not all. Toward evening, while hauling the hay from the field to the barn, he heard a peculiar noise back of his head while seated on the saddle horse. Upon glancing around, his face came almost in contact with a large copperhead snake that was sticking out of the load of hay. He stopped the team and killed the intruder.

While cutting the hay during the day he killed two blacksnakes and three copperheads.

Mr. Joseph Huffer, south of Middletown, has so far this season killed twelve large blacksnakes on his farm. Mrs. Christopher Ringgold, of the same vicinity, killed a six foot blacksnake in her henhouse.—Baltimore Sun.

The Coffee Smokers.

Two old men in blue uniforms, veterans attending the soldiers' reunion, sat on a bench in Boston Common.

"What was your hardest week during the war?" said the first veteran.

"My hardest week," the other answered, "was the one when I had no tobacco. I'll never forget that."

He paused to light a cigar. Then he went on:

"Do you know what we all smoked during that week? Why, sir, we all smoked coffee. We ground up our coffee coarse, and smoked it in our pipes."

The other veteran looked interested.

"How did it taste?" he said.

"Taste? Why, it tasted about like you'd think it would."

"Smelt good, I bet you."

"Yes, smelt all right."

"Any bad effect from it?"

"Gorry, yes. Took the skin off all our tongues."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Whopper From Pennsylvania.

While picking huckleberries on the mountains near Hagerman's Run, near Williamsport, on Sunday, D. W. Mack and son, Lewis, of South Williamsport, walked into a den of about thirty rattlesnakes. An exciting fight followed, the two men using stones and clubs. Seventeen of the snakes were killed, the others seeking safety in the crevices of the rocks.

During the battle Mr. Mack, who held an open jack knife in his hand, ribbed a gash ten inches long in a snake's body, and a mink, which had been swallowed by the reptile, crawled through the hole and tried to get away, but was so nearly dead from the squeezing it had received and confinement in the reptile's body that it could not get far, and Mr. Mack killed it with a blow of his club.—Wellsboro Agitator.

Guatemala's Big Coffee Crop.

When the volcanic eruptions in Guatemala last year covered the coffee fincas it was believed that the industry was ruined and that Guatemala had received a blow from which recovery would be slow. Many planters abandoned their ash covered plantations and believed themselves ruined. But the activity of the volcanoes was followed by heavy and long continued rains, which washed away a great deal of the ashes and incorporated more of them with the soil. The rain also seemed to bleach the ashes and extract from it a liquid fertilizer which proved of great benefit to the coffee trees. The result is a crop nearly as large again as last year's. Hereafter when the volcanoes of Guatemala erupt and spout ashes the only unfortunate coffee planters will be those whose fincas are outside of the showers.—London Globe.

PORTO RICO REGENERATE

TROPICAL SPECIALITIES THAT WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THE ISLAND.

The Prosperity Must Always Rest on Its Agriculture—The Litchi Tree—Prospects for Sapodillas—The Cashew Tree—Ylang-Ylang Oil.

Tropical Porto Rico is to be revolutionized. American influences there may not always have been for the best, but the process of adaptation is steadily progressing. When this is completed there will be a new future for Porto Rico. The prosperity of the island must always rest in its agriculture, but this must be brought up to date, and made to yield its quota of the world's goods that are in special demand.

Under the scientific directions of the department of agriculture it is proposed to make Porto Rico an island of specialties—specialties in tropical commercial fruits. Sugar, tobacco, and a few other staple products will not be abandoned, but the island's salvation appears to lie in other directions. It needs more variety of industries—more materials out of which to weave a solid, substantial prosperity.

The soil, climate, and other conditions are all there, and even the products in some instances, but there have been lacking the brains and the ability to adapt nature to the demands of the day. For some time now government experts have been studying the botany of the island, and incidentally experimenting with some of the native and important plants of commercial value. The opening of the prosperity of Porto Rico will begin with the cultivation of these plants according to the most recent scientific methods. Many of them are indigenous to the island, but either through lack of proper culture, or ignorance of their commercial value, they have been of little real use to the natives. Others are to be imported from the Orient and transplanted to the island for cultivation. They are eminently adapted to the soil and climate of Porto Rico, and hence there is little doubt, in the minds of the scientists having the matter in charge, about their success.

One of these new plants to be transplanted from southern China or British India is the litchi tree (Litchi chinensis), which is eminently adapted to a climate and soil such as furnished in Porto Rico. Specimens of these trees have been brought to this country and experimented with in the Washington greenhouses, and plantations of them are expected to be planted in Porto Rico by the government experts within the next year. A litchi orchard once started should prove a source of income for the owner for a lifetime. The fresh fruit has a delicious flavor, and dried the fruits resemble raisins in appearance. A few of these dried fruits are imported from the Orient every year, and they sell as high as 50 cents a quart. In the far east, however, they are eaten chiefly in their fresh, acid condition. Enormous quantities are consumed, and they are considered by natives and visiting foreigners in southern China, British India, and the Malay Peninsula as most excellent fruits. The cultivation of plantations of these fruit trees in Porto Rico should open a market here for their products, and in a short time the industry should prove a most paying and satisfying one.

The sapodilla tree is one that visitors to Florida see at times, but it has never been raised on a commercial scale in that state. The sapodillas are fruits that are greatly enjoyed in tropical countries, and there is a growing demand in our northern markets as they are better appreciated. The question of raising these in Porto Rico on a large commercial scale is not a doubtful or visionary one. It is believed that there is a great future for the trees when they are raised in sufficient quantities to make it worth while to introduce the fruits in our cities. These fruits could be brought by steamers direct to this country, and if properly refrigerated in transportation they would offer a tempting fruit to the millions of consumers in the United States. In Porto Rico there is no frost to endanger the life and production of the trees, and a plantation should continue to produce for upward of 20 years. When too old to yield a good crop, the trees furnish a most excellent and costly, close-grained wood that sells for nearly as much as the cost of starting and cultivating the grove for the first few years.

The tree which produces the cashew nut of commerce is a tropical growth that can be raised in Porto Rico on a large scale, and it is estimated that plantations of this tree alone should add many millions of dollars to the island's income within the next half century if its cultivation is wisely and faithfully attended to. The cashew nut is of superior flavor, and of great value in candy making. Its flavor is delicious, and the oil expressed from it is considered for many purposes superior to almond oil. The few cashew nuts brought from the West Indies to this country are readily absorbed, but their imports have been so small, and the prices so high, that they have never received the popular attention they deserve.

From the juice of the cashew tree many commercial products are made, such as muslige, chewing gum, and various lotions and anaesthetics. The use of the products of the tree is so varied that it would require a good deal of descriptive text to explain them. The wood of the trees is excellent for commercial purposes, and has a close, compact, unyielding grain. Plantations of these trees should represent an agricultural specialty great against nearly every kind of local disaster, except possible hurricanes.

A tree known as Cedrela odorata, but commonly spoken of in tropical countries where it grows as ylang-ylang, thrives wonderfully well in Porto Rico. It is known in that island as the West Indian cedar, and its wood is more compact and beautiful than the best Central American mahogany. From different parts of Porto Rico this tree has been foolishly cut down and wastefully used for cabinet work and house-building. The flowers of this tree are beautiful and fragrant. From them is extracted a commercial product almost equal to the famous attar of roses. This attar of ylang-ylang is what makes the trees most valuable. It sells as high as $5 per pound. Ylang-ylang oil has been held as an exclusive monopoly by France and Germany, but a steady cultivation of the trees in Porto Rico should lead to a change. The oil is extracted by simple processes and without the use of chemicals, and from 75 pounds of the flowers a pound of oil is usually produced. In Europe the oil of ylang-ylang is used as the basic essence of the best perfumes as much as the famous attar of roses.—George K. Walsh, in the Scientific American.

JAPANESE PAPER.

Varieties Superior to Ours Made From Bark of Trees and Shrubs.

From the bark of trees and shrubs the Japanese make scores of papers, which are far ahead of ours. The walls of the Japanese houses are wooden frames covered with thin paper which keeps out the wind but lets in the light, and when one compares these paper walled "doll houses" with the gloomy bamboo cabins of the inhabitants of the island of Java or the small-windowed huts of our forefathers, one realizes that, without glass and in a rainy climate, these ingenious people have solved in a remarkable way the problem of lighting their dwellings and, at least in a measure, of keeping out the cold. Their oiled papers are astonishingly cheap and durable. As a cover for his load of tea when a rainstorm overtakes him, the Japanese farmer spreads over it a tough, pliable cover of oiled paper, which is almost as impervious as tarpaulin and as light as gossamer. He has doubtless carried this cover for years, neatly packed away somewhere about his cart. The "rikisha" coolies in the large cities wear rain mantles of this oiled paper, which cost less than 15 cents and last for a year or more with constant use. An oiled tissue paper, which is as tough as writing paper, can be had at the stationer's for wrapping up delicate articles. Grain and meal sacks are almost always made of bark paper in Japan, for it is not easily penetrated by weevils and other insects. But perhaps the most remarkable of all the papers which find a common use in the Japanese household are the leather papers of which the tobacco pouches and pipe cases are made. They are almost as tough as French kid, so translucent that one can nearly see through them, and as pliable and soft as calfskin. The material of which they are made is as thick as cardboard, but as flexible as kid.—David G. Fairchild in the National Geographic Magazine.

Truly Good.

"What is your idea of a truly good wife?" asked the youth.

Dangerous Scheme.

The Mother—How can I get my boy to do right? The Friend—Give him good advice. The Mother—But he always does just the contrary of what I recommend. The Friend—Then give him bad advice.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Out of the Question.

Her Husband—I suppose a woman would have to be quite a philosopher to be indifferent to her appearance. She—She'd have to be a lunatic.—Brooklyn Life.

"I read the NEW YORK WORLD Every Day."

THE WORLD Elected Cleveland.

"It may be said without reservation that if the Democratic party in my first campaign had lacked the forceful and potent advocacy of Democratic principles at that time by the NEW YORK WORLD the result might have been reversed."—Grover Cleveland's Letter to The World, May 10, 1903.

Bryan on THE WORLD.

"THE WORLD never during the last twenty years considered itself a party paper. It promised to spread truly Democratic principles and truly Democratic ideas, and it has done so, and will do so, with entire independence of bosses, machines and platforms, following only the dictates of its conscience."—Quoted, with approval, by William J. Bryan in the Commoner, July 10, 1903.

BOTH SIDES OF THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of an arbitrary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to bring straight combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the permanent acclimatization of the American flag in any country in which the Declaration of Independence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these ends The World pledges all its energies.

To encourage the prompt formation of clubs for the campaign a special commission of 20 per cent. will be allowed clubbers, or parties forming clubs of ten or more in any town.

Talma on Balloons.

In an interesting old letter dated 1784 Talma, the French tragedian, discusses the future of balloons. At that period aeronauts were regarded as strange folk, but few people could resist the fascination of a voyage through the air, expensive and dangerous though it was. Talma remarks in this letter that "we are promised many advantages through the means of these balloonists. The most distant objects will be presented to the mind of the traveler almost in a glance. Where will it lead us—to the moon? They speak of a world in that planet. What vast fields are opening before us!"
